WHITE RIBBONS ON HACK LICENSES

Pledges Go With Most of 1912 Permits Issued by Mayor Today.

MR. MOY DELIVERS A TALK

Which Moves the Young Jehus to Foreswear Strong Drink—Hoary-Headed Veterans to Be Abstainers On Their Honor.

When the various hackmen appeared before Mayor G. W. V. Moy in his office this morning to receive their licenses for 1912 they met with a new experience. After complimenting the jehus upon the improved conditions about the North Avenue station where the hackmen ply their trade, Mr. Moy gave them a kindly lecture regarding the use of intoxicants. When he had concluded the majority of them took the pledge before him to abstain from the use of strong drink.

The pledge was more particularly for the younger men engaded in the business. The Mayor, turning to several of the white-haired veterans in the service, remarked:

"I will not require any pledge of you, for I do not believe that it is necessary. Your records are sufficient evidence of your desire and intention to strictly observe the city ordinance."

The hackmen showed every disposition to co-operate with Mr. Moy in his efforts to provide the best possible service, and unanimously agreed to meet his wishes. The session was an extremely harmonious one and everyone departed with the best of feeling toward the Mayor, while the latter felt assured that he had the confidence and support of the hackmen.

ANOTHER BILL FOR EASIER REGISTRATION BEFORE HOUSE

Trenton, March 1.—Voters in the employ of the Uniter States government and who reside outside this State are permitted to register by affidavit, by a bill passed yesterday afternoon by the Assembly. The measure was introduced by Mr. Hildreth, of Cape May county.

It provides that such voters shall have the right to be registered by affidavit for any primary and general, State or municipal election in the place where he has a legal residence. Election officers are required to accept such affidavit if received by mail or by proxy prior to or on the last registration day.

Under the Geran election law there is no provision for the registration of voters who are outside the State, and so they are compelled to lose their vote.

BOUND BROOK TO HAVE $90,000 C. R. R. STATION

Vice-President Besler Gives Shock of Pleasure to Boroughites at Trade Board Banquet --Climax to Notable Gathering.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Bound Brook, Mar. 1.—Vice-President W. G. Besler, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, journeyed from Plainfield to Bound Brook last night, and tickled the members of the local Board of Trade at their annual banquet beyond measure when he told them that the new and long-hoped-for railroad station was at last in sight. His announcement was the culmination of a gathering originally arranged so that the members could felicitate themselves upon having secured for the community the big manufacturing plant of the W. H. Johns-Manville Company, which will come there with 1,800 employes before another year passes.

The dinner was held at the Berkeley Hotel, and was attended by over one hundred representative men from both the business and commuting elements in the community. Besides Mr. Besler, who created the greatest interest because of his announcement, the speakers included former Governor E. C. Stokes, Rev. Frank Moore, head of the State Reformatory at Rahway, Senator W. W. Smalley, of Somerset county, who is president of the Board of Trade, and Mayor E. D. LaTourette, of South Bound Brook. A. S. Newbery was the toastmaster.

Senator Smalley was the first speaker, and he dwelt at length upon the charms of the borough as a place of homes, and predicted much greater things for it when the Johns-Manville factory materializes, with the 5,000 or more people it will bring with it.

The Senator congratulated those present on the gathering, saying that it indicated a substantial interest in the future of the place, and a get-together spirit seldom if ever before manifested. He commended the railroad for the many things it had done to help the town.

Mayor LaTourette was the next speaker, and he amused the diners with his humorous remarks about the beauties of his "balliwick," and by his good-natured jabs at the Bound Brook passenger station. He was followed by Mr. Besler, who after a few introductory remarks said that it was very evident he had been brought there to tell those present about "that new station."

Mr. Besler assured his hearers that after many years of patient waiting they were really to get a station, and that in order to build the most modern and up-to-date one yet erected along the line of the road, it will be found necessary to spend at least $90,000 and perhaps more, because of certain work of elevation which will be necessary. He congratulated the Bound Brook people on their progress, told them of some of the difficulties which the company encountered in the Jersey City yards every day, where during certain rush hours a train movement was made every 56 seconds, and pleased all the auditors by his assurance of every possible co-operation on the part of the railroad in boosting the place in the future.

Rev. Frank Moore also spoke in a congratulatory tone, and then described some of the splendid work which is being done at the State Reformatory at Rahway. He told how the earning power and general ability of the men sent to that institution is increased about one hundred per cent. by the instruction, both moral and educational, which is given to them while there.

Former Governor Stokes was the last speaker, and many present who had heard him speak a dozen or more times said that he was at his best. He told a number of humorous stories, urged upon them the necessity of co-operation, rather than competition; spoke of American progress and character; complimented the borough on the "capture" of the Johns-Manville concern. He said that he had tried to get them himself, but he would not have tried it had he known Bound Brook was looking for the concern. He called attention to the fact that New Jersey was a State where many great experiments had been made, citing the incandescent light, the steam boat, the Morse telegraph and malleable iron as examples. His only reference to politics brought forth applause when he said that at the present time William McKinley would make an elegant compromise candidate for the presidency.

When the diners left the hall shortly before midnight, they all declared it the most successful gathering of the kind ever held in Bound Brook. The members of the committee which arranged it were Postmaster W. B. R. Mason, A. S. Newbery, Herbert Howard, George C. Smalley and H. V. S. Negus. During the evening several splendid tenor solos were rendered by Wyckoff Suydam, accompanied by Russell Bailey.

The officers of the Board of Trade are Senator W. W. Smalley, president; J. V. D. Field, first vicepresident; S. H. Miller, second vice-president; David Hastings, secretary, and J. G. Fisher, treasurer.

"STAND FAST!" CRY OF CITIZENS TO REVILLE

Flood of Letters and Callers Pledge Councilman Moral and Financial Support Should Saloon Man He Denounced Start Suit.

Closely following the announcement in Wednesday's Daily Press that Michael T. Watson had taken the initial steps to bring action for damages against Councilman Patrick J Reville for his speech at the liquor license session of the City Fathers Monday night, assurances of moral and financial support have poured in upon the aggressive Fourth ward member. Fully 200 letters, commending him for his stand, have already been delivered at his home and last night a delegation of citizens called upon him personally to state that he could count upon them for aid of any kind.

"We want you to reiterate all you said before the Council," remarked one of the callers; "and we will back you up no matter what the cost. Under no circumstances allow any outside influences to be brought to bear upon you as was done in another case not long since. You have spoken for every respectable and law-abiding citizen in Plainfield and they are going to show their appreciation now and later on, too."

When Mr. Reville was interviewed over the telephone at Wanamaker's store in New York this afternoon in reference to the pledges of support, he declared that they continued to pour in from all sides, many prominent men asking the privilege of bearing any court expenses that might be incurred. The case referred to by one of his callers, had to do with certain charges he made against a police official, which he withdrew later, he said, because of circumstances over which he had no control.

"You can say for me," he concluded," that I do not propose to retract my statements of Monday night and am prepared to contest any action."

PATROLMAN MESSLER QUITS POLICE FORCE

Patrolman William G. Messler, who would have completed his ninth year of service in the city police service tomorrow, tendered his resignation to Chief Kiely this afternoon. He leaves the department immediately in order to enter a well established business which he recently purchased.

Patrolman Messler's retirement comes as a great surprise to his many friends and he doffs the helmet and brass buttons with the regret of all. Because of his genial disposition he was known everywhere as "Happy" or "Old Bill" and more than one citizen will miss his cheery greeting on post. Recently he has been doing day duty in the West End and the "kids" of all sizes and colors in that section believe he is "the real thing" in the cop business.

Since his appointment to the force, Messler has been decidedly active in bettering the policeman's lot. He was foremost in the fight at Trenton to secure the passage of the police pension bill and championed it before the Laws and Ordinances Committee of the Common Council until its adoption. Other councilmanic action benefiting his brother patrolmen was brought about in no small measure through his initial effort. He was the first president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, serving two terms, and at the present time is its secretary. He quits the department with an absolutely clean record, never having been before the Police Board on any charge or marked up for missing a call box report.

WILDCAT STOCKS ARE UNDER FIRE

Assembly Bill Aims to Drive Cultivators of "Sucker List" From State.

DEPARTMENT HEADS APPROVE

Attorney-General and State Banking Commissioner Want Measure Passed—It Has the Sharp Teeth of the Kansas Model.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—Wildcat speculation concerns are hit in a bill introduced in the Assembly yesterday afternoon by Assemblyman John E. Gill, of this city. The aim of the measure is to drive out the State "high finance" companies or individuals which trade on the people through speculation. If the measure shall become a law, it will be one of the most far reaching measures of the session.

The bill requires reports from concerns that offer stock for sale, and gives power to bar those sales that will evidently prove profitable to nobody, except the promoter. The measure gives the State the power to control the selling of all wildcat securities within its own borders. Every corporation organized in New Jersey will come under the act, if it shall become a law. Before offering any stock, bond or security for sale, a dealer or company must file with the Commissioner of Banking an Insurance a statement in complete detail giving an itemized exhibit of its financial condition, assets, liabilities description of property, the plan upon which it proposes to do business, a copy of its charter, by-laws and of all contracts that it proposes to make with stock purchasers, these to be verified by the head of the company.

All of these companies are to be subject to examination by the State Banking Department at any time, the same as now provided in the case of State banks, and in addition each house is required to file a detailed statement with the State Department

FINDLAY LIKELY TO DEFEND HIS PLACE

Said to be Getting Ready For Post Mortem Before License Committee.

SOLONS OFFER HIM NO HOPE

Planning a Stringent Regulation to Prevent the Sale of Liquor to Women—Talk of Doubling the License Fee.

There is an apparently well-founded rumor in circulation today that Alexander D. Findlay, a renewal of whose license was denied at the meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, had expressed a desire to appear before the councilmanic license committee and be given an opportunity to refute some of the statements made against him on Monday night by Captain A. S. Hewitt, of the Salvation Army. With the expiration of his old license, Findlay closed his place today.

It is understood that the license committee has no particular objection to granting Mr. Findlay's request, but that the members will not hold out any promise of a favorable reconsideration of the application. It is said the reason why the committee might grant Mr. Findlay a hearing was that inquiry had revealed the fact that no complaints against the saloon man have been received by the police or the police board.

The point raised by Captain Hewitt in his talk to the Council Monday night that women had been patrons of Findlay's saloon will undoubtedly bring about an amendment to the city ordinance under which liquor licenses are granted, providing that women will not be permitted to purchase liquor in saloons.

One saloonkeeper following Monday night's action of the Council, was heard to remark that in the future he will not allow a woman in his place. It is said that a woman from the Salvation Army had been accustomed to visit his saloon once a week selling the War Cry, and although he did not take the paper, he always gave her five cents. Hereafter, he said, he would not permit even that woman to visit his saloon. "Although," he added, "I will continue to give her the price of the paper."

There is talk of eventually raising the license fee from the present figure, $1,000, to $2,000. The fact that the number of licensed places are being reduced has brought about the suggestion that those holding licenses should be willing to pay more for the privileges of selling.

PLANNING A BREAK IN LONG WEST END BLOCK

Councilmanic Committee Considers Running De Kalb Ave. Under R. R. to South 2nd St. --Taylor's Illness Sidetracks School Site.

The councilmanic street committee at its meeting, last night, took up the question of extending DeKalb avenue across West Front street, beneath the tracks of the New Jersey Central and connecting it with South Second street, in response to numerous petitions for such an improvement. There is now no street crossing the railroad between Clinton and Rock avenue.

While the committee realizes that such an improvement would cost a considerable sum, it is proposed to get estimates and report on the matter later. If the New Jersey Central could be induced to assist in cutting the street through the railroad property, it would lessen the cost to the city, and steps in that direction will be taken.

The committee also considered the advisability of extending Essex street from Darow avenue to Grant avenue and there connect with Sixth street, making a continuous thoroughfare from John street to Clinton avenue. The absence of such a street makes it very inconvenient for the children attending the Darrow Avenue School. Plans to macadamize George street were also discussed.

Owing to the fact that Councilman D. W. Taylor was ill and unable to attend the meeting, the question of extending Third place, referred to in The Plainfield Daily Press yesterday, did not come up.

However, it is estimated that such an improvement would cost between $10,000 and $15,000, and as previously stated some of the councilmen are of the opinion that it is too much money to expend in making a new street for a school, when there are other sites that are considered more advisable. One councilman says that on account of the natural swampy condition of the land in that section it would be necesary to lay a very deep foundation for the proposed thoroughfare and that would be very expensive.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most interesting characters in "Maggie Pepper," Charles Klein's play of department store life in which Rose Stahl comes to the Plainfield theatre for one performance March 4, is Jake Rothschild, the drummer, who seeks to "get solid" with the buyer in order that he may sell the store a larger bill of goods. This type of salesman is a very familiar one about the big department stores.

The person with an ambition to take a $10,000 world tour need not be disappointed if only half a dollar or less is available to gratify the desire; for Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival which comes to the Plainfield theatre on Saturday, March 23, can be depended on to present in one evening enough of foreign lands with their unfamiliar customs and scenery to compensate the many ungratified longings to see the world.

ASSEMBLY DISPOSES OF LOT OF LAWMAKING WORK

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—With the Senate taking a recess, the Assembly yesterday afternoon disposed of a lot of lawmaking work, including the passage of thirty bills, the reporting of thirteen, besides giving thirty-four bills a second reading and disposing of considerable other routine business. The House met at 1 o'clock and after clearing its calendar adjourned about 5 o'clock until Monday night.

Yesterday morning several committees were held for the consideration of pending bills, but after Speaker McCran had rapped the House to order and the members had been placed under call, the legislative business proceeded at a steady and lively rate. Among the bills passed were the following:

HUT-DWELLER LIVES LIKE WILD MAN IN ELIZABETH

Union County has a "cave man," a creature whose mode of life is perhaps a degree lower than that of the dwarfted tribes of Central Africa—a being who lives the life of an outcast, alone, uncared for, and without a dog for a companion, sheltered from the wind and rain by a few sticks and a piece of tin, living without work and eking out an existence by scraps of food gathered here and there.

The creature lives inan open front hut, scarcely six feet long and two and one-half high, without even the curtain of skins that the prehistoric Briton is said to have hung over the door of his half subterranean novel. His hut is located in Elizabeth, at the border of the division street "dump" and the meadow lands near the old glass houses.

Dressed in the remnants of old clothes found in the waste and eating the refuse picked up from the vile heaps, he has lived there for thre years, shunning the notice of all mankind. In summer and winter, rain and shine, he has lain in his hut. With the snow piled over his crude dwelling he has passed the coldest nights curled up with a little fire of twigs burning beside him between his body and the back part of the shelter.

He is unable to speak anything except his native tongue, Russian, and scarcely knows his own name.

The face of the man, after years of exposure is not attractive to look upon. The forehead recedes back from the lower part of the countenance while two beady and watery eyes look out through a tangled mass of unkempt hair. His nails are long and curled like those of a bird of prey.

The household goods of this strange man's home consists of an old kettle, part of a dinner pail, a fragment of a mirror, some old pieces of iron that had been used to repair the man's shoes, a package of little nails and some crushed cigar butts wrapped in a paper.

PROHIBITS PLACING OF CHILDREN IN JAIL

Trenton, Mar. 1.—A bill was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Colgate "to prohibit the use of jails or workhouses for the detention and incarceration of children under 16 years of age, except those charged with murder or manslaughter in counties of the first class."

The bill declares that the use of jail or workhouse for the detention of children is neither necessary nor wise and then states that it shall be lawful for the judge to temporarily commit children to a house of detention, if such a home exists, and if not, to the care and custody of any available children's home or other institution willing to receive the child.

MANEUVERS BEGIN AUG. 10; MILITIA'S BIG PROGRAM

The date for the mobilization of the National Guard of New Jersey and New York, in the defense of New York city, near the Connecticut State line, has been set for August 10. The maneuvers in which Company K will take part, will last until August 20. The New England troops, which will try to take New York from the defenders, will mobilize about five miles northeast of the city line, and from that point the attack will be made on New York.

The official order directing that the New Jersey division mobilize for field service has not yet been issued to Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., by the War Department, but General Sadler and Major-General Peter F. Wanser, who will command the New Jersey troops in the field, have been unofficially notified and the various departments are making ready to have the troops equipped for service.

With the approach of spring the National Guard of the country is facing a new situation for the first time—the outdoor period beginning in May and continuing until September—during which period the officers and men will be called on to give practical demonstration in the field of the lessons taught them in the armories during the winter by the regular army officers detailed as instructors by the War Department.

During the warm months, in addition to the field maneuvers, the soldiers of New Jersey will go out on numerous occasions as companies and battalions in the country adjacent to their home cities, and will build fortifications with entrenching tools; they will do guard and patrol work, some of it at night; build gabions and other engines of defense and offense, and hike and hike and hike until the regulars that will be supervising the work are satisfied that they are rounding into shape.

Then there will be harder armory work next year. If there are any officers who are not up to the standard—and it will be a hard one—they will be quietly placed on probation, and if they do not succeed in making up for lost time they will be given an opportunity to resign.

PHYSICIAN'S RULES FOR AVOIDING PNEUMONIA

The following list of precautions against pnemonia was made up by a New Brunswick doctor, with a wide experience.

Protect the body with proper clothing and especially the feet keeping them dry and warm.

Avoid exposure in a draft or sudden change from the heat to the cold. This sudden change should be avoided particularly when perspiring.

Sudden exposure to cold does not give pneumonia, but this produces congestion which intereferes with the circulation of the blood and does not permit the blood its proper function in protecting against the invading diesase germs.

Avoid alcoholic stimulants when feeling cold. It is better to take a cup of hot coffe, chocolate or milk.

Live in clean houses having plenty of fresh air, particularly in the sleeping apartments.

Eat good, nourishing food and take plenty time of time to eat.

The spitum of a pneumonia case is just as contagious as that of tuberculosis, and the same care should be taken of its disposal.

Public vehicles and buildings should be kept clean with tihs idea in mind.

The streets should also be kept clean.

Preparatory services will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church tonight. The subject of the sermon by Rev. Royal A. Stout, will be "Is It I?" The elders and deacons will meet afterwards to receive new members. The communion service will be held Sunday morning.

SPECULATING ON PROBABLE MIDDLESEX PROSECUTOR.

New Brunswick, Mar. 1.—The appointment of a Prosecutor of the Pleas of Middlesex county by Governor Wilson may not be made for some time to come, and if it is delayed beyond this week it is expected that Supreme Court Justice Bergen will designate Assistant Prosecutor Russell Watson to act in the interim.

Under ordinary circumstances the matter of the appointment would rest entirely with Senator Silzer and whoever he recommended would get the place. It happens, however, that Mr. Silzer is himself a candidate for the appointment as Secretary of State and it is possible that he will not insist upon his prerogative to recommend.

Assemblyman A. C. Streitwolf, of this city, is understood to be in receptive mood. The only other New Brunswick candidate much talked of is District Court Judge Freeman Woodbridge. Perth Amboy has several possibilities, including Joseph E. Stricker, Thomas Brown and Charles C. Hoffman, South Amboy offers County Solicitor John A. Coan and Metuchen has former Surrogate F. M. P. Pearse.

To Dredge at Perth Amboy.

Perth Amboy, Mar. 1.—As a result of the arguments advanced by Dr. C. W. Naulty Jr., federal helth officer here, Captain A. M. Beebe, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, and busniess concerns materially interested, the treasury department announced Tuesday that the anchorage grounds off Perth Amboy were to be extended far beyond the present limits, and that the port would be made more accessible to deep-draught vesels by the dredging of channels.

UNION COUNTY SOCIALISTS DENOUNCE GOVERNOR FOSS

Elizabeth, Mar. 1.—Governor Eugene Foss, of Massachusetts, was denouced and scored at the first annual ball given by the Socialist party of Union County. A telegram denouncing the action taken by Governor Foss in the present strike situation at Lawrence, Mas., was forwarded to him by a committee. The reading of the telegram was followed by enthusiastic applause. Nearly every one of the 1,100 persons present voted by acclamation that the message be sent to the Masachusetts executive.

The message sent to Governor Foss follows.

Governor Foss, State House, Boston, Mass.:

Two thousand Socialists assembled heretonight denounce you and hold you responsible for permitting the monstrous crime at Lawrence, Mass., by the police and militia in clubbing women and children, and treating them like slaves, forcibly denying them every constitutional American right.

You deserve to be Governor of a Russian province.

MAN WHO BUILT OREGON IS DEAD

Naval Constructor Steele In Service Thirty-two Years.

NOTABLE CAREER IS ENDED

From 1861, When He Entered Navy, Until 1893, When He Was Retired, the Dead Officer Designed and Supervised the Construction of Many Famous Vessels.

Spring Lake, N. J., March 1.—Naval Constructor Robert William Steele, U. S. N., retired, is dead at his home here. He was eighty years old and entered the service in 1861 as a master shipwright, the grade of assistant naval constructor not being in existence at the time. Throughout the civil war he was assistant to the naval constructor and in charge of 7,000 men, who built more than ten new naval vessels and converted several hundred more for naval purposes. In 1871 he was appointed assistant to the naval constructor at Philadelphia. He supervised the construction of the double turreted monitors the Miantonomah and the Terror and the three iron sloops of the Ranger class.

Commissioned naval constructor in 1875, he was assigned to be chief of construction in the navy yards at Washington, Boston and Pensacola. From 1884 to 1885 he was on the board of inspection of foreign vessels in New York harbor. He next supervised the construction of the cruisers the Chicago, the Boston and the Atlanta and the gunboats the Concord and the Bennington. In 1891 he was sent to the Union Iron works at San Francisco, where he supervised the construction of the Monterey, the Olympia and the Oregon. When the Oregon was completed he asked to be detached from active service and was appointed an inspector of cellulose, and on April 13, 1893, he was retired.

His work was devoted principally to the practical development of iron and steel construction for naval vessels, to the study of which he devoted most of his life, and, as his record shows, the first steel vessels for the navy were completed under his supervision.

WATCH BURGLARS GET MONEY

John Watts Was Marched Upstairs by Armed Thief to See Act.

Morristown, N. J., March 1.—John Watt of Whippany returned to his home and met a young man with a pistol, who commanded him to hold up his hands. He was marched upstairs, where two others were ransacking a bureau. They, too, were armed.

They locked him in the room and, after threatening him with death if he made an outcry, jumped from the second story window. They ran to the Morristown and Erie railroad tracks and started toward Morristown.

Mr. Watt shouted, and the men fired at several citizens who ran out on hearing the cries. Though several started after the thieves, they gave up the chase. Money and jewelry were taken from the home.

TO SUE FOR EIGHTY CENTS.

One Railroad Has Already Got $1.50 Verdict From Cattell.

Camden, N. J., March 1.—On a trip to New York some time ago H. F. Cattell of Woodbury offered a mileage book, which the conductor refused to accept, saying the time limit had expired. Cattell declined to pay the cash fare, $2.30, but was not put off the train.

The Philadelphia and Reading, which operates trains over the Central Railroad of New Jersey's tracks, sued Cattell for $1.50, its share of the fare, and got a verdict for the amount. Now the Jersey Central has notified Cattell of its intention of bringing suit against him for 80 cents, the balance of the fare claimed to be due.

WILSON OFF FOR IOWA.

Will Speak In Des Moines and Davenport and Hurry Back.

Trenton, N. J., March 1.—Governor Woodrow Wilson, accompanied by his personal secretary, Walter Measday, is on his way to Iowa. He will speak at Des Moines tonight and on Saturday before a civic assemblage in Davenport. He is expected back in Trenton Monday morning.

This is the last trip of any great distance that Governor Wilson will make until after the New Jersey legislature adjourns. Both houses have already provided for sine die adjournment on March 22, but it is possible this may be extended a week.

Rooster Fights Fox Terrier.

Montclair, N. J., March 1.—After it had killed thirteen fancy Plymouth Rock chickens in William Meskill's hennery here, a fox terrier that had invaded the place was put to flight by a prize white Minorca rooster that gave savage battle to the dog.

Bill For Oyster Inspection.

Trenton, N. J., March 1.—Another law was added to the New Jersey statutes when Governor Wilson signed the bill to require the state board of health to order inspection of the oyster and clam beds of the state as often as necessary.

The monthly communion service will be held at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning with Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor, in charge.

LOLITA ARMOUR.

Once Noted Patient Suffers Injury In Recent Fall.

LOLITA ARMOUR RECOVERING.

Daughter of Chicago Packer Shocked by Severe Fall.

Chicago, March 1.—Miss Lolita Armour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, is recovering from a severe shock incurred in a recent fall. While alighting from a sleigh at Lake Forest she fell to the ground. No serious injury has resulted. Miss Armour, now fifteen years old, is the noted patient of Dr. Lorenz of Vienna, who treated her for congenital hip dislocation.

ASKS NAVY FOR CONVOY.

Parmalee Plans Atlantic Flight With Vessel Underneath.

Washington, March 1.—Secretary Meyer has received a unique communication from William G. Adams at Los Angeles, who asks for the services of a torpedo boat destroyer capable of making forty-two knots an hour to convoy an aeroplane on a proposed flight across the Atlantic ocean. Mr. Adams stated that Philip O. Parmalee is arranging to make a flight in a Wright biplane across the Atlantic.

Secretary Meyer replied that it would be impossible to grant this request, as much as he would like to encourage aviation oversea, for the most important reason that the navy department has never yet been able to procure a vessel of any type that would make the desired speed. The fastest vessel in the navy is the destroyer Paulding, which on trial made 32.8 knots, or about thirty-eight miles. The only swifter vessel is a British destroyer which is accredited with thirty-three knots. The fastest American destroyers can make little over twenty knots on a 3,000 mile cruise.

STEEL BILL NOT FOR LABOR.

Workers Say It Would Cause Lower Wages and Strikes.

Washington, March 1.—Labor joined in protest before the senate finance committee against the tariff reductions on steel and tin plate as contained in the house steel bill.

John Williams of Pittsburgh, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, said that the reductions would cause a conflict between capital and labor. He was supported by others.

WILDCAT STOCKS.

Among the many good bills introduced during the present session of the Legislature, it strikes us that one presented in the House yesterday by Gill, of Mercer, is of special merit. Should this measure become a law the day of wildcat speculation and of the conscienceless promoters will be a thing of the past. The State would have absolute control over the sales of all sorts of wildcat securities, including both mining and industrials. Stocks of silver mines, oil wells, fruit plantations and what not will be carefully scrutinized by the State government before any agent or promoter is allowed to offer them for sale. The dealer or the company itself would, by the provisions, of this excellent bill, be compelled to file with the commissioner of banking, complete and truthful data concerning the company, its property, finances and other important details. Twice a year these concerns would have to file statement and their business would be subject to examinations at the pleasure of the banking commissioner.

One of the best features of the proposed law are the heavy penalties for violation of its many provisions. A fine not less than $200, nor more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than ten years, all will agree, should have a most salutary effect. For non-compliance with proposed law, an agent or the officers of the wildcat company could be fined as high as $5,000, and sent to jail for ninety days. The bill, modeled after the famous Kansas law of similar object, has received the approval of Secretary of State Dickinson, Attorney-General Wilson and Comissioner of Banking Lewis. No opposition, save from the unscrupulous people it is intended to put out of business, is anticipated. Made into law, this measure will be a protection to the honest promoter for by fulfilling the requirements, the agents would practically have the endorsement of the State as to the bona fides of the mining or industrial stock or security as the case might be.

Thousands of people of small means have been robbed of their hard-earned savings by the crafty and glib-tongue wildcat scheme promoters, who make all sorts of promises to the unsuspecting and not over worldly-wise, leading them to believe that they are going to get rich quick. Their promised big dividends very seldom materialize. If they do, they are paid out of the principal and not from any profits, for the only man that makes a profit is the promoter himself.

The best opportunity ever offered the young women of Plainfield, North Plainfield and surrounding territory is that presented by this paper, which will send five young women absolutely free on a two months' first class tour of Europe. The winners will be the quintet polling the highest number of votes in as many districts. The one polling the highest vote of all will also have the privilege of naming a chaperone whose entire expenses, save for laundry and souvenirs she may buy, will be borne by this paper. The lucky young women will be in charge of Thomas Cooks & Sons, the world's leading tourists' agency, who will have the entire trip personally conducted by their European agents. England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Holland and Belgium will be visited and every convenience will be afforded the Plainfield tourists. Incidently, the candidate in each of the five districts polling the greatest number of votes between Monday, February 26, and Saturday night, March 16, will be awarded a special prize. A pure diamond ring, the stone weighing more than a quarter of a karat, will go to the contestant getting the very highest vote, and four solid gold ladies' watches to one in each of the other four respective districts polling the highest vote. The particulars have been published in these columns many times. Young women desiring to enter the contest, and there is still ample time for any to do so, should have a talk with the paper's contest manager at the Daily Press office.

The action of Mayor Moy in ordering the police to put a stop to the practise of youths loitering on the north side of Front street, between Somerset street and Madison avenue, on Sunday evenings is very timely. The boisterousness and the profanity of some of these youths are such that it is surprising that the police have not long since put an end to it. A few arrests and the consequent publicity would be the proper remedy.

Little attention is paid nowadays by the bicyclists and drivers of vehicles to the ordinance requiring lights at night. There is every reason why bycycles and cariages should have the proper lights after nightfall, particularly as automobilists are held responsible, in the eyes of the general public, for almost every collision with such vehicles.

The good people of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at a memorial service paid fitting tributes to the late Leander N. Lovell. Of him be it said "he was a man," he was a Christian, in the fullest sense of the word.

That Mexican civil war must be relegated to the inside pages. Generalissimo Taft and Guerilla Roosevelt in their great Republican—two columns wide, forty-eight point type—grapple, that's first page stuff now.

The seventy-fifth birthday of Grover Cleveland comes on Monday, March 18. And the anniversary should be suitably observed by New Jersey.

WOMEN'S EXCHANGE HAS GROWN IN TWELVE MONTHS

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work was held recently in the parish house of Grace church. The report of the president, Mrs. Richard Boardman, indicted that the year had been one of growth and development in the practical work of the Exchange.

In August the Exchange removed to a more central location, at 208 Park avenue, and the result has been a substantial increase in business. The attractive and quiet lunch-room which has been in operation three months is a new feature and promises to be a convenience to the public and an added source of income to the Exchange.

The number of consignors has increased from 118 to 164. Letters have been received from many of them, expressing great appreciation of the assistance they have received from the sale of their goods. The Exchange is far from being self-supporting, therefore, increased patronage and a larger number of subscribers would greatly extend its usefulness.

Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt, the treasurer, reports receipts for the year amounting to $4,007.70 and expenditures of $4,004.41, leaving a balance of $3.29. In addition Miss Dunham, superintendent of the Exchange, reported that the sum of $9,215.17 had been paid to consignors. The increase of sales over last year amounted to $2,415.81. These officers for 1912-1913 were elected.

President, Mrs. Burton P. Hall; first vice-president, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell; second vice-president, Mrs. Thatcher M. Brown; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry E. Haws; corresponding secretary, Mrs. William A. Conner; executive board, Mrs. Frank C. Ard, Mrs. Noah C. Barnhardt, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. Richard Boardman, Mrs. William G. Cooke, Mrs. Jabez C. WILDCATS STOCKS UNDER FIRE twice a year, after having been permitted to do business.

The teeth of the bill are so sharp that it is not likely there would be many violations. The penalty for a violation is a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $10,000, and imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than 10 years in the State prison. Any person attempting to sell stock of security companies which have not complied with the law, are to be fined from $100 to $5,000 or to be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 90 days.

The law was suggested by the Legislative Committee of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, and was drawn by Attorney General Edmund Wilson. The State Banking Department has examined and approved it, after making a few suggestions, and the Department of the Secretary of State has also given its approval. Before having the bill drawn Mr. Gill investigated the Kansas law on the same subject, which it is claimed, has practically driven wildcat speculators from that State.

HOUSE PASSES ANDERSON BILL TO PREVENT TRUANCY

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—The improvement of the schools of New Jersey by the prevention of truancy is the object of a bill passed by the Assembly yesterday afternoon and which was introduced by Mr. Anderson, of Somerset county. The measure makes it compulsory upon all school boards to appoint truancy officers.

At the last meeting of the State Board of Education, Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, State Commissioner of Education, declared that one of the greatest evils of the school system was that the attendance laws were not properly enforced in many communities. He showed that in one county in the State one-fifth of the children were not in school one-half the time, while in another county only twenty of the sixty-four districts employ attendance officers. It is to meet conditions such as these that the Anderson bill was introduced.

ANDREW S. HOFF DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME

Complaining of feeling cold shortly after arising this morning, Andrew S. Hoff laid down on a couch near the kitchen stove at his home in West Second street. He died a few minutes later.

Mr. Hoff was a familiar figure about the city, but is probably better known in the borough than elsewhere, having conducted a harness shop on Somerset street for many years. Had he lived until Sunday he would have been seventy-two years old. Three years ago Mr. and Mrs. Hoff celebrated their golden wedding.

Mr. Hoff was born in South Bound Brook and came to Plainfield when a young man. He has resided here since. Surviving besides his widow are three sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Elizabeth Dunn, of West Fourth street. The others reside in Newark as does also a brother, Joseph Hoff. Announcements of the funeral will be made later.

Visit Turned Into Marriage.

Glen Gardner, Mar 1.—Miss Evelyn Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Potter, of Glen Gardner, went to Lebanon a few days ago, ostensibly to visit relatives. The other day Mr. Potter received a telegram from her stating that she was in Wilmington, Del., on her wedding trip, having been maried to a young man she met some time ago. The name of the husband was not disclosed.

Leap Year Supper.

The leap year supper given last night in the Calvary Baptist church was one of the most successful affairs of the kind the congregation has ever conducted. The Young Peoples' Society gave an interesting program under the direction of Mrs. G. W. Bailey. Fifty-two dollars was realized.

VETERANS IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE MAY GET PENSIONS

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 1.—The Senate bill by Mr. Read, of Camden, providing pensions for public officers who are war veterans after twenty years' service, was passed by the Assembly yesterday and will now go to the Governor. It provides that whenever any honorably discharged Union soldier, sailor, or marine who served in the Civil War shall have been in a position in State, county or city for twenty years he may be retired upon his own request and shall be entitled to a pension of one-half he pay received before retirement.

WOULD SEE COMMISSION GOVERNMENT ADVERTISED

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—The bill by Assemblyman Gill, of this city, permitting Commission Government cities to spend money for publicity purposes was passed by the Assembly yesterday afternoon. It applies to Trenton, Passaic, and the other municipalities which have adopted the commission form of government. It provides that the Board of Commissioners may expend a sum not to exceed $5,000 in any one year for advertising the advantages of a municipality and for maintaining an exhibit of the products and industries of the city, also for decorating streets and public buildings for special events. The sum to be raised is to be included in the annual tax levy.

Assemblyman Gill also got another Commission Government bill through the House yesterday, which was introduced for Trenton, but which applies to all Commission Government cities. It permits the Board of Commissioners to send a delegation, not exceeding five citizens, to represent the city at any industrial, commercial or civic assembly or convention, non-political in character, at which in the opinion of the commissioners, the city should be represented. The expense of sending such a delegation is to be paid by the city.

BILLS INTRODUCED IN LOWER HOUSE AT TRENTON.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—The salary of the Superintendent of the State Village for Epileptics at Skillman is fixed at $2,000 in a bill introduced in the Assembly yesterday afternoon by Assemblyman Adams, of Mercer. Mr. Adams also introduced a bill regulating the hunting of English pheasants and mallard and black ducks raised on game preserves.

Mr. Hennessy, of Bergen, introduced a bill prohibiting prosecutors from acting as counsel for any public body of the county. He also put in a bill prohibiting county engineers from acting in any engineering capacity for any municipality within the county.

Mr. Godfrey, of Atlantic, has a bill appropriating all money received from the sale of the Morris Canal to the construction and repair of the public roads.

The Smiles Faded.

A pretty American girl traveling in England was sorely tried by the annoyances and stares to which she was subjected on account of her American "peculiarities." She went into a shoe shop in London to buy a pair of shoes, and the clerk tried on innumerable pairs of veritable "boats," as she called them, much to the amusement of two Englishwomen customers seated near by, who regarded her through their "starers" as if she were some strange animal in a menagerie.

Finally the clerk said apologetically: "We 'aven't anything narrow enough for you, miss. You see, miss, our ladies have wider feet because they walk so much, miss."

The two Englishwomen smiled with the air of superiority that she had met for so long, and she felt she could stand it no longer. "Do they walk on their hands, too?" she flashed out.

Polite and Prudent.

Mr. MacTavish, who was noted for his unfailing politeness, was one of the numerous guests at a christening where the hospitality of the host knew no bounds except the several capacities of the guests. In the midst of the celebration Mr. MacTavish rose up and made the rounds of the company, bidding each a profound farewell.

MADE THE ROUNDS.

"But, Sandy, mon," objected the host, "ye're not goin' yet with the evenin' just started?"

"Nay," said the prudent MacTavish; "I'm no' goin' yet. But I'm tellin' ye good night while I know ye."—Saturday Evening Post.

Choice.

After all, and after all,
Since ever the world began
Just two have lived and two have died
In lowly mien, in lordly pride—
The rogue and the honest man.

After all, and after all,
The classes are but two,
And both are rich, and both are poor,
And both still know, as they knew before,
The things which they ought to do.

After all, and after all,
Escape it we never can.
Only the choice of one have we,
And you must be and I must be
A rogue or an honest man.

—John Randolph Stidman.

A Matter of Accent.

A Chicago millionaire made a visit to England recently, where he enjoyed himself famously, the only fly in the ointment being his inability to successfully grapple with the English accent. At a fashionable dance in Cadogan square during the height of the London season he smilingly said to an elderly duchess:

"MAY I HAVE THIS DANCE?"

"Duchess, may I have this dance?"

"I'm sorry," the duchess answered, "but I'm so tired I must rest. I am, in fact, dawnced out."

"Oh, not darned stout," said the breezy Chicagoan politely—"only pleasantly so."

An Unfortunate Ablution.

It is an authentic anecdote of Hogarth that he was wont to make certain miniature sketches on his thumbnail to be elaborated at an after time. A certain dramatist followed the practice. He would write a plot in the same limited space in shorthand. He was once consulted on a new drama by a manager.

"I have it," the writer exclaimed. And he immediately marked the plot upon his thumbnail. Weeks passed, but no play was presented. The manager consulted the author.

"Now, about the piece! It's done, of course. You took it on your thumbnail!"

"To be sure," replied the author, "and there it was for some time, but, as ill luck would have it, I one morning unfortunately washed my hands!"

Proof Positive.

Arthur Lefevre, the author, told this story of a happening at the University of Virginia during his student days in 1884:

There was a Baltimore freshman at the university whose father got several letters about his boy's wild ways—about his fondness for peach and honey and such-like heavy drinks. These letters grieved the old man to the heart. He wrote to the freshman and in reply got a general denial of all the charges.

Evidence, however, continued to pour in, and finally the father decided on a secret journey to Charlottesville. He timed himself to arrive late at night. It was, in fact, 2 o'clock in the morning when he rang the bell of his son's boarding house.

In response to his ring a woman in a yellow bath robe appeared, lamp in hand.

"What do you want?" she demanded, peering suspiciously forth into the darkness.

"Madam," said the amateur detective, "is this the residence of ——?" And he mentioned his son's name.

The woman's grim look relaxed, and she answered indifferently:

"Yes, he lives here. You can carry him right in."

Chinese Humor.

In his book on "China and the Chinese" Dr. Giles gives a specimen of Chinese humor which, if the source were not known, might well be mistaken for American humor.

There is a Chinese story which tells how a very stingy man took a paltry sum of money to an artist—payment is always exacted in advance—and asked him to paint his portrait. The artist at once complied with the request, but when the portrait was finished nothing was visible save the back of the sitter's head.

"What does this mean?" cried the sitter indignantly.

"Well," replied the artist, "I thought a man who paid so little as you paid wouldn't care to show his face."

—Most of the candidates, however, are taking no chances on the office doing the leap year stunt.—Detroit Free Press.

CLERICAL HUMOR.

Father Healy Was Witty, but Occasionally Met His Match.

Among the clerical humorists of Ireland Father James Healy stands out prominent. On one occasion when a pretty child was proudly shown him by her mother he remarked, "My dear child, you'll have a blue lookout as long as you live!" The mother's face at first clouded, but immediately afterwards brightened up when she saw the smile on Father Healy's face, for the child had blue eyes.

Once Father Healy was asked how he would describe a Scotchman and in answer, assuming as he spoke the Scotch accent, said, "A Scotchman is a mon wha keeps the Sawbath and everything else that he can git."

Father Healy, a thoroughly temperate man, on one occasion ordered a humorous cabman at Bray, known to indulge in an occasional drop, to call for him after dinner at the house of a friend. On the jarvey's arrival Father Healy was grieved to notice that he was not quite sober. "Drunk again, Peter," sighed the priest in a tone of reproof. "Well, to tell yer the truth, yer reverence," retorted the imprudent cabby, "I'm a little that way myself."

A barber once in shaving the father had a very trembling hand. "There, now," exclaimed Father Healy, "you have cut me! Oh, whisky, whisky!" he wound up by way of lamenting the source of the barber's unsteadiness.

"Yes, yer reverence," replied the barber promptly, "it do make the skin render, don't it?"

Feared the Worst.

A certain railway has a most execrable roadbed. A new brakeman was making his first run over the road at night and was standing in the center of the car grimly clutching the seats to keep erect. Suddenly the train struck a smooth place in the track and slid along without a sound. Seizing his lantern, the brakeman ran for the door "Jump for your lives!" he shouted. "She's off the track!"—Success Magazine.

Incorrigible.

The commanding officer of a corps was much troubled about the persistent untidiness of one of his men, an easy going Irishman. Reprimand and punishment were unavailing. The man was incorrigible. A brilliant idea struck the colonel. "Why not march him up and down the whole line of the regiment and shame him into decency?" It was done. The untidy warrior was ordered to exhibit himself and march up and down the entire regiment and the men told to have a good look at him. The unabashed Pat marched, halted, saluted the colonel and said in the hearing of the whole corps with the utmost sang froid, "Dhirtiest regiment I iver inspected, sorr!"

THE UNABASHED PAT MARCHED.

A Fight For Fair.

Jim Hall, the Australian fighter, came to Chicago at the time Jake Schaefer, the billiard player, was in his prime, and they came to know each other intimately. Jake used to josh Jim openly about his fighting career and say that none of his fights had been on the level.

The pugilist was to be one of the billiard player's party on a certain occasion and looked a bit seedy. The conspicuous blemish was his hat, so Schaefer gave him a five dollar note and told him to buy a real one.

A part of the evening program was a visit to a theater, where they sat in a box. Hall hung up his hat on a peg, and during the entertainment some outsider made a crafty exchange. Jim looked over a sunburned and battered derby and exclaimed:

"Jake, if I can find the bloke that pinched my hat there will be one fight on the level."—Chicago Post.

A Long Way From Home.

The late Jeff Hudson of Fredonia, Kan., who came from Boone county Ind., used to tell this yarn, bearing on the incredulity as to what might exist outside the neighborhood where going to mill was a long journey and a trip to the country seat was a venture into a far country: "Jimmy Smith ran away from home, went clear into Illinois, returned and the relatives were invited in and a feast spread, where Jimmy announced that he had been 100 miles from home. The clan did not grasp this enormous distance, and finally Jimmy said, 'W'y, pap, 100 miles is so fur that folks don't use talk like we'uns. Actually, pap, it is so fur that folks calls "sop" gravy!'"—Kansas City Star.

HARDNESS OF A DIAMOND.

Pressed Between Steel Rails the Gem Would Sink Into the Metal.

It is difficult for one not intimately acquainted with the brilliant and sparkling gems to realize just how hard a diamond may be.

A carpenter runs his plane over a piece of wood and out come the pretty curly shavings. Now, if a plane is made with a diamond blade instead of a steel blade and the blade is set just right the plane when run over glass will turn out fine, thinnest shavings something like those made by a plane on wood.

This gives some idea of the wonderful hardness of a diamond, yet there is something harder than a diamond. It is another diamond or even the same diamond, for a diamond may be extra hard in one part and not so hard as it ought to be in another part.

The Kohinoor diamond was in places so hard the cutters feared they might have to give up work on it. Other parts of the stone were soft, if you could say any diamond is soft.

If a diamond is placed between the ends of two heaviest steel railroad rails and then by hydraulic pressure the rails are forced closer together and then still closer until they touch, the diamond will sink right into the steel almost like a key forced into beeswax.—New York Press.

COLLEGE LIFE TODAY.

Student Ideals Much Higher Than They Were Fifty Years Ago.

Not only upon the shields of our American universities do we find "veritas." In spirit at least it is also clearly written across the face of the entire college life of our times. Gentlemanliness, openmindedness, originality, honor, patriotism, truth—these are increasingly found in both the serious pursuits and the play life of our American undergraduates. The department in which these ideals are sought is not so important as the certainty that the student is forming such ideals of thoroughness and perfection.

Furthermore, the standards of morals and conduct among the American undergraduates are perceptibly higher than they were fifty years ago. There is a very real tendency in the line of doing away with such celebrations as have been connected with drinking and immoralities. To be sure, one will always find students who are often worse for their bacchic associations, and one must always keep in mind that the college is on earth and not in heaven. But a comparison of student customs today with those of fifty years ago gives cause for encouragement.—Century Magazine.

Testing Coins.

"There goes another man suffering from degeneration of public manners," said the clerk in an aggrieved tone. "I gave him five pieces of silver in making change, and he tested every one of them to see if it was counterfeit right before my eyes. It is only lately that people who buy have got rude enough to do that. Clerks always did it with coin that customers gave them, but that was a prerogative of the trade. For the customer to assume the same privilege is a usurpation of ancient rights. The worst of it is most people nowadays are pretty good judges of bad money, and every little while a coin is refused because it is counterfeit. The only way tradesmen can teach customers the respect due them is to turn their own backs when testing money. That has always been the custom in England. No tradesman over there would dare fillip a coin under a customer's nose, and as a consequence no customer has ever taken that liberty with him."—New York Press.

Tennyson and His Pipe.

Tennyson was an unwavering devotee of the clay pipe. "I take my pipe," he wrote to a friend in 1842, "and the muse descends in the fume, not like your modern ladies, who shriek at a pipe as if they saw a 'splackmuck'"—"splackmuck" being the word which the dwellers in Brobdingnag applied to a man. When invited on a visit to Mr. Gladstone in 1876 Tennyson wrote, "As you are good enough to say that you will manage anything rather than lose my visit, will you manage that I can have my pipe in my own room whenever I like?"—London Chronicle.

Not His Fault.

"Before we were married," the poet's wife complained, "you often said that you would never be able to do your best work until you could sit and hold my hand while you courted the muse."

"Yes, I know I said it."

"And now you can't do anything if I even happen to be in the same room with you."

"Well, am I to blame because holding your hand is like clinging to a bunch of celery? Get the old tingle back into your hand and I'll agree to make the lyre hum."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Ashamed.

"John, how much did you give the preacher when we were married?"

"Three dollars."

"Three dollars! I should think you'd have been ashamed."

"I was. That was all that kept me from asking him for 50 cents in change."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Woman's Way.

"It is time to start for our party. Why is your wife so long upstairs? Is she changing her dress?"

"I rather think she is changing her mind."—Baltimore American.

Nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles.—Emerson.

"PRU" CO. FOUND 1911 A GREAT YEAR

INCOME OVER $81,000,000

More Than Two Billion Dollars Insurance in Force on More Than 10,000,000 Policies — Assets Valued at $259,186,137.

President Forrest F. Dryden, of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, has just issued to policyholders The Prudential's annual report for 1911.

The report shows that the Company issued and revived in 1911 over $136,000,000 ordinary insurance and nearly $304,000,000 industrial, or a total of over $440,000,000 paid-for life insurance. The Prudential now has over two billion dollars insurance in force in on over ten million policies. The increase in insurance in force in 1911 was over $167,000,000.

Policyholders were paid in 1911 over $27,000,000 and the total payments to policyholders since organization, plus amount held at interest to their credit, is over $466,000,000. The total income in 1911 was over $81,000,000.

In commenting on the big figures shown in the report, President Dryden says: "Prudential history records another year of wonderful progress. The results secured proved conclusively that life insurance is a recognized necessity, and one of the few items in the family budget that cost less today than in former years. The amount of new insurance written and paid for in both departments was satisfactory and as to the stability of the business in force, all previous records were surpassed. The expense rae was reduced in both the industrial and the ordinary department by means of rigid economy in every item."

Concerning the assests, Mr. Dryden says:

"The assets of the Company on December 31, 1911, were conservatively valued at $259,186,137.17. These funds are invested in securities of the highest grade, purchased under most favorable conditions, with the certainty of a satisfactory interest return.

"At the end of 1911, the Company's liabilities were $240,999,091.60, of which the most inportant item is the policy reserve, amounting to $202,909,823.00.

"The Company's liabilities include $29,567,326.51, of which $4,750,144.00 is payable in the form of policy divindends in 1912 and $24,817,182.51 apportioned to date to participating policies and payable as policy dividends after 1912.

"After setting aside for dividends to policyholders the sum of $29,567,326.51, just referred to, the surplus including capital stock, was $18,187,045.57."

Concerning the taxation of life insurance companies, the new president of the Prudential vigorously takes up the question. He says:

"The Company owes it to its policy holders to call attention again to the question of life insurance taxation and to urge their active interest in this important subject. The growing burden of taxation—federal, State and local—materially offsets the saving in expenses brought about through strict economy and increasing efficiency. During 1910 the policy holders of American life insurance companies paid the emorbus sum of $13,032,560 in taxes, licenses and fees and during 1911 an even larger sum was paid out, but complete returns are not as yet available.

Since all insurance taxes are paid by the insured, the question of over taxation is one of truly momentous importance to every policyholder, whose hearty co-operation is required to bring about a much-needed and most desirable reform."

President Dryden closes the report as follows:

"In concluding this review of the year's work, almost all of which was performed under the personal direction of the late president, whose plans were outlined to and approved by the board of directors at the beginning of 1911, I desire to say that, in co-operation with the board, it will the aim of the officers to continue the policies which have giuded the Prudential to such signal success in the past, policies which have meant so much in gaining the confidence of the public and in keeping faith with our patrons and which have built up such a large and competent force of employees both in the field and home office—a force whose ability we firmly believe is as great as any and whose loyalty to the company is surpassed by none."

—"Well, old sport, how do you feel? I've just eaten a bowl of oxtail soup and feel bully."

—Polite Man (to lady who sat on his silk hat)—I—I—I hope you have not hurt yourself, madam!—Satire.

NOT MANY PLAYERS QUIT THE DIAMOND

With Many of Them Retirement Gag is Usually a Bluff.

NOTABLE EXAMPLES THIS YEAR

Several Stars Who Announced They Were Through With the Game Are Back Again on Duty or Will Be When Season Opens.

Every year we read that several star baseball players are going to quit the game. "I can make more money in business," says one. "I realize that I'm about all in and don't want to be sent to the minors," asserts another. All of which sounds very well and gives the baseball writers some winter "dope." But—

How many of these men, who actually love the game aside from the big salaries they command, are sincere? Of course we know at the outset that some are only bluffing and their real object is to frighten the club owner or manager and get an increase in salary; but, on the other hand, it is a fact that there are ball players who believe what they say when they say it. These men, who have served long and faithfully on the diamond, think they can make more money in business and are afraid of the day when the manager will say, "I'm sorry, old boy, but you're done." They want to quit "with their boots on."

It's hard, though, isn't it? Look over the "comebacks" of the 1912 season and you will realize that a ball player who really loves to play the game is seldom sincere when he quits. There is still an inborn suspicion that he can pitch, bat or field the ball equally as well as if not better than the youngsters. And seldom does he overlook the opportunity to come back if he can convince the manager that he can still deliver the goods.

Chief among the comebacks this season will be Jack Chesbro, former star American league pitcher. He quit the New York Americans several years ago after a long and brilliant career. "My arm's gone," he said. But he rested and worried too. He tried his arm secretly and believed it as good as ever. Then he went to Harry Wolverton, new manager of the Highlanders, and asked for a chance to show. It will be given him. He may not make good, but it will not be because he has not supreme confidence in his own ability and strength.

Another player who wants a chance to shine again in a baseball uniform is Harry McCormick, former Giant and Philly outfielder. A Bucknell graduate, he quit several years ago to enter the steel business, declaring that he could make more money in that line of endeavor. He was a young man comparatively, and, while never a Ty Cobb or Sherwood Magee, he was a fairly good batsman and fly chaser. Possibly McCormick did make more money in the steel business, but he is back trying to land a major league berth.

Jake Stahl, who will manage the Boston Americans and play first base, is another 1912 comeback. He deserted the Boston club to become a banker. If all reports are true he was successful. But with a bright financial career before him Stahl could not resist the "call of the bat and ball." Stahl's case may be a bit different, because it is said he would not play with Boston last season owing to trouble with President John I. Taylor of the Red Sox. However, he is anxious to get back into harness.

Kid Gleason is another example. The irrepressible Kid was not actively engaged in the diamond pastime when he quit the Phillies three years ago, but he was an excellent coach and assistant manager and could have remained with the Quakers or gone with another team. "I'm done," said the Kid. But he did not mean it, for he has grabbed an offer from Jimmy Callahan to assist him in directing the campaign of the Chicago Sox.

And so it goes. The men mentioned are only notable examples. There are many others. Probably they have been influenced by the brilliant comeback performance of Mike Donlin, who donned his uniform after a two year stage career and batted .316 during 1911, or they may be jealous of "Old Cy" Young, who recently signed his twenty-second consecutive contract to pitch major league baseball. Anyhow, just remember that when a man tells you he is through with baseball he does not really mean it. He still has that fever and will jump at a chance to get back into the game.

Athlete's Advisor Dead.

Princeton, Mar 1.—Dr. Arthur Kendrick MacDonald, for many years official physician and medical adviser to the Princeton University Athletic Association, and at one time attending physician on President Cleveland, is dead at his home here. He was sixty years old.

Hope Chapel vs. Cadets.

The Hope Chapel basketball team will play the Co. M cadets at Somerville tomorrow night.

THE GINGER JAR

All is tranquill in Washington, according to Senator Martine, since Clark Griffith denied the rumor that he had traded Johnson for Hal Chase.

Catcher Bob Peterson, who will handle the delivery of Lou Slocum at Scranton this season, was the battery mate of Joe Harris, who pitched the 24-inning game for Boston against Jack Coombs.

Among the two men teams the local pinners will go against at the National bowling tournament in Paterson, is one comprised of "Dots" Miller and Hans Wagner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jim Jeffries insists that Abe Attell slipped one over in signing the former champion's name to the now famous telegram regarding the Kilbane-Attell bout. Attell says that Jim did sign the wire. Looks if though some more sassafras brew had been put in Jim's glass.

One of the mysteries of baseball is the development of a star. Rube Oldring, who in days gone by graced local lots, and who will adorn centre field for the world's champion had a dismal future in fast company until suddenly he got good baseball sense and since then his rise has been rapid.

"Dummy" Deegan says he has offers from the Clevelands and White Sox. No he didn't say what the offers were for, but said that he is not going to accept either.

If George Chalmers, of the Phillies, wins 30 games during the season he is to get a bonus running into four figures.

Wade Killifer, of the Phillies, is said to be a real catching find. He beats the veteran third baseman Lobert to bunts three times out of five.

The rookies with the big teams come in mighty handy on the homeward tour of the teams from the south and many a southern fan pays real money to see them perform when he thinks he is seeing the regulars.

The Quaker rooters go this paragraph from San Antonio recently with promise of more soon. "Manager Mack admits that he expects things of Lefty Russell, and unless the $12,000 lineman short circuits his enemies he is apt to go with the first exodus to the slower set. Russell has as much in the way of manoeuvres as any big leaguer, and now that he is chafing the bit he is thought to be able to blaze his way in fast company classes. Ben Egan is the goods. He showed that when he slayed in the slower set last season. He is to fill the void left by Paddy Lightfoot Livingstone, now of the Napland crew."

Manager Johnny Kling, of the Bostons, believes in a base-running game. "Men who never take a chance never get anywhere," says the former Cub backstop. "This doesn't mean that a man should run wild every time he gets on a bag. If he sees a chance, let him use his brains."

With "Gabby" Street and Ed Sweeney working behind the plate, the New York Yankees are well fixed in the backstopping department.

Harry McIntire, the spitball twirler, was the first Cub to report in Chicago. Harry was decorated with his sparklers and made the girls with diamond heels look like a lantern in a railroad shanty.

With Topsy Hartsel acting as pilot, Toledo fans believe the Mud Hens will be there or near in the American Association race.

Coach Wilbert Robinson declares that Louis Drucke, of the Giants, will be one of the star pitchers of the season.

This season all American League teams will dress at the grounds, which will save the clubs several thousand dollars in taxicab bills.

Manager Harry Davis put one over on his old boss, Connie Mack, when he signed Kenneth Nash, the Brown university shortstop and said to be a man Connie was after.

Curt Bernard, of Auburn, Me., an outfielder, has accepted the terms offered by Manager Joe McGinnity to play with the Indians this season. Bernard played with the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League last season.

Manager Wolverton, of the New York Americtns, says he has the best lot of outfielders in the league to pick from taking them all together in Cree, Daniels, Wolter, possibly Hartzell, Osborne, Kauff and Zinn.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

According to the new rule governing athletics in the Plainfield High School, a pupil must take at least four subjects and have a grade of 75 in three of them and not less than 50 per cent. in the others before he can participate in any of the school sports. The announcement of this revision of the rule was announced to the pupils yesterday by Principal Lindsey Best.

Before the revision was made, Mr Hubbard, the athletic director, obtained data from well regulated schools in New York city and throughout the State of New Jersey regarding the required standard pupils are obliged to make before being eligible for membership on any of the school teams and this information was used in making the change

The boys who are to take part in the senior class play this year are disbarred from the baseball team as it will be impossible for them to practice and attend rehearsals for both.

The girls' basketball team will go to Nutley tomorrow afternoon for a game with the girls' team of the high school at that place.

THINKS WEST WILL FURNISH MOST STARS

Joe Tinker, the Cub shortstop, has an idea that the West will send more ball players to the major leagues than any other section of the country. More than that, Tinker says that the scouts in the future will spend more time in the West than they have in the past. And the argument of Tinker in favor of the West is logical.

"The West breeds big, strong game men," said Tinker. "And those are three qualifications which go a long way toward making a man a great ball player.

"Size is the least important of these. The small man may be a great ball player. But the tendency in the major leagues is to pay more attention to the big men. In fact some of the managers require that the pitchers be big, strong, husky individuals.

"Strength is essential. Occasionally you see a fellow who is no powerful driving the ball to the far corners of the lot. Such a fellow is Frank Schulte, of the Cubs. Yet these men are the exceptions. The strong fellows are the ones who are best liked and who are in the majority.

PHILADELPHIA EXPECTS NEXT WORLD'S SERIES

How would you like to see every game of the next world's series played in Philadelphia?

There is more than a chance that this will take place, for it is the judgment of many baseball experts that the Athletics and Phillies have the best chance of winning the pennants in each of their leagues.

The Athletics have the prestige of two pennants and two world's championshivs to make them the favorite in the American, and the Phillies freed f the hard luck that blocked them last year, are, in the judgment of many, the class in the National.

The North American is in an excellent position to give the news of this training, for it is represented with the two teams by two foremost writers.

George M. Graham, sporting editor of The North American, is with the Athletics, and James C. Isaminger, noted writer, is with the Phillies.

CORNELL FACES LOSS ON HER ATHLETICS.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 1.—The annual statement of the Cornell Athletic Council just issued shows that Cornell ran behind last year on its athletics and had to resort to a sinking fund to meet the expenses. Football and baseball were the only sports that made money.

The crew lost $10,000 and the track contingent $7,000. Football profits were $5,000 and baseball $1,000. Total disbursements for the year were $72,108.

TRIPLE WIN CHALKED UP BY PLAINFIELD ELKS

As expected, the Plainfield Elks took all three games in the match rolled last night on the Olympia alleys with the Queensboro five. Hoboken annexed two of the match, at home, with the New York quintet and Rutherford, shooting the Jersey City Bills, at that place, were defeated for all three games.

The Plainfield pinners were in rare form. They managed to find the groove and win each contest by satisfactory margins. The individual averages were materially fattened as a result. The feature of the series was the scores returned by Campbell and Stout.

While Campbell and Stout were spilling the pins for the scores noted below, Miller, of Hoboken, hit for the highest score of all the Elks rolling by making 228 in the first game. The Germans won their games by the following scores 1004-942 and 925-901. The game taken by New York was 935 to 923.

The Jersey City-Rutherford scores were: 821-783, 883-855 and 946-779.

SUCCESSFUL ATHLETES MEAN MORE STUDENTS.

Figures carefully compiled by Harvard statisticians show that success on the athletic field is always followed by an increased college attendance. Conversely, the defeat of the principal athletic teams is a sure indication that the next year's registration will be a disappointment.

Figuring back twenty years or more it is found that in the year following a Yale football victory there has always been a decrease in the enrollment at Harvard of freshmen from public schools. Most students from private schools decide on their college two years or more in advance, but in the public schools the influence of athletics is more apparent.

In 1901, which followed a severe defeat at the hands of Yale, 230 freshmen enrolled from the public schools. The Crimson won the following year and the registration jumped to 293 men. Yale won in 1903 and 247 enrolled. In 1905 both Yale and Pennsylvania had downed Harvard, and the entrance was only 205.

WILLIAM PROBASCO, THE HORSEMAN, DEAD, AGED 75.

William Probasco, one of the most prominent and best known horsemen in this section, died at his home near Flemington, Wednesday, in his seventy-fifth year. Until recently he was owner of one of the best stock farms in the State. The colts bred on the place are among the fastest that ever wore a harness. Charles W. McCutchen, of the borough, purchased the farm several months ago and since that time Mr. Probasco has been living in retirement.

Mr. Probasco was widely acquainted in this city and has often driven some of his horses at the race meets held here. Of late years he devoted more time to breeding and breaking colts than to racing. His widow and one son, George R. Probasco, of Three Bridges, survive.

"COLLEGE" FIVES PLAY FOUR WEEKLY CONTESTS.

Four scheduled games between the college teams at the Y. M. C. A. were played yesterday afternoon and resulted as follows: Harvard 8, Penn 6; Yale 14, Princeton 1; Rutgers 6, Columbia, 0; Cornell 20, Brown 8.

As the season's close draws near the interest and healthy rivalry between the teams increases. All of the contests were spirited, even the Cornell-Brown match, although the score would seem to indicate that the victors had an easy time. Harvard and Penn put up the best contest and it was not until the last minute of play that the result was decided.

FIVE-BACK BOWLING SCORES AT PARK CLUB

The Park Club five-back bowlers met in weekly competition last night. Francis L. Sill returned the highest score and won the three points. Monroe Long captured second highest for the two points and A. M. Abbot was awarded one point.

GYMNASTIC TEAM'S EXHIBITION A TREAT

The gymnastic team of the Springfield Training School, at Springfield, Mass., gave an exhibition in the local Y. M. C. A. gym last night that established a new standard for events of this kind in Plainfield. The team was composed of ten men, the pick from an enrollment of nearly 200 students and represented more than 1,500 pounds of carefully nurtured brawn and muscle under full control.

Some of the feats the men performed, with and without apparatus was a revelation to many in the large audience who never before realized the full advantage of proper muscular development. These feats embraced skill, agility and strength, all nicely balanced with symmetry, grace and ease in execution. Only two of the athletes had to try a stunt the second time by reason of failure on first effort.

Charles Line, the former local boy, fell from the rings trying the flying cut-off, but was uninjured. His second attempt to perform the difficult feat was successful and he was warmly applauded.

The program was varied with musical selections by members of the team and a club swinging solo by D. Munroe. The dances were a feature, being the poetry of motion as was also the wand and free hand drill. An hour and a half was consumed in carrying out all the numbers.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

"In the blood," is the explanation given by the descendants of long lines of players to explain their choice of the ancestral profesion as their own. In cases it would seem that the choice is inevitable. Alexander Calvert, for instance, playing with Gorge Arlies in "Disraeli," at Wallack's Theatre, New York City, made every effort to kep out of it. He had a longing for the sea, and shipped before the mast. He had escaped, he thought, the clutches of the stage. But it was not to be.

Alexander Calvert is a brother of the Louis Calvert who was producer and chief character actor at the New Theatre. Two other brothers, Leonard and Cecil, are known on the English stage. His father, Charles Calvert, was a famous actor in his time. His mother, Mrs. Charles Calvert, was billed as "The English Mrs. Gilbert," the last time she appeared here some time ago. Her father was Thomas Beddells, another famous actor—and so it goes on indefinately through several generations. The sea had no claims on a young man with an ancestry like that. Later he joined Beerbohn Tree's Company and was conspicious in many of that actor-manager's most notable productions. Recently he played Orlando to Julia Neilson's Rosalind at the London Globe. Mr. Calvert is now an enthusiastic a thespian as any of his illustrious family, and looks upon the fustration of his early efforts to escape his destiny as the manifestation of the goodness of Providence.

Evelyn Beerbohm, who was the only comedy role in Lewis Waller's production of "A Butterfly on the Wheel" in New York at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, is a young English actor who is evidently destined to become a favorite with the American public, though this is his first visit to our shores. In the character of "Lord Ellerdine" he is particularly British and particularly amusing, without at any time or in an ymaner "overdoing it." Though he is a nephew of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, a fact which he hesitates to dwell upon, for fear he shall be appearing to claim greatness when he should be achieving it, he did not begin life as an actor. Mr. Beerbohm's first London role was that of Bob Morrison in Haddon Chambers play, "Sir Anthony," in which he won a substantial success. He then turned to musical comedy, appearing in the "Dollar Princess" and "Captain Kidd," but was glad to get back in the legitimate" work with George Alexander in "Colonel Smith." He played his present role of "Lord Ellerdine" during the London engagement of "A Butterfly on the Wheel."

MISS SEALS WEDDED TO STANHOPE RAILROAD MAN

Annandale, Mar. 1.—Miss Ethel Seals, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Seals, of West street, was maried to William H. Long, of Stanhope, at noon yesterday. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. John May, pastor of the High Bridge M. E. church, officiated.

Mis' Rose Renson, of Netcong, was maid of honor, and Frank Hulse, of Stanhope, acted as best man. The ring ceremony was used.

The ceremony took place in the parlor, which was decorated in pink and white. The couple stood under an arch of ever green and a white floral bell. The wedding march was played by Mrs. G. G. Mills.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a diamond ring and to the best man a stick pin set with pearls. The bride's gift to her attendant was a cut glas jar. The gift from the bride's parents was a check for $100.

The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Long, of Bangor, Pa. He is employed by the Lackawanna Railroad at Port Morris. The couple will reside in Stanhope.

HOUSE REFUSES TO VOTE HIGHER FEES FOR JURORS

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—Defeat was the fate of House bill 108, by Mr. Willis, of Morris county, in the Assembly yesterday afternoon. It increased the fees of jurors in District Court cases from twenty-five cents to seventy-five cents a day.

The chief objection to it was that it would increase the cost of litigation in small suits brought by people who could not well afford to meet the increased expense.

Pretty nearly every one of the twenty-six lawyers in the Assembly took part in the debate on the bill.

It received only twenty-three favorable votes while twenty-two were registered against it.

WOULD FINE OBJECTING FIREMEN OF MADISON.

Madison, Mar. 1.—Another chapter will be written to the fire department factional fight, now in the hands of the fire committee of the Common Council for investigation, at a meeting of Madison Hook-and-ladder Company No. 1, next Tuesday night.

The new element of the company will make a demand that the seventeen members who signed the petition recently presented to Council be fined $10 each for divulging the secrets of the company.

The bylaws fix a fine of that amount for any member found guilty of betraying the proceedings of a business meeting.

The petition was a protest against the blackballing of two applicants for membership in the company, John Grover Brown and Leander Cleveland Brown.

NEARS LEADER'S VOTE

has the highest vote. Miss Helen Leitheusser in District 2 is an addition to the list of active contestants, casting last night a total of 7,300.

Although there has been a large amount of business turned in by the contestants, the total vote does not mount as high by half as would be the case if "double votes" were given. The "clubbing offers" and "bonus votes" as given in some contests of this kind are manifestly unfair to those contestants who started early, and are never used by up-to-date managers. Their only purpose is to swell the totals to misleading proportions, and have always proven a source of dissatisfaction to candidates. The special prizes as offered by the Press are of highest quality and well worth an effort to secure them. They do not affect the original proposition of the European Tour in any way whatever, but are merely rewards of merit for those who show the greatest activity during a certain period.

Advices recently received from Thomas Cook & Sons, who will have charge of the Daily Press party, show that they are making an extra effort to obtain the very best for them in every way, and that nothing will be left undone to give this party the time of their lives. Many concessions and courtesies have been prepared in addition to the itinerary announced by this paper some time ago and the winning candidates will be given an even better time than has been advertised.

The party will sail from Philadelphia on June 22 on the American line steamer "Merion," an exclusively first class boat. Two months will be spent on the tour, and six countries, England, France, Germany, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland will be visited, including the principal cities and points of interest in each. Too much stress cannot be placed upon the wonderful trip down the Rhine, the most beautiful stream in that land of beauties—Switzerland. The memory of this voyage alone is one which remains firmly implanted in the minds of all who have ever had the good fortune to take it. And there are innumerable other features which will be enjoyed to fully the same extent.

ADVICE TO CONTESTANTS.

Votes are only issued when subscription payments are made to the Press office for a period of at least ten weeks. Candidates are requested to have every subscription blank properly filled out, being particular to give the full name and address of the subscriber. In voting the clipped coupons from the paper they should be neatly trimmed and fastened together in bunches of not more than 50, with candidate's name and the number marked plainly on the top coupon. Several unattached blank coupons have been thrown aside because of the fact that they were not fastened together and marked.

Candidates should familiarize themselves with the conditions of the contest. They should let their friends know that they are in to win and that they want and will appreciate the suport which can be given them. When the contest closes on April 6th each one wants her name to appear "among those present," instead of in the list of "also rans." Subscribers are easy to get. The Daily Press has hundreds of warm friends in and around Plainfield who stand prepared to throw their strength to the one who asks for it. Everybody likes a person who accomplishes things. Results are what count. Here is a chance for the young women of Plainfield and vicinity to do something for themselves, gain the esteem and admiration of their friends and acquaintances, and enjoy the pleasures and advantages to be derived from a trip abroad.

Nothing has been left undone, no detail has been overlooked, no expense has been spared to make this offer the very best to be had. We have done our part. Now it is up to you.

ENGLAND FACES INDUSTRIAL WAR

Million Mine Workers Are Out on Strike.

OTHER TRADES AFFECTED.

As Coal Supply Begins to Diminish 500,000 Workers in Other Trades Will Be Forced Into Idleness—Asquith Threatens Governmental Operation of Mines.

London, March 1.—All underground coal mine workers in England, Wales and Scotland, except a few who remain to keep the pumps going, are on strike. A million men are affected and more will join the strike daily by the shutdown of other industries dependant upon coal for power.

It is expected that if the strike is prolonged for three weeks 500,000 men in the allied trades of London alone will be thrown out of work. It is impossible to estimate the multitude that will ultimately be affected, but it is so large that it will be certain to bring about a general paralysis of British trade.

It was apparent Wednesday night that the government negotiations were to be fruitless on account of the refusal of the miners to modify their demands. Despite this discouraging indication, Premier Asquith and his colleagues continued their efforts to bring about peace, but finally were forced to acknowledge defeat.

Although the strike is really in progress, the negotiations will be resumed late today, when Premier Asquith is expected to announce drastic action by parliament if the situation is not changed. The government is determined by all means in its power to prevent a paralysis of industry.

Mr. Asquith in making an appeal for a settlement to the miners' federation at a conference declared that if the government's recognition of the minimum wage did not bring about an agreement between the disputants they (the government) would secure it by other means. This is a hint of an intention to pass a bill fixing a minimum wage legally. It is believed that if this action still fails to relieve the situation the government is prepared to go still further, perhaps to the extent of taking over and operating the mines. Sir George Ranken Askwith, the board of trade peacemaker, succeeded in inducing the Northumberland owners to accept the principle of the minimum wage. They refused, however, to pay it irrespective of the ability of the workers to earn it.

The miners are jubilant over the recognition by the government of the wage principle. They have funds enough in their treasury to pay every employee now out. They intend to give 10 shillings ($2.50) per week to every miner and smaller amounts to unskilled men and boys. The money in the treasury will last at least a month.

Replying to a question by Kier Hardie, labor member, in the house of commons, Reginald McKenna, the home secretary, said troops would be sent to the collieries only at the request of magistrates. The government, he said, was prepared to respond to all such claims. It had been distributing troops, ostensibly for maneuvers, to the vicinity of the principal points where trouble is expected.

DEFENDS BRANDT ACTION.

Governor Dix Says Valet Reflected on Woman's Honor.

New York, March 1.—Governor Dix explains in a statement why he declined to pardon Folke E. Brandt. Brandt's own application for pardon, says the governor, was based on statements reflecting upon the honor of a woman, mentioned by name, who is a member of Mortimer L. Schiff's household. Mr. Dix emphasizes the point that the pardon application was made by Brandt and that the prisoner, seeking to make a case for himself, was guilty of a crime more abhorrent than that for which he was convicted—false accusations against the purity of a woman.

Speaking of the papers most essential in the case, among them Brandt's personal appeal for clemency, the governor regrets the necessity for unsealing them. It is proper, he believes, that the public shall be authoritatively informed of the considerations which determined his action.

MAY KILL BOXING.

Governor Dix Urges Repeal of the Frawley Law.

Albany, N. Y., March 1.—The Allen bill, repealing the Frawley law, establishing a state athletic commission for the regulation of boxing, was reported favorably by the assembly judiciary committee.

The law's repeal was recommended by Governor Dix, who signed it last year.

Name New Sultan.

Melilla, March 1.—The Riff and Kabyle tribesmen, who have been fighting the Spanish troops, have proclaimed the Moorish agitator El Mizzian the sultan of Morocco.

Montana Senator Will Direct Fight For Delegates.

New York, March 1.—Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana has been chosen to head the executive committee of the national Republican committee and with Truman H. Newberry, former secretary of the navy under Roosevelt, to lead the field forces in the fight to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for president. Mr. Newberry will head an administrative committee, the other members of which are not yet announced. These appointments were announced by Alexander H. Revell of Chicago, chairman of the national Roosevelt committee, who with Senator Dixon, Frank Knox, who is chairman of the Republican state central committee of Michigan, and Medill McCormick of the Roosevelt Washington headquarters, were in conference with Colonel Roosevelt.

In a statement accompanying the announcement of the officers of the Roosevelt campaign, Chairman Revell says that "It had been abundantly proved that the overwhelming majority of the American people desire that Theodore Roosevelt shall again serve them as president and that in spite of the opposition of the selfish special interest of the office holding machine he can be nominated."

He adds that the executive committee "appointed after consulting representative Republicans throughout the country" is one that "in its geographical distribution and in its character represents the sane progressive and constructive Republicanism to which the party must return to insure progress in legislation and prosperity in business and victory in November."

Mr. Revell is the head of a large furniture manufacturing concern in Chicago. He was much put out because an evening newspaper referred to him as the head of the harvester trust. He says he's a business man and that he'll attend to the business end and leave the active campaign work to the politicians.

HANDCAR ELOPEMENT.

Polish Miner Runs Off With a Mayor's Niece.

Huntington, W. Va., March 1.—Following the elopement of Stanley Cooper, a Polish miner, with Miss Virgie McDonald, fourteen years old, a niece of Mayor McDonald of Logan, a posse was organized to search for the missing couple.

It is said that Cooper induced the girl to elope with him and that the couple, obtaining a handcar in Logan, started on it for this city. Finding that they were being pursued by angry relatives of the girl, the two abandoned the handcar and crossed the Guan river. Since that time nothing has been heard of them.

DEVLIN OUT IN FOUR ROUNDS.

Packey McFarland Too Clever For Philadelphia Lad.

Cleveland, O., March 1.—Packey McFarland, the clever lightweight, knocked out Tommy Devlin of Philadelphia in four rounds at the Eagles club.

McFarland had the Quaker City lad at his mercy all the way. Devlin was unable to solve Packey's style and did not get in half a dozen good blows in all the four rounds.

DAFFYDILLS BLOOM IN THE ASSEMBLY CHAMBER

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 1.—One of the Assemblyman yesterday afternoon quoted "The female of the species is more deadly than the male," when Mr. Brensinger called up for passage his bill taxing every female cat $1, to be paid by the owner.

"This is a good bill," began Mr. Brensinger.

"Meow, meouw," came from several members.

"Cats kill many birds," said the introducer of the bill, starting again.

"Scat," said another member.

W. de la R. Anderson, of Somerset, objected to the bill on the ground that it was class legislation. Another member wanted to know whether the owner of a female cat would have to pay $9, one for each alleged life of a feline?

"Categorically speaking," asked Leader Whyte, of Camden, "does the gentleman from Hudson believe his measure is constitutional?"

"What kind of birds does a female cat-hip?" asked another.

Mr. Griffin, of Hudson thought a referendum should be put in the bill. Seriously, Mr. Brensinger said the bill was desired by the Fish and Game Commission. After the fun had proceeded some time the bill was over for amendment.

SMOKING DREW STUDENTS CRITICIZED IN A SERMON.

Madison, Mar. 1.—In a sermon at Drew Theological Seminary, G. Logan Heiserman, member of the middle class of the institution, criticized young theologians for stealing to their rooms and giving a wide breadth to the seminary campus to enjoy an occasional cigar or pipe. He said:

It must be an unscriptural thing thing to smoke, or else it would not be forbidden in the Methodist discipline."

Smoking he classified as one of the "sins of the flesh." His sermon was on sin and the ability to recognize it, his text being: "To him that knowesth to do good and doeth it not to him it is a sin."

The sermon caused much discussion among both faculty and students.

NO FEVER EPIDEMIC IN WESTFIELD, SAY OFFICIALS.

Westfield, Mar. 1.—Dr. C. M. F. Egel, president of the Board of Education; Dr. J. B. Harrison, president of the Board of Health, and C. W. Harden, secretary of the Board of Health, say postively that there is no epidemic of scarlet fever in Westfield, and that there are only three cases of the disease in the town at the present time.

Dr. Egel has had many inquiries over the telephone from parents regarding the number of cases of scarlet fever in the schools. He said yesterday that every precaution had been taken by the school authorities. Secretary Harden, of the Health Board, also said that there are but three cases in the town and any reports to the contrary are false.

Dr. J. B. Harison said that there was absolutely no necessity for parents feeling uneasy as there is no chance for an epidemic.

BABIES AND SHOELESS PROBLEMS OF SCHOOLS.

Roselle, Mar. 1.—Babies have become a source of disappointment to the Roselle Park school authorities. The board is trying to obtain a greater State allowance by high attendance record, but got a setback in the last month when seven children lost school days because they had to stay at home and "tend the baby."

Egg Harbor City, Mar 1.—Because many children are unable to attend school for want of shoes the boards of education of Atlantic County want leave to supply the lack. To this end they adopted a resolution yesterday asking County Superintendent Henry M. Cresman to petition the Legislature for a law permitting shoe appropriations.

SOLDIERS APPLY TORCH TO PEKING

When Pay Is Not Forthcoming Mutiny Starts.

TEN GREAT FIRES RAGING.

Foreigners Escape Injury In Outbreak That May Disrupt New Government. Shopkeepers Suffer In Looting—Bayonets Freely Used—Legations Are Unharmed.

Peking, March 1.—Ten great fires are raging in the northern section of the city, and they are spreading fiercely. It is impossible to make any prediction as to where they will stop. The shooting is lessening, the mutineers having apparently used up most of their ammunition. They are now leaving the city with their horses laden with loot.

The soldiers, armed with rifles and bayonets, each with about 100 rounds of ammunition, started out by burning their barracks. They then ransacked the shops. The ones they liked best were those of the goldsmiths, silversmiths, pawnbrokers and art stores. When the shopkeepers made no resistance they were unharmed, but any one who made a fight was ruthlessly shot down or bayoneted. So far as can be learned no foreigners were hurt, though some had narrow escapes from flying bullets.

The American legation first learned of the outbreak when a spent three inch shell fell within the guard of the compound. Later on a rifle bullet struck the wall right above where Minister Calhoun was standing.

There has undoubtedly been great devastation all over the capital, but it is impossible to obtain any details, as no foreigner dare venture outside the legations. Much foreign property has been burned, and fires are still raging in all directions. The firing, however, has practically stopped.

One report has it that the troops attacked President Yuan Shih Kai. The soldiers also attacked the rebel delegates from Nanking, and nothing is known as to what happened to them.

The situation brings on a grave crisis and likely means the failure of the new government. The authorities are absolutely powerless.

Foreign re-enforcements are on the way to assist those already at the legations, which are safe for the present.

The mutineers number about 2,000. Their discontent is variously ascribed to the fact that they have not been paid and to the order compelling them to cut off their cues. Anyhow, there seems to be some laxness of discipline among the northern troops.

The outbreak began near the waiwupu (Chinese foreign office). The officials rushed into President Yuan Shih Kai's office shouting, "Your excellency, save yourself!" Yuan, without moving a muscle, replied:

"I will stay here."

There was much firing beneath Yuan's window, but apparently there was no attempt to attack the president.

It is probable that many persons were injured by stray bullets, as the mutineers fired wildly. The loyal troops shot down many of the looters, but the Manchu police held aloof throughout except when they joined the rioters.

The American legation quarter is thoroughly prepared to resist any possible attack. The French legation guards hold the Chingmien gate.

CONDUCTS PERSONAL PROBE.

Miss Anne Morgan Spent Several Days at Lawrence.

New York, March 1.—It is learned that Miss Anne Morgan has just returned from Lawrence, Mass., where she made a personal investigation of the condition of the strikers.

Accompanied by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, she went to Lawrence Sunday and spent several days incognito in the Massachusetts mill town, getting information at first hand concerning the situation there.

Following her usual custom, she refused to say anything concerning the result of her observations. Probably, though, unless her experience differed from that of other observers who happened to be in Lawrence at the same time, she had a taste of marital law as dispensed by militiamen.

DEFENDS NEGRO AID.

Wickersham Seeks to Prevent Humiliation to Lewis.

Washington, March 1. — Attorney General Wickersham is seeking to prevent the American Bar association from ousting W. H. Lewis, his negro assistant, from membership. Lewis was elected a year ago, but the executive committee of the association, when it met here Jan. 4, passed a resolution rescinding the election.

Lewis once played center on the Harvard varsity football team.

New Orleans, March 1.—A report has reached here that the river steamer J. E. Trudeau was burned at Point Pleasant, La., with a loss of ten lives, all negroes.

GARIBALDI TO MEXICO.

Italian Adventurer Will Try to Put Down Rebellion.

Rome, March 1.—Colonel Beppino Garibaldi, who took a prominent part in the rebellion against President Diaz of Mexico, has sailed from Italy for his second campaign in Mexico. As before, he will serve General Madero.

Colonel Garibaldi is to take charge of Madero's federal army and attempt to suppress the Vasquista revolt. He is regarded as a good army officer and will be able to do much to subdue the poorly organized bands of rebels.

STEPHENSON'S SEAT IN GRAVE DANGER

"Uncle Ike's" Only Hope Is In Early Vote.

Washington, March 1.—The case against Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin has now reached a stage where bitterness begins to crop out. It is also becoming evident that his seat is in grave danger. Unless an early vote is taken the chances are that he will be expelled. For that reason Senator Heyburn is exerting pressure to have a date in the near future fixed for the final vote. The opponents of Senator Stephenson desire delay until their side of the controversy can be fully presented.

Senators Bristow, Kenyon, Crawford, Kern, Jones and others who antagonize Mr. Stephenson refuse to fix a date for voting. Senator Bristow will this afternoon speak in favor of excluding Senator Stephenson. He will seek to demonstrate that the expenditure of $107,000, admitted by Mr. Stephenson, is of itself sufficient to make it clear that money was corruptly used.

SUGAR SCHEDULE NEXT.

Free of All Duty, With No Bounties to Planters.

Washington, March 1.—Chairman Underwood will present to the Democratic caucus this afternoon a bill for the revision of the sugar schedule which has been drafted by the Democratic members of the ways and means committee and which provides for free sugar without any internal revenue tax scheme or any bounties for the sugar planters of the couhtry. It is contended by the Democrats that the passage of the bill will mean a net savings of 2 cents a pound on sugar to the American consumer.

The ways and means committee reached an agreement on the sugar schedule after weeks of work and many disagreements.

AGAINST CANAL MONOPOLY.

Commercial Interests Ask Taft to Prevent Railroad Control.

Washington, March 1.—A delegation representing commercial interests on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts called on President Taft to protest against any movement on the part of the administration or congress which may give transcontinental railroads control over the Panama canal.

The delegation's position was that the government can keep the railroads from obtaining a monopoly on trans-isthmian steamship lines and thus virtually enforce competition.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

THE ESCULENT ARTICHOKE.

ARTICHOKES are of two kinds, the Jerusalem and the Globe. The former are tubers, the latter flowers which grow on a plant resembling the thistle.

In preparing Jerusalem artichokes for cooking it is necessary to peel them. Then they are thrown into cold water in which is a little vinegar. This is to preserve the color in cooking.

When preparing Globe artichokes trim away the lower leaves. Boil in salted water.

Artichokes With Sauce.

Artichokes which are a little dry may be cooked to advantage in stock.

Artichokes With Brown Sauce.—Soak the artichokes in water. Then stew in stock until tender. Take out of the stock, leaving just about enough in the pan to make a good dressing and add to it a little brown sauce. Pour this over the artichokes when served. Dress with green peas.

Artichokes With White Sauce.—Wash, peel and shape to a uniform size. Throw into boiling salted water and let them boil fifteen to twenty minutes. Drain and serve with the following sauce poured over them:

Mix over the fire one ounce and a half of butter with a tablespoonful of flour, add half a pint of boiling water, white pepper and salt to taste. Stir till the sauce thickens, then take the saucepan off the fire and stir in the yolks of two eggs beaten up with the juice of a lemon and strain.

Jerusalem Artichokes.

Artichokes In Milk.—Pare some Jerusalem artichokes after they have been well washed. Boil in milk and water until soft. They may be served with white or brown sauce or fried in butter and served upon a napkin with parsley.

Mashed Artichokes.—After some Jerusalem artichokes have been washed and peeled put into a saucepan of warm water with salt in it, boil till tender, then serve them. If they are to be mashed mash them at once, with salt, pepper and butter. If they are to be whole keep them covered until served. Melted butter improves the look.

They may also be mashed with a little gravy. Put in a dish, with breadcrumbs over, and browned in the oven, they are very nice.

Or they can be treated in every way like turnips.

QUAINT CONCEITS.

Flowers on Milady's Muff and Evening Gown.

A French modiste is making single American Beauty roses with long stems that are so near to nature that the observer is always fooled. One of the faultless blossoms is pinned on the bodice of an evening gown and is often worn on the front of a coat when dark furs are used. The Frenchwoman also pins one across the fur muff, which is rather an attractive idea.

The plain shirt waist that is finished with shaped front edges that are overlapped is a new and smart one. The waist illustrated may be treated in this way. It is without fullness and includes regulation sleeves.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7333, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery. When ordering use coupon.

Milady's Mirror

Make Your Own Rouge.

If you are dissatisfied with the rouge you are using try making your own. A very simple way of preparing a harmless rouge is by tinting a portion of a tried and true cold cream with carmine. Be sure that only the fruit or vegetable tint is procured for tinting purposes. If a poisonous tint is used where a minute break in the skin of the face or lips is present it is liable to result disastrously, causing blood poisoning or chronic skin disease. A vegetable or fruit carmine powder worked into cold cream (not the disappearing kind) until evenly distributed and placed in a rouge box is a safe and delightful toilet adjunct and a benefit to the skin rather than an injury. By mixing equal portions of faintly pink face powder and pure rice powder a wonderfully transparent blush tint is obtained. White, as a rule, shows plainly against the skin, especially if the complexion inclines toward ivory. Pink has the equally undesirable quality of causing a natural flush to appear almost florid, besides giving a note of artificiality to the face. By blending the two and applying the result with a piece of soft white velvet a clear, flesh tone becoming to almost every complexion is acquired.

Keep Windows Open.

Don't sleep in a closed room.

Fresh air is the basis requisite to good health. A sealed chamber is a breeding place of disease.

The lungs utilize the oxygen they breathe and expel their impurities in your exhalations.

Within an hour a man consumes all the oxygen in the average room. If the windows and transoms are down and the door is shut thereafter he breathes foul poisons.

Rural communities should, by reason of natural advantages, be practically immune from the "white plague," but statistics show a greater percentage of consumptives among farmers than any other class of people.

Who isn't familiar with the deadly parlor, with its stale atmosphere, where for days at a stretch whole generations of malignant germs are permitted to incubate undisturbed. A week often passes without the admission of sunlight. As well spend an afternoon in a smoke filled tunnel as remain in such a pesthole.

Open the windows even in the rain—far better to spoil a few trumpery lace curtains and spot the carpet than jeopardize your health.

Beauty Hint For Thin Girl.

The thin girl in the morning, after a sponge bath with a thorough rub, should drink half a glassful of comfortably hot water. When appetite is felt a soft boiled egg, a piece of whole wheat bread thoroughly baked and well buttered and, a little while after, a glass of cool water, not iced, may be taken. The noonday meal should consist of a good clear beef soup, a broiled steak or roast beef, a little boiled rice, a lettuce salad with olive oil dressing and some simple dessert; for supper beef or mutton boiled and good whole wheat bread well buttered. At the close of this meal a cup of hot chocolate is taken and another of hot milk on retiring.

Perfumed Toilet Articles.

Glancing over the dressing table of the woman of exquisite taste, one of the first facts to attract attention is that all these little articles of the toilet are marked by the same odor seen on her perfume and scent bottles. Powder, talcum, lip rouge, cold creams, even manicuring articles all disclose the same mark, the result being like a breath of perfume from a bank of flowers. No conflicting and often cloying odors are present to destroy the single scent. Involuntarily you say, "You are fond of violets, aren't you?" or roses or lilacs or lilies or oriental perfumes, as the case may be. As you replace your toilet requisites try having them all of one fragrance.

A Practical Manicure.

A practical way of keeping the finger nails well in order is that to treat them to one or two strokes of the file every morning. First have them shaped and the cuticle trimmed by a manicurist, then be careful to preserve the shape when filing. In this way nails can be kept looking well for at least a month, and the regular allowance for manicuring will be a fourth or at least a half of the former amount.

Polish the tips slightly after the morning filing, but do not use the buffer until the nails are hot, as this causes them to become brittle.

Care of False Hair.

If neglected the most costly bought hair is soon worthless—worse, disease breeding. The puffs, switch or transformation should be brushed as carefully as the real hair and as often. The best way to do it is to put a towel on the lap or table and, spreading the piece on it, brush with a rubber backed boar bristle brush, wet one side, then the other. This removes tangles and does not tear the hair, as does a comb.

Monkey Listening For a Noise In the Package.

In some of their actions monkeys seem to be guided by something higher than instinct. Darwin describes a trick played on a monkey to show its intelligence. Lumps of sugar wrapped in paper were first given to him. Then for sugar a live wasp was substituted, but after meeting with an unpleasant experience from the wasp the monkey put the next package to his ear to learn if it might be safely opened. This action showed that the monkey had memory and considerable wisdom and had discovered that a wasp buzzes when wrapped in paper.—St. Nicholas.

Signs of the Zodiac.

The zodiac is an imaginary band or belt extending around the circuit of the heavens, having as its middle line the apparent path of the sun. The band extends for a distance of nine celestial degrees on each side of the middle line and is therefore eighteen degrees in width. The name zodiac was given to this celestial belt by the ancients. It comes from the Greek word "zo-on," which means "animal," and was applied to the belt because the twelve constellations that form it are named after animals, with five exceptions, or with only one exception if we consider man as an animal, as, of course, he is.

The twelve constellations are Aries, the Ram; Taurus, the Bull; Gemini, the Twins; Cancer, the Crab; Leo, the Lion; Virgo, the Virgin; Libra, the Balance; Scorpio, the Scorpion; Sagittarius, the Archer; Capricornus, the Goat; Aquarius, the Water Bearer, and Pisces, the Fishes. The sun appears to pass through these twelve constellations, one after another, during twelve months, and astronomers have divided the zodiac, therefore, into twelve equal parts of thirty degrees each, the entire circuit of the heavens being, as you know, 360 degrees. The division into twelve equal parts is more for convenience than anything else, for the constellations vary in size, and those parts are called the "signs of the zodiac." The sun enters Aries at the vernal equinox March 20 and passes into the other signs in regular order from month to month, coming around to Aries again the next March.

Flags at Half Mast.

Perhaps you have noticed that whenever a prominent person dies, especially if he is connected with the government, the flags on public buildings are hoisted only part of the way up. This is called half mast. Did you ever stop to think what connection there could be between a flag that was not properly hoisted and the death of a great man?

Ever since flags were used in war it has been the custom to have the flag of the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the flag of the victors to be placed above it on the same pole. This was a token not only of submission, but of respect.

In those days when a famous soldier died flags were lowered out of respect to his memory. The custom long ago passed from purely military usage to public life of all kinds, the flag flying at half mast being a sign that the dead man was worthy of universal respect.

The Fox and the Crow.

A crow is sitting on the tree.
She has some cheese in her mouth.
Along comes a sly old fox.
"How I would like to have that cheese," he thinks.
"How can I get it?"
He looks up at the crow and smiles.
"Dear crow, how pretty you are," he says.
"I know you can sing sweetly.
"Will you sing for me?"
"What a nice fox," thinks the crow.
"No one ever told me before how sweetly I sang.
"I will sing for him."
She opens her mouth to sing.
Down falls the cheese to the ground!
There, the fox has it!
See him run!

Signs of Spring.

Mothers mending pockets,
Sisters trying to sew,
Lest the "taws" and "glassies"
Through the corners go;
Swarming all the sidewalks,
Big round "bunnies" deep,
Where the rolling marbles
Swift to cover creep.

Little hived up dollies
Out to take the air;
Merry hoops a-rolling,
Zigzag, here and there;
Children saying "Pepper"
Fast as rope can swing—
By these signs of springtime
You may know 'tis spring.

Women's Tan Boots

The Tan Boot has certainly come to stay. No well-dressed woman today thinks her wardrobe complete without a pair. They may be worn with blue or black costumes as well as tans and browns and are considered in good form and good taste for semi-dress occasions.

TRENTON WILL BE SUFFRAGIST MECCA

Women by Hundreds Expected to Attend Enfranchisement Hearing March 12.

MRS. COLBY SPEAKS HERE

Eloquent Crusader, Who Is to Address Solons, Begins State-wide Tour With Address Before Equal Suffrage League in This City.

Trenton, Mar. 2.—The outlook is that the public hearing Tuesday, March 12, on the resolution amending the consittution to permit women to vote will produce one of the most important demonstrations in the interest of female suffrage in the history of the State. It is expected that women by the hundreds will come to Trenton to attend the hearing which will begin at 10 a. m. The resolution which was first introduced into the Senate by Senator Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, has also been put in the House by Mr. McAllister, of Cumberland.

The suffragists will bring to Trenton their strongest speakers, and will present Mrs. Clara B. Colby, one of the leading suffragists of the country, to argue their case for them. Mrs. Colby is to tour the State in the interest of suffrage before the hearing is held.

The members of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League, together with other allied organizations, are planning to go to Trenton on a special train the day of the hearing. Plainfield is expected to be largely represented at the session.

Mrs. Colby, who was retained by the joint legislative committee of the State suffragist organization, to make a tour of the State during the week of March 1-8, made the first speech of her campaign before the Equal Suffrage League in the Babcock building, last night. Dr. Edward S. Krans presided over the meeting which was surcharged with enthusiasm.

Mrs. Colby said that to look back over the history of the Suffrage movement lent enthusiasm to the work of today. She spoke of the progress made by the cause in England and this country.

"It is really marvelous," said Mrs. Colby, "how when she is enfranchised, the ordinary woman rises to a sense of her civic responsibility."

It was a fact noticeable in the history of all progressive movements, the speaker said, that the body of unthinking women were afraid of a change. Referring to the English movement, Mrs. Colby explained the conduct of the militant Suffragists by the fact that "John Bull never moves till he is kicked." In America it is different.

HOPE MINSTRELS TO GIVE JUBILEE BLACKFACE SHOW

In celebration of the tenth anniversary of their first big minstrel production, the young men of Hope chapel have planned to give a jubilee, black-face show early next month. It will be in the nature of an "old timers" reunion, bringing back to the West End many of the half-circle artists who won their first plaudits from chapel audiences. Among them are "Mat" Sweeny, of New York;; George B. Cose, of Schenectady, N. Y.; Fred Dixon and Thomas M. Muir, of this city, who were the end men in 1902, and several of the soloists and specialty men. Former City Judge William M. Runyon was the coach and director of the production.

The anniversary jubilee will undoubtedly eclipse all previous efforts of the Hope young men. Clifford Braider will be musical director and Ben Evans and Thomas M. Muir will arrange the program. The presentation will be for two nights, as was done in 1902. The first rehearsal has been called for Monday night.

N. PLAINFIELD GIRLS HOLD A REAL LEAP YEAR DANCE.

North Plainfield girls gave the first real leap year dance of 1912 last night at Debele's Hall. It was a jolly, informal dance, and it was greatly enjoyed by the twenty-five couples present.

The girls took the initiative all the way through, from engaging the hall, the music, getting the dance orders, inviting the men, presenting them with flowers, and then taking them to and from the dance in carriages. It was a great success all the way through.

Twenty dances were carded, with three extras. Squires' orchestra furnished the music.

The patronesses were Mrs. W. W. Hart, Mrs. C. E. Steiner, Mrs. M. Ewart and Mrs. E. D. George. Miss Margery Hart, Miss Helen George, Miss Annette Steiner and Miss Lucile Ewart were the committee of young women who arranged the dance.

HE STAYS IN JAIL BUT WIFE GETS HIS PAY

Navy Department Refuses to Free Deserter Hannig, But Makes A Ruling That Relieves His Family From Want.

Washington, March 2.—Senator Martine has been advised by the Navy Department that in the case of W. T. Hannig, of Plainfield, N. J., who deserted from the navy, the latter cannot be released from the naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H., until his term of imprisonment expires on October 27, 1912. The judge who sentenced Hannig to one year of hard labor for desertion also ordered a forfeiture of pay, but in making the ruling on Senator Martine's presentment of the case, as prepared by Mayor Moy and Overseer of the Poor DeForest of Plainfield, the department will remit the loss of pay imposed by the court on the condition that Hannig allot all the money that is due him from this source to his wife in Plainfield, who is without support.

Hannig deserted the navy several months ago, it is said, after he learned of his family's destitution, and returned to his home here, where he was arrested by order of the navy department. He was taken at once to the naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy was appealed to by friends of the family and Overseer of Poor H. L. DeForest and he promptly interested himself in the case. He took the matter up with United States Senator James E. Martine, who gave the Plainfield executive assurance of his support.

Friends of Hannig claimed that he was misled into joining the navy, and when word came to him that his wife was in want and that his children were sick, he disregarded consequences and hastened back to his family.

BANK CONNECTION KEEPS BORO SOLONS FROM VOTING

A resolution offered by Councilman Rushmore, as chairman of the finance committee, to transfer the borough accounts from the State Trust Company to the Plainfield Trust Company was passed last night by the borough Council. The latter bank had made a proposition, at the request of Councilman Buttfield, to handle the borough's funds on a basis slightly more advantageous to the municipality than under the present arrangement.

At present the borough is paying 5 per cent. on borrowed money. The Plainfield Trust Company offers to loan at 4½ per cent. and pay a graded rate of interest from 3 to 4 per cent. on deposit, according to the amount and length of time in bank. The State Trust Company is now paying 3 per cent. on deposits.

As Councilman Milne and VanArsdale are directors of the State Trust Company and Councilman Stahl is a stockholder, they asked to be excused from voting, both on the passage of the resolution and on an effort that was made to have it tabled. Councilmen Rushmore and Buttfield voted in favor of its passage and Councilman Woolston against.

PARK AVENUE JUNIORS HOLD ENJOYABLE SOCIAL.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church held an enjoyable meeting and social in the Sunday-school rooms, yesterday afternoon. During the business session, the members handed in the contribution bags given them five weeks ago. They contained money made by the children themselves and which will help to defray the expense of educating an African girl, Nzimbanganza. The total amount was $20.06. Games were played afterward and refreshments were served in conclusion.

The committee in charge was composed of the Misses Arline Brown, Ruth Maguire and Eleanor Stutsman.

GOVERNOR STUBBS LAUDS ROOSEVELT

The Progressive Republicans Open Their Campaign at Newark.

CHEER THE COLUMBUS SPEECH

Reference to it as "Declaration of Human Rights" Brings Forth Yells of Approval From the Audience of a Thousand.

Newark, N. J., March 2.—Colonel Roosevelt and his policies were praised by several speakers at a mass meeting in the Kruger auditorium, the occasion being the opening of the campaign of the progressive Republicans in New Jersey in the interest of the former president. About a thousand persons were seated in the hall. Borden D Whiting, who was chairman of the Roosevelt committee, presided. When the colonel's Columbus speech was characterized as "a declaration of human rights" there were yells of approval which lasted for minutes at a time. Governor Robert M. Bass of New Hampshire and Governor Joseph M Carey of Wyoming were unable to be present and sent letters of regrets.

"The progressive movement," Governor Stubbs of Kansas said, "needs simply the application of decent business methods and publicity in all its affairs. Apply the business law and square deal to the management of an administration, and that is all you need.

"The people are soon going to find out that everything is not tied up in dollars and cents. That's why I like Teddy Roosevelt.

"If you come right down to brass tacks in that Columbus speech Roosevelt went no further than Lincoln, and when men pronounce that speech as anarchy they might say the same thing about Lincoln's speech."

Former State Senator Everett Colby, Edmund B. Osborne and Mr. Fort were the other speakers.

FINDLAY HAS TALK WITH LICENSE COMMITTEEMAN

Owing to the fact that all of the members of the councilmanic license committee could not attend the meeting, practically nothing was done last night regarding the request of Alexander D. Findlay, who lost his liquor license last Monday, for a hearing to refute the charges made against him by Captain A. S. Hewitt, of the Salvation Army. Mr. Findlay appeared at the meeting and talked informally of the situation.

It was decided to postpone the question of a hearing until Monday night at 7:30, when it is expected that all members of the license committee will be present.

A consensus of opinion among those close to the situation seems to indicate that the license application is not likely to be reconsidered.

DEATH PARTS TWIN GIRLS OF MR. AND MRS. FROST.

Evelyn Gertrude, one of the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton Frost, of Franklin place, aged ten years, died last night of pneumonia which followed an attack of measles. The funeral service will be held at the residence of her parents tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church officiating. Burial will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Worthy of Your Consideration.

Beginning with the 1912 year the FORD MOTOR CO. set out to build 75,000 Ford Cars, one third of the automobile output of the entire United States, and are ahead of their schedule to date, in fact they were behind 2,200 cars during February. It might be well for the public to investigate and compare this with what some of the other manufacturers of motor cars are doing. Remember the best people in the country are buying Ford cars. There's a reason. Ask Standard Tire Vulcanizing Co., distributers, 38-40 Somerset street. "On the bridge."

THERE IS HOPE FOR LOWER TAX RATE

Semi Officially Stated that 1912 Budget May Pull It Down to $1.71.

STREET DEPARTMENT CUT

Only One to Receive Less Money Than Last Year, According to Tentative Figures Reached By Finance Committee—Proposed Items.

The Councilmanic finance committee at its meeting, last night, made substantial progress in its work of preparing the annual budget, although no official announcement has been made as yet as to definite figures. It is semi-officially stated that an effort will be made to reduce the tax rate from $1.75, the present figure, to $1.71. It is believed that this can be done, as it is estimated that the increased ratables will amount to $500,000.

There is a disposition to give the Plainfield Dental Society $750 to establish a free dental clinic, which has been petitioned for; also to increase City Judge W. G. DeMeza's salary from $1,000 to $1,500. The Plainfield Public Library, it is understood, will ask for $9,000 against $7,500 last year.

The police department received $28,000 last year and it is proposed to make the appropriation $30,000 this year. The fire committee has asked for $45,000 against $41,000 last year, with a view to adopting automobile apparatus, according to plans previously discussed. The street department received $48,000 last year and it is believed that $41,000 will meet its needs this year. The poor department will probably get $9,000, the same as last year. Of this sum $1,500 goes to the hospital. The department has a balance of $2,000 at present.

The street lighting department will probably get a $500 increase, as a number of new lights will be required during the coming year in the outlying districts which are now growing rapidly. The budget must be completed and be ready for presentation to the Common Council for adoption at the May meeting, and several committee meetings will be held in the meantime for that purpose.

MRS. HELEN DENISE DIES AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS.

Mrs. Helen DeNise, wife of John DeNise, of West Front street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, following a brief illness from peritonitis. She was taken ill the fore part of the week and her condition became so alarming she was hurried to the hospital Thursday afternoon. She continued to sink, however, despite every effort on the part of physicians.

Mrs. DeNise was formerly Miss Helen Donavan and had always resided in this city. Beside her husband, she is survived by three children; also her father, Patrick Donovan, four sisters and a brother. She was thirty-five years old.

The funeral will be held at her late home Monday afternoon at 2:30 and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

WHERE BOROUGH STREET MONEY IN 1911 WENT

Big Gallery Out to Hear Mr. Smalley Explain Expenditure--Auditor Disclaims Intent to Reflect on Administration.

The news that former mayor of North Plainfield, Newton B. Smalley, was to appear before Mayor Clark and the Council to explain why the borough street department appropriation was exceeded by more than $3,000 last year, attracted one of the largest galleries that has appeared in the North Plainfield Council chamber in some time. A number of the voters present were invited by letter from Mr. Smalley. Mr. Smalley's explanation furnished the setting for some flashes of biting sarcasm for his critics.

In explaining the expenditure, Mr. Smalley said that last year was a most unusual one in the street department. Circumstances arose which at the time the budget was fixed were unforseen. The P. S. C. relaying and changing the grade of the tracks on Somerset street forced the borough to an expenditure of $1,766 for stone alone, and about $1,000 for labor in rebuilding the road to conform with the improvement. The 25 miles of stone built roads were all given needed treatment and was an item to be considered. Oil for the streets cost $615 and $745 was paid for surveys, two other items that were much higher than expected. The improvements to Clinton avenue cost $1,100.

In showing what Street Commissioner Barrett had received for his own services and the work performed by two teams and drivers Mr. Smalley made comparisons of 1910 and 1911. In 1910 Mr. Barrett received about $2,000. In 1911, $2,565 was paid him, and Mr. Smalley challenged anybody to show where there was any extravagance as alleged in the outlay.

He invited questions at the close of his explanation and answered a number to the satisfaction of those making the queries.

Mr. Suffern, the auditor in whose report there was a paragraph stating that it was impossible to obtain a detailed record of the money spent, which is partially responsible for the criticism aroused, was present and said in reply to a question by Councilman Buttfield that no reflection was meant or intended in the assertion that the details were unavailable, and admitted that no effort made to secure them had met with opposition, as the statement might be taken to imply.

Good jumps were made by many of the candidates, and it is evident that the contestants are getting down to work in earnest for

PARK CLUB'S PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED

The coming summer gives promise of being a busy one at the Park Club and if the plans of the management are carried out there will be many needed improvements made that will greatly add to the comfort and pleasure of the members.

Owing to the rapidly increasing membership more room is badly needed. To satisfy this want an addition is planned. It will be built on the rear and when completed will greatly enlarge the billiard and pool room. The extension will be large enough to accommodate tables for two card rooms and a social parlor.

Aside from the enlargement of the club house accommodations the athletic features of the club are to be increased. Two more bowling alleys are contemplated and the work started last fall on the tennis courts will be completed as soon as the frost leaves the ground.

The courts have been dug out to a depth of about two feet. A bottom of cinders will be put in for drainage purposes and on this the soil will be spread. In this manner the courts will always be in proper condition for play, it is thought, even after a hard shower. The tennis house was made much use of last season and although not completed until late proved to be a great advantage to the players and increased the demand on the courts.

BAD CHECK PASSER AT WORK IN CITY

Negro Swindler Makes Three Attempts to Defraud Local Business Men.

SUCCEEDS ON FRANK LINKE

Liquor Dealer Loses $5, Auctioneer and Druggist Save Themselves From Being Victimized—Crook Has a Narrow Escape in One Place.

The city police are looking for a colored man who swindled Frank Linke, a wholesale liquor seller, yesterday and tried to pass worthless checks on two other Plainfield business men. The latter, Robert Murray, of West Front street, and T. S. Armstrong, of Park and North avenues, were not victimized.

The colored man entered Mr. Murray's store yesterday morning and asked to have a check cashed. It was drawn on the Plainfield Trust Co., and bore the name of Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton, of Watchung. Mr. Murray was suspicious and went out to call a policeman. During his absence the swindler disappeared.

Yesterday afternoon Frank Linke got a telephone order for liquor to be delivered to Dr. A. C. Atwood, in the Stillman building. Mr. Linke sent the goods with an employe, with change for $10 as requested by the man, who met the Linke man when he arrived. The goods and the change for $10 were turned over and a check signed by W. H. Howland, drawn on the Plainfield Trust Co. was given to the messenger, who was hailed by the swindler as he entered the building. The check was refused at the bank as worthless.

Mr. Armstrong received a telephone message purporting to be from Dr. R. W. Emerson, ordering some tooth powder and dental supplies. Mr. Armstrong himself filled the order and when he was going to Dr. Emerson's office he saw a colored man leave hurriedly. Dr. Emerson had not ordered the things.

PURIM HOLIDAY BEGINS AT SUNDOWN TONIGHT

The celebration of Purim, a holiday commemorating the victory of Esther in behalf of the Jews, will be begun Saturday night and will last until sundown the next day. There will be services at all the synagogues Saturday night and Sunday. After morning services Sunday the orthodox homes will have a feast at which will be eaten cakes resembling, it is said, a garment of Haman, through whose machinations the Jews got into disfavor with the king at that time. In these homes there will also be an exchange of presents, consisting of cakes, nuts and fruit. This is generally sent by the youngest male members of the family who can walk.

During the services Sunday the entire book of Esther, or the "Megilah," as it is known, will be read. The services and feast consist as much in celebration of Haman's execution by the royal order as it does of the victory gained by the Jews.

MRS. THOMPSON TELLS OF MISSIONARY EFFORTS

Mrs. Thompson, wife of Rev. Dr. C. L. Thompson, widely known as one of the heads of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, addressed the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon at its annual meeting. She gave a concise and comprehensive review of what is being accomplished among the Indians, the Mormons, Kentucky Mountaineers, the Mexicans, Cubans and Porto Ricans.

In connection with the address, there was the annual meeting, election of officers and reports. Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch gave a review of the past year's work, and Mrs. William Myers, the treasurer, reported that more than $1,000 had been raised for home missions. These officers were elected:

President, Mrs. I. C. Pierson; first vice-president, Mrs. W. E. Honeyman; second vice-president, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore; secretary, Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch; treasurer, Mrs. William Myers; secretary of literature, Mrs. Henry R. Halloway.

After the meeting there was a social hour. Mrs. H. E. Claws and Mrs. S. T. Carter, Jr., poured tea and they were assisted by other memebrs of the society.

Price Should Have Been 18 Cents.

In the adv. of Roth and Company on the back page of yesterday's paper it was stated that Jersey fowl would be sold today for 8 cents a pound. This was a typographical error, as the price should have been 18 cents.

BALLOT BOX FILLS WITH VOTES

places in the party of six which the Daily Press will send on a tour de luxe to England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland.

The contestants are not allowing any advantages to opponents without a hard fight. The positions won have gained solely through merit, and strict attention to the business in hand.

The next two weeks will be one of the most interesting periods of the contest, as the winners of the special prizes will be annuounced at the end of that time. The contestants are evidently desirous of possessing the special prizes as well as winning the European tour, and the work now being done by them toward earning these rewards is reflected in the large number of ballots which are finding their way into the ballot box. The prompt responce of the friends of the contestants is indeed very gratifying to the Press as well as to the candidates, and is evidence of the position which The Press holds in this community.

Concentrated efforts are most important at this time. At this period of the contest there is at stake the winning of two desirable and attractive prizes by each contstant, and the votes accumulated in this effort will place the contestant in the realm of big numbers, and in a good position to start the last lap of the race for the European tours.

The work that has already been accomplished only goes to prove what has been said all along—that subscription votes are easily secured if you only go after them. One business man told the contest manager that he had a check already made out for a year's subscription to The Press, waiting for the first candidate who asked for it, but he not yet been approached. No doubt there are many others who are only waiting to be asked for assistance, who will be glad of the chance to help one of the contestants and at the same time subscribe for the most up-to-date newspaper in Plainfield.

One surprising feature about this affair is the fact that there are so few entries in District 5, where there is such a fruitful field in which to work. What is the matter with Dunellen, Bound Brook and all those other towns in that direction. When one takes into consideration the value of the prizes being offered for the energetic young women in that vicinity it is hard to understand why there are not more who are trying for them.

Two months in Europe with all expenses paid by this paper, visiting six different countries and the principal cities and points of interest in each, a personally conducted tour in charge of Thomas Cook & Sons and under conditions which insure the very best of attention, is something which is offered but once in a lifetime and which should not be passed by without an effort to win. There are the five special prizes; a beautiful solitaire diamond ring and four handsome gold watches, which will be given to the one in each district who polls the largest number of votes during the special period.

These vacation tours of Europe and the special prizes are surely worth a little effort, aren't they? And you can win them just as well as somebody else if you only think so and try. There are bound to be winners in each district, and if the doubtful and uncertain ones hesitate much longer their chance will be gone, and then will come regrets. The best plan is to start the week with a determined effort to win, and the chances are that success will be yours.

EFFICIENCY.

Recently the question was put to me what I thought was the most important quality in man. My answer was: Efficiency. The questioner looked at me somewhat doubtfully, having expected my answer to have pointed out some special moral qualification, such as honesty, or character, or some similar traditional quality or virtue. My claim was that efficiency includes all the rest, and that there can be no real efficiency without honesty, or a good moral character, or whatever spiritual elements there may enter into a man's make-up.

To be efficient implies that one can do his life work so that it affects and influences environment helpfully and becomes a fruitful seed of new development. It means that our individuality projects itself upon our environment. It means the ability to construct and to create, and to destroy only for the purpose of building better. It makes the individual life reflected in the life of all.

To be efficient has always been the distinction of the complete normal man who is full of vigor, discrimination, sagacity, power and practical idealism. It is the quality of the leader.

Yet efficiency does not pre-suppose an opportunity for doing big things only. It manifests itself really in the doing of ALL things well—the small as well as the big; and in the faculty of adjusting one's self quickly and intelligently to changing conditions and new problems.

Our present life conditions, while they require efficiency perhaps more than any previous age, make it hard to attain it. In the past, most people found the groove along which they could work with relative ease. The various occupations had their traditional confines and regulations. Changes came slowly, so that there was mostly sufficient time for adjustment. Society was more or less clearly divided into stationary groups, reminding one of the ancient castes. Cities, and city life, were simply organized. The workingman was still an artisan with the opportunity and often the desire of becoming an artist in his own particular trade; and the agricultural portion of the population had similarly circumscribed functions and opportunities.

Now we are living in a period of enormously rapid change. Invention follows invention, and the human mind has become so extraordinarily alert and keen that it tackles problem after problem and allows nothing to be called impossible. Machinery, so highly developed that it replaces the handwork of millions and seems endowed almost with human intelligence, has revolutionized industry and agriculture. The amazing progress in the means of transportation has brought the products of distant countries together, and has wiped out local color and local conditions to such an extent that cosmopolitan man is equally at home in any one of the five continents, hardly finding a difference in his life conveniences. It has also brought the nations of the world so closely together that there is now world-wide competition as well as world-wide co-operation where, formerly, man's life was hedged in by the narrow precincts of his own community. This has also broken down national barriers, notably so in our own country whose inhabitants have come from all parts of the globe, building a new nation out of fragments and representatives of all others.

More than that: within the nations themselves, there has been a thorough upheaval. Class and caste lines have become obliterated; and social strata which had been for centuries well circumscribed in their life conditions, their ambitions and activities, have become mixed together. The sturdy Norwegian yeoman, the stolid German peasant, the Russian Jew, the herdsman of the Hungarian puszta, the Neapolitan lazzaroni, and many another representative of classes that have to this day preserved almost medieval conditions and habits, have been cast upon these shores to be in competition with the American freeman. Distinctions of education and refinement, of century-old culture and leadership, of race and nation, of instincts and ambitions, of ideals and aspirations, had to give way before this onrushing flood of the new migration of peoples.

This makes the problem of efficiency difficult for the individual living in these modern times. Opportunities and advantages which in the past, had been given to the privileged classes by family, tradition, institution, education, etc., are fast disappearing. In the social turmoil brought about by the building up of this new nation and this new age, the individual has an increasingly difficult task in finding his place in life. What would otherwise seem to be a most auspicious epoch for the development of a new brotherhood of man impresses one largely as a universal struggle for existence in which only unscrupulous and merciless cunning and brute force would give the mastership.

How is there to be efficiency, in its full sense, for the hundreds of thousands of our fellow-beings in factories and sweat-shops who make only one particular little thing year in year out, at meager wages? How many of our working people are so situated that they can produce some one thing complete? How can one who for years has been doing nothing but start the lever of a machine which in turn starts a thousand spindles going; or who for half a life time has been forced to fasten the heels to a ready-made shoe—how can he, I say, adjust himself readily to new conditions and new work when the tide of industrial development turns?

The problem of efficiency is pre-eminently a problem of education. How can we educate our children to become efficient?

It is evident that in a country like ours where we have a great foreign influx every year, many children entering our public schools are handicapped not only by their lack of knowledge of the English language, but also because the change of environment makes their adjustment to new conditions difficult. To transplant an Italian child from the narrow streets of Naples or Genoa into a metropolis like New York or Chicago, or into one of our rural communities, implies a bewildering complexity of new impressions which will require efforts of no little intensity on the part of the child to set himself right with his new conditions. In this struggle of re-adjustment, native abilities will remain obscured for a longer or shorter time.

In our present conditions of civilized life, as said before, especially in the larger cities, children even more than adults have really great difficulty to assert their own rights and individuality, their powers and ability. Our life conditions are so complex and so artificial, and they have grown to be so at such rapid rate, that it is little wonder that the adjustment of these conditions is extremely difficult even to everyone of us, and certainly to the child. To find his way and his place among these perplexing influences, circumstances and life problems; to find his groove and his vocation in this bewildering maze of transformative and complex tasks presents a problem to our growing child which is necessarily confusing. And our schools which endeavor to keep pace with these changing demands are losing their bearing in a measure and cram the child with a mass of undigested and undigestible details.

These facts are here presented merely for the purpose of stating the problem. But this problem is of tremendous magnitude. And if it is a problem of the normal child, growing up under normal conditions, it is much more a problem of the "atypical" child, that is to say, the child who is indeed potentially normal but so handicapped that his fate is in the balance. There are millions of these children in this country who will, unless intelligently handled, become the misfits in society, the inefficient, the disturbing elements, the human waste while, when properly handled and educated, they would grow up to useful and constructive citizenship.

Let me repeat in closing: efficiency is essentially a spiritual thing. It is based upon sterling character, honest work, motives that go beyond individual selfishness and which serve the ideals of race betterment and the progress of civilization. Efficiency points high; it points to perfection; it points to godliness.

LECTURE ON PHILIPPINES AT THE FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. Homer Stuntz, secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist church, discussed the subject of "The Philippine Islands, and the New Eastern Question," before a large audience at the First M. E. church, last night.

The speaker gave a brief review of what had been accomplished in the Philippines by the missionaries, paying a tribute to President Taft, who at that time was the Governor of the islands, explaining that he had made it possible for the natives and others to enjoy the same privileges and benefits enjoyed in this country.

Dr. Stuntz told how, under the American administration, the old laws were repealed, honest judges were brought to the islands, and how everyone was guaranteed religious freedom and liberty.

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Sir:—There is now pending in our State Assembly a bill amending the Public Utilities act extending the power of the commission so as to give them immediate authority to issue summary orders respecting the obilition of conditions upon any railroad where there is "imminent and extraordinary danger in connection with the entrance to or exit from any railroad station." This is quite independent of the grade crossing question. This bill was called forth by the numerous accidents which have occurred on roads in the northern part of the State owing to the failure of companies to take such measures as will not compel passengers desiring to take a train, to pass over a track on which trains run in the opposite direction. That such power ought to be given to the Commission can hardly be doubted by anyone except the railroad officials, who care more for their dividend record than for the safety of patrons. Anyone familiar with the condition at Elizabethport, with its station enclosed by a triangle of tracks, and with the many express trains running past at full speed, must recognize the necessity for the abolition of such a death trap. Last Easter, two people desiring to take a train to New York on the Amboy branch were killed by an express train from New York, and a railroad employe was killed trying to save them. The engineer of the express was arrested and tried, but acquitted—and indeed it is difficult to see how he was to blame. But nothing has been done by the company to remedy the condition. And yet the Central is paying twelve per cent dividends.

A commuter on the Lackawanna, Mr. Orcutt, complained to the Public Utilities Commission of the danger to life and limb at one of its stations, and the counsel of the road insultingly answered that passengers should know better than to stand on the tracks. Lately the Mayor of Little Ferry was killed while alighting from a train, by one going in the opposite direction. The Lackawanna is a very wealthy road. These instances could be easily multiplied. This bill is and has been for the past five weeks in the hands of the Railroad Committee, of which Albert De Unger of Camden, is chairman; although after hearing many appeared on behalf of the bill, and only one man, counsel for one of the railroads, appeared against it, Mr. De Unger has not seen fit to report the bill. An identical bill was introduced in the Senate and promptly passed. Mr. De Unger will neither report the Assembly bill nor allow the Senate bill to be substituted for it.

The railroad companies have so long been supreme in this State that they cannot comprehend how the people can have the audacity to demand that provision be made for their safety, and it seems now that the objection of a single railroad lawyer is more potent to check this much needed addition to, or definition of the powers of the Public Utilities Commission than are the representatives of the people to secure its enactment. If any of your readers are interested in this contest between the railroads and the people I would urge upon them to use all the influence they can bring to bear to induce Mr. De Unger to report this bill without delay, so that the Assembly may act on it. One way to help will be to write to the representatives in the Assembly for Union county, urging upon them to make an energetic effort to get this bill out of committee. These gentlemen are George L. Babcock, of Plainfield, and William Groves and George Otto, of Elizabeth. Letters may be addressed to them at the Assembly chamber Trenton.

There is a new sleeveless coat with a cape back crossing in front like a fichu. Puffings and ruching of taffeta are used on frocks of serge.

Fichus continue to be fashionable. Tulle, either plain or fringed, is the favorite material for making these pretty, cloudlike trimmings. They are used frequently to trim negligees of crepe de chine or soft satin.

The Norfolk costume is very smart for little girls this spring, and this suit is adaptable to all materials, light woolens as well as the heavier linens.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

WAYS OF COOKING SHAD.

SHAD is now in the market and is one of the favorite dishes on the fish lover's bill of fare.

Shad should be well washed and dried. It may be cut in half and broiled or you may split it open and put a small quantity of salt over it and lay it upon a gridiron well buttered. It will broil in about twenty minutes and should be thoroughly done. Melted butter may be served with it.

Baked on a Plank.

Planked Shad.—Butter a hickory or oak fish plank quite generously and place upon it a shad that has been split, cleaned and seasoned and squeeze a liberal amount of lemon juice over it. Garnish with potato roses put on with a pastry tube and sprinkle with bits of butter and finely minced parsley.

Place the plank in the oven and cook until potatoes are slightly browned. Garnish before taking to the table with sliced hothouse tomatoes and cucumbers, dressed in vinegar, between the potato roses.

If you are not accustomed to cook fish in this way these hints may be useful. About twenty-five minutes is long enough to leave a good sized shad in the oven.

Baste often with melted butter.

The fish may be fastened to the board with a few tacks.

The board should be set in a dripping pan. The lower part of the oven is the best place for it.

The boards or planks, as they are called, should have been well seasoned and heated before they are used for this purpose.

The fish appears at the table on the plank and may be garnished with parsley and radishes. It is served with butter sauce.

Some Side Dishes.

Potted Shad.—This should be cooked in an earthern pot or covered baking dish. Take the backbone out of the shad, cut it in small pieces, then put into the dish one layer of shad, one small piece butter, some salt, pepper and a very small piece of mace, clove and allspice. Cover with vinegar. Bake in the earthen pot, well sealed, eight hours. Six whole cloves and the same of allspice are enough for three shad. Seal the cover with dough so as to keep the air out.

Shad Roe Salad.—Boil the roe of the fish in salted water for twenty minutes and set it aside to cool. When it is cold take off the skin and cut the roe into thin slices.

Arrange lettuce leaves in a salad bowl, lay upon them the slices of roe, which should overlap one another. Pour over them a mayonnaise dressing and serve.

NASH SETS NEW MARK IN FRATERNAL LEAGUE

Rolling a Fraternal League match on the Olympia alleys last night, the Elks team won two games from the Shamrocks. Nash made the fans sit up and notice his pinning in the last contest by returning a mark of 245, the highest score yet made in the league.

The scores follows:

THIRTY CANDIDATES FOR P.H.S. BASEBALL TEAM

The first practice of the P. H. S. squad of candidates for the baseball team was held yesterday afternoon. There was thirty pupils, all promising material, out and Allen Doggett, who is to act as coach feels much encouraged over the prospects for a strong team.

A number of last year's players were on hand and will make tries for their old positions against the abundance of raw material. Conditioning work as far as possible will be held indoors until the weather becomes favorable to outdoor practice.

Those who reported for practice yesterday afternoon and the positions for which they are trying follow: Pitchers, Fred Mills, Matthew Caughlin, Franklyn Newell, Emil Nelson, Edson Woodhull, John Denny and Arthur VanZandt; catchers, Tony Barone, William Peacock, Warren Butler, Silas Guttridge, James Nash and James McNabb; first base, Eynan White, Erickson Van Norden and Monroe Good; second base, Harold Schenck and Arthur Grisley; third base, Jack Zerega; short stop, William Davenport; outfielders, Morris Mann, John Cottrell, Gerald Linke, Robert Gavett, Donald Sminck, Herman Rosenson, Murdock Hetfield, Philip VanDeventer, Milton Fine and John Penny.

P. H. S. BASEBALL SCHEDULE NEARLY FILLED.

Manager James Dunwell, of the P. H. S. baseball club, has nearly completed the schedule for the coming season. There are still a number of dates open, owing to no replies having been received to his communications to other school team managers.

The season will be opened April 3 with the Camp Bowser team and will close on June 8. North Plainfield will be played in the city on May 8 and the return game will be played in the borough on May 27. The schedule includes nearly all the teams met last year with a number of other strong school teams that have never been played by the P. H. S. before.

NEW HIGH SCORE RECORD FOR FIVE MAN TEAM.

All Newark records for five men bowling teams were broken last night by the National Turners quintet bowling a Suburban League match with the Elks. In the second game the Turners spilled the pins for a total of 1,147 and in the third contest for 1,110. The first game was won by 997 giving the team an average of 1,084-2.

Elizabeth Elks Won Two.

The Elizabeth Elks took two games from Paterson at that place last night in an Elks league match, 935 to 927 and 368 to 918. Paterson won the third game by one pin, the score being 925 to 924. Queeney, of the Paterson Bills, was high man for the session, turning in 254 for the last game.

THE GINGER JAR

Now let's see if it goes out like a lamb.

Our notion of what not to do yesterday was to handle a large plate glass window or play catch without gloves.

The difference between a glazier and a pitcher is that one breaks what he drops and the other is dropped for no breaks.

There is still room for two more teams in the duck pin tournament which will start next week on the Olympia alleys.

No college man should go into professional baseball unless he gets $3,000. Hughey Jennings is credited with saying to the students of Cornell. That sounds much better than his former declarations regarding college built players.

The Tabs, of Elizabeth, on which team Jack Martin and Jimmy Emory starred after the close of the season last year, has organized for the coming season. Joe Burns will again pilot the club.

The classy work of the Springfield Gym team at the exhibition in the Y. M. C. A., Thursday night, received much favorable comment yesterday from those present.

The trap shooting championship of Somerset county was won by E. E. Gardner, of Bernardsville, at the annual championship shoot, held at East Millstone, February 22.

Tom Keller, the veteran Peters Company manager, gives it as his opinion that Billy Wolstencroft, the Philadelphia amateur, is the fastest man in shooting double targets that ever faced a trap. Those who have seen Billy shoot live birds and targets are ready to agree with Tom.

Joseph Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis Ball Club, of the American Association, has been spending the winter shooting at Reelfoot Lake, in Kentucky, and has with him Rube Waddell and several other ball players.

President Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn Club, tells an amusing story about a proposition which President John M. Ward, of the Boston Club, made to him recently. Mr. Ward took the Brooklyn manager aside and said confidentially that he would like to buy Nap Rucker, the star Dodger southpaw.

"How much do you want for Rucker?" asked Mr. Ward.

"Don't make me laugh," replied Mr. Ebbets. "How much are you offering?"

"Well, I'll say $15,000," said Mr. Ward.

Mr. Ebbetts said nothing. "Well," continued Mr. Ward, "I'll make it $20,000 and take a chance."

"You're not taking a chance at all," Mr. Ebbetts said. "Rucker, I believe, is the best pitcher in the business, and there isn't enough money in Boston to buy him. No chance at all."

The Tiger recruits at Monroe, La., do not fear the meningitis scare at that point half as much as they do their manager's axe.

The Loizeaux Lumber Co. recently purchased two motorcycles for use of the employes in going from one yard to another. Julius Dickhut, of South Plainfield, is also going to make use of one in his business. Jack Horner closed the deals.

James Finmore and Miss Anna Turbridy, of Syracuse, N. Y., recently made their wedding trip to Sayre, Pa., on a motorcycle.

GIANTS AND ATHLETICS MAY PLAY MARCH 17.

Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, has agreed to let his team play a series of games with the Giants and has suggested the first game to be played at San Antonio on March 17, with all regulars participating. What action McGraw will take has not been learned.

Ebbets Postpones Visit.

When Charley Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn Club, made an appointment to visit Manager Joe McGinnity, of the Indians Thursday, he overlooked the fact that it was his daughter's birthday. As the young lady can only celebrate the event every four years, the Brooklyn magnate decided to stay at home for the celebration and notified McGinnity that he would go to Newark today.

FREDDIE LEID SIGNED BY M'KEESPORT CLUB

Freddie Leid, who starred in left field for High Bridge last season, will perform in a McKeesport uniform in the O. and P. League this summer. He was signed yesterday by Manager McGrath and informed that he would be notified when to report for spring training.

Leid was signed on the recommendation of Joe Harter, who played the season with Plainfield, alternately starring at short and in centre field. Harter had ample opportunity to see Leid in action when they were both members of the Tabs team at Elizabeth in the post-season series and while both were playing in the Central New Jersey League.

Leid is a hard hitting left hander and when he goes after a fly in left the grass flys away from his spikes like water from a bicycle on a wet pavement. He is liable to break up a game at any time with his stick and during the time he was with High Bridge he made the Walton brothers go some to stay in his class. They always had the batting honors cinched in the Hunterdon county town until Leid's arrival.

The N. P. H. S. girls basketball team easily disposed of the Roselle H. S. lassies yesterday afternoon by defeating them 25 to 3. The game was played on the home court and the visiting five only made one point in the second half. The score at the end of the first half stood 13 to 2.

Anoher Fashion Number.

The New York World will give free with next Sunday's paper another of its popular Fashion Supplements. This is another group of the Pictorial Review styles—eight pages of pictures and descriptions of fashions covering all of the early spring styles. Besides this special Fashion Number there is a sixteen page Joke Book free with next Sunday's World. Cover in colors, full of funny jests and games and puzzles. Then again, there is one of the famous Jas. Montgomery Flagg sketches, picturing and describing the Adventures of Kitty Colb, and of equal interest is the Charles Dana drawing, presenting charcters from Dickens. The usual Sunday World Magazine in colors and the "Funny Side" or Comic Weekly, for children will be found with next Sunday's World. This is all in addition to the complete sixteen-page Joke Book.

How can we afford to miss this galaxy?

The Show at Proctor's.

"The Messenger Boy and the Actor-Lady," an act with a laugh a minute; Staines Comedy Circus is good; the human roulette wheel is a clever idea. Arthur Ross and Co. in "The President of the Liars' Club" is a fair skit and in spots funny. George B. Alexander, the hobo monologuist, has some good parodies. The La Wana Trio, a very excellent high class instrumental and singing act, goes good.

Highest Honors to American Piano

ST. PETER'S, ROME

His Holiness Pope Pius Xth

TO express his appreciation of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co.'s most beautiful instrument now in the Vatican, confers a MEDAL OF HONOR upon that Company.

This establishes the American piano as the standard of the world, as none but the piano of highest known quality could command such an honor as this.

The music of the Vatican is a distinctive product and is of the highest plane. The Sistine Choir, led by the Abbe Perosi, sings only for the Pope, and is the most magnificent choir in the world.

This tribute, therefore, to the

HALLET & DAVIS PIANO

Is of particular significance and decisively stamps the American product as the leading piano.

For over 73 years the Hallet & Davis Piano has occupied a position at the head of American pianos—used and indorsed by leading artists of the past and present day.

The importance of this honor and the high distinction which the Hallet & Davis Piano bears must appeal to all music lovers.

LIVELY WEEK-END FOR THE FIRE DEPT.

Apparatus Callled Four Times Between Saturday Afternoon and Last Night.

WOMAN HUNTS GAS LEAK

And Finds It With the Aid of a Lighted Match—Resulting $200 Blaze the Most Serious of the Lot.

The city fire department was kept busy from Saturday afternoon to last night, responding to alarms. A total of four calls was received, one box and three telehponed, but none of them resulted in any great damage.

The most serious blaze occurred at 5:58 Saturday afternoon at the double residence at 311 East Sixth street. It is owned by William Morrison, of the borough, and occupied by the Misses Smith and S. K. Monroe. The fire was caused by one of the former using matches to locate a gas pipe leak. The trouble was found but more was started in the form of healthy flames shooting up the partition of the first floor.

The firemen arrived in response to an alarm from box 23 and used two tanks of the chemical engine in putting out the blaze. The damage is placed at $200, covered by insurance.

A still alarm was turned in at 2:40 Saturday afternoon for a chimney fire at the home of Edward McCann, 438 West Third street. It was put out before any damage had been occasioned. Another telephone alarm was received at 3:10 yesterday afternoon, for a supposed chimney fire at the residence of E. E. Iremonger, 657 Belvidere avenue. Members of No. 4 hose company found that the shower of sparks was caused by something that had been thrown into the grate. The third run on a telephone call was made at 8:37 last night to the residence of Mrs. Chapman Fisk, 112 West Seventh street. A bad chimney fire was in progress that required the use of three extinguishers to kill.

AS TO THE THIRD COMING OF CHRIST TO THE WORLD

Before a congregation that completely filled the large auditorium of the Park Avenue Baptist church, the Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor, delivered the first of a special series of sermons on the Lord's Coming," last night. The sermon treated of the inquiry "Will He Come?" With gereat earnestness and convincing power., the postor preached the second coming of the Lord "in such an hour as ye know not." Mr. Maguire said in part:

"The Lord's coming is mentioned 380 times in the Bible. There are three great Comings of the Lord: First, ' "Jesus coming to the cross' ' He came according to prophecy, all of which has been fulfilled. Second. The coming of the Holy Spirit, which was fulfilled at Pentecost. Third, The second coming of the Lord. The two previous comings were fulfilled to the letter; therefore why should not the third come to pass? He is coming because he promised to return. The scheme of redemption requires Chirst's return."

The second sermon in the series, "Signs of His Coming," will be delivered next Sunday evening. The service begins at 7:45, and closes at 9 o'clock sharp. A five minute question drawer on the theme of the evening precedes the sermon.

S. A. Staff Band Coming.

The annual visit of the National Staff Band of the Salvation Army has been set for Saturday and Sunday, March 23, and 24. A series of meetings are being planned for the occasion. A concert will be given on the Saturday evening and on Sunday evening a great rally will be held at the First Baptist church. Other large meetings will be held on Sunday morning and afternoon, besides several open air services.

Texier Back From Buffalo.

Leonce Texier, treasurer of the Plainfield theatre, returned last night after a week's visit at Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Gloverville, N. Y. While in Niagara Falls, Mr. Texier was the guest of Bobby Leach, the former Plainfield, who has gained coensiderable fame through his dashes over the falls in a barrel.

District 4.

District 5.
Miss Florence Stevenson.

Continually increasing interest is being manifested in the Daily Press European Tours contest, the ballots found in the ballot box Saturday night showing that there are some energetic hustlers among the list of candidates. Miss Hansen jumped into the lead in District No. 1 by putting a plethoric wad of 9,250 votes. Miss Leighs is a close second.

In all the districts positions were shifted, and some of the contestants who have been lagging in the rear took a long leap into the front rank. The race grows more exciting with the passing o feach day, and before the close of the contest there is going to be a warm battle for the honor of winning a tour.

A trip to Europe during the vacation period is an alluring proposition, and when it is to be taken under the conditions which the Daily Press party will enjoy, there is small wonder that so many are anxious to win. Two months spent on foreign shores, with new scenes and customs coming daily before the eye; a comprehensive and well-arranged jaunt through six foreign countries and in

MEN AND RELIGION WORK AROUSES CHURCH INTEREST

The Bible study conferences under the direction of W. D. Stem, of Philadelphia at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon and night were attended by representatives of thirteen of the city's and borough's evangelical churches. The conferences and a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. hall yesterday afternoon were held under the auspices of the committee of the Men and Religion Movement, of which George H. Batchelor is chairman. W. D. Murray was chairman of each meeting.

The committee of the Men and Religion Movement will hold a meeting in the near future to propose recommendations to the churches of the city on the suggestions made by Mr. Stem, who gave many helpful pointers on how to improve Bible study, after a thorough discussion of the local conditions.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. Stem made an earnest plea for increased activity on the part of Christian men, particularly in an effort to enlist men outside of the church.

HOPE PASTOR PREACHES ANNIVERSARY SERMON

Rev. Frederic L. Green, pastor of Hope chapel, delivered his first anniversary sermon yesterday morning, taking for his theme, "The Culture of Christian Love." The pastor held out the way of right living to bring joy to the hardest task and pleasure to the severest duty.

Taking up the question of what is Christian love, Mr. Greene offered suggestions as to how one should use life according to one's capacities.

The preacher said that Paul's idea was that life should be devoted to loving service for others, and that life should be brought to the definite example of Jesus Christ. In conclusion, the preacher urged everyone to take a personal account and see whether their lives measured up to the high standard.

WANTS L.O. ARMY TO ATTEND HEARING

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer Issues a Call For a Big Delegation.

HEARING NEXT WEDNESDAY

Impressive Showing, the Somerset Anti-Saloon Leader Says, Will Make the Legislators Take Note—"Petitions With Boots on."

Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, former leader of the Democratic minority in the Assembly, who is the foremost advocate that the anti-saloon advocates have among the politicians of Somerset county, is trying to rouse the Plainfield local optionists to the point of going in force to Trenton Wednesday, when a hearing on the local option bill is to be held. In a signed statement given out today Mr. Swackhamer says:

"I desire to impress the citizens of Plainfield with the importance of a large delegation going to Trenton on Wednesday, March 6, to attend the hearing on the local option bill before the Senate and Assembly, at 2 o'clock p. m. This right to rule in our own local affairs will not be realized unless the friends of this bill show an interest in it.

"By staying away from this hearing, you will cut off much of your influence from the cause and give the enemies of the bill a chance to say: 'Where are its advocates? Has it no friends?'

"At the hearing three years ago an ex-attorney general of this State in his argument against local option, said that the church people didn't want it. The race track ring wasn't broken till the State House was beseiged by thousands of interested men and women. 'Petitions with boots on' make the lawmakers take notice, and it costs only a dollar and sixty cents to go and return.

"Unless we work together and in dead earnest, we cannot succeed. Keep this fact in mind. You are now deprived of a vote on the excise question. You can express your will concerning the establishment of sewers, the issuing of school bonds and other public matters, but you cannot, under the present law, have a word to say about how many or how few saloon licenses shall be granted, nor to whom nor at what places, nor whether liquor licenses shall be given or denied.

"If the local option bill is passed by the Legislature, 30 per cent. of the voters can petition the county judge for an election, and, if the majority vote 'no license,' there will be no license; if the majority say 'license,' there will be license, as there is now.

"I have yet to meet the first legislator who does not say this is right, but they want to know that you want it. If you cannot go, telegraph or write to your representatives in behalf of the local option bill.

MIDDLESEX DEMOCRATS AFTER PROSECUTORSHIP

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 4.—Politics is playing a part in the selection of a successor to the late Theodore B. Boorsem, Prosecutor of Middlesex county, who died a few days ago. Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex, has recommended to the Governor the appointment of Joseph E. Stricker, of Perth Amboy, and this does not suit some of the Democratic county leaders. They claim that Stricker has not been active in the party ranks for the past two years. These leaders favor the appointment of City Treasurer W. Edwin Florance, of New Brunswick; District Court Judge Freeman Woodbridge, of former Surrogate Frederick M. P. Pearse. Governor Wilson has let it be known that he will appoint no one whom Senator Silzer does not recommend.

There is some talk of Senator Silzer, himself, for the place, and his appointment would be pleasing to the county leaders. The Senator wants to be Secretary of State, however, and it is not considered likely that he would take the Prosecutorship. The term has two years yet to run and the salary is $6,000 a year. If Senator Silzer should be appointed it would open the way for the appointment of David Crater, of Monmouth county as Secretary of State. Mr. Crater is also seeking this berth and has the endorsement of some of the members of the Democratic Committee.

STRONG-ARM DOSE FOR TROLLEY CAR ROWDIES

Riled Passengers on Main Liner Help Conductor Put Proper Finish to Ejection of Hooligans--Arrests Expected Today.

Passengers on Main line trolley car No. 20,016, which left the Watchung avenue terminus at 8:15 Saturday night, were unwilling witnesses to a display of rowdyism that has not been equalled in many months. The exhibition ended up in a rough-and-tumble, free-for-all fracas in the roadway, which will result in police court hearing tomorrow or Wednesday. Warrants were sworn out for four of the combatants by P. S. C. officials this morning.

The instigators of the trouble are said to be three Elizabeth men who have been employed on the Bonnie Burn sanitarium job. They boarded the car in town and begain passing insulting remarks at both men and women, the language at times becoming grossly indecent. Lynus Walpole, Jr., of Scotch Plains, was made an especial target, all manner of epithets being applied to him. The young man finally joined the conductor in using force and piled the trio off the car at Leland avenue. After that they were treated to an old-fashioned drubbing, other passengers lending proper proportions of muscle to make a good job of the polishing off process. It is said that Walpole, alone and unaided, took care of two of his insulters so effectively, that the services of a cab were needed to carry them to a recuperating place.

The matter was reported to the Public Service inspector and sufficient evidence was secured to have proper complaints lodged with the local police. Warrants were immediately issued and it is probable the offenders will be arrested during the afternoon.

P.H.S. AMATEURS LEARN HOW PROFESSIONALS DO IT

The senior class of the Plainfield High School has decided to give "Oliver Twist" as the anual senior play. It will afford an excellent opportunity for a large cast and is also desirable on account of its literary value, which is a requirement for the senior play. Samuel B. STATE FORESTER WARNS AGAINST 'TREE BUTCHERS'

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 4.—State Forester Alfred Gaskill has given out a warning against "tree butchers" who, he says, are going around various sections of the State soliciting orders for pruning trees and who do the trees much more harm than good. Mr. Gaskill was led to speak by some of this "pruning" which was done to shade trees on West State street, this city. The State Forester found one tree which had been badly cut and from which the sap was freely running.

He declared that there are many men engaged in this work of tree pruning who are ignorant of the true principles of tree culture. They not only do not know how to prune trees, but they show their ignorance by pruning at the wrong time. It is too late now to prune, he said, and trees cut so the sap runs may be ruined.

Mr. Gaskill said he wished to warn people because of the harm that is being done to shade trees. He declared that property owners should not let their trees be touched unless they were sure the pruners knew their business. He said every municipality should have a shade tree commission, or would give supervision of the shade trees to the park commission, in order that the trees could be protected from maltreatment.

RUMOR BUSY WITH FINDLAY LICENSE

Report Current That Some Councilmen Are Willing to Change Their Votes.

COUNCILMAN DUNN RETURNS

Absentee From License Meeting Back Home and Will Attend Session Tonight—No Hope for Findlay, General Opinion.

Alexander D. Findlay, of East Second street, a renewal of whose saloon license was refused last week, will appear before the councilmanic license committee at 7:30 o'clock tonight for the purpose of being given an opportunity to refute charges made by Captain A. S. Hewitt, of the Salvation Army. It is understood that Captain Hewitt who led the fight on Findlay, will be present at the same time. Findlay asked for the opportuuity to defend his place.

There was a rumor on the streets today that some of the councilmen who voted against Mr. Findlay's application a week ago, are now willing to vote for a reconsideration of the application and granting of the same. The license was refused by a vote of eight to two, President Telles and Councilman Gloak voting for the application, and Councilmen Taylor, Reville, Mygatt, Clark, Holt, W. W. Wilson, C. C. Randolph and Endress voting against it.

Councilman John E. Dunn, who was absent, has since returned, and will attend the meeting tonight. It is not known how he will vote, but according to general opinion it will be difficult to secure six votes for Mr. Findlay's license.

J. A. SMITH AND BROTHER HAVE LEASED BIG STORE

Through the Charles H. Lyman real estate brokerage agency, J. A. Smith & Brother have leased the big store in the Endress building at Madison avenue and West Front street. The present lessee S. S. Kresge, will remain in possession for one year longer when Smith & Brother will begin their occupancy.

The new lease extends for a ten years' period and the property which J. A. Smith & Brother will then occupy is one of the largest stores in this section, but none too large for their immense business. They have occupied the Cutter store at West Front street and Exchange alley for nine years and there is still one more year to their lease. For twenty-five years this firm has been doing a prosperous grocery business on West Front street and their trade is growing to such large proportions that bigger accommodations are needed. Mr. Cutter has not yet stated for what purpose he intends to use his store room.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

How intensely the girls in the department store are interested in their work has been demonstrated many times by Miss Rose Stahl, who comes to the Plainfield Theatre tonight in her new play "Maggie Pepper." Of course the part which Miss Stahl plays has made her a very interesting person to department store workers and especially the girl clerks. She discovered shortly after beginning her engagement at the Harris theatre in New York city, that she could not go shopping and give her name for the delivery of goods, without being congratulated by the shop girls for her work in the play. This was pleasant enough but it got to be embarrassing.

Man Discovers Bag of Coins Behind Fireplace.

MAY AMOUNT TO $15,000.

Borden A. Jeffreys of Asbury Park Declined to State the Amount Found. Money Is Over a Century Old—Neighbors Give Different Opinions as to Whom the Owner Was.

Asbury Park, N. J., March 4.—Behind a brick fireplace in the old White homestead on Deal lake Borden A. Jeffreys, who acquired the property from his mother, one of the White descendants, found a small fortune in silver and gold coins that had probably been concealed more than a century ago.

Jeffreys lifted a brick from its place, and the coins began to drop out. He put his hand into a deep recess, and shoving the treasure to the open, the coins fell in a heap on the floor.

Amazed at the discovery, Jeffreys collected the money and placed it into a bag. He declined to state the amount, but the neighbors say the sum aggregates $15,000 and that Jeffreys will tear apart another fireplace in the old dwelling which was bricked over about fifty years ago and which, it is hoped, may have been a second hiding place for the savings of the unknown occupant of the house.

It is impossible as yet to trace from whom the money came and by whom it was buried. Some believe the coins to have been the hoarding of a ship builder who lived during the war of the Revolution and who concealed his savings to prevent their capture by roaming soldiers of the two armies.

Others think the money may have been taken from the bodies of the wrecked New Era passengers in the early fifties and was left untouched as a matter of conscience. The prevailing opinion of Jeffreys' neighbors is that the owner of the coins died before he had time to reveal the hiding place of his fortune.

GRANDMOTHER GIVEN CHILD.

Five-year-old Lad's Stepfather Wanted to Put Him in an Asylum.

Trenton, N. J., March 4.—Pending a voluntary family arrangement Vice Chancellor Walker in the court of chancery made a temporary order granting the custody of five-year-old Lawton Pearsall to the child's grandmother Mrs. Rachel Skillman Newman of this city, although the child's father, William Rice Pearsall, a New York architect, residing in Arlington, is living.

The case has peculiar features. The grandmother, the father and the child lived together at Arlington until the father married again. Then the grandmother left to take up her residence in this city, and the boy became absolutely unmanageable. He frequently broke the windows of the house and did other mischief to show his dislike for his parent. The father some time ago had the boy placed in the Essex Insane asylum on the ground that he was weak minded, but court proceedings were instituted by the grandmother to gain possession of the little fellow, and physicians testified that it was injurious to the little one's health to keep him in the asylum.

The father had no objections to the grandmother taking his son except as to the amount he was required to pay for the child's maintenance. The court decided that the father should pay $5 a week temporarily, and if permanent arrangements could not be made by the parties interested then a further hearing will be given in the case.

EXILES FOR DEAD DOG.

Family Will Leave Montclair Because of Notoriety Thrust Upon Them.

Montclair, N. J., March 4.—A. G. Lindsay and Miss E. Lindsay, residing here, have announced their intention of removing from Montclair because of the notoriety thrust upon them through the elaborate funeral recently bestowed on their pet shepherd dog, Laddie. Miss Lindsay and Mr. Lindsay displayed much grief over the death of Laddie and buried him in a $75 coffin and with $15 worth of flowers. The costly funeral and the grief of the Lindsays was given much publicity.

The Lindsays, who are very wealthy, have not announced where they intend to make their future home.

Alcohol Causes Child's Death.

Hoboken, N. J., March 4.—Alcoholic poisoning is given by Dr. G. W. Dradsell as the cause of the death of three-year-old Louise Opicello, whose father, John Opicello, lives in this city. The child died in St. Mary's hospital ambulance as she was being removed from her home to the hospital. There was much to drink at a christening at the Opicello house, and the baby got hold of a wine bottle and drank enough to stupefy her.

Dies From Automobile Injury.

Morristown, N. J., March 4.—Frank Wyckoff died in the Memorial hospital of injuries received in an automobile accident on Feb. 22. He and Augustus Wright were coming up Madison avenue in the edge of the town when the car was overturned, fracturing his skull. Wright was not severely hurt.

—Nobody ever thinks he hears the voice of the people calling him to the office of Vice President.—Albany Evening Journal.

famous cities; a personally conducted tour in charge of Thomas Cook & Sons, the agency without a peer; the health-giving exhilaration of the ocean voyage, this is the dream which will be realized by the fortunate winners. The Daily Press pays every cent of necessary expense and has done everything which could make for the comfort and pleasure of the fair tourists. The trip is an education in itself, an occasion of lifelong pleasure as the beautiful secenes and wonderful sights are lived over again in memmory.

Second only to the European Tour itself are the special prizes listed above which will be given to the candidates polling the highest number of votes during the special period of three weeks which began last Monday, February 26. Now that this unusually generous offer is more fully understood, the candidates are going into the various districts with added vim to gather in the cash subscriptions which bring them the votes in 300 to 9,000 ballot measures. The contestants are not losing sight of the fact that during the present harvest season they must be up and doing to secure their share of the bountiful supply of subscriptions that are waiting to be gathered in from the various fields, and during the remainder of the contest some tall hustling may be expected.

GERMAN MUSIC.

Wherein It Is Said to Surpass That of All Other Nations.

Hans von Buelow's remark that "Italy was the cradle of music and remained the cradle" was, of course, not intended to be taken literally, but simply as a witty exaggeration of an obvious truth. Italy gave the world the first operas, oratorios, cantatas, overtures, sonatas and most of the ecclesiastical forms, and in course of time it furnished master works in all these styles of musical architecture; yet it remained for the composers of Germany to write the most elaborate and fully developed specimens in each case.

Italy can show no choral works equal to Bach's "St. Matthew Passion" or Handel's "Messiah;" no overture equal to those of half a dozen German masters; no songs equal to those of Schubert, Schumann or Franz; no operas like Wagner's; no symphonies like Beethoven's; no pianoforte pieces like Schubert's, Beethoven's or Schumann's.

On these points there can be no dispute whetever, and that is why Germany is now universally conceded to be the chief musical nation, even by those whose personal taste impels them to favor particular examples of Italian, French or Russian music. The greatest masters of Italy, France and Russia have been unanimous in looking up to the German masters as their masters—as the men to whose influence they largely owed their own education and development. — From Etude.

HE WAS CONSERVATIVE.

The Old Man Bitterly Opposed New Fangled Methods.

In Pennsylvania not many years ago dwelt the descendants of an ancient German settler. The farm had descended for generations from father to son, and the original customs had been faithfully adhered to. But a youth was born to the family who had inspired some of the modern racial ideas and was likely to come into conflict with his father's stolid conservatism.

One day Johannes was told to saddle the horse and take the grist to the mill. It had been the practice from time immemorial to place the grist in one end of the bag and a large stone in the other end to balance it, and so throw it across the horse's back. But Johannes on the present occasion managed to get the grist divided between the two ends of the bag, so that there was no need of the stone.

"Oh, daddy, come and see! There ain't no use for the stone."

The old gentleman calmly surveyed the device, and with a severely reproachful aspect remarked to his exulting son:

"Johannes, your fader, your grandfader and your great-grandfader all went to de mill wid de stone in one end of de bag und de grist in de odder. Und you, a mere poy, sets yourself up to know more as dey do. Yust put dat stone in de bag and never lets me hear no more of such foolishness as dat."—Life.

A Doctor of Dancing.

In France during the reign of Louis XIV. dancing took a very prominent position among court festivities, and many members of the royal family took part in the complex ballets of the time. Louis himself, no mean performer, took lessons for twenty years from Beauchamps, who was called the father of all dancing masters and upon whom the king conferred the title doctor as a special mark of favor. Beauchamps had the honor of appearing as partner with the king in the minuet, a dance which was introduced in 1650 in France, and no court ball was opened in Europe for a century and a half without it. About the year 1661 a royal academy of dancing was formed under the auspices of Beauchamps, Lulli, Molière and others, the object of which was to elevate the art and check all abuses. Of this academy Beauchamps was chief, with the title of director.

Dogs That Eat Crabs.

There are crab hunting and crab eating dogs in Brazil. The dogs are half fox, but they do not seem to care very much for poultry. They have been known to turn up their noses at nice fat pullets and go fishing for crabs instead. The dogs hunt in packs along the banks of the rivers in the Amazon valley, and the crawfish and land crabs of that region are their especial prey. The crabs often put up a vigorous fight, but the dogs have a way of turning them over and biting them in a vital spot just as the thoroughbred terrier polishes off a rat.—New York World.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD.

The initiative has been taken by President Taft in a movement to bring together the business men's organizations throughout the country for the purpose of assisting and advising the executive and legislative branches of the Federal government as to the enactment of new laws and for the protection and development of commerce and trade. The purpose is outlined by Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel in a call issued to chambers of commerce and boards of trade to be represented at a convention to be held at Washington, D. C., on April 15. Speaking for the President, Mr. Nagel proposes that a national board of trade be formed, broadly representative of the industrial and commercial bodies throughout the country. This organization, it is suggested, would receive a charter from Congress giving it recognized standing by the Federal government.

As a national body, whose creation was sanctioned by Congress, it would be in a position to advise the President on matters pertaining to co-operation in the expansion of trade at home and in foreign lands and more especially as to trade supremacy. For this there is real need, more particularly as regards our trade in the Orient and in South America.

"It is not my intention," says President Taft, "to define the purpose of such an organization or, indeed, in any manner to anticipate the scope of the discussion upon which such delegates may conclude to enter; but it appears to me to be obvious that such an organization must be instrumental in a very large field to aid and assist the executive and legislative branches of government in the intelligent and impartial development of domestic and foreign trade.

"For illustration, such an organization properly represented at the seat of government could be of incalculable assistance in advising the executive branch of government with respect to the methods and rules to be adopted in the administration of existing law. It could be of like assistance in giving advice in regard to proposed new legislation and in counseling representatives of the executive branch when asked to submit recommendations upon bills introduced and pending before committees.

"Such an organization would be in the best possible position to suggest fields for new inquiry at home and abroad, the methods by which such inquiries should be pursued and the means by which the results can be most advantageously brought to the attention of our merchants and manufacturers, and it is safe to assume that if such an organization is created, its chief activities will be developed in the light of our own experience."

A JEFFERSON MEMORIAL.

Few men in these times have displayed such a noble and generous spirit in their last testaments as Joseph Pulitzer, who left huge legacies for the good of his fellow-man. Notable among the great editor's bequests was one to found a school of journalism; another was for music and a third, but by no means least in importance, was $50,000 to be set aside as a nucleus for a suitable memorial to one of America's greatest statesman, political economists and presidents, Thomas Jefferson, the immortal writer of the immortal Declaration of Independence. He designed to have this memorial erected in New York, "the foremost Democratic city of the Republic." Dur his life, Joseph Pulitzer used the writings and the teachings of America's foremost Democrat as his guiding star in shaping the editorial policy of that most remarkable, fearless and independent paper, the New York World and it was therefore not surprising that at his death it should be found that he had provided for a memorial to his ideal statesman.

To carry out the object of the journalist's will, the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Fund is formed. Contributions are solicited from the American people and as the World says today "no sum is too small to express the giver's appreciation of the services and worth of the man who wrote the American Declaration of Independence." This fund is in charge of a committee, among whom are Governors Dix, Plaisted, Baldwin, Foss, Harmon and Mann and Mayor Gaynor. It is not explained why Governor Wilson's name has been omitted, neither is it stated why the committee is wholly made up of Democrats. It would have been better, perhaps, had the organizers included a few representative Republicans for Thomas Jefferson today is as much revered by the genuine Republican statesmen as by those who espouse his party principles. The Grover Cleveland monument fund was an instance where the organizers showed wisdom in not confining the work to a party. Representative men of all parties in New Jersey vied with each other to do honor to the memory of the great Jerseyman, who said that "public office is a public trust." The late United States Senator John F. Dryden was chairman of that committee and among the membership were a goodly number of distinguished citizens, who while disagreeing with Cleveland's political principles, held him in deep respect as a man and as a statesman.

Thousands who recall delightful evenings at Harrigan and Hart shows in the '70's and 80's and in fact all who ever experienced the enjoyment of her appearance at any performance will cast retrospective glances when they read today of the death of that venerable actress, Annie Yeamans. She passed away at the ripe age of seventy-six and had been on the stage since she was but ten. Not only was she the oldest actress on the American stage, but in years gone by was one of its best entertainers. When Mrs. Yeamans came to this country from her native land, Australia, in 1865, she was an equestrienne in a circus and she was one of the best in the business. Her rise was rapid and the year 1872 found her with the Augustin Daly stock company. Real fame came however when she joined the Harrigan and Hart forces the same year. For nearly two decades she amused the thousands of play-goers in her character parts of Irish women. In recent years she was frequently seen in minor parts of Broadway productions and she never failed to provoke hearty laughter by the antics which were surprising for one of her advanced years.

YOUNG ASTOR DENIES RUMOR.

Says He Will Not Wed Broadway Musical Comedy Star.

Cambridge, Mass., March 4.—Vincent Astor, son of Colonel John Jacob Astor and a freshman at Harvard, emphatically denies the published reports that he is to marry a popular Broadway musical comedy star, Miss Ina Claire.

"Nothing to it," states young Astor in talking of the report. "Miss Claire and myself are just good friends. I have met her several times, but as for any lingering attachment and that sort of 'mush'—why, it is absolutely unfounded."

ANNIE YEAMANS IS DEAD.

End Comes to Aged Actress at New York Hotel.

New York, March 4.—Mrs. Annie Yeamans, the actress, died in her apartments at the Hotel Gerard in Forty-fourth street at the age of seventy-six. She suffered a slight stroke of apoplexy on Jan. 18, but recovered sufficiently to be about the hotel and to drive out some. She was out driving as late as last Sunday. On Monday she became worse and on Thursday suffered a second stroke. She sank rapidly after that until her death. With her when she died were her only surviving daughter, Mrs. Lydia Yeamans Titus of London, and Mrs. Eliza beth Fox, who had long been the aged woman's companion.

Funeral services for Mrs. Yeamans will be held in the Little Church Around the Corner.

DIES ON EVE OF WEDDING.

New York Electrician Found Accidentally Asphyxiated.

New York, March 4.—Dying on the eve of his wedding day was the fate that befell Karl Akdele, forty years old, of 156 East One Hundred and Twenty seventh street. The case is recorded in the coroner's office as one of accidental asphyxiation by illuminating gas.

Akdele turned on a gas stove to heat the place. It is believed that two of the jets in the stove failed to ignite and the escaping gas killed the man before morning. Akdele was an expert electrician employed by a firm in the Bronx. He was to have been married to a young woman living in the Bronx. There was $312 in cash under the pillow of his bed and a bank book showing deposits amounting to $1,200.

Borough Street Expense Questions.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

In your issue of last Saturday regarding the Borough Council meeting of the night before, you stated that after Mr. Smalley had given his explanation of the increased expense incurred last year, that several questions were asked and answered to the satisfaction of the ones asking them. Such is not the case to my understanding.

The questions asked Mr. Smalley by Mr. Rushmore were as follows:

Is it true that Clinton avenue was macadamized without a resolution first having been passed autaorizing such work?

Is it true that the work cost about $1.10 a foot, instead of 65 cents, as at first reported it would cost, or $1,100 instead of about $600?

Is it true that one of the councilmen refused to O. K. the bill on this account and that it was then sent to the seashore where one of the councilmen was working, and was then O. K.'d by him?

Is it true that a resolution was passed after all this was done so as to make it appear regular?

Why did the chairmen of the respective committees exceed their appropriation in their expenditures for 1911?

I think that instead of explaining matters outside of the so-called report Mr. Smalley's speech was an admission that the man at the head of the street committee was not the best man obtainable for such work.

The borough report, which will soon be printed, together with comparative statement by Suffern & Son, the accountants, will show an excess of expenditures over appropriations of approximately $5,000 for the year 1911, leaving a debt for the present administration to provide for when the tax rate is fixed for 1912.

PILLAGING MOBS SACK TIENTSIN

Incendiarism Adds to Terror In Chinese City.

ATTACK SEEMS IMMINENT.

Rebellious Soldiers From Peking Approaching and Onslaught Is Expected—Looters and Rebels Beheaded In Capital to Stop Disorders—Foreign Soldiers Concentrating at Peking.

Tientsin, via London and Glace Bay and Wireless, March 4.—Conditions much worse than can be imagined from the outside exist here following the pillaging of the native and part of the foreign sections of the city by mobs. Incendiarism also reigned for a time, but all is quiet again. However, the situation is tense, with the expected early attack from the band of mutinous soldiers on its way here from Peking. During the pillaging of the city a German doctor was killed.

The consular body met and decided to place everything in the hands of the military commanders, as it is feared that the foreign settlements will be attacked.

Reports from Peking say the conditions there are alarming. The mail train bound from here to Peking was compelled to return to Tientsin.

A detachment of American troops arrived at Peking, and 200 French soldiers left here for the capital.

Paotingfu has been burned and looted by the Chinese soldiers of the Sixth division, who are now marching on Peking. The authorities have torn up a portion of the Peking and Hankow railway in an effort to impede their progress.

At a meeting of the diplomats at Peking it was decided to increase the legation guards by a thousand men.

There has been some incendiarism and shooting at Peking, but everything is quiet at the foreign concessions at the capital.

Fires are raging in Tientsin on both sides of the river. The Peking mutineers are reported to be nearing the city and at last accounts were only three miles from the native city, where pillaging is still going on.

There are indications that trouble here is becoming antiforeign.

The settlements are quiet, but the shooting and burning has commenced again in the native city.

According to the American consul, the number of foreign troops here does not exceed 1,800.

Five thousand Japanese troops have been ordered here from Port Arthur.

Beheading Rioters In Peking.

Peking, March 4.—American, French and British re-enforcements for the legation guards have arrived here, and more are on the way. Four British regiments are on the way here from Hongkong, and Japanese re-enforcements are also coming.

The summary beheading of looters caught here continues, and it appears to be extremely efficacious in checking the sacking of stores and shops. The city is wonderfully quiet.

More than a hundred looters and rioters were executed. None of those beheaded were soldiers, who are really the ones who are committing the outrages. Nearly all those killed were coolies, and there were six women among them. Several policemen were beheaded.

A telegram from Paotingfu says some missionaries were murdered during the riots there. The movement at Paotingfu is largely against foreigners.

A battalion of American infantry is guarding the foreign missions. Three thousand foreign troops are here now.

OFFER FOR FIGHT ACCEPTED.

Morris' Manager Says $11,000 From Empire Club Is O. K.

New York, March 4.—Following the offer of $11,000 made on Saturday by the National Sporting club for the much talked about bout between Al Palzer and Carl Morris, the Empire Athletic club of Harlem announced that the men could box there for the same money.

"I have accepted the Empire's offer of $11,000," said William Newman, Carl Morris' manager, "and I am willing to let Palzer have $6,000 of it. Morris will take $5,000 for his end or he will box on a percentage, or he will accept anything that the Empire manager sees fit to give him for his services."

SHEEP PERISH IN STORM.

Eighteen Hundred Tumble Over Embankment In Montana Blizzard.

Tacoma, March 4.—J. W. Patterson, a sheep raiser of Glendive, Mont., related how he lost 1,800 sheep in fifteen minutes during a blizzard last week. The weather was 22 below zero when the 1,800 out of a herd of 3,000 sheep tumbled over a steep embankment. Snow had been falling almost continuously for weeks. Blizzards swept it into a deep gulch, which filled up level with the ground. The lost herd sank to the bottom of the drift in the gulch.

Weather Forecast.

Snow by night and probably tomorrow; moderate to brisk north and northeast winds.

SMART TABLE ARRANGEMENTS

Flowers and Favors That Suggest Spring Used In the Embellishment of Seasonable Dinner and Luncheon Tables.

If you are a hostess with a list of social obligations the Easter season affords you a tempting opportunity for paying them off, for the possibilities in a decorative way are seldom better. Spring flowers, the quaint easter bunnies and fowls, together with the charming colorings deemed appropriate for Easter, make it almost impossible to err in the direction of dreary accessories.

Easter tables can be arranged without the use of flowers. A silver basket filled with large candy eggs in delicate colors, if grouped with the help of soft green ribbon, would give a flowery effect. Candle shades may be of tulle in many colors to match the centerpiece.

The Easter colors—violet, green, yellow and white—lend themselves attractively to table decorations. It is easy to make centerpieces of fluffy chickens or rabbits, and most women feel competent to arrange their own decorations for dinner parties.

One of the prettiest ways of adorning the table is to use violets and little white rabbits of plaster or papier mache. A low round dish in the center filled with violets is surrounded by half a dozen or more of the white bunnies. At each place there is a white spun sugar rabbit holding a bunch of violets and foliage. The menu cards must be violet tinted, too, and tied with violet ribbon. The ice cream cases may be of white satin, with violets made of ribbon on top, or of lavender satin topped with candied violets.

A long narrow green wicker flower basket filled with growing crocuses makes a charming decoration for Easter week. Potted white tulips in the new oval shaped fern dishes of cut glass and rock crystal are equally lovely. Tulip shaped fairy lamps tinted green may be used at each cover if artificial light is necessary.

Gather a lot of fruit tree boughs and place in water in a warm room a short time before Easter, and they will be a mass of fragrant beauty and the most appropriate decorations.

A birch bark cup filled with violets and tiny spring ferns makes a charming favor for Easter time. The idea may be welcomed by those who have grown tired of rabbits' eggs and chickens. The bark will not hold water, but the flowers will usually keep fresh if their stems are stuck into moistened moss. Little china custard cups may be slipped, if preferred, into the birch bark holder. Place each little holder in the center of a circle of tiny green ferns.

The centerpiece illustrated is made of crape paper. It represents a sheaf of cat tails and reeds, tied with white satin ribbon and combined with marguerites.

Stiffening Laces.

Few laundresses know the value of gum water. For stiffening laces, silks, flannel blouses and making them appear almost new it is excellent, and, being finer in quality than starch, it does not produce a harsh look on fine laces and silks.

The correct proportion to use is a tablespoonful of gum water to one cupful of water.

To make the gum water put one ounce of the best broken up gum arabic into a vessel, pour over it a cupful of boiling water and leave in a warm place, stirring often with a wooden stick until the gum melts. Make small quantities at a time.

For Tired Feet.

When the feet are hot and tired pour a little pure alcohol over them and rub it in gently, or if some one will do the rubbing for you it will be better. Nothing is more restful or cooling. You, of course, must not sit near the fire when using the alcohol.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

THE TOOTHSOME CRAB.

The popularity of crab meat depends so much on the way that it is served that it is not to be wondered at that inland cooks who cannot avail themselves of the shellfish fresh from the sea are wary of trying any but the plainest ways of cooking crab.

Before cooking, the sand bags and waste from the sides should be pulled off and the fish washed and dried. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, roll in crumbs and then in egg and fry in hot lard.

For Boiling.

Boiled Crabs.—Crabs which are to be boiled should be heavy and have stiff joints. They should be moderate in size. To kill them, plunge them head first in boiling water. Cook for fifteen minutes. Then take off the outside shell and the waste. Rinse and serve on a platter.

Scalloped Crabs.—Remove the meat from the shell, mince and mix with cream sauce. Season and return this mixture to the shells or put in scallop shells. Cover with butter and cracker crumbs and bake until brown.

For Lenten Luncheons.

A salad and a souffle that will make excellent items on the Lenten luncheon bill are given:

Crab Salad.—Peel and scoop out the inside of six ripe hothouse tomatoes. Remove the meat from six or eight crabs, according to size. At serving time mix lightly with mayonnaise dressing which has been delicately flavored with tarragon vinegar, and put into the tomato cups. Serve on lettuce.

Crab Souffle.—Make one pint of rich cream sauce, add the yolks of three eggs and beat well together. Add a dash of cayenne, a cupful of grated dairy cheese and one pint of finely picked crab meat.

Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, pour into a baking dish and bake in a quick oven.

Serve when taken from the oven before it can fall.

Better Than Its Name.

Most persons who eat crabs prefer them deviled. They are delicious cooked that way. Canned crab meat can be used for this purpose.

Deviled Crabs With Cream Sauce.—Buy a can of the best crab meat. Shred the meat, add the juice of one-half lemon, small teaspoonful of mustard, a dash or two of paprika. Mix with cream sauce.

Cream Sauce.—One-half tablespoonful butter, one-half cup milk, salt and pepper to taste; thicken with teaspoonful flour. Put in shells, sprinkle with crumbs and put one-half tablespoonful of melted butter on each. Bake in a hot oven until light brown.

NEW MOTOR COAT.

A Stunning Paris Model of Mixed Worsted.

CLOTH COAT WITH ORIENTAL MOTIFS.

Tan and green worsted material makes this stunning new spring motor coat. The trimmings are of olive brown ratine and applied oriental embroidered motifs add richness to the large collar. The huge buttons used on this coat are particularly modish.

Glass Buttons In Style.

When an old fashion becomes a new fashion a woman is furious with herself for not having kept what she possessed. It is excessively difficult to carry out a hoarding method, for every inch of room is needed in our houses, and, with the fashions trying to rival a weather vane in a storm, we look upon each year's accumulation of things as mere junk.

Surely we can never need these again, is the usual decision that precedes the dumping of everything into the ash can. And suddenly out of a clear sky comes an announcement that the very things which were consigned to the ash can were to be returned into first fashion.

If one wants a white corduroy suit for spring than these flat glass buttons, lined with purple, would look very well with a sailor collar of purple satin and a piping of the same down the back of the sleeves at the side of the buttonholes.

You know the long sleeves that are coming in show a return to the trick of two summers ago which was never widely taken up and yet was so attractive. This sleeve, instead of being ornamented with buttons, had its two edges really fastened together with actual buttons made into the form of cuff links with silk cord between.

The new sleeve in taffeta and satin and poplin has its edges fastened from half way below the elbow to the wrist with these link buttons set a half inch back from the extreme edge, and then between the two edges is put an inch wide plaited frill of lace.

On a black satin frock that has been turned out recently the sleeves are managed in this way with the frill extending around the wrist. The surplice shaped blouse has a plaited frill lying against the chemisette, which is of white tulle, and the frill runs down the front fastening of the blouse, which, by the way, is similar to the fastening on the sleeves.

The skirt has a full draped tunic over an overskirt that is not two yards wide, but is opened at each side for four inches. There is a wide crossed sash of the satin which has one end pulled through the girdle at the side, then falls over and hangs to the knee, where it is finished with velvet fringe.

The New Idea of Marriage.

That marriage has the effect of humanizing the young man, of making him less fatuous and selfish, has long been known to women folk, but now, according to a recent statement made by a prominent man, by entering into wedlock a man becomes "a better social animal, losing his shyness before women, his cynicism and his want of expansiveness."

All this is helped because we have introduced friendship into marriage—one of the considerable achievements of modern times—and, instead of "domesticating the recording angel," which was what marriage formerly meant, we have succeeded in developing an amazing camaraderie between husbands and wives.

This comradeship reveals itself in a hundred details—by the way in which married persons tease each other instead of using acid endearments such as "my love," their increased toleration for each other's tastes and their sharing in each other's sports and amusements, their general reasonableness and their mutual loyalty.

Buying Real Estate

is easy. If you have the money you can find plenty of people who are ready to help you BUY.

SELLING is a different matter. In this transaction you need to take advantage of every material aid.

A GUARANTY OF TITLE is often an assistance in selling real estate. It at least removes any objection growing out of a possible defect in title.

When you buy secure a Guaranty of Title. Then it will follow the property when you sell.

Come in and talk it over.

LOCAL MOTORCYCLE CLUB'S ELECTS AND PLANS HOME

These officers were elected at a meeting of Plainfield motorcyclists yesterday afternoon, when a new Plainfield Motorcycle Club was formed: President, Ralph Averbeck; vice president, J. J. Moore; secretary, H. VanDoren; treasurer, Wallace Hill; directors, Gus Johnson and Leslie Thompson; road captain, Edward Honeyman; first lieutenant, Jack Horner; second lieutenant, L. Hampton; first road surgeon, L. Thompson; second road surgeon, B. Howell.

There were sixteen motorcyclists present and all signed as charter members. The list will be held open for one week and all benzine bike riders who have not done so are invited to join. The club's headquarters will be at 33 Somerset street, where several rooms will be nicely furnished for the members and visiting friends.

The object of the organization is to promote the sport in general and all members will be affiliated with the American Motorists of the National body.

TRAINER TUTHILL TELLS ONE ON M'GRAW.

As a story teller Harry Tuthill, trainer of the Detroit Tigers, ranks high. Here is one of his latest:

It used to be a habit with Manager John McGraw and his players to attend the theater every night, said Harry, and after the theater they always sought a quiet little restaurant. One night as they were going into the eating place they met a hungry appearing jockey, a jockey whom they all knew as a confirmed stutterer.

"Come on along and have something to eat," invited McGraw.

The jockey followed.

Once inside McGraw seated his guest in a place of honor, then called a waiter.

"What'll you have, Mr. McGraw?"

"Oh, the same as I had last night."

"And you, Mr. Shannon?"

"A bird'll do."

"And you, Mr. Donlin?"

"I guess I'll take a bird too."

"And you?" indicating the jockey.

"I guess I'll h-h-have a b-b-b, I g-g-guess I'll have a b-b-b"—

"He wants a bird, too," supplemented McGraw.

"What kind of a bird, sir?" asked the waiter.

"A t-t-t-t—, a t-t-t—, a turkey," blurted the jockey.

McDERMOTT TO COMPETE FOR ENGLISH GOLF TITLE.

J. J. McDermott, the national golf champion, who is in Boston, will sail for England May 8 to compete in the British open championship in June.

Unless the United States Golf association makes a change in dates McDermott will have to forfeit his American title, for the national open is scheduled for the Buffalo Country club June 27 and 28.

The conflict in dates is doubly unfortunate in that not only McDermott, but two or three other leading professionals from this side, will be abroad at the time.

May Attempt to Swim Channel.

Walter Pomeroy of the Olympic club San Francisco, is anxious to try to swim the English channel. Pomeroy on Jan. 1 at San Francisco swam around the seal rocks at the Cliff House and subsequently established a record across the Golden Gate.

Washington May Send Team to Japan.

The University of Washington, Seattle, is planning to send a varsity baseball nine to Japan the coming summer.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

It would seem that the New York public considers it a proper lenten observance to take their amusement through the Keith and Proctor medium, for so far they have crowded the Fifth Avenue Theatre to the doors both at the afternoon and evening performances. While every week's program is exceptionally strong that secured for March 4th is especially attractive and as usual contains something entirely new, several big headliners making their first metropolitan appearance. Mr. Max Hart, one of the most sucessful of all the vaudeville producing managers, will offer the one act classic entitled "Everybody," an up-to-date and the latest of morality plays, in six secenes. There are twenty-five people in the company and the characters are types of every day life and number no less than eighteen characterizations. The dramatic critic of the Boston Globe says "Everybody" is the most ambitious attraction seen on any vaudeville stage this season."

Lost Part of Finger.

Califon, Mar. 2.—While operating a hoop-cutting machine at Hoffman's peach basket factory, at Hoffman's Luther Franks, of Bunnvale, lost the second finger of his left hand. He was feeding the machine when he slipped foward and his hand was pulled under the knife. Dr. Edward H. Cuptell dressed the injury. Di the flow of blood.

AMERICAN JOCKIES ON FOREIGN TRACKS

Nearly All of the Star Horse Pilots Will Race Abroad.

LIKELY TO WIN FORTUNES

The Average Sum Each Pigskin Artist Will Secure Will Be $12,000 or An Aggregate Amount of $156,000—O'Neil Most Successful.

The restriction placed on horse racing in the United States has caused our greatest jockeys to go abroad. The knights of the pigskin were unable to make a living in America, so they migrated across the pond to the turfmen that were eager to pay them princely salaries.

This season there will be on the racetracks of England, France, Germany, Austria and Russia the following American jockeys: Danny Maher, "Skeets" Martin, Frank O'Neil, Johnny Reiff, Winnie O'Connor, J. Archibald, J. Sumpter, D. Winfield, Guy Garner, Eddie Dugan, Milton Henry, Nash Turner and Willie Shaw. The average sum that each jockey will receive will be $12,000, or an aggregate amount of $156,000.

Frank O'Neil was the most successful jockey in France last season. He rode for William K. Vanderbilt.

O'Neil Led Jockeys In France.

Although in the matter of winning mounts O'Neil was at the top of the list of jockeys in France, his success in the percentage line was not close to the record of Johnnie Reiff, who won one race out of every four. O'Neil will again wear the white and black colors of Vanderbilt this season.

Reiff's success last season was brilliant. He won 115 races out of a total of 468 mounts. He was largely responsible for the success of Frank J. Gould's horses. Reiff has been riding in France for many years and is one of the most popular American jockeys abroad.

Henry the Dean of Riders.

Milton Henry went over to Europe when Tod Sloane made his invasion of the English turf and popularized the American style of riding. Henry is called the dean of American jockeys in France. He is now heavy and receives only occasional mounts.

Nash Turner does not ride often. He has his own stable of horses and spends the greater part of his time training them. Last year he was very successful.

Winnie O'Connor divides his time between riding horses on the flat and over the jumps. He has become an expert steeplechase rider.

Winkfield, a negro rider who won so many races for Edward Corrigan in the west, is one of the popular riders on the German turf. Archibald, who is now riding in India, is under contract to ride for Baron Oppenheim this season. Eddie Dugan will ride in Austria.

"Skeets" Martin will ride Harry Payne Whitney's racers in England. He had fair success last season with them. Danny Maher, who just failed to win 100 races last season, will again be under contract to the Baron de Rothschild.

Guy Garner, the midget jockey, who was under contract to August Belmont in 1911, but who rode in France under permission of his employer, won so many races for M. Stern, a rich patron of the French turf, that he will ride for Stern this season.

P. H. S. Girls Lose at Nutley.

The girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School lost its game Saturday afternoon with the Nutley High School five at Nultey in an evenly matched contest by a score of 13 to 12. The Nutley girls took the lead in the second half. The score was tied in the last minute of play when a foul goal by the home team gave them the contest by one point. The P. H. S. five was leading at the end of the first half by a score of 7 to 4. The P. H. S. lineup follows: Stewart and Mehl, forwards; Douglas and Striker, centres; Rodenbaugh and Phillips, guards.

THE GINGER JAR

The duck pin tournament on the Olympia alleys will start tonight.

The Elks match for this week is with Elizabeth at that place Thursday night.

Big Ed Walsh, of the White Sox, is said to be the hardest right handed pitcher in the business for a base runner to get a lead on. He owes this reputation to Manager Callahan who invented the half balk motion and taught it to the spit ball artist.

The Cincinnati fans are making subscriptions to erect a monument to the memory of the late Harry Weldon, the famous sporting writer of that city. Ban Johnson is back of the movement. This is the first time in history that a sport writer has been so honored.

Jesse Burkett, known as the "crab," Jack Martin's former boss in Worcester, is the only diamond artist to have batted better than .400 in two successive seasons. In 1895 while with Cleveland, he stung the pill for a season average of .423 and came back in 1896 with .410.

"Bungle" in hockey and "Foozle" in golf are not cousins of "Bingle" in baseball.

Manager Flynn, of the Mobile club, says that Mc. Graw has promised him three Giant recruits after the season is over. Some tall thinking is being done by the rookies at Marlin who will comprise the trio.

Harry McCormick, according to reports from Marlin, is fast rounding into his old form. His strength in the bygones lay in his ability to hit often and safely and if he fully comes back it is thought McGraw will carry him as a pinch hitter.

Clark Griffith thinks Jack Knight's arm will be all right now that he will not have to play on the wind swept hilltop.

Ban Johnson thinks Boston and Cleveland are the teams that will make things interesting for the Athletics this year.

Another cowboy has a motorcycle. Charles Johnson, of Mesa, Ariz, has discarded the horse and saddle for the two-wheeler to carry him to and from his ranch.

There are over one hundred motorcyclists in India according to Consular Reports from Madras, in that country.

William Christopher, of Racine, Wis., is planning a motorcycle trip to New York this summer.

Sheriff Langum, of Minneapolis, Minn., has petitioned the county commissioners for two motorcycle policemen to patrol the district about Lake Minnetonka during the summer season.

SOLDIER BOYS DEFEATED HOPE CHAPEL IN HARD GAME.

The Co. M Cadets, of Somerville, on their own court, humbled the Hope chapel basketball team Saturday night 18 to 11. The score at the end of the first half stood 10 to 2 in favor of the local five but the change of baskets proved to be their undoing. The court there is considerably larger than the one on which the Hope boys have been playing and placed them at a decided disadvantage too.

The lineup: Hope chapel—T. and J. Heron, forwards; Doig, centre; Leighs and Snyder, guards. Co. M—Kershaw and Whitneybert, forwards; Bowlby, centre; Barnes and Smith, guards. A return game will be played here Saturday night.

Local Caster Won at Show.

John Doughty, of this city, casting at the Sportsman's show in Madison Square Garden Saturday with the Newark Bait and Fly Casting Club, won second honors in the open competition with an average of 67 per cent., being defeated by Fred D. Napes, of the same club, who made 67 4-5 per cent. The event was for the distance bait, 115 foot class, one-quarter ounce lure.

RECTOR SAYS WALKER WON BY COPPING HIS METHOD

Jimmy Rector, the Virginia sprinter who, with Reggie Walker of South Africa, holds the record of 10⅘ seconds for 100 meters, made in the London Olympic games, tells the following interesting story of how he beat himself in those Olympics:

"It happened this way; When the American team reached London I had been there only a few hours when a man introduced himself to me. He said he was from South Africa and was training a young man who would compete against me in the 100 meter dash. He told me that the youngster under his charge knew little about the game but had the native ability to become a great runner. He complained that his starting was bad and asked me to lend a helping hand. I agreed.

"The next day I was introduced to Reggie Walker. He had a wretched crouch for the start. He began with a long step and ruined his stride. I showed him my start, the short first step and low crouch, and he took great pains to study my style. I worked with him a short while and then went about my training under Mike Murphy's instructions.

"All that day, though, Walker dogged my steps. He watched my starts closely. The next day the American team went to Brighton for two weeks' training. I didn't see Walker again until the day of our race. When we went on the track for a little preliminary practice I soon noticed that Walker had mastered my start.

"When the race was on he got away from the mark with me. It was the first time I hadn't shaded my competitors at the start. We ran neck and neck, and he beat me by half a stride. I am satisfied that I could have beaten Walker had he not known my system of starting. But always remember that Walker was a great runner."

Rector is now in training and may be a member of the 1912 Olympic team.

BALL CLUB ELECTS AT WHITEHOUSE STATION.

Whitehouse, Mar. 4.—An enthusiastic meeting of local baseball fans was held at the Union Hotel at Whitehouse Station Saturday night, when the Whitehouse Station Athletic Association was reorganized for the coming season.

The following officers were elected: President, James N. Pidcock; first vice-president, Samuel D. Skillman; second vice-president, William H. Reger; third vice-president, L. E A. Van Syckle; secretary and treasurer, John L. Weinrebe; board of directors, Peter La Tourette, Jacob H. Dilts, Mr. Skillman, Mr. Van Syckle, John E. Davis, David Landon, Augustus C. Durling, John J. Park, Mr. Pidcock and Jacob C. Dorland.

It is the purpose of the organization to place a strong team in the field this season and play independent ball. An entertainment by local talent will be given in Bonnell's hall April for the benefit of the nine.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TITLE WON BY COLUMBIA.

Philadelphia, Mar. 4.—Columbia University won the intercollegiate basketball championship Saturday night by deefating the University of Pennsylvania by the score of 22 to 20. Had Pennsylvania won the two teams would have tied for first place. The standing of the teams is as follows:

	W.	L.
Columbia	8	2

LOCAL ELKS COMING STRONG IN CLOSE RACE

Classy pinning during the past week by Miller and Campbell in Elk League matches landed them in their old positions, first and second, respectively, in the individual standing. After sitting tight in these places for a long time they both slipped back and occupied second and fourth places last Monday.

Stout also made a decided advance bowling the same average now, 176.24, as Nash. Beaty, too, took a jump upwards. Kiely was the only member of the "big five" to hit the bumps, his standing being a shade less advantageous than that recorded last week.

Campbell's average is 194-38 for 39 games while Miller shows a mark of 196.6 for 42 games. The match scheduled for this week is with Elizabeth at that place Thursday night.

FITZSIMMONS THINKS HE SHOULD BE TRAINER.

In talking over heavyweight affairs recently Bob Fitzsimmons declared that he would like to take charge of Carl Morris for a period of three months and point him for a match with Jack Johnson. "In three months," says Robert, "I could teach that young fellow enough to make him whip the big black."

Fitzsimmons said he hoped the reports that Jeffries was secretly training for another fight with Johnson were true. "If Jeff ever fights again I hope he will let me train him for the battle," said the former middle and heavyweight champion.

Fitzsimmons has a firmly planted idea that he would a great trainer. Even if he fails to make connections with Jeffries, Morris or some other promising white hope, Fitz intends to exercise his supposed talent by again opening a training and health farm at Dunellen.

NO PLACE SELECTED YET FOR HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Mar. 4.—That the report that the fight between Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn is to be held near Wendover, Utah, on July 4 is "mere guess work," is the statement of Jack Curley, Flynn's manager, who is here this week.

"I have three towns in Nevada under consideration, and I still feel partial to Las Vegas, N. M.," said Curley Saturday. "I positively will not select the spot for some time, and even if I did make up my mind, I would not announce it until May 1, as allowed in the articles."

MENDHAM BASEBALL PLANS.

Mendham, Mar. 4.—The Mendham Baseball Association has been reorganized with the following officers: President, George Delp; vice-president, J. W. Garabrant; secretary, Jacob King; manager and treasurer, William Coghlan. The manager will have full power to select players and book games.

It is Manager Coghlan's intention to place a strong team in the field.

Games will be sought with teams from Morristown, Madison, Bernardsville, New Providence, Summit and the best semi-pro teams from Newark.

JORDAN CLAIMS TO HAVE ORIGINATED DELAYED STEAL.

Otto Jordan refutes the statement of certain players first using the delayed steal. Jordan played with Brooklyn in the seasons of 1903 and 1904. During a game at Chicago in 1903 he was on first and started to steal. Kling threw the ball away, Jordan scoring from first on the heave.

When he reached the bench the Brooklyn players asked him what he was trying to do. But after the game he imparted it to Ned Hanlon, who was manager of the club, and Hanlon, master mind on baseball affairs, voted it a good play. Jordan says he thought out the play himself.

HOW SEASON WAS OPENED HERE IN 1888

Crescents and a Picked Nine From Potter's, Scott's and Actives Played.

ALSO OPENED NEW GROUNDS

The players Were Properly Uniformed, But Did Not Wear Gloves Most of the Players Are in the City Yet.

The following article is taken from the files of the Daily Press under date of Monday, May 7, 1888. It is the story of an exciting game of baseball played between the Crescents and a picked nine from the Potter's, Scott's and Active Clubs, serving up a classy article of baseball to the fans of those days.

The players on the picked nine were selected to furnish a good exhibition to mark the opening of the season and the new grounds of the Crescents at Arlington place and Park avenue. Both teams were properly equipped with uniforms, but not gloves, which had not yet come into use in the sport.

The Dilts referred to was Rev. Asa Dilts, former pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Lee is none other than "Billie" Lee, now conducting a hotel in Scotch Plains. The others are all well known to enthusiasts of the game of that day and most of them are still residing in Plainfield.

STARTING THE BALL ROLLING.

The baseball season in this city was opened on Saturday with a game that promises well in every way for the interest there will be in the sport locally during the ensuing summer. It was the first game of the Crescent nine of the Y. M. C. A. on their new grounds, and fully three hundred spectators sat down in the fresh dirt all through the contest or occupied a grandstand on their feet.

The nine pitted against the Crescents was composed of the best material that could be picked from the Potter's, Scott's and Actives. It made a strong team that if held together with practice would make the race for the Plainfield championship very close and exciting.

The beginning of the eighth inning of Saturday's game closed with the score 4 to 3 in favor of the picked nine. Were guilty of six errors to their opponents four, the latter were so costly as to loose the picked nine a game they might otherwise have won. It is too early in the season to make a comparison of the merits of the several players. Captain Dilts of the Crescents, however, is so far the superior of all others there is nothing premature in saying so. Lee, of the picked nine, was probably the best "all round" man of the other nine.

JOHNSON POPULAR WITH TEAM AS WELL AS FANS.

But for Walter Johnson's ideal disposition and the fact that every ball player realizes his wonderful ability, his presence on the Washington team might prove a serious matter.

The fact that Johnson is one of the highest-salaried players in the league would ordinarily breed a lot of jealousy and create a lot of dissatisfaction. But Johnson is popular with his team-mates, for the reason that his fame has not upset him in any way. He never criticises his fellow-players, is always willing to help them and takes blame which otherwise would shift to other shoulders. As a general rule ball players are envious of those who are in a position to demand the highest salaries. This is particularly true on losing teams, and yet Johnson, when he gained his point with the Washington club and signed a three-year contract at $31,000, was just as popular with his team-mates as when he drew but $1,500.

Rattling The Skeleton.

The sale of this great lot of shoes at this insignificant price will, of course, create a great deal of excitement. Thousands of people will come the first day, and perhaps every day of the week in which the sale runs. In the great Special Shoe Store in the Toy Section, rear Second Floor, you will have ample opportunity to select shoes, to get just what you want, to be fitted properly, and to have comparatively prompt attention.

In a sale of this sort we cannot hope to give the same good service that our regular shoe store is noted for, but we are going to do the very best we can for everyone, even tho they be children unaccompanied by parents.

ENGLAND FACING FOOD SHORTAGE

Coal Strike Placing Nation In Serious Situation.

PRICES OF FOODSTUFFS UP

War Office and Various Regiments of the Guards' Brigade Are Kept In Constant Telephonic Communications. Are Destined For South Wales if Riots Should Be Reported.

London, March 4.—As a consequence of the importers' action in stopping Australian and Argentine cargoes now on the way here there threatens to be a shortage of meat and also scarcity of food as result of the coal strike is coming to the front. The importers realize that the cargoes will putrefy if they are landed because they have not enough coal to maintain the refrigerators.

A fish famine is also in prospect. The high price of coal prevents many trawlers from working at a profit, and thirty of these boats have been laid up at Leith alone. All foodstuffs, with a few exceptions, advanced in price today.

Various regiments of the guards brigade are kept in constant telephonic communication with the war office. They are destined for South Wales if any rioting should be reported from that section.

STUBBS IS CONFIDENT.

Sees Nothing but Roosevelt and Tells How It Will Happen.

New York, March 4.—Governor Stubbs of Kansas started westward after his second visit to the east, believing, he said, that President Taft's name wouldn't even be presented to the Chicago convention.

"Here's what in my judgment will elect Roosevelt," continued the governor. "In those states that have a presidential primary the vote will be so overwhelming for the colonel that Mr. Taft's friends will see a great light and will not dare to let him stand for renomination. Those states are New Jersey, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Oregon and California. Whatever they say in the primaries will express the popular sentiment of the Pacific coast, the middle west and the east. Probably Illinois will have a primary too. Governor Deneen is working for it, and possibly Massachusetts, which has a primary bill before the legislature, now will be added to the list.

"In Kansas we hope to have a preferential primary. The state committee has absolute say as to that end, and I believe it's going to say 'primary'."

GERARD IS ANGRY.

May Censure Gaynor and Dix—Gans Issues a Statement.

New York, March 4.—Supreme Court Justice Gerard may find an opportunity of rebuking Mayor Gaynor and Governor Dix for making public an alleged false and distorted report of court proceedings in the case of Folke E. Brandt. Justice Gerard feels, it is known, that both the governor and the mayor are in contempt of court. While the mayor was the author of the letter which criticised Justice Gerard, the governor permitted the letter to issue from Albany.

Howard S. Gans gave out a long statement, in which he reasserted that Brandt was guilty of burglary in the first degree and that he was legally indicted, convicted and sentenced and in which he denied that he had received $25,000 for services in the Brandt case. What he got, says Gans, was $1,500. He also denies that either Schiff or himself had anything to do with Brandt's transfer to Dannemora.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Secretary to Minister Meets Fate In Boarding House Fire.

New York, March 4.—Mrs. Ella White, for twelve years a church "visitor" for the Madison Avenue Reformed church and secretary of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. William Carter, was suffocated and burned to death in a fire during which there were ten or more spectacular rescues by firemen and police and which destroyed the boarding house run by Mrs. Ann Reynolds at 606 Madison avenue.

Mrs. White was the widow of a Wall street broker. She was sixty years old.

WOMEN RIOT IN JAIL YARD.

Wardens Have Difficulty Handling Suffragette Prisoners.

London, March 4.—More than a hundred suffragettes, who are under remand in Holloway jail, rioted in the exercise yard. The wardens had great difficulty in getting them back into their cells, where they smashed the windows and waved their handkerchiefs through the breaches thus created. They also sang the "Marseillaise" and shouted "Votes for women!" at the top of their voices.

Bishop of Mid-China Dies.

JOHNSON AS RUNNING MATE?

Chicago Hears Californian Governor May Run With Ex-President.

Chicago, March 4.—Governor Johnson is mentioned around the headquarters of the Progressive Republican League of Cook County as a likely candidate for vice president on the ticket with Colonel Roosevelt.

"The issue is between progress and reaction," declared Mr. Pinchot, who came from New York with personal instructions from the ex-president. "If Taft is nominated the Republican party will be the party of reaction. If Roosevelt is nominated it will be the party of progress."

Father Who Set Fire to Home Is Arrested.

New York, March 4.—John Fennelly, a subway guard, was locked up charged with murdering his six-year-old daughter after a fire in his apartment in a tenement house at 226 East One Hundred and Twenty-second street had caused her death. The story of his son Richard, nine years old, who says that the father came home drunk and threw a match carelessly on a chair, is what the police base their charge of homicide on.

Fennelly lived on the top floor apartment. He got through work at 8 p. m. and didn't get home for an hour and a half. When he came he had been drinking, Richard Fennelly says. He sent Mrs. Fennelly out on an errand, and while she was out he lighted his pipe. The match he threw on an upholstered chair, which was in a blaze in a minute.

Instead of becoming alarmed, Fennelly threw two pillows at the fire. Instead of putting the fire out, these added more fuel, and in a short time the room was in a blaze.

Fennelly grabbed three of his children and got them downstairs. They are Richard, nine years old; John, three, and Sarah, eleven. Another daughter, Kitty, aged six, was left behind by the father and perished. The fire was quickly extinguished by the firemen.

Accepts Summons For Jury Duty In County Court.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 4.—Colonel Roosevelt said that he had accepted the summons for jury duty left at Sagamore Hill and that he will take a nearly train to Mineola tomorrow morning to appear in answer. County Judge Oscar Schultz, when told that Mr. Roosevelt would report for duty, remarked that he had been talking to Commissioner of Jurors Brown about the drawing of the colonel's name and that of course Colonel Roosevelt was exempt from jury duty since he had been an officer in the militia.

Judge Schultz got into communication with Colonel Roosevelt and told him that although he would have to ask him to appear he would exempt him on the ground of his military service.

OLD STEAMSHIP IS RETIRED.

Rhode Island, Once One of Finest, In Port to Stay.

New York, March 4.—Falling before the advance and improvement of time, the steamship Rhode Island of the Fall River line, which has plied between this city and Fall River for something like twenty years, was towed into port and taken to Smith's dry dock to be converted into a fish factory. For many years the Rhode Island was considered one of the finest sound steamers, but with the advent of the larger and more modern ships it has been forced out of the service.

Mills Grant Increase.

Glen Falls, Conn., March 4.—The Milner Woolen mills posted notices that the wages of their 300 employees here and at Almyville will be increased 5 per cent.

It seems to us the man most entitled to sit back and giggle just at this stage of the game is Colonel Bryan.—Baltimore Sun.

ENDEAVORERS TO CONSIDER FRESH AIR SITE PURCHASE

Representatives of the Christian Endeavor Societies of the county will discuss fresh air for the season of 1912 at a conference to be held next Thursday evning, March 7, at the First Baptist church, Roselle. Supper will be served by the endeavorers of the Roselle church at 6:45 o'clock and the conference will follow. It is expected that about 100 will be in attendance.

An address by the Rev. Frank Moore, of Rahway, superintendent of the State Reformatory, will be an attractive feature of the program. He will give his particular address on "The Kid on the Corner." The State Superintendent of Fresh Air Work, Stephen D. Midde, of West Orange, and the president of the Essex County C. E. Union, William Russell, have also been invited to speak briefly. It is expected that both will attend.

Fred C. Lounsbury, Jr., of Plainfield, who is the efficient chairman of the fresh work in the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, will preside. He will present tentative plans for the summer's work at Camp Endeavor, on Johnston's Drive, near Scotch Plains, and full opportunity for discussion will be afforded.

Excellent results attended the efforts of the young people last summer, and it is confidently expected that the season of 1912 will be even more than productive of good. The camp is intended to reach boys in indigent circumstances, giving them the benfit of out door recreation during the heated term. Each boy is permitted to remain two weeks, and with the camp open for eight weks and accommodating twenty-five boys at a time, it is possible to bring pleasure and profit into about a hundred lives during the period from July Fourth to Labor Day. A Christian young man serves as superintendent of camp and the two-fold aim—physicial and spiritual betterment—is always kept in view.

The camp is conducted by a committee of eighteen young people representing the societies of the county and of which Mr. Lounsbury is chairman. Committees are as follows: commissary, guest, entertainment, devotianal, hous. A n excellent location was secured, the owner granting the use of the land without charge. The matter of purchasing this land or property near it will be brought before the Endeavorers at the conference next Thursday.

Immense Spring Trade Bargain Festival

Season's Choicest Merchandise in a Great Sale

Last year and two years ago, just about this time, we held Early Spring Sales of new merchandise, which were considered at the time as events of most extraordinary character. The records established by these precedents must be maintained and if possible surpassed. We have therefore planned a Trade Festival that will surpass any selling event ever held in Newark or within the history of this establishment, which is saying a great deal.

Many items advertised today will continue on sale tomorrow. Every day during the sale, which is for this week only, new bargain attractions will bt put forth and advertised, which, together with those remaining on sale, will afford such manifold saving opportunities that no woman should overlook them. Watch the daily papers.

The vast scope of this sale should influence everyone to supply their wardrobe and home requirements now, rather than later in the season, as we will offer the new season's most desirable merchandise at astonishing concessions from the regular prices that must prevail on the identical goods after this Trade Festival is over. You will find the goods so desirable, the prices so extraordinarily enticing, the bargains of such magnitude as to make it the Banner Bargain Occasion of many years.

STENCIL LETTERS.

Used by Writers and Illuminators in the Early Ages.

Movable characters were known to the ancients. They were used in teaching children to read. The ancients had also stencil letters, which they used to secure a regular style of penmanship. They even made use of plates, thus open cut, containing an entire page. It was placed on the papyrus to guide the pens of children, "an excellent means," saith Quintilian, "to learn them not to exceed the desired proportions." The Emperor Justinian (A. D. 518) could neither read nor write, an unexampled thing in one of such high rank. When it was necessary for him to sign his name he had a sheet of gold through which were cut the letters of his name. "Then," said Procopius, "placing this tablet on the paper, one conducted the hand of the prince, holding the stylus dipped in purple on the type of the different letters, and took away the writing furnished with his signature." The same thing is reported of King Theodoric and of Charlemagne.

In the middle ages the illuminators and decorators made much of such tablets for tracing involved initial letters and even in a way composed entire works, such as copies of the plain songs, etc. A chartered abbey near Mayence possessed some sixty of the alphabets cut in leaves of latoun, a copper alloy. Later these patterns were replaced by stamps whose imprint is proved by the evidences on the reverse of the page as early as the thirteenth century. In 1288 the monks of Fribourg published a treatise relating to money in this way, and it seems, according to a passage in Pliny and another in Petronius, that these stencils were used to publish figures and designs as well.—Charles W. Hall in National Magazine.

SENATOR MARTINE STIRS CAPITOL REAL ESTATE MEN.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Mar. 4.—Washington real estate men are much aroused over the declaration of Senator Martine, as a member of the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, that property rented here for government purposes secures "most inordinate and outrageous rentals, often as high as twenty or twenty-five per cent of the value of the buildings.

Mr. Martine believes that the government might better issue bonds at a low rate of interest to finance public building operations, rather than pay the high rentals, which total more than $500,000 annually, and result largely in inadequate and unsanitary accommodations for thousands of government employes.

PIERCE WILL FIGHT TO SAVE HIS TAXATION BILL.

Trenton, March 4. Notwithstanding there is a strong disposition in the Senate to sidetrack Senator Pierce's bill reorganizing the taxing system of the State, the Senator declares that he is going to do all he can to get the measure passed. Senator Pierce admits he has heard rumors of a plan to displace his bill with a resolution providing for an investigation of the whole tax question by a special commission, the matter to be reported next year. It is said to be the plan of the Republicans in the Senate to pass such a resolution.

Democratic Club to Meet.

SUPREME COURT GOWNS.

They Are Made of the Finest Silk and Are Quite Costly.

It is said that the cut and style of the gowns worn by the justices of the supreme court of the United States are so peculiar that it is not always possible to have one correctly made.

The wife of a former justice used to enjoy telling of her trying experiences when she wished to have made in Paris the gown her husband was to use. The gowns worn there by scientists, scholars and students differ altogether from those our justices wear.

In London any clerical tailor would have understood the kind of gown desired, but not so in Paris. Wherefore, after many failures, the justice's wife gave instructions to the fashionable modiste who made her gowns. This modiste was entirely successful in turning out a gown for the justice.

The justice's gowns, which are always of the best quality of silk, cost upward of $100. When the supreme court was first organized the justices wore quite gaudy gowns.

A portrait in oil of the first chief justice, John Jay, now hangs in the robing room opposite the supreme court chamber, and in this portrait the chief justice is represented as wearing a black gown with a broad bright red border around the neck and down the front. It is edged with gray, and the sleeves show a red border at the top and bottom, also edged with gray.—Harper's Weekly.

Dr. A. G. Sheppard, who has been residing at 427 West Front street has removed to more commodious quarters at 531 West Front street opposite Sycamore avenue.

Ethel—"No; he seemed to be up in the air."—Boston Transcript.

NO COLD WAVE THIS WEEK.

Weather Bureau Promises Cessation of Severe Temperatures.

Washington, March 4.—The weather bureau issued the following weekly bulletin:

"The general distribution of atmospheric pressure over the northern hemisphere is such as to indicate that there will be no cold wave to cross the country during the coming week and that there will be a general though gradual reaction to normal temperatures over the region east of the Rocky mountains Tuesday and Wednesday and moderate temperatures thereafter until the close of the week.

"Disturbances that now cover the west and southwest will advance slowly eastward and cause a continuation of unsettled weather, with rains in southern and snow and rain in middle and northern states east of the Rocky mountains during the next several days. The next disturbance to cross the country will appear in the far west Thursday or Friday and prevail over the middle west at the end of the week.

"Moderate weather and wind conditions will prevail over the transatlantic steamship routes the coming week."

New Papal Delegate to United States Given New Church Honors.

Rome, March 4.—Mgr. Bonzano, the new papal delegate to the United States, was consecrated as archbishop of Mitylene in the chapel of the Propaganda college, of which he was the rector. The ceremony was conducted by Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, assisted by Bishop Kennedy, rector of the American college, and Bishop Vigovano.

DENIES HARVESTER TRUST.

Fowler Declares Report Did Not Come From Justice Department.

Washington, March 4.—Assistant Attorney General Fowler denied the report that within three weeks the department of justice will file a suit in equity for the dissolution of the harvester trust.

Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith is preparing statistical matter relative to the harvester trust which will be turned over to Attorney General Wickersham within the next few days. This report will be made the basis of a series of conferences between the department of justice and officials of the harvester trust.

The situation indicates that the trust will be dissolved temporarily.

Barber Is Held For Murder.

New York, March 4.—Following the murder of D. Salingo, a shoemaker, who was found dead from stab wounds in his rooms at 241 West Forty-third street, detectives arrested John Louis, a barber, of 229 West Fifty-second street. The prisoner was held in the West Side police court for the action of the coroner, charged with homicide.

NO CITY-BOROUGH TRUNK LINE SEWER

Council Formally Decides Not to Join Hands With North Plainfield.

TRENTON HEARING ON TODAY

Plans For Disposal Works On Darling Farm to Be Presented to State Board—To Fight a Hostile Bill In the Assembly.

The Common Council at its March meeting last night adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Holt, deciding not to join with North Plainfield in building a trunk line sewer, and a copy of the resolution was ordered sent to the Borough Council.

Another resolution by Mr. Holt, which was adopted, authorized Mayor G. W. V. Moy to present the city's plans for a sewage disposal works on the Darling farm, to the State Board of Health at Trenton today, and still another resolution by the same member, which was adopted, authorized Mayor Moy to communicate with the legislators with a view to securing the defeat of Assembly bill No. 261, which if passed, wolud prevent the city from locating sewage disposal works outside its limits.

Judge William A. Coddington, counsel for Piscataway township, in a letter entered a protest against the proposed plan of the city to locate sewage disposal works on the Darling farm or on any other tract in the township, where damages might result. The matter was referred to the sewer committee.

The action on the presentation of plans to the State Board of Health was taken following the reading of a communication from the Mayor in which he called the attention of the Council to the hearing at Trenton today and the fact that it would be necessary to have the plans, specifications, etc., in readiness.

It was expected that a large delegation wolud be at Trenton in attendance upon today's hearing on the sewer matter.

AFTER A HIGHER RATE OF INTEREST

Borough School Board Asks Custodian to Put Deposits up For Bids.

BALANCE ON HAND IS $9,046

City Board Also Meets But Does Little Beyond the Transaction of Routine Business Vaccinating All the Unscraped Pupils.

The resolution passed by the North Plainfield Council last Friday night to transfer the schol and borough funds to the Plainfield Trust Company from the State Trust Company, was discussed by the borough school board at a adjourned meeting last night and a resolution adopted to give all the city banks an opportunity to make propositions to secure the school account.

The custodian of the school money, George F. Brown, has full power regarding the place for depositing the school funds. The resolution as passed recommends that he try to obtain a higher rate of interest.

The annual report of the District Clerk, Albert Steiner, was read and shows that there is a balance on hand of $9,046.05. This report will be distributed in printed form to the voters at the annual meeting to be held Monday night, March 19.

The resignation of Miss Anna C. Perry was received and accepted. Miss Perry has received an appointment in the New York city schools at a considerable advance in salary. The teachers committee was authorized to fill the vacancy.

Another adjourned meeting will be held Monday, March 25, to close up the business of the fiscal year.

Practically nothing beyond routine business was transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the city Board of Education, last night. Progress was reported in the matter of the proposed new primary schol and the addition to the High school. The school nurse reported making 8,192 inspections of pupils; adding that progress is being made in the work of completing vaccination.

The committee on fuel was instructed to make arrangements for the securing of bids for the annual supply of coal.

The report of the custodian showed a balance on hand of $51,997.05 and tax collection of $1,718 during February were reported. Dr. H. M. Maxson, who returned home Sunday night from the National Superintendents convention at St. Louis, gave an interesting account of the principal discussion at the gathering.

HEARING AT TRENTON ON THE SEWER PLANS

Plainfield and Neighboring Municipalities Represented Before State Health Board--New Brunswick Wants Tidewater System.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 5.—Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook and Piscataway township were all represented at the hearing before the State Board of Health, today, when Plainfield, through Mayor G. W. V. Moy presented the city's plans to establish a sewage disposal plant on the Darling farm in Piscataway township.

Judge W. A. Coddington was present to protest against the approval of the plans on behalf of Piscataway township, and there was also a protest from Bound Brook against the borough's plan to go to the Zvolenck farm. Frank Bergen, of the Plainfield Union Water Company, was also present. Allan Strong, of New Brunswick, spoke at the hearing, urging all the various ocmmunities to get together and build a sewer to tidewater.

The hearing was concluded about noon, and after lunch, the members of the State Board of Health went into session to consider Plainfield's plans.

The announced hearing on the water matter was postponed owing to the fact that the attorney-general was engaged in a hearing on the Fitzherbert bribery charge.

MRS. BROWN ROLSTON IN AUTOMOBILE SMASH-UP

Mrs. Brown Rolston, of Rockview avenue, narrowly escaped injury last night when the automobile she was driving collided with one driven by William Hickey and owned by C. W. Holland, of West Seventh street. The machines came together at Duer street and Lincoln place. Mrs. Rolston's machine being by far the lighter was badly damaged, the front right wheel being ripped completely off and the radiator and mud guard badly bent.

Mrs. Rolston was not thrown out and aside from a severe shaking up was uninjured. The Holland car had one passenger besides the driver and neither were injured. The Holland car lost a front lamp and the left front guard was twisted and bent.

Mrs. Rolston was on her way to the station to meet the train bringing her husband. The Holland car was being driven north on Duer street and as Hickey attempted to turn into Lincoln place, his intention was apparently misunderstood by Mrs. Rolston. She had stopped at Dunn's store, at Lincoln place and Duer street to leave and order, and had just thrown in the clutch when Hikey turned his car from Duer street into Lincoln place.

After ascertaining that Mrs. Rolston was uninjured, Hickey continued on to his destination. Mrs. Rolston telephoned to a garage and the damaged car was towed in for repairs. She is much better known as a horsewoman than as an autoist, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Hooley, of Rockview avenue, and prominent in local and metropolitan horse shows for a number of years.

MAYOR VETOES RESOLUTION TO BUY DOANE NEW CAR

Mayor G. W. V. Moy, at last night's meeting of the Common Council, vetoed the resolution carrying with it an expenditure of $870 for a new automobile for Chief Doane of the fire department. He gave as his reasons for so doing that he did not approve the type of car selected for the chief.

It is understood that the Mayor's objections to the car in question are that it is of the touring type, and in his opinion not one well adapted to the use of a chief of a fire department.

HAY AND FEED MEN IGNORE THE CITY

Councilmen Surprised to Receive No Bids For Supplying Horse Fare.

MAY BUY IN OPEN MARKET

Fire Insurance Company Rouses a Solon's Curiosity and a Little Investigation is Started—Routine of a Busy Session.

Contrary to Councilmanic expectations, no bids for furnishing the city with hay, straw and oats were received at the March meeting of the Common Council, last night, when Mr. Taylor, chcairman of the fire and building committee, so moved. The absence of bids seemed to cause some surprise. If none are obtainable, the committee will have to buy in the open market.

When Councilman Mygatt reported back a renewal of an insurance policy furnished by the Ohio Farmers' Insurance Company, Mr. Holt was led to inquire something about the company. He said that he had never heard of it, and thought it should be investigated. Mr. Mygatt said that the insurance had been placed by Roger F. Murray, but he would be glad to obtain the information sought by Mr. Holt, that is whether the company is a first class one or not.

Residents of Netherwood avenue petitioned for lights; also that the thoroughfare be macadamized. The matter was referred.

The Gamewell Fire Alarm Company, in a communication, assured the city of ample protection for the use of its equipment in the fire alarm system, in connection with suits that have been pending against the company for alleged infringements.

B. F. Kelsey, of Minneapolis, in a letter, offered Council information regarding garbage disposal and this was referred to the proper committee.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported the receipts for last month to be $166.49 and the disbursements $45.39. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that he had granted six permits during the month.

Mayor Moy returned to the Council resolutions in reference to previous actions in the sewer matter in which North Plainfield figured, explaining that they were in bad form. Later proper resolutions were offered by Mr. Holt and adopted.

Mr. Mygatt presented a five years' lease for the city offices at a rental of $2,200 a year, and moved that the city treasurer and Mayor be authorized to sign it. The lease can be terminated on April 1 of any year upon thirty days' notice.

The street committee, through Chairman Gloak reported that it would recommend the macadamizing of West Third street from Clinton avenue to the city line and George street, in accordance with petitions. The Council adjourned to meet again on Monday night, March 11.

PENNINGTON SCHOOL BOYS TO GIVE A CONCERT HERE

Members of the Musical Clubs of the Pennington School for Boys will come to the Monroe Avenue Methodist church next Friday night, to give a concert under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the church. The boys come here well recommended, having given several concerts in different parts of the State, including, Newark, Orange and Trenton.

During the past couple of years there have been rapid strides made by Pennington in every way under the presidency of Rev. Frank McDaniel, and one of those steps has been in the development of the musical clubs from a mediocre organization to one which ranks well with any in an elementary school anywhere in this section of the country. The concert on Friday night will be under the direction of Edgar M. Finck, and will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

PHILOSOPHER WHO WAS PROGRESSIVE

Nietzche, Prof. Spaeth Tells Monday Club, Not Unlike G. Bernard Shaw.

ANARCH IN THOUGHT REALM

Princeton Instructor Thinks the Philosopher's Worship of Cruelty Fatal to His Line of Reasoning—Not Incarnation of Superman.

"Nietzche, the Philosopher," was the subject of an interesting lecture by Prof. J. Duncan Spaeth, of Princeton University, before the Monday Afternoon Club, at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon. The chief characteristics of the philespher were presented in a concise and intelligent manner.

Prof. Spaeth said that Nietzche was a progressive leader, and had many things in common with George Bernard Shaw. He considered him as a symptom rather than a cause. The speaker said that the philosopher had turned the room of thought upside down to such an extent that it was unrecognizable. He described him as the self-appointed anarch in the realm of thought, calling good evil and evil good.

The speaker said that Nietzche wrote to change the world. He lived an eventful, dramatic life and ideas struck him with the force of lightning. An idea to him was a memorable event. Prof. Spaeth said that a progressive is one who is always dissatisfied with his surroundings, such was Nietzche. He said that a man who goes to bed satisfied with himself is too easily satisfied.

Dr. Spaeth declared that the philosopher preached aristocracy, the rights of the classes against the masses, the glorified strength of the overman, and asked his audience to bear in mind that it was between Rousseau and Nietzche that Darwin arose.

Rousseau and Nietzche rose Darwin.

The professor denied that the philosopher was a pessimist, but rather he possessed savage optimisim. With him evil springs from weakness. Don't be good, but be good for something. He advanced the thought that the mass of people represent the soil, the common people, from which a few great geniuses arise.

There are two standards of living, righteousness and success, said the lecturer. Virtue is its own reward, and in his opinion it has to be. He said that the people praise virtue and envy success. The people praised the boy who tried to save a woman's life at Niagara Falls, recently, but when he lost his life in the attempt, they did not envy him, because he died.

"Nietzche was not afraid of the consequences of his doctrine," said Prof. Spaeth. "He believed in a person having the courage of his convictions and to regard everyone but yourself as a means to an end, that man is the father of the superman. He advanced the thought that it is foolish to filter a polluted stream, but rather wall it up at the source, shut it off. It was from the filitration process that we have hospitals, asylums, etc. Voltaire's attack on Christianity pales into insignificance in camparison to Nietzche's blinding stroke. To him Christianity is the denial of life."

In conclusion, Prof. Spaeth sought to show the weak points in Nietzche's personality and reasoning. He considered his worship of cruelty as especially fatal to his philosophy and pointed out that his negative criticism was a distinct benefit and it was his belief that after summing up the life and characteristics of Nietzche that he cannot be worshipped as the incarnation of the superman.

MOSES SCHLOSS LAID AT REST IN ELIZABETH TODAY

The funeral of Moses Schloss was held at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon at the home of his brother, William Schloss, 38 Westervelt avenue, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including the employes of the store of S. Scheuer & Co., as well as from the many relatives.

Rabbi Solomon J. Foster, of Newark, was in charge of the services. The remains were taken to Elizabeth this afternoon for burial in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery. The pall-bearers, comprising the members of a whist club of which Mr. Schloss was one, were Judge William Newcorn, Max and Adolph Tepper, Charles Goldsmith, Isaac Schwed, Herman Schwed, Herbert Schuldenfrei and C. COUNCIL VOTES TO GIVE CITY JUDGE RAISE ASKED

City Judge William G. DeMeza's salary was raised at the March meeting of the Common Council, last night, from $1,000 to $1,500, in accordance with a request he made some time ago. The resolution providing for the increase was offered by Mr. Mygatt, chairman of the finance committee, and accompanying it was a letter from Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman.

Mr. Stillman commended the resolution and urged favorable action, adding that Judge DeMeza had made an efficient and excellent official and that by trying "speak-easy" cases here, instead of sending them to Elizabeth, had saved the city several hundreds of dollars. There was no opposition to granting the increase, which will date from January 1, 1912.

DR. J. H. BUCHANAN TO LECTURE IN BORO SCHOOL.

The teachers of the primary department of the North Plainfield schools and the parents of the pupils will be addressed by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan tonight in the Somerset street school, on the subject of "Children's Diseases." This is the second of a series of meetings Superintendent H. C. Krebs has arranged for the mutual benefit and instruction of parents and teachcers.

The announcement that both Christian Gloekler and Alexander D. Findlay, whose liquor licenses had been refused a week ago, were to be given a hearing before the councilimantic license committee, attracted a large number of people to the March meeting of the Common Council last night. The friends and opponents of the applicants were out in force.

After waiting until 9:25, the lobby was informed by President Tolles, from his chair, that he had been requested by the Common Council to announce that after due consideration and investigation, it had been decided to take no further action on the two license apipications in question.

During the early part of the evening there were rumors aplenty as to what would be done, some rumor-bearers going so far as to say that both applications would be granted. After the gamut of rumor was run it was learned that the actual development had been.

The Council was informed by Mayor Moy, in the absence of Corporation Cousel W. M. Stillman, who could not be reached, that under provisions of the State law, the applications could not be reconsidered. The State law provides, the members were informed, that it must give due notice to the public of the time when liquor licenses are to be considered, that the applications must be advertised a certain length of time, and when once acted upon, cannot be reconsidered that year, unless new applications are made out and advertised as before. The Council was not willing to open the matter again.

That information put an abrupt stop to further consideration of the licenses. It is not believed that the citation ofthe law changed the outlook for the licenseless saloon men. There was a well defined report about the city building that neither Gloekler nor Findlay could get six votes; the number they would require to have the applications reconsidered. The lobby was palpably relieved by the final settlement of the question.

Among those noticed in the lobby were Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church; Rev. J. Y. Brook, of Trinity Reformed church; Secretary H. E. Parker, of the Y. M. C. A., Captain A. S. Hewitt, of the Salvation Army, whose outspoken remarks a week ago against the Findlay saloon attracted so much attention, and Joseph W. Gavett.

During the forepart of the evening both Findlay and Gloekler, Captain Hewitt, together with other citizens and lawyers, appeared before the license committee to discuss questions relative to the two applications.

WANTS CITY TO AID MEN IN GETTING EMPLOYMENT

The monthly report of Overseer-of-the-Poor DeForest informed the Council last night of the progress being made in this department. He stated that the number of people requiring aid had been reduced.

Mr. DeForest suggested that the city could well afford to pay employment agent's fees for the purpose of being a means of securing work for several men out of employment at present. The general condition of the department was reported as satisfactory.

BILL TO HELP WHOLESALE LIQUOR SELLERS PASSED

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 5.—Assemblyman Lowy's bill, amending the Wearts liquor law, so that wholesalers in New Jersey will have the same privileges for the delivery of their goods as is enjoyed by the large department stores in other States, was passed last night by the House. The department stores could not be controlled by New Jersey because their trade was inter-State and Mr. Lowy held that the condition was unfair to dealers in this State. Senator Leavitt's bills appropriating $20,000 to commemorate the anniversary of the emancipation proclamation, allowing the disposal of State voting machines, and appropriating $70,000 for the new State House wing were passed. Senator Johnston's small freeholder bill for Bergen county was approved.

Rehearsal Is Postponed.

On account of the recognition services for Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong at the First Baptist church, tonight, the rehearsal of the Convention Choir announced for tonight, has been postponed to Thursday night, March 7, at the usual time and place. Business of special importance will be announced by the choir.

CITY HAS A MILD MEASLES EPIDEMIC

Board of Health Has Record of 112 Cases in Past Month.

SCARLET FEVER DOTS COUNTY

Twelve Cases Here During the Month—Forty-two Births in February and 24 Deaths—New Sanitary Inspector.

There is a mild epidemic of measles throughout the city according to the report of the Board of Health, presented at the monthly meeting, last night. During the past month a total of 123 cases were reported.

Scarlet fever is more or less epidemic throughout the county and the twelve cases reported to the local board represents a small percentage in comparison with other places. A second case reported in each of two families and there are three cases in one family. The only case of typhoid reported, it is believed, was contracted out of the city.

There was a total of 142 cases of communicable diseases reported during the month as follows: Measles, 123; scarlet fever, 12; diphtheria, typhoid fever and chicken-pox, one each; tuberculosis, 4; a total of 142. Thirty-four rooms in twelve houses were disinfected during February.

N. J. Randolph Chandler, of this city, was appointed by the board as sanitary inspector and he will enter upon his duties of the office at once. He succeeds Charles F. Pomeroy, resigned recently to take the position of assistant health officer of Summit.

The following returns were made to the board during February: Marriages, 8; births, 42; stillbirths, 2; deaths, 24.

PEOPLE TO SELECT PRESIDENTIAL CHOICE

Primaries on May 23 Will Take Place of Boss-Ridden Convention in New Jersey.

MEANS DIRECT NOMINATIONS

Names of Aspirants to Presidency to Be Printed On Ballots—Four Delegates-at-Large to Be Selected By Each Party.

Trenton, Mar. 5. (Special).—With the approach of the campaign for the election of delegates to the National Conventions, there is considerable interest as to the exact provisions of the law regulating the choice of delegates. For the first time in the history of the State there will be no State conventions for the selection of the men who will go to the National Convention to cast their votes for candidates for President and Vice-President, as under the Geran law the law the delegates will be chosen by direct vote at the primary election.

The law provides that this primary election shall be held from 1 P. M. to 7 P. M. on Tuesday, May 23, but there is some talk that the present Legislature may change the law fixing an earlier date. The election is to be held in every election district, as usual, and will be conducted by the regular election officers.

Every voter whose name shall appear on the poll book of the last preceding general election in his district or who has registered by affidavit as provided by the Geran law, will be entitled to vote in the primary of his political party for the election of expressly provides that any legal voter who did not vote at the general election last November may register for this primary election and be en-

Aside from the fact that Judge W. R. Codington admitted that action would be started against Councilman Patrnck J. Mr. Reville when questioned about the matter following the Council meeting last night, said that a paper had been served on him, but that he did not take time to read it, immediately tearing it up.

Mr. Reville did not seemed at all worried about the reported suit, adding that Mr. Watson should consider him one of his best friends, instead of an enemy.

FIFTH. Our clerks are selected with care and each and every one aim to make your shopping a pleasure rather than a burden.

SIXTH. We have installed a telephone private branch exchange with trunks to central and extension stations to each department, so that your telephone orders are given prompt attention.

SEVENTH. We do not misrepresent anything in our advertisements as to values or quality.

EIGHTH. Should, however, you have the slightest grievance of any kind we would consider it a favor if it was reported to the management at once, that we may have an opportunity to adjust the matter satisfactorily.

NINTH. With a sincere hope that if you are not already a customer, you will become one,

We remain,

Yours very respectfully,

SNAKES ARE USEFUL.

They Are a Check Upon the Lesser Reptiles of the Tropics.

What is the use of snakes? In their "going on their belly," the circumstance that so offended Bacon, lies one of their greatest uses, because that, together with their internal formation and external covering, enables them to penetrate where no larger carnivorous animal could venture, into dark and noisome morasses, bog jungles, swamps amid the tangled vegetation of the tropics, where swarms of the lesser reptiles, on which so many of them feed, would otherwise outbalance the harmony of nature.

Wondrously and exquisitely constructed for their habitat, they are able to exist where the higher animals could not, and, while they help to clear those inaccessible places of the lesser vermin, they themselves supply food for a number of the smaller mammalia, which, with many carnivorous birds, devour vast numbers of young snakes.

The hedgehog, weasel, ichneumon, rat, peccary, badger, goat, hog and an immense number of birds keep snakes within due limits, while the latter perform their part among the grain devouring and herbivorous lesser creatures.—Harper's Weekly.

Thinking While Asleep.

It is rather startling to hear that man thinks as intelligently asleep as awake, but no less an authority than Sir Arthur Mitchell admits that thinking is essential to life, says the Chicago Tribune. Thinking when we sleep may be different from when we are awake, but the process goes on just the same. Man cannot think unless he is alive, and he cannot be alive without thinking. Dreams are not as confused as we think. They become confused from the standpoint of memory, but are not from the point of the dream organ. Memory half blurred in trying to recall them makes dreaming seem confused. Dreams born under normal conditions are normal. It is only those that are created under abnormal conditions that are strange, for, as Cicero said: "It cannot be doubted the number of true dreams would be greater if we were to fall asleep in a better condition. Filling ourselves with wine and flesh obscures our dreams."

Hitch In the System.

A Boston tramp has begging reduced to a system. He has his regular customers. He knocked at the door of a house. The owner came out. As soon as he saw the tramp he said:

"Now, look here; last week I gave you a nickel to stay away for ten days, and here you are back again."

The tramp put his hand to his forehead and was lost in thought for several minutes. Then he said:

"You are right, colonel. Your assessment does not come due for a week yet. When I get back to my counting room I'll pay off my head bookkeeper and discharge him. He has neglected to give you the proper credit on the ledger."—New York American.

Ant Strength.

An English scientist weighed a small ant and a dead grasshopper which it was dragging to its nest. The weight of the grasshopper was found to be sixty times greater than that of the ant. The force exerted by the ant in dragging the grasshopper along the road was therefore proportionately equal to that of a man weighing 150 pounds pulling a load of four and one-half tons or a horse of 1,200 pounds a load of thirty-six tons.

FOUR PLEAD GUILTY TO BALLOT INDICTMENTS.

Flemington, Mar. 5.—Pleas of not guilty to indictments for alleged unlawful printing and alleged unlawful distribution of sample ballots at the recent election have been entered before Judge John K. Connet.

The indictments for alleged distribution of sample ballots were against former Freeholder John T. Force, former Freeholder Morris P. Eick and former Prosecutor George K. Large. Henry Martin Voorhees, editor of The Democrat Advertiser, who was the official printer, was indicted for alleged unlawful printing of sample ballots.

Counsel for the defendants in entering pleas of not guilty to all the indictments reserved the right to withdraw the pelas for the purpose of moving to quash the indictments on the ground that they do not charge a crime.

The sample ballots that were alleged to have been printed and distributed are said to have been exactly the same as the official sample ballots such as were sent out to the voters through the mails. They were yellow in color, it is said, and therefore could not have been used at the election.

ISAIAH FISHER, FORMER PLAINFIELDER, IS DEAD.

Califon, Mar. 5. (Special).—The body of Isaiah W. Fisher, fifty-seven years old, of Chesswold, Del., a former Plainfield milkman, who died at a Philadelphia hospital Saturday from stomach disease, will be taken to the home of his brother-in-law, Neighbour Dilts, near Middle Valley, tomorrow. Services will be held at the Dilts home and interment will be in the Lower Valley Union Cemetery. Mr. Fisher's father, Henry Fisher, of Fairmount, died recently.

Mr. Fisher was born in Tewksbury Township fifty-seven years ago.

For several years Mr. Fisher was a farmer at Fairmount. Later he disposed of his interests there and moved to Plainfield, where he engaged in the milk business. Last year he moved to Delaware.

He married Miss Dilts, daughter of the late Abner Dilts, of German Valley. No children resulted from the union. Besides a widow he leaves one brother, Albert Fisher, of Brooklyn, formerly of Newark, and four sisters, Mrs. Isaac Hoffman, of Hoffmans; Mrs. George Rinehart, of Lebanon; Mrs. Frank Bartles, of Pottersville, and Mrs. David Teats, of Fairmount.

STRIKE OF PAINTERS IS BREWING IN SUMMIT.

Summit, Mar. 5.—The employers have refused to consider the demand of the Painters, Paper-hangers and Decorators' Union for an increase from $3.28 to $3.60 per day. The union members will meet Wednesday night to decide whether or not a strike will be declared April 1. At the conference between the bosses and a committee representing the union, Saturday night, the employers informed the committee that they would not consider any increase in wages.

The bosses declared that $3.28 is the wage scale paid in all cities and towns west of Newark, and they could see no reason why they should be asked to pay higher wages here. The men were asked to advise their fellow-journeymen to reconsider the demand, but the committee was insistent. The bosses have agreed to stand firm against granting the demand of the journeymen and it is said a majority of the later favor a strike rather than continue working under the present wage scale.

HOUSE NO HOME SINCE THEIR SHEPHERD DOG DIED.

Montclair, Mar. 5.—Because the house seems so lonely since the death of Laddie, a shepherd dog that for many years had been their pet, A. G. Lindsay, of 306 Orange road, Montclair, and his sister, Miss E. C. Lindsay, have decided to move from the scene so laden with associations of their canine companion.

The dog died February 18 from old age. Three veterinary surgeons strove in vain to save its life. When Laddie died the owners held a funeral for it and the animal was buried in a silk-lined coffin and lies in a grave marked by a head and foot Stone.

Miss Lindsay declared this morning that it was because of Laddie's ill health that she and her brother had settled in Montclair. Prior to the dog's sickness they had traveled for years, living constantly at hotels. Miss Lindsay added that now there is nothing to keep them in one place, and that they thought it would be more pleasant traveling.

BANK, AFTER RUN, SHUTS ITS DOORS

Branch of New York Firm Brings Receiver.

FALSE REPORT THE CAUSE

Discharged Former Employee, Manager of Branch Claims, Circulated Story of Absconding Cashier Among Foreigners Who Were Depositors—Assets Greater Than Liabilities.

Perth Amboy, N. J., March 5.—As the result of a run on their Perth Amboy branch, during which nearly $100,000 was drawn out, a receiver was appointed for the Hungarian banking firm of M. Rosett of 114 Liberty street and 197 Stanton street, New York, a large concern, with branches in Jersey City and Perth Amboy, Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Youngstown, O. About $600,000 is due to depositors altogether. The books show a surplus of assets over liabilities of $192,000.

The run on the Perth Amboy branch began a week ago in the Hungarian quarter.

The reason for the run has not been explained, but Armin Tomassoff, the branch manager, charges the responsibility rests with a former employee of one of the banks in New York. This man, he said, was discharged a short time ago and last week called up depositors on the telephone and told them the cashier had absconded, taking all the funds with him.

ABSORBS NEW COMPANIES.

To Have a Continuous Trolley Line From Jersey City to Camden.

Newark, N. J., March 5.—Announcement was made at the offices of the Public Service corporation here that negotiations have been successfully concluded for the acquiring, under leases to run for 999 years, of connecting links which give the company a continuous trolley line from Jersey City to Camden. It is understood that a through service between New York and Philadelphia, which was suspended after an unsatisfactory experiment a few years ago, is to be resumed.

The agreements must receive the approval of the public utilities commission, and it is not expected this body will object. The concerns added to the corporation's list are the Riverside Traction company (Elizabeth), Trenton Railway company, Cinnaminson Electric Power and Heating company and Bordentown Electric Light and Motor company.

The Public Service corporation will pay interest on outstanding bonds and dividends on both preferred and common stock of the leased companies.

DYERS DISSATISFIED.

More Trouble Threatens as Silk Weavers Go Back.

Paterson, N. J., March 5.—The strike of the broad silk weavers came to an end when most of the 5,000 strikers returned to their employers. Three-fourths of the 120 manufacturers who held out against the union sign on the schedules already have signed.

Following the end of the weavers' troubles comes the report that there is dissatisfaction among dyers employed by the independent concerns not affiliated with the National Silk Dyeing company. Twenty-five dyers in the plant of the Alfred Crew Silk Dyeing company refused to return to work because a demand for an increase of $1 a week was not granted. The employees of the National company have received a voluntary increase of $1 a week.

Fifth Runs For Police, and He Is Glad When Officer Arrives.

Jersey City, N. J., March 5.—After four women sat on him while a fifth called the police, Herman Miller, twenty-nine years old, was glad when an officer appeared.

Mrs. Anna Sexton caught Miller stealing her handbag in her flat. She grabbed him and he broke away, reaching the front door, which stuck, allowing her to catch him again. Three other women joined her and they threw Miller down, sat on him and screamed until Lieutenant Hoffman appeared.

State's Governor Returns From His Iowa Trip.

Trenton, N. J., March 5.—Governor Wilson returned from his Iowa trip and resumed work at the statehouse. He attended a hearing before the senate committee on the bill for indeterminate franchises for public utility corporations.

The governor will go to Annapolis Thursday to make an address before the Maryland legislature. He will speak in Brooklyn Saturday night before the Brooklyn league.

His Broken Bones Are Wired.

Trenton, N. J., March 5.—Silver wires have been placed through the bones of the legs of John V. Hall, which were broken last week when a heavy beam fell on him. Surgeons in the McKinley hospital placed the wires to assist the bones to knit. To insert the wires it was necessary to drill holes in the bones.

TWO NEW LEADERS IN CONTESS

to Europe and two months of pleasure and enjoyment on foreign shores.

Exaggerated stories concerning the contest are continually finding their way into this office, and the flimsy character of some of them make the yarns laughable. There seems to be no limit to what some folks will believe, and one wonders how such fantastic stories start. For instance, someone will come wild-eyed into the office and exclaim: "What do you think? I just heard that Miss So-and-So has 200,000 votes held back!"

Such a statement is ridiculous, but there are always those ready to believe everything that comes to their ears, and a candidate hearing that would immediately climb off the band wagon if the reported vote-rich candidate happened to be in her district. The contest manager knows of no candidate who has a large vote in reserve, the standing as it appears today showing practically the full strength of each one.

Another favorite story that crops up every now and then is: "I hear that Miss ——— is going to spend her own money in winning the trip, and will not lose if it costs her a hundred dollars," or something to that effect. In the first place no one knows how many votes it will take to win the trip, and even if they did, money could not buy them. Votes are only issued on subscriptions, and each subscription must be straight business so far as we are able to judge them.

The special prizes are causing good work to be done in all of the districts, and the competition is growing more keen as the ballots come pouring into the ballot box. The fact that the fight will be hot before the contest closes is appreciated by the contestants, and they are putting forth their best efforts now in order to keep in the running.

One week from next Saturday marks the close of the special prize period, and then the candidates will settle down for the supreme effort. There is no time to waste—no margin for delay. Make the most of each day; do not let the sun go down without adding something to the total. Get votes every day.

WOMAN'S WIT HELPS TO MAKE FIRE-FIGHTING EASY

Presence of mind on the part of Mrs. Lawson, wife of Dr. James F. Lawson, probably prevented a serious blaze at their home on East Third street, near Washington yesterday afternoon. She not only gave an immediate alarm to neighbors, but thoughtfully closed all draughts to keep the fire in the physician's office, where it started, and pluckily sought to stay the flames until help arrived. The damage was held down to $250 covered by insurance.

Mrs. Lawson was alone in the house when she detected the odor of smoke. A hurried investigation led her to the office, located on the first floor, where a merry blaze was in progress, evidently having been started by the explosion of an oil stove, left burning by Dr. Lawson only five minutes before. She called for assistance, and beside pulling furniture and rugs out of the way, rescued medical books and valuable papers previous to aid reaching her. After the first excitement was all over, Mrs. Lawson recalled that her baby was asleep in another room, near enough for the smoke to reach it. A rush to the infant found it peacefully slumbering despite the racket.

Dr. Lawson was warm in his praise for the work of the firemen. They arrived in response to an alarm from box 21 and used only the chemical engine in quitting the blaze. They were exceptionally careful in handling the furnishings and very little loss resulted from the breakage.

HEART DISEASE CARRIES OFF SERING P. HOFFMAN

Sering P. Hoffman, aged 81 years, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James L. Love, on Duer street, with whom he had lived for a number of years. His death was due to heart trouble, with which he had been a sufferer for the past five weeks. Mr. Hoffman was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoffman, old residents of Hunterdon county, where he was born. He had been a resident of Plainfield about forty years.

During his younger days, Mr. Hoffman was employed as a foreman by the widely known firm of Meeker & Hedden, of Newark, and he had charge of many large contracts, including the erection of all the stations on the Northern Railroad, a branch of the Erie, between New York and Brewsters, N. Y., and he also had charge of building one of the early depots for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Jersey City. His work took him to all parts of the country.

He is survived by one son, Theodore Hoffman, of New York; a daughter, Mrs. James L. Love, of the borough, and one nephew, Charles Conover, of Elmwood place. The funeral will be held at the late home Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church. The burial will be in the Methodist cemetery.

Danish Lutheran Services.

Danish Lutheran service will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets. There will be preaching by Rev. N. H. Nyren, of Brooklyn.

UNION AND MORRIS TO COMPRISE 5TH DISTRICT

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 5.—It is expected that the Congressional redistricting bill giving New Jersey two additional Congressmen will be introduced in the Legislature tomorrow or Thursday. The bill was to have been introduced last week, but the difficulty of the Republican leaders in meeting the wishes of all the interests in North Jersey prevented getting it ready.

There have been some very slight changes made in the arrangement of the lines as announced last week. The one thing that remains to be fixed before its introduction is the final drawing of a portion of the lines in Hudson and Essex counties. A prominent State leader said today that five districts will be assigned to Hudson and Essex counties, two districts being laid entirely within each county and the Fifth district taking a section of Essex and Bayonne and the West Hudson towns.

As already announced, the First, Second and Third districts will be untouched, one corner of Warren county will be added to the Fourth district, the Fifth district will include Union and Morris counties, the Sixth district to contain the balance of Warren, Sussex, the northern townships of Passaic and Bergen, the new Seventh district to be made up of the balance of Passaic county. This will leave the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth districts to be divided, as stated, in Hudson and Essex.

Musicale and Tea.

On Friday afternoon between the hours of 3 and 6 there will be held at the residence of Mrs. John F. Harman, on West Eighth street, an informal musicale and tea and sale for the benefit of the city nurse. Mrs. Charles L. Hyde is chairman of the entertainment committee and Miss Elizabeth Goddard has the musical program in charge. Those assisting Miss Goddard are Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Frances VanDeventer and the Misses Harman.

Lecture for Mothers.

The Mothers' Association will meet in the science room of the Plainfield High School on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock when Dr. Edward Krans will deliver a lecture on "Fatigue from Work and Play." The public is cordially invited.

Funeral of W. H. Combs.

The funeral of William H. Comos will be held at his late residence, 28 Linden avenue, North Plainfield, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The interment will be in Bordentown.

BOUND BROOK CITIZENS WANT MORE POLICEMEN

Bound Brook, Mar. 5, (Special).—More than 200 citizens of Bound Brook and vicinity attended the public-welfare mass meeting held last night in the Lafayette School and heard Rev. A. E. Shattuck, pastor of the Congregational church, Rev. W. P. Dittrick, rector of St. Joseph's church and Rev. C. J. Culp, pastor of the Presbyterian church, appeal for better police protection for the borough so that the laws could be properly enforced.

A petition was prepared and signed by all present to be presented to the Common Council at it's next meeting asking that uniformed patrolmen be appointed, believing that this is the only solution to better government.

Rev. Mr. Shattuck said that there are a lot of good ordinances on the statute books that are being violated on account of lack of force to apply them. Father Dittrick spoke along the same lines as did also Rev. Mr. Culp who also mentioned the number of school children who are permitted to loiter in pool rooms and suggested that something be done whereby the school houses would be kept open after hours to give the children a place to go for amusement. His idea is to have them under the supervision of either a teacher or some one appointed for the purpose.

Morton V. Brokaw presided at the meeting. Others speaking on the police proposition and playground plan were W. H. Whitney, R. H. Brokaw, Rev. A. S. Phelps, D. W. Burcll and N. S. Gidley.

Returns to the West.

Herbert Smith, a former local resident, who has been living in the west for the past year, returned to Aberdeen, S. D., today after a three weeks' visit with relatives in the city and borough. Mr. Smith is now travelling in the Middle West for the Marshall Oil Co., one of the largest independent concerns in the country. The home office is in Aberdeen.

To Hear Reports of Supper.

All the members of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel who assisted in the turkey supper recently given at the chapel, are requested to meet at the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and hear the reports from the supper. All dues and missionary money are to be turned in at this meeting.

AMENDMENT THAT WOULD HAVE PLEASED CITY KILLED

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 5.—Efforts of Assemblyman Murray to get through an amendment in the House last night to permit municipalities to appeal to the State Board of Health about the location of sewage plants regardless of the will of the other community to be affected were defeated. The amendment was one to meet a condition where a municipality wishes to place a disposal plant in another municipality.

Mr. Watson asked if two members of the State Board of Health did not reside in the communities affected? Mr. Murray replied that they did.

Mr. Beard, who introduced the bill it was the intention to amend, said that the board would be prejudiced in favor of the amendment. On a vote the amendment was lost.

The enactment of the amendment would have helped Plainfield in its plan to run its sewer pipes to the Darling farm in Piscataway township, and North Plainfield in its effort to acquire the Cramer farm for a disposal works site.

MANY MOURNERS AT MRS. DE NISE'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Helen De Nise, wife of John De Nise, was held at her late home on West Front street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. A wealth of floral tributes included set pieces from organizations of which Mr. De Nise is a member.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: Andrew Jennings, Henry Wierenga, Rudolph Kampf, Robert Hyman, John Powers and Hugh Reilly.

Chimney Was Stopped.

Fire headquarters received a telephoned alarm at 10 o'clock this morning for a supposed fire in the residence of Dr. N. H. Probasco, Seventh street and Park avenue. It was found that a chimney leading from the laundry range had been blocked by falling stones in the high wind recently and when a fire was started the smoke poured into the various adjoining rooms.

Funeral of James Wilcox.

The funeral of James C. Wilcox will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, 11 Fairview avenue, North Plainfield. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

JINGOISM.

What that inane evening paper, the New York Mail, has to say very fortunately carries little weight else its editorial utterance on "The Flag" in yesterday's issue would grossly misrepresent the policy of the American government. It is absurd to put the Government in the false light as a land-grabber for its record in Cuba and elsewhere clearly demonstrates that the lust of empire is abhorred by our country. After referring to some of our possessions, such as the territory of Alaska, the Mail says:

"But though Arizona and New Mexico exhaust our 'continuous and contiguous' territory, we may some time have more territory that will be continuous, contiguous and American. The Mexican republic trembles on the verge of downfall. To deny the possibility of further additions of Mexican territory to the United States would be sheer hypocrisy. And Chihuahua, Coahuila, Sonoro Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas are all enormously large states, each one capable of maintaining an American population which might easily outnumber the present Mexican population, and as readily Americanize those regions as Arizona has been Americanized. If we annexed only the northern tier of states of Mexico, there would be a chance that four or five new stars might be added to the American flag within the next forty years."

President Taft's attitude towards Mexico proves conclusively that we are that troublesome neighbor's best friend and that our Government has no sinister designs upon either the present government or the country's territory. The Mail's imperialistic vaporings, as we said before, fortunately carry little weight. It would probably be correct to say that they carry no weight whatever.

Detective Galatian, of the Union county prosecutor's office, has resorted to a rather unusual but highly satisfactory method of running down burglars. By means of his "robbery map" he has succeeded in capturing a gang that confined its operations to what is known as the Lorraine district. Nearly a dozen burglaries had taken place in Roselle and Roselle Park when the county detective was called upon to run down the crooks. After visiting the scene of the gang's operations and making a careful investigation, the sleuth drew his "map." In the sketch he located the houses that had been entered in the twin boroughs. The looted places almost surrounded the Lorraine district and lines, like wheel spokes that were run through the drawing, converged at the home of a man then under suspicion. An arrest was made and what the detective learned from his prisoner was sufficient to cause the arrest of two others. Galatian is a useful man to the county.

The Daily Press European tour contestants appreciate the exceptional opportunity afforded them to obtain a two months' trip through Europe absolutely free of any expense, the only requirement being their efforts to procure sufficient votes to land them as winners. A first class tour in every respect, including a journey through England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Holland and Belgium is the offer and as an extra inducement at present a diamond ring and four gold watches are the special awards for extra effort. Those who are not fully informed as to the particulars of this remarkable offer may learn more about it by consulting the Daily Press contest manager.

State Forester Gaskill's warning to the public as to the "tree butchers" is most opportune so far at the State at large is concerned. Fortunately, however, Plainfield has a Tree Commission, which looks after such matters and a very efficient commission it is. These itinerant "tree butchers" who go about the State know better than to waste their time here where property-owners are in the habit of consulting the local commission before having their trees pruned.

Friends of Senator George Silzer are booming him for the prosecutorship of Middlesex county and Governor Wilson has announced that he will make no appointment unless agreeable to Silzer. But there are bigger things in store for the Middlesex solon chief among which may be the secretaryship of State. And he would be a mighty good man for that place.

The New York papers have already decided who shall be the Republican nominee, but they're deadlocked on a Democratic choice.

JOHN NAGLE'S STATISTICS AS TO WINTER'S WEATHER

The present winter season has been so extremely cold that the report of Weather Prophet John Neagle to the effect that December was the warmest month attracts but little attention. The general expression heard on all sides is that householders have burned more coal this winter than in many years past. December had a mean temperature of 5.5 degrees above the normal. January was colder than February, the former being the colder of the two months. The mean for January was 7.4 degrees below the normal, while mean temperature for February was 2.2 degrees below the normal. December being some warm its mean temperature counteracted the means of the other months by bringing them nearer the season's normal. The record of the winter season for 1911-1912 was as follows:

Highest temperature, 62 degrees, date, December 12, 1912; lowest temperature, 19 below zero; date, January 14, 1912; mean temperature 29.1 degrees; normal temperature, 30.5 degrees; total precipitation, 9.43 inches; normal precipitation, 11.69 inches; greatest amount in twenty-four hours, 1.18, date, February 21-22; total snowfall, 24.7 inches; normal snowfall, 25.8 inches; wind direction was northwest. The mean temperature was 1.4 degrees below the normal and was 0.8 degrees below that of last winter. The precipitation was 2.26 inches below the normal, but was 0.11 inches above that of last winter. The snowfall was only 0.007 inches below that of last winter.

The statistics of February weather follow: Highest temperature, 60 degrees, date, 25; lowest temperature, two degrees below zero; mean temperature, 28.0 degrees; normal temperature, 30.2 degrees; mean maximum, 37.4 degrees; mean mimimum, 18.5 degrees; greatest daily range, 32.0; mean daily range, 18.9 monthly range temperature, 62.0; total precipitation, 2.56 inches; normal precipitation, 3.91 inches; greatest precipitation in 24 hours, 1.18 inches, dates, 21-22; total snowfall, 3.0 inches; normal snowfall, 11.4 inches; number of days .01 orm ore of precipitation, five; number of days clear, 9; party cloudy, 11; cloudy, 9; high winds, dates, 22-23; heavy gale, date, 22; lightning, 22; thunder storm, 26; wind direction, northwest.

The mean temperature was 2.2 degrees below the normal for the month. It was also 2.7 degrees below that of February of last year. The precipitation was 1.33 inches below the normal for the month and was also 0.58 inches below February of last year.

MANY HORSEMEN MOURN AT A. S. HOFF'S FUNERAL

The funeral service for Andrew S. Hoff was held yesterday afternoon at his late residence on West Second street. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church, conducted the service at the home and Rev. George Angleman, of Jersey City, a nephew, officiated at the grave. Burial was made in the family plot in the Bound Brook cemetery.

The house service was largely attended by relatives and friends, among the latter being nearly all of the horse owners of the city and borough with whom Mr. Hoff had been acquainted. Many floral tributes were banked about the bier.

The bearers were C. Frank French, George F. Watts, James Fisher and William Pangborn.

MANY ENJOY DANCES AT BRILLIANT PURIM BALL.

The Purim ball, held last night for the benefit of the Plainfield Hebrew school, was a most gratifying success, both socially and financially. The large number of dancers present thoroughly enjoyed the program of dancing prepared and appreciated the various other social features introduced to furnish a pleasant evening.

This is the first affair the Hebrews have held for the benefit of the school in the Y. M. H. A. hall and the material help received will place the institution on a paying basis.

SEVEN MORE INDICTMENTS.

Eleven Men Now Accused by Grand Jury In Taxi Robbery.

New York, March 5.—Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty said that he expected to be able to show that Geno Montani, the driver of the taxicab which figured in the $25,000 robbery in Trinity place, and Jess Albrozza, one of the principals in the taxicab robbery, were concerned in the murder of Adolph Stern in Jacoby's jewelry store in Sixth avenue.

Seven indictments were returned in the taxicab case, making eleven in all. Two of the indictments, which are for robbery in the first degree and assault, are against "Dutch," who blackjacked one of the bank messengers in the taxicab, and "Joe the Kid," both of whom have not been arrested. Commissioner Dougherty said he expected he would have "Dutch" within two days, and when he got "Dutch" he would find "Joe the Kid" with him. Paul, one of the so called three brigands, was not indicted. He is not in this country. Dougherty believes that he will come back when the police want him without an indictment.

In addition, the men indicted are Matteo Arbana, the leader of the three brigands; the other member of the three brigands, whose name has not been made public by the police; Gene Splaine, who blackjacked one of the messengers, and Jimmy Push and his partner, Bob Dello, in whose saloon the $25,000 was split up within an hour after the holdup. Push and Dello are charged with receiving stolen goods. The others are accused of robbery and assault. Jimmy Push was able to get $5,000 bail from a surety company. The others remained in jail, including Splaine, who pleaded guilty to robbery in the first degree.

KENYON RAPS STEPHENSON.

Iowa Senator Brands Alleged Election Methods Public Menace.

Washington, March 5. Senator W. S. Kenyon of Iowa, who signed the minority report declaring that Senator Stephenson's seat should be vacated, speaking in the senate, said:

"This election is, as Lord Coke said in the Long case, 'tainted at its foundation.'

"The methods employed would not have dignified a candidacy for county sheriff. The election was the result of an organized riot of corruption, a debauchery of the electorate by threatening, employment and purchase of newspaper influence and other despicable methods, creating by money political enthusiasm and securing political support.

"If men can be sent here by money others can be defeated by money, and there are men in this chamber who know what it means to have the purses of great interests opened to defeat them.

"Above any other question is the great one of public policy. A man who turns loose this enormous sum of money to secure a seat here is not as a matter of public policy entitled to remain a member of this body. Even were the election legal he should be expelled."

WANT CONTRIBUTORS' NAMES.

Senate Resolution Would Learn Who Helped T. R. In 1904.

Washington, March 5.—The senate committee to audit and control contingent expenses of the senate agreed to favorably report the Culberson resolution providing for an investigation of the elections of 1904 and 1908, with a view to exposing the names of persons who contributed to the national committees of both political parties and to the national congressional committees for the election of representatives in congress. The resolution would disclose the identity of contributors to the Roosevelt campaign in 1904.

Gaynor and Gerard Agree.

New York, March 5.—The spat between Supreme Court Justice Gerard and Mayor Gaynor which was provoked by the mayor's letter to Governor Dix on the Brandt case was smoothed over by an interchange of letters between the justice and the mayor. titled to vote thereat, by filing with the municipal clerk of his municipality at least ten days prior to the day of the election an affidavit in the form required by the general election law for registering voters for any general election.

As in other primary elections, there will be tow boxes and two sets of tickets, one for the Republicans and one for the Democrats. Delegates-at-large, of which there will be four from New Jersey to each National Convention, will be voted for throughout the entire State. District delegates, two from each Congressional district to each National Convention, will be voted for in the respective Congress and Districts, the lines of which are yet to be fixed by this Legislature. Alternates-at-large and District Alternates will be chosen in the same way. As New Jersey will have two new Congressional Districts under the new Congressional apportionment, 24 District delegates and 24 alternates will be chosen this year instead of 20 each, as were elected four years ago.

Candidates for delegates at large must file their petitions not later than May 1. Candidates and alternates from districts must file their petitions at the same time. It is the privilege of any candidate for delegate and alternate to have on the primary ticket in connection with his own name, the name of the person whose nomination for President he favors. One such petition has already been filed with the Secretary of State from the Second Congressional District, and it endorses Theodore Roosevelt for President.

There is also a provision in the law which enables the voters to express their own preference for President independent of their preference for delegates, provided, however, that there are printed on the ticket the names of persons who may be thus voted for. Names of persons recommended for the Presidency are to be printed on the ballot upon petition of 1,000 voters from the entire State, and it is not necessary that the person so recommended shall give his assent thereto, as the Geran law now stands. Senator Leavitt, of Mercer, has introduced a bill requiring candidates who are thus recommended for the Presidency to sign an acceptance of the recommendation, before the same can be placed on the ballot. It is understood that the Republican leaders have decided not to push this through.

There is a peculiar thing about the law, which is that absolutely nothing is said about the expression of preference for Vice-President on either the candidates for delegates or by the voters.

NEW FROCKS OF CLOTH AND SILK FOR SPRING WEAR

EASTER gowns and the Easter hats are the topics of conversation in many households, and the illustration, showing two popular types of spring gowns, may be followed with interest. One gown is a charming model in foulard, a silk that will be much worn during the spring and summer. This fabric is a red spotted one, the trimmings carrying out the tone of red. The deep religeuse collar, the girdle, cuffs and the piping that outlines the panel and the band around the bottom of the skirt also are red.

FOULARD AND MOHAIR GOWNS

With this gown is worn one of the charming wide rimmed hats so suitable for the young and for faces of a piquant type. Red roses and purple pansies are combined in trimming the hat.

An Easter dress of the suit type is also illustrated. It is carried out in one of the new novelty mohairs now so popular in Paris. The color, a rich violet, is particularly suitable for Easter. The revers are faced with gray bengaline, silver braid giving a touch of brightness to the coat. Rows of crochet buttons adorn the tunic and the fold at the side of the skirt. The hat and parasol are of violet to match the color of the gown.

BRUSH BACKS.

Plain Ones May Be Covered With Silk or Chintz.

Often on a dressing table the only article which is unattractive in appearance is the hairbrush with a plain wooden back.

Many women find that the usual silver backed brush is too soft bristled and habitually use a plain, inexpensive one because it is stiffer.

A good way to bring it into harmony with the surroundings is to cover the back with brocade or broche silk.

Sandpaper the wood so that it will hold gum or paste. Have the silk cut the exact size and shape of the brush's back and paste it on very smoothly. Finish the edge, after the silk is dry, with a narrow border of gimp or galloon.

Flowered silk to match the other toilet belongings has the prettiest effect.

A brush treated in this way makes an attractive gift. Cretonnes and small figured chintz may take the place of silk if they are used elsewhere in the bedroom furnishings.

Linen or plain silk with the monogram of the owner embroidered on it may also be used for these covers.

THE FEMININE PHILOSOPHER.

Many pretty women are plain, and many plain women are pretty, but no plain women are uninteresting.

A man likes to meet a pretty woman who does not know it—not to marry her, for she would be too dull, but as a curiosity.

A man sees many girls he wants to make love to, but not nearly so many as girls who think he wants to make love to them.

A sensible man soon gives up trying to understand whether a woman is talking to him or to be overheard by some one else within earshot.

A man would rather try for a girl whom other men wanted and fail than win where there was no competition.

Creasing Cloth.

When making blouses, children's frocks, etc., of cashmere, silk, flannel or any soft material that won't crease you will save much time and trouble if you press instead of tack tucks, turnings, folds, etc. Use a moderately hot iron and slightly damp obstinate parts of unshrinkable materials.

Putting on Your Hat.

Don't make the mistake that many do of putting your hat down over your forehead without letting a lock of hair show. It is really necessary to have the hair arranged around the face to soften the features as well as the line between the hat and the forehead.

—Judging by the date lines under which one reads of Woody Wilson's doings it's pretty hard to tell just what State he considers himself Governor of.—Washington Post.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

Exercises For Developing the Shoulders and Chest.

An exercise that is of great use in helping to develop loveliness in the shoulders is to raise them as high as possible and then to lower them gently to place again, repeating this a dozen times and taking a deep breath through the nose at the beginning, after the sixth time of raising and again at the end of the exercise.

Another useful exercise is to stand near an open window, with heels together, take a deep breath, then stretch upward, raising the right arm and the body as high as they will go, getting on tiptoes, but still standing steadily. In stretching the right arm as if intending to touch the ceiling with the finger tips send the left arm downward and rather backward to full extension, then swing the right arm downward, at the same time shooting the left arm upward in an imaginary attempt to reach the ceiling with the fingers of that hand.

Repeat this exercise twenty times, trying to get higher at each attempt and breathing deeply and silently at the open window.

Stand uprightly, raise the chest and carry the hands to the front, with arms at fullest stretch, but in a line with the shoulders. The hands should not be brought together as in a similar exercise for another purpose.

Swing the arms round one after the other in quick alternation, describing the widest circles possible and seeming to make the shoulder itself rotate at its ball and socket joint.

This exercise, while improving the shoulders, will benefit the whole figure, especially if care be taken to keep the waist well in, the chest expanded, the shoulders down and the chin from poking. It should be repeated at least a dozen times.

Curing a Child's Hiccoughs.

Mothers are often alarmed when a child is attacked with hiccoughs. An easy and effectual way to stop the hiccough is to press the pulse in the wrist of the sufferer as hard as possible, and the trouble will cease.

A second method is to hold both hands up. Then see how close the thumb and little finger of each hand can come together without touching. These may seem like simple remedies, but they will divert the attention and thus stop what might otherwise prove serious.

Taking Out a Splinter.

It is hard to take a splinter out of the flesh, especially if it goes straight in. Here is a way to remove one: Fill a wide mouthed bottle with hot water to a point one inch from the top. Press the injured part gently into the mouth of the bottle and in a minute or two the splinter will be so loosened that it will come right out.

—"What are you taking that vapor bath for, sick?"

"O, no; but it's the only way to work up the right kind of a thirst in winter."—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

WHEN TO EAT PARSNIPS.

IT is in the spring that parsnips are at their best if they have been properly kept. The farmer's wife has some one bury her stock in the ground below the frost line. This is done in the fall, and the parsnips are not touched until spring, when the ground seems to have developed a particular flavor which is very pleasing to epicures.

When prepared for cooking, parsnips must be scraped and washed until clean. They are boiled for about an hour. If cut in half, less time is needed.

Some Palatable Dishes.

Parsnips With Cream Sauce.—Take boiled parsnips, cut them into cubes and serve with cream sauce. Young parsnips are the best for this purpose. If the parsnips are old an hour and a quarter is not too long to let them boil. Thus cooked they are served with fish.

Fried Parsnips.—Boil, peel and drain the parsnips, cut into halves, season with salt and pepper and dip first into melted butter and then into sifted flour. Place some drippings or cooking butter into a frying pan. Put in the parsnips and fry until they are brown on all sides.

Parsnip Fritters.—After the parsnips have been boiled and the skins taken off mash them and season with salt, pepper and butter. Mold the mashed parsnips into little flat cakes, flour and fry in butter until golden brown.

Novel Recipes.

Parsnips With Carrots.—Wash and split the parsnips and carrots and lay them in a saucepan with the flat side down. Put on boiling water enough to cover them and boil until tender, when the skins may be removed. Then add a butter sauce and they are ready to serve.

Cold boiled parsnips may be sliced and fried.

Parsnip Soup.—To make a soup for four persons take a quart of stock, two ounces of butter, salt and pepper to taste and a pound of sliced parsnips.

Put the parsnips into a saucepan with the butter, which has been melted, and simmer until tender. Then boil in a pint of stock for half an hour. Take off and strain and put in the rest of the stock. Season and serve.

Taffeta Frocks the Spring Craze—Pompadours Passe.

Little frocks of taffeta are just now the craze, and every debutante has her afternoon tea frock of white taffeta made in simple, girlish style.

Such a frock is, of course, worn under a fur coat or other wrap in a conveyance, the wrap being left in a dressing room, and the taffeta frock must be made in a style suitable for afternoon rather than evening wear.

Cookery Notes

Lenten Dishes.

Fish Croquettes.—The remains of any fish, one large onion, a sprig of thyme, three sprigs of parsley, a clove of garlic if you like it. Mince all fine and mix. Season to taste, adding a tablespoonful of butter. Add breadcrumbs in proportion to one-third the quantity. When thoroughly mixed make into balls and flatten like cakes; then dip into beaten egg and cover with breadcrumbs. Fry a delicate brown and serve with cream horseradish or tomato sauce.

Potato Salad of Cold Potatoes.—Cold boiled potatoes can be utilized in a salad, although they do not make as appetizing a salad as one made of the fresh boiled potato marinated with oil and vinegar while hot. For the cold potato salad take three cold boiled potatoes, one large white onion, two hard boiled eggs, nine tablespoonfuls olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of salt and four sprigs of nice fresh parsley. A dash of mustard may be added if desired.

Cheese Fondu.—Put two tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan and melt without allowing it to brown at all. Then stir in two tablespoonfuls of sifted flour and as soon as smooth pour in half a cupful of fresh milk or cream and let boil about two minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in the yolks of three eggs well beaten; salt and pepper to taste; a grating of nutmeg and a cup of grated Parmesan or Gruyere cheese. Mix all together well and have ready a small pudding dish or individual souffle dishes well buttered. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and beat into the mixture and then fill the buttered dishes about two-thirds full. Bake in a moderate oven about twenty-five minutes. Serve immediately, or the mixture, which has risen to the top of the dishes, will shrink or fall.

Stuffed Dried Herring.—Smoked dried herring are popular with a family where they appear stuffed with savory dressing and baked. The bones of the fish are taken out and the place from which they came is filled with a mixture of fine buttered breadcrumbs, finely minced chives and a little parsley. Then the fish are brushed with butter. A very little water is put in the pan and they are baked about fifteen minutes. Serve them with lemon slices.

Orange Salad.—There cannot be a more delicious dinner salad, and certainly hardly a simpler one, than lettuce leaves that are torn, not cut; bits of orange pulp without a trace of white fiber or seeds and a dressing of oil and vinegar, with a scanty sprinkling of sugar.

Baked Halibut.—Any dry white meat fish, such as halibut, is delicious baked in a thick slice that has been dipped in flour, covered with a layer of tomato pulp or with slices of tomato, sprinkled with a little minced green pepper, seasoned with salt and pepper and baked about twenty minutes.

French Fried Stuffed Eggs.—Take four hard boiled eggs, remove the shells, cut a small bit of the end of each and carefully take out the yolk. Mash this yolk with a silver fork until it is perfectly smooth and add to it some salt, pepper, a small piece of butter and some chopped parsley. Replace all in the whites and cover up end. Beat up the white of one raw egg and in this dip the cooked eggs, and afterward roll them in breadcrumbs. Place all in a wire basket and let them cook for two minutes in boiling lard. Serve with tomato or cream sauce.

Clams a la Newburg.—For clams a la Newburg, as a girl makes it in her chafing dish, cut the soft part from each clam and chop the tough part very fine. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in the blazer with a little salt and paprika and add the chopped clams. Simmer them for about ten minutes. Then add two tablespoonfuls of sherry and the soft clams. At the last stir in quickly the yolks of two eggs beaten into half a cupful of cream and let come near a boil, but not quite to the point. Serve at once.

One Egg Cake.

Cream a half cupful of butter, work in one cupful of sugar, then one egg yolk. When smooth stir in one cupful of milk and gradually two cupfuls of sifted flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with vanilla, bake and ice with the following: Beat one cupful of confectioner's sugar slowly into the white of one egg and flavor with a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Stir over the fire a half cupful of grated chocolate, two tablespoonfuls of confectioner's sugar and one tablespoonful of hot water until smooth, then add one more tablespoonful of hot water and stir into the sugar and beaten egg. Nuts may be added, whole or chopped.

Doughnuts.

Beat three eggs till light, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Beat again. Sift one level teaspoonful of soda into a cupful of sour cream, add to the sugar and eggs, then add one small teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a grated nutmeg. Mix with sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Roll about half an inch thick, cut out and fry in hot lard. It is a good plan to have the dough cut out all ready to fry before heating the lard.

OROZCO, REBEL, TAKES CITY OF CHIHUAHUA

Defeats and Drives Out Villa, Its Defender.

El Paso, Tex., March 5.—Pasqual Orozco, lately commander of the government forces in Chihuahua, who turned rebel Sunday, has beaten back the loyal forces of Francisco Villa and is holding the city, ready to receive the 1,500 rebels who went south from Juarez to re-enforce him Sunday, if he has not already received them. Orozco succeeded in driving the loyal Villa and his men out of the town after serious fighting and, according to reports received by the rebels, Abram Gonzales, governor of the state, was forced to flee with Villa.

A private message purporting to have come from Chihuahua said that "Orozco and Villa have patched up their differences." This is taken to mean that Villa has joined the rebels too.

Orozco is to be made commander in chief of the Vasquista forces if he will accept, and he will also be declared governor of Chihuahua.

The proclamation of President Taft has created a sensation among Americans in Mexico, and they are rushing out on every available train, but those at Torreon, Chihuahua and environs have no way to get out.

"None today," answered Mann. "The house adjourned yesterday to meet next Monday."—Washington Star.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

M'FARLAND HAS LITTLE USE FOR MANAGERS.

Packey McFarland has no soft spot in his heart for fight managers.

"When I was a grocery clerk," says Packey, "I took up boxing. One of my pals appointed himself my manager. He arranged my first fight in a club twenty miles from Chicago. I battled for dear life. On the way home the manager informed me that $3 was my bit.

"'Now,' says he, 'I get 50 per cent for my services.'

"When I arrived home I discovered that after giving the manager 50 per cent and paying fare both ways I earned 90 cents for fighting. That was bad enough, but when I struck home my dad was waiting for me. He licked me worse than the fighter did. So it looked as if I had a just kick coming."

SPICY SPORT CHATS

By TOMMY CLARK.

Tommy Burns, who held the world's heavyweight championship until Jack Johnson put him away, is the latest pug to announce that he is going to try to come back and incidentally seek another battle with Jack Johnson. Burns, however, cannot be taken seriously. Having refused to meet Langford or McVey in Australia, it seems strange that he should come here for even tougher game. The chances are, however, that Burns wants to hook up with some of the white hopes in the hope of picking up some easy money. Burns has a perfect right in this class, for he has a knockout over Jim Flynn to his credit, though the chances are that Burns has gone back since he received that beating at the hands of Johnson.

Hans Wagner has acknowledged defeat in the oil business. Some weeks ago the report was circulated that the Pittsburgh Pirates' star had struck it rich in the oil field, but now the real truth is out, and he admits that all he got out of it was a chance to put in his share of the expense.

Several stories were told at the National league meeting in New York recently while the magnates were battling with their schedule, constitutional amendments and other reforms. A good one was told of how "Hap" Hogan, the witty manager of the Vernon Pacific Coast league team, put one over on Charlie Ebbets at the minor league convention held in San Antonio last fall. Friends of Hogan hatched up a little scheme with Charlie Hercules by which the Brooklyn magnate was induced to offer Hogan the management of the Superbas. Charlie fell for the scheme and, calling Hogan aside, made him a proposition to become Bill Dahlen's successor as chieftain of the Superbas.

"Sure, I will accept," said "Hap" in all seriousness, "but it must be at my own terms."

"And what are they?" asked Ebbets.

"There are several," replied Hogan. "Now, the first thing Brooklyn needs is a ball club. The best manager can't do anything without a team. Now, I would propose taking the Vernon club bodily to Brooklyn. In that way, I think, we could put your suburb on the baseball map."

Charlie threw up the sponge and surrendered gracefully to the wit from the coast. "It's on me," said C. Hercules as he led a delegation to a thirst dispensary.

Idzumitani, ex-champion of Waseda, is making the 100 yard dash in one or two seconds less than the world's record.—Japan Times.

That's very nice of him. When he has finished with the sprint he might put a foot or two on the high jump record.

Oh, what a difference just a few seasons will make! Not long ago Grover Cleveland Alexander, Buck O'Brien and Marty O'Toole all belonged to the same team—the Indianapolis club. They were sold for the sum of $750. Look now! President Navin of the Tigers now offers for the trio $100,000.

Billy Murray tells of an incident which shows the utter helplessness of some ball players. There was a man on second and one on third, two out in the ninth inning and two runs needed to win the game, yet the batter turned to the manager and asked, "What shall I do?" "Do the best you can," the manager instructed him.

Brains is an element that plays its part in every brilliant ball club. Players who can think are valuable. There are any number of mechanical players, but the quick thinking play a leading role in every championship aggregation.

THE GINGER JAR

The Athletics' new mascot is a midget weighing but 400 pounds.

It is said that there is not a single horse drawn omnibus in London now.

Racing last year experienced the worst season in the history of the "Sport of Kings" in this country.

Sam White, hero of Princeton's football team last fall, is out for his old place at short on the baseball nine.

President Free, of the York, Pa., club of the Tri-State League has a group of seven hold outs. All of them want more money.

American and National League umpires, individually and collectively, make a whole lot less mistakes in their decisions than the spectator think or the player wil ladmit.

Harry C. Pulliam, who instituted more reforms in baseball than any other man, used to say that if players were as careless of their money as their language when arguing with an umpire, they would soon become bankrupt. Ain't it so?

In answer to the assertion that there is less kicking by American League players than those in the National, it is said that the junior league players have been taught that they are butting into a stone wall when they go after an umpire on any proposition that does not involve actual misinterpretation of a rule.

There are not a hundred games difference in the total games won in the last 11 years by the Chicago, New York and Pittsburgh teams. Pittsburgh has won 1,100, Chicago 1,075 and New York 1,014.

Charlie Denman says money is what talks in baseball the same as in everything else. He is thinking of again assuming the management of the Westfield team. It was stricken dumb last season.

Red Waller is hibernating in Jersey City. So far as his friends know he is a free agent, which defined by Jimmy Isaninger is a ball player with a bum wing.

Tesreau looks to be the man for "Bugs" Raymond's berth with the Giants. The big fellow has developed a nice curve ball since last season that he thinks will let him in the big show.

Sweeney and Vaughn of the Yankees are holdouts. They are not satisfied with the price named in the contracts sent them, but are expected to report at Atlanta late this week for a talk over terms with Manager Wolverton, who says they will begin practice.

President Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn club, turned the first shovelful of dirt on the new field, near Flatbush, with a silver spade yesterday afternoon. The new ball park when completed will be one of the finest along the big circuits.

CHARLIE DENMAN MAY AGAIN MANAGE WESTFIELD

During a brief visit to town yesterday, Charlie Denman, manager of the Westfield baseball club when rivalry between that town and Plainfield rung the bell, was greeted by a number of fans whose first question after one regarding his health was to know if he was in town looking for baseball timber. Charlie answered in the negative and added "what's the use?"

This questioning and remark just naturally brought on a fanning bee, in the course of which the doughty little magnate of days gone by admitted a still present fondness for the game and intimated that propositions had been made him to again assume the management of the Westfield team. Since he relinquished the leadership there Westfield has not had as good exhibitions and the more rabid fans are hot for the old order of things.

Continuing with the fireside fanning, a number of the games now history were replayed from the manager's point of view. The only time Red Waller ever threw him down and Manager Pat Donovan, of the Brooklyns, lent Thatcher to fill the gap, was chuckled over as though it had happened yesterday. Thatcher had the Plainfield hitsmiths eating out of his hand from start to finish, according to the record of the game.

Charlie said that every Saturday he was in a cold sweat at the ferry house until the last player hired arrived. He never knew what he was to go up against in the way of securing a team or what day one or more of them would throw him down.

HOW JIMMY EMERY MISSED A CHANCE WITH ST. LOUIS

Jim Emery, the former Plainfield third baseman, came mighty near to a tryout with the St. Louis Cardinals once, and never knew it. When Jimmy reads this—somebody will be sure to poke it at him, if he doesn't soak in this page as a regular diet—it will be his first hint of the near-whirl in the fast set.

It was, as events turned out, just when Jim was making ready to climb from the lot to the minors that the St. Louis chance shaped up. A fan friend of Emery's who knows Roger Bresnahan, the Cardinal manager, was talking with the latter of the trouble in keeping up a steady supply of crackerjack third basemen. Emery's friend naturally thought of Jim. He asked Bresnahan if he would be willing to give the Plainfield youngster a real tryout. "Sure," said Bres. readily. "Send him to see me when the team gets to New York."

When Emery's friend got back to Plainfield a few days later he was told that Jim had signed with a minor league outfit, and had the National agreement ropes around him. St. Louis couldn't get him without showing money, and the Emery booster knew that the Cardinal management wouldn't pay a mangled sawbuck for an absolutely unknown quantity.

So the booster stopped his excursion into the scouting field right there. It has so happened that he hasn't run into Emery since that time, and he has never told Jim of how he nearly slid into a Cardinal uniform.

Making Good Out West.

According to reports received from Victor Troice, formerly of this city, he is doing very well in Searchlight, Nevada, in the mining business. While in this city he was a member of the Timbo Social club and one of the most rabid fans after all kinds of sport that was numbered in the club's membership. In addition to being intensely enthusiastic he was a walking bureau of information and many a bet was left to him for settlement.

Mack Likes College Men.

Maybe the reason Connie Mack is partial to collegians is because twice they have won the world's title for him. Columbia is responsible for Eddie Collins. Jack Coombs was unearthed at Colby, Bender played at Carlisle, Plank wore Gettysburg's colors, Barry was a Holy Cross man and Santa Clara (Cal.) was Krause's alma mater.

"GEORGE BONHAG ONLY REAL AMATEUR ATHLETE."

"George Bonhag, the champion middle distance runner, is the only athlete of exceptional ability in either of the big New York clubs who is a bona fide amateur." That was the substance of a statement made recently in Baltimore by a man who has been prominently connected with one of the big metropolitan clubs for years and who has the doings of the crack athletes of the country for years at his finger tips.

In speaking of the amateur standing of some of the men who have been prominent in the athletic world for years the person who made the statement mentioned above said that it was not a secret that the men who were the best performers had received money for their work at different times and that the Amateur Athletic union officials were cognizant of the fact, though unable to do anything because of a lack of proof and an ever readiness on the part of the men accused to produce evidence of their innocence when charges of a professional nature were brought.

It was his opinion that there is not a man around New York at present engaged in championship athletic contests who at one time or another in his career has not been guilty of professionalism in its real sense.

It was said of Bonhag in the course of the discussion that even when taking trips to compete in a meet he invariably would accept not a cent more than his bare expenses, something that few others have done. It was stated that there had been instances when Bonhag had been offered sums above his actual expenses if he would compete in certain meets, but that the great distance runner had always refused to do the least thing that might place him in jeopardy as far as his amateur standing was concerned.

BOB FITZSIMMONS PRAISES CORBETT

Says 'Gentleman Jim' Was Cleverest Man Who Ever Entered a Ring.

ONCE ENEMIES, NOW FRIENDS

Corbett Could Punch and Get Away Faster Than Any Man Lanky Bob Ever Knew, He Says, and a Better Boxer Never Drew on a Glove.

"Jim Corbett is the cleverest man who ever stepped inside a 24-foot ring." That is the tribute Bob Fitzsommons paid to the man who, during the time when the two were the leading heavyweights of the world was the great Cornishman's bitterest enemy.

"The man could outbox Corbett never had the gloves on," he continued. "Most of Corbett's cleverness was in his foot work. He could punch and get away faster than anyone I ever knew. This, however, while an assest in one way was an detriment in another. He always delivered his punches going away from his opponent. As his fist shot out his body would always start backwards, getting away from his man and this would check his blow. He never delivered a punch with the force of his body behind it. All the strength a man has should be put into a blow when it is meant to count and this is something Jim could never do.

"While this made a weakness in his attack it also was a help to him in his defense. It was hard to land a square blow on him. You couldn't meet him coming in and the blows landed on him would not be as forceful as on a fighter who would be coming at you all the time. They would glance off as he would dart back every time he stepped within reach.

"It was Corbett's cleverness that proved his own undoing in his fight with Jim Jeffries at Coney Island, Corbett had made Jeffries look like a dirty deuce spot for 22 rounds in that battle. He saw nothing but victory for him when he stepped out of his corner for the twenty-third round. He was winking at and joking with his friends near the ringside as Jeffries approached him near the ropes. One punch from the big boiler maker sent Corbett to the ropes and as he bounded back Jeff caught him again That was the finish. Had Corbett not been so confident because of his showing for the first 22 rounds he would easily have won from Jeffries.

"Putting aside his fighting abilities and taking Corbett personally, he is one of the finest men whom I have ever met. As a rule the prize ring has not the reputation for turning out gentlemen, but Corbett is one of those fighters who has upheld the game and helped to give boxing a firm footing as a sport all over the world.

"Of course there was a time when Corbett and myself were not the best of friends. And that was natural owing to the great rivalry between him and myself, but today all the bitterness which either of us had for the other has been forgotten, and I regard Jim now as one of my best friends."

HOUSE HEARS CHILDREN'S STORY

Youngsters Tell Committee of Work In Mills.

HELPED SUPPORT FAMILIES

Lawrence Strikers Give Pathetic Story to the Rules Committee of the House. Samuel Lipson Describes Police Acts as Worse Than Any Cossacks—Militiamen Also Accused.

Washington, March 5.—Lawrence strike children today told the rules committee of the house of the work they were compelled to do in the mills. Socialist representatives who tried to take the children away from the scene at the Lawrence station told how the policemen and militiamen clubbed children and women.

The children of the strikers took the stand after Samuel Lipson, a member of the strike committee, in excited tones had said that the behavior of the Lawrence police and the Massachusetts militia equaled that of any Cossacks he had ever seen in his experiences in the old country and after President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor had condemned the Industrial Workers of the World, the organization which is conducting the strike. Sixteen-year-old Victoria Wanarysk, who proudly announced herself "one of the strike," told the committee of the work she did in the mills. She was the third oldest of a Polish family of eight in Lawrence. In reply to queries, she said she had witnessed the outrages complained of. Witness had gone on strike because she did not want to get hurt. When witness' father, mother and all of her brothers and sisters were working the family succeeded in getting enough to eat. Victoria said she went to work in the woolen mills when she was fourteen years old.

Charles Vasiersky, another of the children, said he got as far as the seventh grade in school and liked to go to school.

"Why did you leave to go to work, Charlie?" asked Representative Lenroot.

The boy hesitated, his under lip curled and he said:

"Well, we had to have bread, and it was hard to get it."

After about half a dozen other boys had testified Max Bogatin took the stand.

He defiantly proclaimed himself a Socialist of Philadelphia. Bogatin said that he had been selected by the Socialist party of Philadelphia to go to Lawrence and conduct the children of the Lawrence strikers to homes secured for them in Philadelphia. Bogatin was aggressive, talked loudly and defied the committee.

He described the scenes at the Lawrence station when the children of the strikers were prevented from leaving for Philadelphia. After a lengthy detailed examination he said:

"I saw the policemen pick up little children by the arms and legs and throw them into patrol wagons. I saw them beat women on the shoulders and breast."

Lawrence, Mass., March 5.—The end of the textile strike is not in sight. An increase in wages granted by all the mills but one failed to result in a rush of the strikers back to their places, as was expected by some. About 1,000 more operatives were in the mills than last week, and this makes a total of approximately 15,000 now at work in the several mills.

Several seats brought $4,000 each, and many others $3,000. Numerous pews were sold above $2,000 each.

A STORY OF THE SEA.

Ghostly Message That Saved Those on Board a Sinking Ship.

Robert Dale Owen is authority for the following story:

The mate of a bark which was sailing sou'westward across the banks of Newfoundland was in the cabin working out the vessel's course when he noticed a man sitting at the other end of the table busy writing on a slate. Thinking he was the captain, he paid no further attention, but presently, looking up from his calculation, he saw the man suddenly disappear.

Startled, he went across, picked up the slate and found written on it, "Steer to the nor'west."

He called the captain. The writing was certainly not that of any of the crew, and eventually it was decided to obey the strange order. The vessel was put in a nor'westerly course and a man stationed at the masthead to keep a sharp lookout.

In a few hours they sighted ice and among it, in an almost sinking condition, a big ship. They reached her just in time to save her people. Among them was a passenger whom the mate recognized as the stranger who had written the direction on the slate.

According to the other passengers, this man had been in a deep sleep or trance at the hour at which the incident had taken place.—Exchange.

COULDN'T PLEASE HER.

The Woman Whose Husband Never Had the Right Change.

A prominent broker remarked the other day that he thought his wife was the hardest woman to please in the wide world. She was always asking him for money when he was home. "John," she would say, "give me 47 cents. The grocery boy is here with a bill." "I can't give you 47 cents," he would reply, "but here's half a dollar." "Oh, you're the funniest man; you never have the right change." A dozen times a day she would ask for a few odd pennies.

Finally the broker went into the subtreasury and obtained $100 worth of bright new pennies. There were 10,000 pennies, and he packed them in a suit case and lugged them home. Then he went to a blacksmith shop and had an iron tripod made, and upon this he hung the suit case filled with pennies.

The next day the butcher came with his bill. It amounted to $5.67. "John," said the wife, "give me $5.67." "You will find it on the tripod," he explained. The wife returned in a moment in a great rage. "Why, John," she cried, "I'm not going to count out 567 pennies for this man! I'd be ashamed. It's a wonder you can never have the right change."—New York Herald.

Africa's Name.

The name Africa was given by the Roman conquerors after the third Punic war, B. C. 146, to the province which they formed to cover the territory of Carthage. It was most probably adopted from the word "Afrygah," the Carthaginian term for a colony. This original Africa was limited in extent. Its borders reached, according to Pliny, from the river Tusca on the west, which divided it from Numidia, to the bottom of the Syrtis Minor on the southeast, though Ptolemy carries it as far east as the bottom of the Great Syrtis, making it include Numidia and Tripolitania. In later days the whole African continent took its name from this part, which in its narrower limits corresponded with the modern regency of Tunis and was called by the Greeks Lybia. Africus, the stormy southwest wind, was so called in Italy because it blew from Africa.

An Impressionist Picture.

They were doing a tour of the picture gallery and the country cousin was anxious to improve his knowledge. Frequently he asked questions concerning artistic phrases and phases, and always the city cynic explained clearly and lucidly.

"What do they mean exactly," queried the country one, "when they say it is an 'impressionist' picture?"

Then the city cynic smiled.

"Well," said he, "an impressionist picture is one that leaves an impression in your mind that it is the picture of a cow and that same impression sticks there until you happen to look at the catalogue and find that really it's a picture of a famous statesman. See?"—London Answers.

The Test of Friendship.

In friendship, as in most matters, it is the little things that count. Not promises of eternal fidelity, but thoughtfulness about trifles assures us that our friend really cares for us. The one who knows instinctively what subjects of conversation may be unpleasant to us, what subject we do not like to hear jested about, who, knowing too when we wish to be silent, humors us in our wish—that is the one with whom we love to associate. We can never retain a friend long if we are not willing to take pains to find out his peculiarities and respect them.

"No."

ORDER RESTORED; ALL CHINA QUIET

Murder and Looting by Soldiers Ends.

JAP TROOPS TO TIENTSIN.

One Thousand Oriental Soldiers Sent to Keep Order—United States Minister Instructed to Call For Troops to Meet Requirements For Protection of Americans.

Washington, March 5.—Order has been restored throughout China after a reign of terror extending over four days, during which murder, looting and general lawlessness by Manchu soldiers was predominant. The situation is still very tense, however, and Minister Calhoun of Peking has been instructed to closely watch out for the protection of Americans and to call on General Bell at Manila and Admiral Murdock at Shanghai for troops to meet any emergency that may arise.

General Bell was instructed by the war department to embark at once aboard a transport at Manila two battalions of 700 infantry and to hold the remaining 8,000 troops in the Philippines in readiness to answer any call from Peking. Admiral Murdock, commanding the American Asiatic squadron at Shanghai, notified the navy department that he is dispatching 200 additional marines from his warships on the collier Abarenda for Tientsin. The cruiser Cincinnati accompanies the collier.

The Japanese government, having a large number of soldiers nearest to Tientsin, took the initiative and dispatched at once a thousand officers and men to that city.

On the whole conditions are most pitiable, Minister Calhoun states. Many coolies and boys who picked up articles discarded by the soldiers have been summarily executed, while the soldiers themselves so far have escaped.

The mutineers attempted to hold up a train carrying American troops from Tientsin to Peking, but were fought off by the American and British railway guards. A machine gun on a flat car in front of the engine proved effective.

Peking, March 5.—Absolute quiet prevails in the capital city. It is evident that the arrival of the foreign forces has had the most salutary effect upon the disorderly element, who are no longer in evidence.

Many refugees have arrived here from interior points. They report no foreigners hurt thus far.

Yuan Shih Kai stated that 5,000 persons were killed here since the outbreak of the mutiny.

Tientsin, March 5.—Order has been restored by Manchu soldiers. The expectations are, however, that further violence will occur.

SMASH LONDON WINDOWS.

Suffragettes of London Damage Property When Police Worst Them.

London, March 5.—Having been worsted in their encounters with the police in Parliament square, isolated parties of suffragettes scattered through the city, smashing windows in many places. The houses damaged included the Mansion house, the residence of Lewis Harcourt, Bow street and other police courts and a number of shops. Several of the window smashers were arrested.

While this was going on a number of youths attacked the publication offices of the suffragist papers and one of the suffragist headquarters, where they broke the windows.

The British museum and the Royal academy have been closed indefinitely in the fear that the suffragists might damage their priceless treasures.

All London resembled an armed camp and all because of the obstreperous conduct of the suffragettes in their window smashing campaign. Six thousand policemen are on duty at Westminster and the shopping districts in the west end of the city.

The National gallery and the British museum were surrounded by cordons of police. Detachments of the force had been posted from Temple Bar to the Marble arch, and Parliament square had been entirely cut off from wheeled traffic. More than a hundred arrests were made.

VAGARIES OF THE TIDE.

Mysterious Currents, the Secrets of Which No One Has Solved.

There are as many vagaries in the waters as in the winds. Why, for instance, should great ocean currents send their warm waters across the wide Pacific and Atlantic? Other and equally mysterious currents exist in well nigh all parts of the world.

It is on record that the sea has run for weeks out of the Java sea, through the strait of Sunda and thence back again for a like period without any perceptible rise and fall during those times.

Then there is the equatorial current that flows into the Caribbean sea, the ever flowing current to the eastward around Cape Horn, the cold stream flowing from the icy regions of the north past Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and along the American coast to the extreme end of Florida, the continual current running with a velocity of from four to five knots an hour through the strait of Gibraltar into the Mediterranean sea, the swift current running across the rocks and shoals off the end of Billiton island, which apparently starts from nowhere and ends somewhere in the vicinity of the same place, and the current which, starting halfway up the China sea, runs from two to three knots an hour to the northeast and finally ends abruptly off the north end of Luzon.

Then we have those tidal vagaries known the world over as bores. Those that run up the Hugli and Irawadi rivers, from side to side, till they reach their limit, often tearing the ships from their anchorage, originate nobody knows where or why.

At Singapore it has been observed for days at a time that there has been but one rise and fall in the twenty-four hours.—Boston Globe.

The Seckel Pear.

The Seckel pear is one of the sweetest and daintiest fruits that grow. As another describes it, "The flesh is melting, juicy and most exquisitely and delicately flavored." That is just what it is. And the tree on which this pear grows is beautiful and vigorous, which indicates that nature has a great fondness for it. The pear is named after a Mr. Seckel of Philadelphia, on whose estate in 1817 the Seckel pear started on its happy career. Some one writing in 1847 said, "The parent tree still lives about three miles from Philadelphia."—Pittsburgh Press.

Too Suggestive.

"The health officer advised me to ask every man with whom we had domestic dealings if he was careful to boil the water he used in his business."

"Yes."

"Well, I asked the milkman first. And what do you think? He got mad and wanted to lick me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Previous Employment.

"You say, Rastus, that you want work for your wife," said Gunbusta, eyeing the husky darky before him from head to foot. "Was she ever employed before?"

"No, sir," replied the negro nonchalantly; "dis am her first marriage."—New York Times.

KNIFING A SHEEP.

Modern Slaughter House Method Painless and Rapid.

INSTANT DEATH IS ASSURED.

One Dexterous Thrust Through the Animal's Head by an Expert Workman Ends Consciousness—How the Carcass Is Skinned and Dressed.

The easiest way you could possibly think of is the way sheep are killed in the packing houses. Most persons mistakenly imagine that they are treated horribly and see in their minds a bloodthirsty man, with shoulders like hams, standing over a poor, defenseless sheep with a bludgeon in his hands ready to send the creature straight to the promised land. But there is where the sentimentalist goes completely wrong, for if there is an animal that is treated right—in speaking of its death—it is the sheep. There is only one thing that doesn't look as though death was absolute pleasure for the sheep, and that is right at the very start of the killing operation.

The sheep are driven from the yards up a long chute, and when they enter the pathway a leader sheep puts himself at their head to take them up into the killing room. These sheep are trained and are nearly always black so that there will be no mistake made and the leader sheep killed.

This leader takes the animals up the chute to a pen that will hold about fifty sheep. Here a man catches them, two at a time, and shackles them by their hind legs. This is the operation referred to as the only one painful to the sheep.

The animal is then swung on to what is called the Ferris wheel. This wheel is constantly revolving, and as it reaches a certain spot the sheep are transferred to a track from which they hang head downward. At that point their suffering ceases, for the next workman is the man who kills them.

The killing process is one that is absolutely painless to the sheep. The workman is adept and never misses the mark at which he strikes. With a sharp knife in his hand, he moves down the row of hanging animals, and as he comes to each one he feels of the head just behind the ears and finds the point where the bones of the head leave an opening. In this the knife is thrust and goes through the head of the animal, completely severing on both sides a large artery. The sheep is killed instantly. Five hundred sheep can be handled every hour at this point. They are then "pated," an operation that consists of skinning the fore part of the head and the neck.

The next workman cuts through the hide on the breast and skins just one spot below the neck. The fore legs are then broken and cut off to be sent to the bone room.

The fact that there is a time for everything and one man to do just his part and no more is emphasized in the sheep room when one sees just one hind leg skinned by one man and the other skinned in an entirely different operation. The sheep is then put on what is called the endless chain. This chain consists of hooks at intervals and is constantly moving, making the rounds of the room in about twenty minutes. Along this chain are the workmen, and as the sheep is passed on to them by the chain they do their work and wait for the next carcass.

After the two hind legs have been skinned the back is partly skinned and the animal is passed on to the next man who is called a "pelter." He grasps the pelt just above the hind legs, and, with a few deft twists of it, it is pulled off and the sheep passed on to the next workman.

After being skinned the sheep are carefully washed and wiped, a new towel being used on every animal. An endless chain is in progress here also, for when a towel is used it is thrown into a vat of boiling water, washed and put into a drier to be used over and over again. After the animal has been washed the head is taken off and the neck washed in the same manner as the rest of the carcass. The government inspector then gets it, and it is subjected to a rigid examination, after which the stamp of approval of the United States is put on.

After the head is taken off it is sent to the floor below, where the tongue is taken out and the remainder of it sent to the bone room.

There are two ways of dressing the sheep. Some of the buyers insist on having the caul fat with the animal, while others do not care about it. If the fat is desired it is put on the hind part of the animal, covering about one-half of the body, and is then split, revealing the carcass shorn of the viscera.

The dressed animals are hung on overhead tracks and put on an elevator to be sent to the cooling room.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Ancient Proofreading.

The editions of books printed 200 or 300 years ago are almost entirely free from typographical errors, which may be attributed to the fact that early publishers were generally eminent scholars and themselves gave much attention to the revision of their proofs. After reading the proofs they frequently turned them over to other scholars with the request to revise and correct, and as the printer's time was then deemed a matter of small consequence a perfection was attained which is seldom equaled by modern printers.—Exchange.

DEER AND BULLETS.

Serious and Ugly Wounds From Which the Animals Recover.

"If all deer that are wounded in the course of the hunting season and succeed in getting out of the way of the hunter should wander away and die the woods would contain many more dead deer than are taken away," said an old hunter. "But all of them do not wander off and die a loss to the hunter.

"Deer have great recuperative powers. It is no sign that a deer is doomed to go off and die because it is badly wounded. I have killed many a deer that gave evidence of having been so severely wounded that its having survived to take the range again seemed almost miraculous.

"I once shot and killed a buck that had a rifle bullet encysted near the skin of the left shoulder, but there was no wound on the outside of the skin to show that it had entered the deer there. Investigation showed a wound, long healed, near the top of the right shoulder, unmistakably made by that rifle bullet, which must have passed clear through the deer to the left shoulder, where its speed was spent and it lodged just under the skin.

"Besides that severe wound that deer had been pretty well filled some time or other by buckshot, for I took out nine from one side of him, where they had broken several of his ribs. These two ugly wounds had been inflicted at different times, and in spite of them he was in splendid condition and I had to give him two shots from a Winchester before I stopped him."—New York Sun.

BOGUS ANCESTORS.

A Paying Business in England That Thrives Upon Snobbery.

The most tragic form of snobbery in a country place is that which concerns itself with the tracing of a pedigree. In my travels I came upon a man who confessed that he had made thousands of pounds out of the conceit and snobbishness of people living in country places, and especially people who happened to possess names of a high sounding character. His method of work was simple, and only the ultra snob could be taken in by it.

He would glance through a local directory and select a few names of the Fitz-Blank style. A short visit to the town would help him to determine the character of the person—a snob is easily distinguished, and he would return to his place and write that he had come into the possession of a portrait which he had every reason to believe was that of an ancestor of Mr. Fitz-Blank.

There would be a few quaint hieroglyphics on the back of the canvas showing that the original was a native of the town in which Mr. Fitz-Blank was residing. In nine cases out of ten that picture sold at a price which meant a profit of 100 per cent to the dealer after he had paid the little Italian artist, who turned out the pictures by the dozen. In many a country house today there is a fine old full length portrait of an ancestor which was painted in a murky studio somewhere down Whitechapel way.—Margaret Ballantyne in London Saturday Journal.

High Quality Tea.

A verdict in favor of high quality tea as a harmless drink is given by the London Lancet. It is pointed out that when caffeine and tannin are in a state of combination the harmful astringent qualities of the tannin disappear and the bitter taste of free caffeine is not perceptible. Teas of high quality yield, as a rule, a simple infusion of caffeine tannate, not of caffeine or of tannin, and such teas must be regarded as the most desirable from a physiological point of view. Excessive infusion, it is stated, will spoil a good tea, but even a short infusion of a bad tea may be as objectionable as an excessive infusion of good tea. On physiological grounds, therefore, the consumer of high quality teas runs less risk of digestive disturbances provided the tea is made properly.

Ancient Guidebooks.

Guidebooks for the use of pilgrims to Rome, known to exist in a rudimentary form since the time of Charlemagne, took a definite and characteristic shape in the twelfth century with the "Descriptio Plenaria Totius Urbis" and with the "Graphia Aurea" of the thirteenth. The institution of the jubilees in the year 1800, calling to Rome hundreds of thousands of wayfarers, opened a new market for descriptive literature on the Holy City, and new editions "De Mirabilibus" were produced at least four times each century.—London Athanaeum.

A Comparison.

"That was a tempestuous outburst of oratory our friend indulged in," said one statesman.

"'Tempestuous' is the word," replied the other. "Whenever he makes a speech it makes me think of a cyclone that has somehow learned to articulate."—Washington Star.

His Engaging Remark.

Mr. Dumbead—Nelson was coming to call, but I told him you would be engaged this evening—

Miss Olemade (rapturously) — Oh, William!—Princeton Tiger.

Hard to Please.

Wigg—Bjones is pretty hard to please, isn't he? Wagg—Almost as hard to please as a college graduate looking for his first job.—Philadelphia Record.

There is hope for all who are softened and penitent. There is hope for all such.—Dickens.

RAILROADS ARE UP AGAINST PIERCE BILL

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 5.—Declaring that that Pierce Railroad Crossing bill would be ruinous to them, practically all the railroads in the State had representatives before the House Committee on Railroads yesterday urging the defeat of the measure. The railroads, in particular alleged that the bill would be fatal to them because of the expense it would entail. Instead of the Pierce bill requiring the removal of one grade crossing per year for every thirty miles of tracks they would prefer the Read bill which would allow the Public Utility Commission designate dangerous crossings which are to be removed.

At the instigation of the railroads the House was flooded last night with telegrams from shippers, urging that the Pierce bill be shelved. Union county representatives, the home of Senator Pierce, had fifty telegrams each sent them. Some of the Assemblymen got 300 of the telegrams.

LIGHTING ORDINANCE IN BORO WILL BE ENFORCED.

Mayor Clark, of North Plainfield, has issued an order to Chief Marshal Weiss to strictly enforce the ordinances regulating the carrying of lighted lamps on bicycles after dark and prohibiting the riding of bicycles on the sidewalks. At this time of the year the roads are more or less muddy and the temptation to take to the sidewalks is being yielded to by the number whose business makes it necessary for them to use wheels. This is true, Chief Weiss said, of a number of letter carriers and they will come under the provisions of the ordinance the same as other citizens. The order takes effect immediately.

GOES TO JAIL FOR SELLING BAD FOOD.

Poultry Dealer Gets Ten Days and a Fine.

New York, March 5.—A poultry dealer was sentenced to ten days in the city prison and to pay a fine of $150 for selling unfit food in a West Washington market stall.

This is the first jail sentence that has been inflicted for such violations of the law, heavy fines heretofore having satisfied the court.

Isaac S. Frank, who has several stands in the market, was the defendant. He was charged by Health Inspector Albert W. Konz with having offered for sale on Oct. 3 from one of his stands 150 pounds of poultry that had been too long killed.

Sentence was passed by Justices Russell, Zeller and Deuel of special sessions. They heard more than a score of cases, in most of which small fines were imposed.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Sullivan made a special request for a long term of imprisonment in the penitentiary for Frank. Sullivan said that inasmuch as the city owned the market and rented the stalls for a small sum so that the poor could get their food supplies as cheaply as possible no sentence that could be passed could be too severe for so flagrant a violation.

Baker.

Baker jumped his bail shortly after he was arrested and was brought back here ten days ago from Baltimore. One of the complainants against Baker in the criminal proceeding is Elizabeth Tudor Stewart, executor of the will of Mrs. Mary Brinckley Stewart, and one of her daughters. Miss Stewart is also named as corespondent in the divorce case.

Trained Seals at Proctor's.

It seems difficult to imagine that a seal can be trained to perform tricks of any sort, yet Captain Tiebor has trained six seals to do stunts that an expert juggler does. They work with the quickness and deftness of a Japanese juggler. The Seal Band playing popular seal airs is a distinct novelty for Plainfield, their ball juggling, the fire brand tossing are marvelous indeed. The Musical Vynos in their novelty instrumental concoction "The Musical Farmyard," have an act that is clever, the uses put to the instruments in the construction of the farm scene is very well done.

DEMOCRATS OPPOSED TO GERAN ACT AMENDMENTS

The executive committee of the Plainfield Democratic Club was instructed last night to watch legislation devised to change any provision of the Geran election law and especially to protest against the elimination of the section prohibiting the use of hacks and cabs to convey voters to the polls on primary and election days. A number of bills amending the Geran law are pending in the legislature and nearly all of them appear to be objectionable to the Democratic party. The same action as that taken by the local organization last night has been or will be taken by Democratic clubs throughout the State.

E. C. Pearson read a paper he had prepared on the Geran law in which each section was fully defined. Following his talk the subject was discussed by the members and it was the consensus of those present that he had thoroughly covered the ground. A delegation headed by Mr. Pearson will attend a meeting at the Elizabeth Democratic Club next Tuesday night at which time the methods of selecting the delegates to the National Convention to be held in Baltimore will be discussed. Mr. Pearson will be the spokesman for the Plainfield club.

The following standing committees were named by President Stevens; executive committee, L. J. Ellis, A. H. Atterbury, P. J. Reville, E. C. Pearson and John Connolly; organization committee, F. J. Shattle, D. J. Courain, J. C. Schinkel, Jeremiah Callahan and Peter Flynn; finance committee, C. E. Brodhead, J. F. Zerega and W. H. Harding; house committee, J. E. Prindle, William B. Connolly and J. C. Caulfield.

Eight new members were elected. Goveronr Wilson and his secretary, Joseph Tumulty were elected honorary members.

Elizabeth Bond Hamilton.

Elizabeth Bond Hamilton, the nine months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Hamilton, of East Ninth street, died yesterday afternoon. The funeral service will be held at the parents' home Friday morning at 9 o'clock, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson officiating. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery, Brooklyn.

As has been said before, there is no lead as yet which is impossible to overcome. A few days of earnest effort on the part of any contestant will place her in a position to battle on even terms with the leaders for the honor of winning a trip to Europe, to say nothing of the pleasure and education to be derived from a vacation in foreign lands. In bunches and wads, by the tens, hundreds and thousands, the votes and coupons continue to pour into the ballot box, and the chances of the different contestants continue to rise and fall according to the activity displayed. New leaders each day seem to be the rule. Today Miss Bartlau is heading the list in

M'ALL AUXILIARY ENDS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the McAll Auxiliary was held this morning in the Public Library and considering the inclement weather there was a large representation of the membership present. The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed that the past year had been a most successful one in the local branch, in all departments.

The auxiliary was unfortunate in losing a number of members through death and removals to other cities, but these places have been taken by new members so that the subscriptions have not fallen below the sum raised in other years. A total amount of $1,108 was realized in this manner. Of this amount $1,050 was sent to the mission maintained at Limoges, France and the balance used to defray curren expenses.

A letter was received from M. Canet, the pastor at the Limoges mission, giving in detail the work accomplished there during the current year. All of the officers were unanimously re-elected as follows: President, Mrs. F. G. Mead; vice-president, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller; treasurer, Mrs. John Gray Foster; secretary, Miss Ethel Millar. These were selected as vice-presidents to represent the city churches: Miss Addie Dietrich, Mrs. W. H. Freeman, Mrs. Cornelia Schenck, Mrs. I. N. VanSickle, Mrs. F. A. Weeks, Miss Yerkes and Mrs. J. MRS. MARY RANDOLPH PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY

Mrs. Mary C. K. Randolph, widow of George W. F. Randolph, died suddenly ow heart trouble at her home, 909 West Front street, yesterday afternoon. She was first taken ill about 11 o'clock in the morning, following her return home from a shopping trip down town. At first the attack was not severe, but shortly after noon she telephoned her daughter, Mrs. John Groendyke, of Arlington avenue, and soon afterward a physician was summoned. A little later she passed away apparently without the least suffering.

Mrs. Handolph's maiden name was Miss Mary C. Keeler. She was born at Norwalk, Ohio, and it was at that place she was married to Mr. Randolph about forty-five years ago. She came to Plainfield as a bride. Mr. Randolph, who was a well-known resident, was employed for many years in the Army building, New York. He died about twelve years ago.

The house in which Mrs. Randolph passed away she had occupied for nearly twenty years, removing there from Watchung avenue. Mrs. Randolph is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John Groendyke and a grandson, George F. R. Groendyke; also a sister, Mrs. H. B. Johnson, of Norwalk, Ohio, and a brother, Col. W. B. FRANK BERGEN FAVORS TRUNK SEWER SYSTEM Appears Before State Board and Studies Hering & Fullar Plans--Bound Brook's Tart Protest Against Zvolneck Site.

Charges that North Plainfield has been unfair, that its course has been inconsistent and its attitude meanly selfish, in its effort to locate a disposal works on the Zvolenck farm, were made by residents of Bound Brook and vicinity in a typewritten protest filed with the State Board of Health at the hearing in Trenton, yesterday.

Plainfield's course in seeking for a disposal plant site was held up as a model of fair procedure.

The Bound Brook protestants and the residents of the western part of North Plainfield township allied with them were represented by Frank Bergen, president of the Plainfield-Union Water Company. He created something of a stir with a forceful argument in favor of a trunk line sewer.

That he and the corporation he heads are actively interested in the trunk line plan was further indicated today when Mr. Bergen sent to this city for a copy of Hering & Fuller's plans for a trunk sewer system. The possibility of a plant on the Zvolenck farm touches the water company at one point at least. Its Somerset subsidiary corporation has wells near the place.

In part Bound Brook's protest was as follows:

"Why did North Plainfield borough not appeal to the Board of Health to over-rule the objections of North Plainfield Township to the Cramer site?

"Why, in fact, has North Plainfield Borough not applied to the Board of Health for permission to build a sewage disposal plant on any site other than the one Zvolenck site, which she would have seized by special legislation in spite of the Board of Health, and which she still insists upon having, even demanded that the Board of Health stultify itself to give it to her?

"To emphasize this point as it deserves, let us consider the course of the city of Plainfield, which now has or will presently have before the Board of Health plans for a sewage disposal plant upon the Darling site. The authorities of Plainfield city have not applied to the authorities of the municipality in which the Darling site is situated for permission to use it; the authorities of Plainfield city have not even sought an option of purchase from the owner of the Darling farm. The course of the city of Plainfield is first to select a proper, suitable site, and then apply to the Board of Health for approval. If the Board of Health says it is a proper, suitable site, possession of the site can be obtained, with or without the consent of the municipality in which it is located, and with or without the consent of the individual owner. The Board of Health can over-rule the objections of the municipality, and the owner can be dealt with by condemnation proceed-

DR. BUCHANAN SPEAKS ON CONSERVING CHILD HEALTH

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan addressed the parents and teachers of the primary pupils of the North Plainfield schools last night at a Parent-Teacher meeting in the Somerset street school. Superintendent H. C. Krebs presided and also spoke briefly, defining the method by which is determined the best way to discipline an unruly child.

Dr. Buchanan in illustrating his remarks drew figures on the blackboard. His talk was divided under three heads: The value and need of fresh air for children; proper clothing, and proper food. He went into the reasons of all three thoroughly, emphasizing the necessity of each if the pupils are to make satisfactory progress in their studies.

Regarding the ailments to which children are particularly subject he drew figures showing the exact location of adenoids and explained their detrimental effects on the brain as well as in breathing.

Mr. Krebs said that when a child needs correcting his or her home environment, mental and physical conditions are always studied, much as a physician diagnoses a patient's illness and then prescribes the medicine that will effect a cure. Experience has taught the teachers that all children have different dispositions and when this is understood the corrective requirements are made plain and applied accordingly.

DETECTIVE WORK BY CHIEF KIELY

He Remembers Whose Eyes Roll and Alleged Check Passer is Nabbed.

EVIDENCE RAPIDLY SHAPES

James Turner Identified By Two As the Negro Who Operated With Worthless Cash Orders—Dr. Eaton a Victim.

James Turner's habit of rolling his eyes and Chief Kiely's detective ability resulted in the former's arrest today as the alleged passer of bad checks for whom the police have been looking for several days, and the rapid accumulation of evidence against him.

Turner is colored and lives on West Fourth street. Last Saturday a negro attempted to get a bad check cashed in Robert Murray's auction rooms, a little later he did pass one on Frank Linke, a liquor seller, and later made a failure of an attempt to victimize T. S. Armstrong.

Last night Chief Kiely was thinking about the case and wondering where a "lead" was to be found. He recalled that Murray in describing the crook, said his eyes were prominent and rolled continually. The chief considered this thoughtfully for a minute, and then suddenly saw a great light.

"I know that bird," he confided to himself. "Go get me James Turner," he instructed Roundsman Higgins this morning.

The order was executed promptly, and in a short time evidence began piling up against the prisoner. Mr. Murray identified him, and so did Morris Fitzgerald, the delivery boy at Linke's, to whom the crook gave a worthless check for $10 in exchange for $2 worth of liquor.

The police say that Turner cashed a check for $15 stolen from Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, at the Plainfield Trust Company. Turner worked for a few days on Dr. Eaton's place during the latter part of February. Dr. Eaton went away on a trip leaving a sheaf of signed blank checks for his wife's convenience. Turner is alleged to have stolen one, filled it out and cashed it.

The police assert that a sample of the negro's writing obtained at headquarters today is almost identical with that in the body of the check.

Turner will be arraigned for a hearing tomorrow.

FINES AND LECTURE FOR TROLLEY ROWDIES

Jude William G. DeMeza made it plain in the city courts yesterday that he intends to give the police every encouragement in their crusade against rowdyism on the trolley cars. When three men who created a disgraceful row on a main line conveyance Saturday night, were arraigned before him, he not only expressed his contempt for the defendants in vigorous terms, but imposed heavy sentences on two of them. Robert Lee, of Nashville, Tenn., was sent to jail for sixty days in default of a $50 fine; George Chambus, of Ardmore, Pa., paid $25 in preference to forty days imprisonment and Roland White, of Philadelphia, was released on suspended sentence, the testimony showing that he had not been active in the affair.

The three men had been employed on the Bonnie Burn Sanitarium and were arrested there yesterday afternoon on warrants sworn out by Superintendent George Luhr, of the P. S. C. trolley department. Lyrus Walpole, Jr., who was insulted by the trio until he gave Lee and Chambers a drubbing, was exonerated from any blame by the motorman and conductor of the car, who appeared as witnesses.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY SUBJECT OF LECTURE.

Dr. Charles H. Tyndall, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., widely known as a scientist, will give his celebrated lecture on "Wireless Telegraphy," at the First Baptist church, Thursday night, under the auspices of the Men's Bible Class, it being the second in a series of four lectures. As there are many students of wireless telegraphy here, the lecture cannot fail to be of interest. The late Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, formerly of this city, had the following to say of Dr. Tyndall:

"You opened a door for us into that world of mystery and harmony which has been so far from our thought though we were really living our lives in the midst of it. Your application of these mysteries were as surprising and fascinating as the mysteries themselves."

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Lent marks no apparent difference in attendance at the big Hippodrome where the spectacular show, "Around the World," continues to amuse vast crowds twice daily. One is really enabled to make a tour of the globe without any exertion beyond seating one's self comfortably in New York's largest playhouse and the expenditure is limited to the cost of a theatre ticket. Yet one may visit all the interesting places on the face of the earth, including Italy, Spain, England, Ireland, Honolulu, Egypt, India, Turkey, in the course of a two hours' entertainment. There is nothing in the big show to offend the most fastidious Lenten theatregoers and indeed both instruction and amusement are combined on a large and profitable scale at the N. Y. Hippodrome.

"Bunty Pulls the Strings," which continues its extraordinary engagement under the management of the Messrs. Shubert and William A. Brady at William Collier's Comedy Theatre in New York City, is still being presented for three regular matinees every week in addition to the six regular evening perofrmances and is, moreover, presented for still more matinees whenever there is any reasonable cause. There is no abatement in public enthusiasm and with the auditorium still absolutely crowded at each presentation of this most remarkable of all current comedeis. The charm of "Bunty" is that it is absolutely so unlike anything that New York has ever sen before or is ever apt to see again, for it is of a type distinctly individual which it would obviously be impossible to copy. The wit of "Bunty" is not just surface wit—it is the kind of "solemn fun" that haunts the memory and keeps coming back to mind for weeks after one has been the performance. It is the kind of fun that makes one want to see it all and hear it all a second time, just to be positive that no single point escaped noticed.

Actor Louis Mann with his widely discussed comedy of laughs and thrills "Elevating a Husband," presents one of the most interesting situations of the current theatrical season in New York. Already this brilliant and temperamental star has been compelled to transfer his company to three different theatres in the short space of three months. Now his managers, Messrs. Werba and Luescher, announce a fourth move beginning Monday, March 11, when the star and his clever play will follow Ethel Barrymore at the Criterion theatre. When Mr. Mann learned that he would have to give up the Liberty theatre some time ago he declared he would petition his friend Mayor Gaynor to allow him to pitch a tent in Long Acre Square rather than give his consent to taking "Elevating A Husband" away from New York. Fortunately his managers have made it unnecessary to play in a tent because they announce that they have now secured a lease on the Criterion from Charles Frohman. Throughout the perigrinations of "Elevating A Husband" Mr. Mann has been followed by enthusiastic audiences. Everybody declares he has the best play in which he has been seen in New York since the days of "All on Account of Eliza." The authors have fitted him with a legitimate comedy with every minute bringing its roar of laughter. As Lillian Russell said when she first saw the performance, "I didn't imagine there could be so much fun in the process of elevating a husband."

SQUIRE MARRIED COUPLE CONTRARY TO NEW LAW

Califon, March 6.—The first marriage ceremony perfomed by Justice of the Peace C. Watson Apgar since he has held that office turns out to be illegal, as the law in effect prohibiting those officers from officiating at marriages. Squire Apgar didn't know that when he uited Peter Hoffman, a farm hand, of Cokesbury, and Miss Augusta Williamson, of New Germantown Monday.

The magistrate consulted his legal library and then turning to the page which contained the usual form for marriage he soon "spliced" the couple.

Speaking of the ceremony the squire said: "I did not know if the justice of the peace prohibitory marriage law is in effect, but if it is they can be married again.'

A committee from the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Co. attended the meeting of the Piscataway Township Committee last night and presented a map showing the proposed location of the eight new fire hydrants which were voted at the last election. The new hydrants will place about $160,000 worth of insured property within the fire district which will be classed as protected. It is hoped by the fire company that in a year or two, if the water company can be induced to extend the mains that the entire town will be brought under fire protection, and will be benefited by the reduced rate of insurance. The fire company is having plans made for a new modern fire house which it expects to erect in the near future. The committee in charge ar Chief William Hamilton, F. E. Faulks, F. A. Duttenhoffer, Charles Moss and P. F. Kaine.

FIRST M. E. AID SOCIETY HOLDS BIRTHDAY SOCIAL

The annual birthday social under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, was held in Vincent chapel, last night, when an informal program of entertainment was provided and the members of the society were given an opportunity to return their birthday offering. From this source about $53 was realized.

Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell was general chairman of the affair, and Miss Bertha Whitney had charge of the program, while Mrs. Frank Rowley was chairman of the refreshment committee.

The program included two piano solos by Miss Helen George, Miss Julia Rowley and E. F. Glover; violin selections by Oswald Love, and whistling solos by Mrs. Charles Rice.

The features were three charades representing the words "Nocturnal," "Tyrant" and "The Tie." The first word was represented by a suffragist meeting, Miss Helen Woolley being chairman, and Miss Bertha Whitney impersonating Mrs. Pankhurst. There were "knocks" for everyone and during a drill the command of "turn all" represented the last half of the word.

"The Tie" was represented by a wedding scene, Miss Hazel Moore being the bride, A. H. Osmun the groom, and Martin B. Stutsman the clergyman. The other part of the word, "ranting" was impersonated by the whole company ranting about on an imaginary stage. This part of the entertainment was concluded with another charade, in which Wendell Glover played his violin, while Rome was supposed to be burning. This scene was very effective.

Walter Loomis, of John street, is confined to the house with the grip.

"ROBBERY MAP" CRIMES DETAILED BY DONELAN

Roselle, March 6. — Implicating Stephen Ratel and Albert Wenz in five recent robebries in this place and Roselle Park, William T. Donelan, youngest of the "robbery map" trio arrested Friday and Sunday, spent several hours yesterday dictating staements of the crimes.

County Detectives Galatian and Lowden and Police Sergeant Murphy, of Elizabeth, took the statements, which gave the details of the robberies. Ratel and Wenz, in the county jail, affirm they are not guilty.

The arrests were the result of a drawing made by Detective Galatian, who made a map of the robbed [illegible] which was Ratel's house. Donelan says Ratel was the leader in the robberies.

Donean is held in a witness cell in the county jail. The father of Wenz has employed counsel and will ask for bail tomorrow before Judge Atwater in Special Sessions.

SCHOOL LEVY REDUCED AT NEW PROVIDENCE.

New Providence, March 6. — It was decided at the meeting of the local borough Board of Education to recommend an appropriation of $4,000 for school purposes for next year.

This figure is $1,000 less than last year, as there are no school bonds to meet this year, and as several small [illegible] have been finally wiped out.

The board is taking measures to enforce the compulsory attendance act, but the members complain that they are not sure of the law, and seem unable to get any information regarding it from the State authorities. They say they have tried vainly to get copies of the law.

Expel False Alarm Sender.

Rahway, March 6.—Cort Suydam, for many years secretary of Independence Hook-and-ladder Company No. 1, has been expelled by a unanimous vote from that organization, charged with sending in a false alarm of fire last week. Suydam had his resignation ready to hand in last night, but the company refused [illegible]

OTSBY TELLS OF RIDNER'S OFFER

Would Dispose of Offensive Gas Bills For $1,500.

"KNEW THE TRENTON BOYS"

New Jersey Senate, at Hearing of Senator Fitzherbert, Charged With Attempted Extortion From Acetylene Gas Company, Listens to Testimony of New York Man.

Trenton, N. J., March 6.—Oscar F. Otsby of the Commercial Acetylene company, 80 Broadway, New York, testified before the state senate that Dr. G. S. Ridner offered to see that two bills offensive to the acetylene company were withdrawn if Dr. Ridner was paid $1,500.

Otsby's testimony was given at the trial of Senator Richard Fitzherbert of Morris county, who, with Dr. Ridner, is charged with attempting to extort money from the company. President John D. Prince, a professor in Columbia university, presided.

Senator Fitzherbert says his strongest witness will be Dr. Ridner.

Otsby testified that Dr. Ridner said he "knew the boys" at Trenton and could prevent the passage of two bills that would kill the company's business in New Jersey; that the price would be $1,500; that one of Ridner's conversations with Otsby was taken down by a concealed stenographer; that Ridner was to have $500 for himself, the remaining $1,000 to go to Senators Edge, Read and Fielder, members of the judiciary committee.

Dr. Ridner was in the senate chamber, accompanied by his counsel, Jacob L. Newman of Newark.

BIG WEDDING IN MONTCLAIR.

Miss Angela Heppe Becomes Bride of Albert E. Oelschlager.

Montclair, N. J., March 6.—Miss Angela Heppe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Heppe, residing here, was married to Albert E. Oelschlager of Hoboken in St. Luke's Episcopal church. Archdeacon Frederick B. Carter, the rector, officiated, and several hundred guests witnessed the ceremony.

A special train was run from Hoboken to convey the guests from that city and New York.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding dinner and reception for about 200 guests at the Hotel Montclair. The newly married couple left for Palm Beach, where they will spend a month. They will make their home in New York upon their return.

PIN SCRATCH KILLED HER.

Five Days' Effort to Save Miss Mason In Vain.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 6.—Miss Bertie C. Mason, twenty-eight years old, daughter of James H. Mason, a well to do broker, was buried, a victim of blood poisoning. She died Saturday, after specialists had battled to save her life.

On Monday of last week Miss Mason scratched her face with a pin. She thought nothing of it and applied nothing to the scratch until the next day, when her cheek became inflamed. Her brother, Dr. Willard Mason, discovered symptoms of blood poisoning. When he failed to check its progress he called experts and led the five day effort to save his sister.

RESCUED PREACHER SKATER.

Girl's Presence of Mind Saved Him When Ice Broke.

New Brunswick, N. J., March 6.—The Rev. Theodore Walser of the New Brunswick Theological seminary, an athlete and a graduate of Union college, went to skate on the Raritan canal with Miss Bessie Wilber, a Smith college graduate. Mr. Walser said he would try the ice first. The ice seemed all right, but he had not gone far before it broke and he disappeared. Miss Wilber picked up a plank and flung it near the place where Mr. Walser had gone down. When he came up he caught it and pulled himself out. He was almost exhausted when he reached the bank.

SURGERY TO REFORM BOY.

Frank Couch, Fifteen Years Old, Shows Desire to Pilfer.

Elizabeth, N. J., March 6.—The problem of transforming a boy criminal into a youth with normal moral sense probably will be tried upon Frank Couch, fifteen years old, now in the county jail here on the charge of theft. He is under the observation of physicians.

It has been discovered that there is a spot on the boy's scalp which he declares is unusually sensitive. When it is pressed he gives indications of great pain. It is the result of an injury sustained years ago. Since then he has shown a desire to pilfer.

IT IS ANYBODY'S RACE

District Two, after a couple of days of rest. That district is certainly showing interesting competition, for one candidate seems unable to hold the lead for more than a day at a time. There are other contestants who are right on the heels of the leaders who may spring something at any time, and it will be well for those ahead to look to their laurels if they wish to continue at the top. In all the other districts the rivalry is growing as the votes continue to come in, and the fur is sure to fly before the close of the special period. Of course the main incentive is the European trip, which will be taken by the winners, but the addition of the specials shows that they are also being taken into consideration and their value fully appreciated.

Once more we wish to call attention to the fact that the vote schedule in the Press contest will remain absolutely intact throughout, votes counting the same as they did at the beginning of the contest. The method of using "double votes" and "bonus votes" will not be tolerated, for that system was discarded long ago by up-to-date contest managers as being unfair to the contestants, and in this campaign every effort is being made and every precaution taken to see that everybody gets a square deal. The Daily Press originated the two months' European trip for the candidates in the contest, and have the very best company, Thomas H. Cook & Sons, to take charge of the party and see that there is nothing left undone to give them the time of their lives. They are able to do this, as no other tourist agency could because of the fact that they have offices in very city on the continent, and in addition to the guide in each city who knows his territory from beginning to end and makes a specialty of that place alone. After taking these facts into consideration it is no wonder that the young women of this vicinity find this to be the best proposition of the kind that ever has been made or probably ever will be made, and are accordingly making the best of the opportunity presented to them.

VALUABLES STOLEN AT A PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY

While F. C. Langhorne, the photographer, was at lunch between 12 and 1 o'clock today, burglars entered his studio on East Front street, opposite Park avenue, and got away with about $75 in cash; also two lenses valued at $40 each. The robbery was discovered by Mr. Langhorne when he returned and found articles taken from the safe scattered about the rooms.

An investigation showed that entrance was affected through the main door by means of a skeleton key. The door was left open and the lock was not damaged.

The large safe is located in the room adjoining the reception room, and the job looks as though it was done by someone familiar with the place. The door of the big safe was left open, and the burglars had pried open the door to a tin box inside from which the cash and lenses were taken. The police was notified at once and are now investigating the matter. There is no clue.

Mrs. Haulenbeck's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Haulenbeck, wife of Samuel Haulenbeck, was held yesterday afternoon, at the residence of her father, John D. Kirch, of Duer street. The service was conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. There were numerous floral tributes. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Hillaire Blatz, Robert Kirch, Lafayette Rosenstiehl, Everitt Marsh, William Hogan and Claude Luckey.

Assumes Charge of Market.

Former Patrolman William Messler, who resigned from the city police force, last week, to take over the meat market on West Third street conducted by Michael Weber, assumed charge of the business Monday. He will be assisted by a first class butcher and will improve the business in various ways. Mr. Weber was the victim of James Springs, the highwayman, and is still confined to his home by the injuries inflicted.

The Swastika.

The origin and history of the curious charm known as the swastika have been exhaustively described by Dr. T. Carr, an English antiquarian. He claims that the origin of the swastika dates back to pre-Christian days. Investigation has led him to believe that it was originally the symbol of polar star worship and that it was the most ancient and widely distributed symbol that had ever existed. It has been found in Chaldea, among the ruins of the earlier cities of Troy, in Egypt, on the prehistoric relics of Greece, on Hittite remains, on prehistoric American Indian mounds, in South America, on Buddist remains in India, on Roman altars, on Runic crosses in Great Britain, in Coptic churches of the tenth century and on English brasses of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. It is still used in India, Tibet, China, Korea and Japan as a sign of long life, good wishes and good fortune; it is also used by the Lapps and the Finns.

"Cutting of the Khalig."

One of the most interesting of Egyptian customs is that known as the "cutting of the Khalig," which is celebrated on the occasion of the opening of the dams of the Khalig canal, thereby causing the flooding of the land for cultivation purposes. The ceremony takes place in August, when the Nile reaches its highest level, and is really a thanksgiving service. According to tradition, the old time Egyptians had a custom of casting a young virgin gayly dressed into the river as a sacrifice to the gods, but at the present time the offering takes the more humane form of a dummy. A procession of decorated boats and barges passes along the river, one special craft being used for the ceremony. This boat, rigged to represent an old time warship, is towed by a decorated tug and is well provided with musicians, who play Arab tunes, while minute guns are fired at intervals in honor of the occasion.—Wide World Magazine.

Plainfield, N. J., March 6, 1912.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

Undoubtedly the property owners in Plainfield were pleased to learn in a recent issue of the Press that there is a possibility that the tax rate will drop below the figure of last year, resulting in a probable saving of forty cents on the thousand dollars of valuation. Yet the taxpayers would be well pleased were they to hear that the decrease is not to be quite so great, and instead a city system for collecting garbage and ashes is to be established. It was pointed out in these columns in a recent issue that eight cents on the thousand of valuation would be a sum large enough to care for the entire refuse disposal question, and further investigation along the same line convinces us that this amount is entirely too large a one, an assessment of six cents on the thousand being fully equal to covering the expense in Plainfield.

Even were it eight cents it does not take much figuring to realize the great saving over the present method. Suppose, for instance, that a piece of property has an assessed valuation of $4,500. For every thousand of that amount the tax bill would be increased eight cents, or thirty-six cents for the year, for the removal of ashes and garbage. Compare that thirty-six cents with the rate now being paid for the indifferent service given by private carters. The minimum price is ten cents a barrel for ashes, and the smallest householder has at least one barrel a week during the winter months, with less during the summer. The smallest figure that anyone now pays for service for garbage and ashes cannot be put at less than ten dollars a year, averaging up all kinds of cartage.

Comparison of the expense under well regulated municipal handling of the matter, and under the present unsatisfactory method is all that is needed as argument by any intelligent person. The city fathers cannot act too quickly in the matter. Plainfield is behind many sister communities of half the size on this matter. It is not one involving great expense, which would bring forth criticism for extravagance. It is a straightforward business proposition, affecting the pocketbooks of the whole people. Were it a private concern, no successful business man at the helm would tolerate such a condition of extravagance.

Isn't it remarkable how the mere fact that a man may be connected with a church, or some other religious institution when he goes wrong, is used by some newspapers as the basis for printing stories about him, when otherwise they would not think them worth publishing. An alleged burglar was arrested on Monday in Lafayette, Indiana. There was no particular feature about the crime which warranted the retelling in the New York papers, except the fact that he was living at the Young Men's Christian Association building, and was arrested while there. Judging from the publicity usually given in matters of this kind people with religious inclinations are thought to be above doing anything wrong. There are wolves in sheeps clothing to be found in all places, and if this man was able to cover up his tracks so that no one suspected him, by using the religious institution as a "blind," it is but additional evidence that he is the cleverest kind of a crook, and deserves, if convicted, a big sentence. It is no warrant for parading the Y. M. C. A. as a place of shelter for criminals.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who will be the contributing editor for Saturday's issue, had considerable experience in newspaper work before entering the ministry. He was a reporter on a Toronto paper, one of the largest in the Dominion, and confesses that he still has a hankering for the work. Rev. William S. McCoy, the new rector of Holy Cross church, is also a former newspaper reporter. Before studying for holy orders he was attached to a Rochester paper and later to the New York Herald.

Trains stopped at the Asbury Park main station on Sunday and according to the Evening Press of that place there was no hostile demonstration on the part of those who would have a Chinese wall around the town on that day. The Evening Press takes the view shared by the newspapers generally when it gives its opinion that "Sunday trains will do aught but increase the popularity of Asbury Park and Ocean Grove."

The Common Council has very properly given City Judge DeMeza an increase in salary. Dating from January 1 last he draws now $1,500 a year, which is meagre enough for the work he performs, particularly so when one considers how excellently he discharges his important duties.

Judging from some developments of the campaign, the Ananias Club will probably have a substantial increase in membership between now and next June, when the Republican convention meets at Chicago.

HOUSE BILL PUTS END ON TO THE HASTY MARRIAGE

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 6.—By the vote of 31 to 11 the House yesterday passed Assemblyman Donnelly's bill, which will require couples contemplating marriages to apply for their license five days before the time set for the ceremony. The object of the measure is to prevent hasty marriages. Death bed weddings are allowed, however, and the license may be procured afterwards.

Speaking in a light vein Assemblyman Stickel said he thought the measure was a good one as the lure of the seashore in the summer time with the moon shining brightly sometimes lead to hasty marriage contracts and this bill will prevent such weddings. Mr. Prout thought there are too many bachelors already and the measure would tend to increase their number.

NEW PASTOR INSTITUTED

Park Avenue Baptist church, the "Denominational Fellowship in Plainfield;" Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, of the North Orange Baptist church, the "Introduction to New Jersey;" Rev. Dr. R. F. Y. Pierce, of the Second Baptist church, New York, spoke on "Pastoral Relationship;" Rev. Dr. William B. Wallace, of the Temple Baptist church, Brooklyn, was assigned the topic of "Church and Minister," while Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong pronounced the benediction.

At the outset of the service, Mr. Bonny read a letter of regret and fellowship from Rev. Dr. Edward Judson, of the Memorial Baptist church, New York, who was unable to attend. Dr. Judson bespoke for Dr. Strong a successful pastorate. Of Dr. Strong, he said "I know and greatly admire him. He is one of our choicest treasures." He also paid rich tribute to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the dean of the local clergy, on behalf of the Plainfield ministers extended a cordial greeting to Dr. Strong. He hoped that Dr. Strong would remain so long that he could not again have the pleasure of welcoming a new pastor to the First Baptist church. He assured the pastor-elect of the loyal support of the local ministers and expressed the hope that both he and the church would prosper.

Extending the denominational fellowship in Plainfield, Mr. Maguire said that there were three things for which the Baptists here were noted, and he placed them under the heading of "The Three P's"—they pay their ministers well, they pull together, and they pray.

Mr. Maguire gave Dr. Strong a hearty welcome. He concluded by telling Dr. Strong that the Baptists would look to him as the senior Baptist pastor, as a leader and that he would have the united support of all.

There was a ringing note of sincerity in the words of Dr. Lawrence as he introduced Dr. Strong to the State. "I know the ministry of North America," said Dr. Lawrence in the course of his address, "and I want to say that no ministry surpasses that of New Jersey in scholarship, spirituality and sympathy. It is one grand body of men."

Dr. Pierce in speaking on the subject of "Pastoral Relationship," likened the minister of the Gospel to the Good Shepherd, adding that there was no greater office than that of a good shepherd to bring comfort and sympathy to those who are needy.

Dr. Wallace, who made the address of the evening, his subject being the "Church and Minister," has known Dr. Strong for a number of years, and he spoke more in a personal way to the church. In part he said:

"The name of your pastor is Philip Strong and he is worthy of it. I have known girls by the name of Rose who should have been called cactus. Philip was a preacher and so is your pastor. I knew him in the Empire State, have heard him preach and know of his power. The success of his work will depend largely on the support that you give him. You can either make or break him. The more you put into his ministry the more you will get out of it.

"There are many ways in which you can help Dr. Strong's ministry. Fill up every pew in the church. Advertise the fact that Dr. Strong is your pastor and back up the advertising. Be an eloquent listener; pray for your pastor. He will be a success or failure according to the number of souls he wins to Christ, and this work will largely devolve upon you. With Dr. Strong as your pastor, preacher, general and leader, play the game and help him to win many victories."

During the service, the chorus choir sang the anthem, "Awake, Awake," by Stainer; Miss Ruth Harris, soprano, and William Holmes, baritone, sang solos, with chorus accompaniment. Howard M. Case, organist, was in charge of the music, and, as usual, the work of the chorus was excellent.

The former pastors of the First Baptist church have been as follows: Rev. Jacob Fitz Randolph, 1818-1828, died in office; Rev. Daniel Trembly Hill, 1828-1839; Rev. Simeon Joseph Drake, 1839-1862, died in office; Rev. David Johns Yerkes, 1863-1905, died in office; Rev. Dr. John Alexander Chambliss, 1903-1911.

"That is the proper way in which to acquire a site for a sewage disposal plant. It is not North Plainfield borough's way.

"All of the reasons assigned by North Plainfield borough to prove the exclusive availability of the Zvolenck site, such, for example, as the refusal of the township authorities to consent to any other site and the greater cost of utilizing any other site, etc., are invented or imagined, to conceal the real and selfish reason.

"It will be noticed that the borough of North Plainfield expressed no preference (in petitioning for permission to acquire a site in the township two years ago), but there was a preference, and if you want to know the reason why the North Plainfield township authorities consented to the Zvolenck site, why it has steadily refused to consent to any other site; and why both North Plainfield township and North Plainfield borough continue to demand that site and no other, and why North Plainfield borough has not applied to the Board of Health on any other site since being turned down on the Zvolneck site, you have only to look at the map.

"It is a selfish, geographical reason.

"Somewhere in North Plainfield township, whether in North Plainfield borough, which is in the township, or outside of the borough, a site must be had for a sewage disposal plant. The township runs like a wedge into the yard of Bound Brook. To hold that in all of North Plainfield township there is no other site engineeringly or hygenically available is absurd. But in all the geography of North Plainfield township there is no other site so inoffensive to North Plainfield township—and, at the same time, no other site so offensive to Bound Brook.

"There is your reason.

"And if, in spite of everything else we can do, North Plainfield borough persists, we shall appeal to the courts until justice not only is found, but found with power to be enforced."

SENATE WILL CONFIRM PITNEY BEFORE WEEK-END.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, March 6—The understanding in the Senate is that the nomination of Chancellor Pitney to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court will be confirmed at the executive session the latter part of this week. Ordinarily, nominations made by the President are confirmed as soon as the committee to which they have been referred, makes a favorable report. The judiciary committee favorably reported Chancellor Pitney's nomination Monday afternoon, but on account of the importance of the appointment the chairman of the committee, Senator Clark, did not ask for immediate confirmation, for the reason that in acting in the matter the Senate desired to be relieved of any suspicions of having "rushed" to final action.

As associate justice, Chancellor Pitney will be entitled to a private secretary of his own selection, to be paid $2,000 annually by the Government.

The Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church will hold a business meeting Friday night.

COD FISH RECIPES.

A FISH that is available everywhere and for every one, like codfish, must hold an important place on the Lenten bill of fare.

An Old and Popular Dish.

Picked Up Codfish.—Pick up the fish in small particles, separating the fibers, the finer the better; freshen by leaving it in water one hour.

Pour off the water and fill up with fresh. Bring it to the scalding point, pour off and put on the fish just enough water to cover it.

Add to a quart of the soaked fish a bit of butter the size of half an egg, a very little flour and a dust of pepper. Beat up two eggs and after taking off the fish thicken it by stirring in the egg. Some let it boil after the egg is added, but if this is done the egg will be curdled.

Creamed Codfish.—Soak in water overnight about a half pound of shredded codfish. Rinse and place in a pan with a piece of butter the size of a walnut. More butter may be used if desired.

Add one tablespoonful of flour, one large cupful of cream or good rich milk and stir until smooth. One hard boiled egg may be cut up in small pieces and served on the dish as garnish.

Ways of Using the Steaks.

Holland Codfish.—Take two or three good thick cod steaks, lay them in a frying pan with enough water to cover, add a bunch of herbs and an onion and simmer for fifteen or twenty minutes.

Take out carefully, drain and set on a hot dish, garnish with boiled potatoes cut in half inch slices. Pour over all two and one-half ounces of melted butter mixed with a tablespoonful of parsley, a little chopped lemon rind, pepper and salt to taste. Serve very hot.

Baked Steaks With Tomatoes.—Cut three or four slices of cod an inch thick, divide them, take off the skin and remove the bones.

Sprinkle the slices with lemon juice, pepper and salt and place them in a well buttered fireproof dish.

Bake in a moderate oven from twenty-five to thirty minutes, turning once during that time, and moisten them with a little stock.

Stew four tomatoes. When cooked rub them through a sieve and mix with them the juice of half a lemon, a dust of pepper and salt and add liquid that is in the dish in which the fish has been cooked.

Stir well, make thoroughly hot and pour over the fish.

Anna Thompson.

WHOLESOME PUDDINGS.

These Make an Otherwise Plain Meal Attractive.

It should be remembered that a rich pudding should not follow a hearty meal. Creams, custards and light combinations of fruit are best under such circumstances.

Tapioca Pudding.—Take two ounces of tapioca and boil it in half a pint of water until it begins to melt; then add half a pint of milk by degrees and boil until the tapioca becomes very thick. Add a well beaten egg, sugar and flavoring to taste and bake gently for three-quarters of an hour. This preparation of tapioca is exceptionally nourishing and suitable for delicate children.

Sponge Pudding.—Butter a pudding dish large enough to hold a pint and a half. Put a layer of fruit in the bottom of the dish and on that some crumbled sponge cake. Take two eggs and beat the yolks of two and the white of one till they look light and frothy. Then add to the eggs enough milk to fill the dish, two or three lumps of sugar and any flavoring you like. Pour on the cake and bake slowly till the custard is set.

Beat the white of the second egg with a little sugar till it is a solid froth. Pile on the pudding after you have baked it and put in a cool oven to set. Serve hot or cold.

Prune Sponge.—Take four sponge-cakes, split them in two and arrange them in a deep dish. Pour over them a pint of sieved prunes and cover the whole with stiffly whipped cream, sweetened to taste, flavored with a few drops of essence of vanilla.

Some Simple Cakes.

Oatmeal Molasses Cake.—Take four cupfuls of oatmeal, one cupful of molasses, two-thirds cupful of warm water and a pinch of salt. Mix these and let stand two hours.

Then add one egg, one and one-half cupfuls of white sugar, one cupful of lard and one teaspoonful of soda in three cupfuls of flour.

Drop about a teaspoonful for each cake into pans and spread with a knife dipped in water.

The oatmeal should be light and fluffy. Served with sugar and cream, it is delicious for breakfast.

Little cakes so harmless in their composition that they may safely be given to children as often as asked for may be made with oatmeal.

Cocoanut Cookies.—For delicious cocoanut cookies make a batter with a cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a cupful of grated cocoanut, a teaspoonful of vanilla and flour enough to make a paste that can be rolled on the board.

ABOUT CURTAINS.

Economy and Taste In Devising New Draperies.

As housecleaning time is fast approaching, women are interested in anything relating to the renovating of the house. Dainty bedroom accessories in the way of curtains, bedspreads, bureau and dresser scarfs can be easily made at small cost of striped or checked gingham. Blue and white is a good color to select.

For the bedspread use coarse white lace insertion about an inch and a half wide to join the breadths together down the center and also to place at the heading of a ruffle eight inches wide that is placed on each side and across the bottom of the spread.

Shams for pillows are edged with narrow insertion and a four inch ruffle. For the bureau scarf use three twelve inch squares of gingham, joined and edged with insertion.

The window curtains are made perfectly plain, excepting for a ruffle across the end headed with insertion. A deep valance across the top is edged with a narrow ruffle also. With a blue and white cotton rug on the floor this makes a most attractive room for a young girl. Gingham is inexpensive and launders beautifully.

In making curtains for the bedroom windows you can economize in material by selecting swiss or scrim the width of the window. Now measure off the length you desire the curtains and cut the material from corner to corner on the bias. In other words, cut from the lower left hand corner to the upper right hand corner. To this bias edge apply a ruffle either of the material or of coarse lace.

Finish the joining seam neatly by stitching a strip of featherstitched braid or a narrow bias fold over the ruffle and seam edge.

Now finish the broad straight edge at the top with a hem and narrow casing, through which is run a tape the length of the width of the window. The curtains are then shirred over the tape or small brass rods and attached to the windows.

Drape them to each side of the window with ribbons or cotton cords and you will have a pair of very good looking curtains, made from the quantity of material generally employed in making one curtain.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

CONDUCTED BY THE EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE OF PLAINFIELD AND NORTH PLAINFIELD

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS.
Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, Mrs. Louise Bryan Dorr, Mrs. Champlain Riley, Mrs. Vernona Henry and Miss Zoe Bateman.

"REASONS WHY WOMAN SUFFRAGE IS RIGHT"
BY MRS. VERNONA R. HENRY.

Since the conflict of different tastes too often passes for the pros and cons of suffrage argument, let us make an especial effort to discuss the subject impersonally. Let us seek also to free our minds from all inherited opinions, particularly in relation to sex propriety. Tastes about Woman's Suffrage must yield to reasons for Woman's Suffrage. Is it important to the progress of this country, and of civilization as a whole?

There are some truths which can not be too fully realized; so let us attempt as never before, to grasp the fact that democracy in its supreme interpretation means equal opportunity and highest development for every one. For every one, educated and uneducated, native and foreign, rich and poor, men and women.

Should women obtain the right of citizenship, how would their admission affect the educational calibre of the electorate? The keystone of our people is the common school; without a nation-wide diffusion of education, the arch of our free government would crumble to the ground, a ruin unparalleled in the history of the ages. Glance at the registration figures of our State Universities, of our high schools, of our grammar departments. You will find a remarkable excess of female over male students enrolled. Educationally, women are better prepared than men for an intelligent voice in public affairs. The fact that they can not take part therein results in an unpardonable waste of efficiency, which affects not alone the women themselves, but the entire community. Contrast the common educational facilities of the United States with those of other lands. Small wonder "the foreign vote" is almost synonymous with "the ignorant vote."

This leads us naturally to the consideration of our second set of contrasts. Again the women have the advantage of numbers. American born women voters would be relatively far more numerous than American born men voters. Of our entire immigration, that vast flood of peoples, well-nigh inconceivable in its magnitude, which continuously sweeps from the four corners of the earth, outcast for a brief period from their homes, that they may be born anew into sovereign dignity; of all these embryonic Americans of foreign nativity, only 30 per cent. are females. Were equal suffrage an accomplished fact throughout our land today, the "educated vote" and the "American born vote" would proportionately largely increase, and the "ignorant and foreign born vote" actually decrease.

Democracy demands a free and equal opportunity for every one. With what unctious pride will the words roll from our lips next Independence Day: "All men are created equal." When on July 5th, we shall turn to our news columns, what equality shall we there find? Dives and Lazarus are still unreconciled.

Yet we can not doubt the fundamental truth of our democracy however faultily we mirror it in our daily living. For our conception of democracy results from a thousand-year struggle for liberty; and so far have we advanced, that this democracy is certified at the polls once a year, upon terms of perfect equality, by our male voters, and in six States by men and women alike. This certification is democracy's only guarantee. It is a proposition too self-evident to require demonstration that men are made different in their social and commercial relations by their political equality. Any male voter would instantly resent a challenge of this fact. Ask that same man to apply this principle to the qusetion of "votes for women." Possibly he would answer that he preferred to see "woman remain on a pedestal." The composition of that pedestal certainly can not be of food and clothing, fire and shelter, since one in every five women in our country has been driven by necessity into competitive industry. If women are engaged in the struggle of industrial competition, is it just to withhold from them the fundamental and only guarantee of a chance to make a living—full citizenship in a democratic State?

To the working woman, suffrage spells opportunity. The working woman is no new factor in our life. Since the world began, woman has always borne her full share of its labors. But the conditions under which that work is now being done are new. The work has gone forth from the home into the factory and the market; and, like a Pied Piper has drawn after it irrestibly, the body of women workers, never to return. The woman worker of today too often faces conditions which corrupt health and morals, and impair future motherhood. Yet the voice of those most vitally interested cannot be lifted in their own behalf. Give to the woman worker the dignity, strength, power, and defense of political citizenship, that she may have an equal chance with the man worker to make the conditions of industrial competition compatible to her physical and moral welfare. The two greatest values of citizenship to workers, and particularly to women workers, are: First, it will stimulate them to an active discontent with conditions and an active effort for their betterment; second, the ballot teaches by experience the public and political methods for bettering conditions.

Only by being citizens can women or men acquire the knowledge pertaining to citizenship. All knowledge comes by doing. If women have not the special kind of knowledge required for citizenship, no better reason can be given for making them citizens than the need of developing that knowledge. If the working women do not want citizenship it is because they have not time to learn their need, and no opportunity to find its value. Is it not therefore the duty of those more at liberty, to want and demand citizenship for the working woman?

To accomplish certain ends directly through the Legislature, one must address the legislators as their constituent. No courtesy equal the courtesy of a legislator to his constituents. The enfranchised may demand from their representatives—the unenfranchised may only beg. Citizenship gives standing before law-makers and executives, and before the body of the people throughout the year. For citizenship is an integral part of democracy, and democracy arose from the conviction in the mind of the common man that he has the right to be somebody: that he is part of the sovereign power: a guarantee that his needs must be considered by the country he serves.

It is worthy of note that all the presidential candidates who last year opposed woman's suffrage, have altered their points of view since California granted to her women equal citizenship with her men. The nearer the presidential candidates are to California, the more favorably they are disposed to consider woman's suffrage. For the California woman's wishes are of consequence; she will vote for President next fall. She values her privilege, or the candidates would not defer to it.

Aside from the need of the industrial woman for the ballot, all women need development; and our ideal of woman needs development. Civic responsibility and experience will bring this development to woman, and to our ideals of woman. We need mothers whose ornament is wisdom; and wisdom is only acquired through wide experience and wide activities. The mothers of the future must be mothers of citizens, not of overgrown babies. A mother who properly educates her child does more than bring it up in innocence and untried virtue within the home, and then thrust it ignorant and unprotected, forth into the world. For the sake of her children, a mother should have all the development possible. No woman is competent to fit a child for the world until she knows fully the world into which that child enters. Political activity will supply this knowledge and further this end. A race of intelligent, active, virtuous citizens must have intelligent, active, virtuous mothers. Abolish self-centered profligate men, and innocent, inexperienced women. Establish equal responsibility and morality before the law, and the principle established will find its way through society.

We have inherited from past civilizations a bundle of morbid sentiments as to woman's sphere. Why deny to women the freedom to develop, each in her own way, as fully as men are privileged so to do. Happiness is as important for women as for men. Happiness does not consist in living softly, but in regulated purpose and achievement. Lack of her political freedom has kept alive restrictive dogmas concerning woman which clearly and definitely limit her "right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Glance at the industrial conditions and then at the industrial census. Do not our women workers need citizenship? Woman needs citizenship and all the world needs the kind of woman citizenship will produce.

Dancing Class Cotillon.

Miss Margaret Florance's dancing class of about one hundred young people gave a cotillon at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, marking the close of the season. There were two fancy dances, one Dutch and the other Swedish, and the rest of the afternoon was devoted to general dancing. Miss Florance and her assistants distributed favors among the members of the class.

Baptist Women Meet.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, elected these officers for the year: President, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley; vice-presidents, Mrs. David J. Yerkes, Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. J. A. Powlison; secretary, Mrs. B. J. Shreve; treasurer, Miss Ida Yerkes. Miss Linda Butler led the devotional exercises.

Plainfielder Gets Recipe.

There is a certain Italian table d'hote in one of the West Twenties, says the Suburbanite, considerably patronized by suburbanites when staying in town for the theatre, and one of the favorite dishes is a soup with an unpronounceable name. A Plainfield man likes it so well that he got the chef to give him the recipe. Here it is: Boil a pound of French chestnuts, shelled, in three cups of water until the nuts are tender; add half a pound of rice with water to cover and a generous lump of butter; salt to taste and cook until rice is done. Then sprinkle the top with half a cup of grated cheese and dust slightly with cinnamon.

"Oh, dear, no," replied young Mrs. Torkins. "I never think of presuming to address her in the first place." —Washington Star.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

SPICY SPORT CHATS

By TOMMY CLARK.

Quite a bit of uneasiness has been aroused by the announcement that Ralph C. Craig, intercollegiate champion sprinter and joint holder of the world's record for the 200 yard dash, could not be a candidate for the Olympic team. Craig is such a well trained athlete that he could readily get himself into condition with six weeks of hard work.

Without Craig the American team would have to depend upon Gwyn Henry, the youngster from Texas, or some of the other youthful sprinters in the college ranks. The foreign climate has such a peculiar effect upon American athletes that the American committee will want at least half a dozen consistent ten second men to represent the United States in the sprints.

That a player's showing during a season is not always taken as a criterion of his ability is proved in the case of Lefty George, who was traded by St. Louis for George Stovall recently. Though George won but three games out of thirteen last season, he has been a much sought after man all winter. Nearly every club in the league wanted to make some sort of deal for him.

George could not win for the Browns, but he always showed enough to create the impression that under changed environments he would make a good pitcher. If George had made a similar showing in a minor league no scout would have picked him up, but as he worked where all the club managers could see him he got a reputation without even delivering the goods.

Should George show improved form it would give the Naps two cracking left handers, for Gregg proved last year that he was a pitcher of the highest caliber.

NO "CRAPS" IN THE NAPS' CAMP.

Mobile, Ala., Mar. 6.—There will be no shooting craps by the Cleveland players this year. Such is the edict announced by Manager Davis.

"I don't object to a small game of poker," says the Nap boss, "but I do draw the line on craps. Some teams can attribute their poor showing in the summer time to the fact that some players carry such gambling debts around and they cannot do justice to themselves in the games."

Anson May Be a Manager.

Chicago, Mar. 6.—President John T. Powers of the Columbian Baseball League announced yesterday that Adrian C. Anson, former leader of the Chicago Nationals, had been offered the leadership of the Pittsburgh team in the Columbian League.

Elks' League Postponement.

The Elks' League bowling match scheduled for last night between the Newark and New Brunswick teams on Greenewald's alleys in New Brunswick was postponed indefinitely.

ATHLETICS SET THE FASHION

Two Years Ago Members of Philadelphia Team Took up Game and Since Then Have Won Two World's Championships.

Some of these days the daily stories from the spring training camps of the major league baseball clubs will not tell how many home runs Frank Baker hit or how many men G. Cleveland Alexander struck out. They will instead relate how Eddie Collins or Big Chief Bender did the eighteen hole golf course in eighty strokes and Charley Dooin won six fast sets of tennis.

Several years ago a major league manager required work in the south, and the player who put in the greatest number of the twenty-four hours each day in strenuous pitching, batting, fielding and running was most sure of a permanent berth. But times have changed, and now a player does about as he pleases—that is, so long as he is actually trying to get into shape for the season's campaign. And among the most popular sports is golf.

The Athletics set the fashion for the newer spring training two years ago and since that time have won two American league pennants and two world's championship series. Is it any wonder that Manager John McGraw has a similar campaign for the New York Giants and other leaders have already decided that baseball is not the only game which can be used to good advantage to get players into condition?

Two years ago—in the spring of 1910—Manager Mack announced that the veterans on the team would start training at Hot Springs, Va. This created surprise, for the climate there is not much different from that in Philadelphia during early March. And the other American league managers smiled still more when they read each day how the Mack players were spending their time learning the ancient game of golf, with an occasional glimpse of a baseball to become accustomed to its weight.

Later the veterans went to Atlanta, Ga., where they did find warm weather, but even there they took things easy, frequently going to the Country club in the morning to play golf instead of to the baseball park. Few of the men went through the old program of "work, work, work," from morn till night.

Last spring the veterans took life even easier at Hot Springs, Va., and Savannah, Ga.

Manager Mack did not bring a bunch of athletes to Philadelphia who were trained to the minute and ready to jump into the ring and fight sixty rounds. They started the season as if they were going to finish in last place. But they developed as the season progressed, and when the other teams, with players trained so fine that they fell by the wayside during the warm weather, dropped back gradually, Mack's men slowly forged to the front until they finally reached their true form in July and August, when the games counted most.

THE GINGER JAR

The Penn State wrestling team easily defeated the Lehigh wrestling squad last Saturday night Among the pupils at the State school are half dozen Plainfield boys.

Odds of 10 to 8 in Attell's favor are being offered by San Francisco sports on his match with Tommy Murphy at that place Saturday.

The sixteen major league teams carry an averae of 30 men. In minor leagues there are more than 10,000 players.

Johnny Coulon is said to have cleaned up $10,000 in his last four battles.

A blackman's "white hope" is the latest. Joe Jeanette is teaching Charley Victor, of Hoboken, the fine points of the glove game with an idea of sending his against Johnson.

Jack Chesbro is not yet in the "come back" class, but it is not wholly his fault. He might be able to still put over the spitter, which became popular under his manipulation, but was let out by Manager Wolverton without a trial.

There is a unique kitchen adornment in the home of Eddie Collins all during the season. The star second sacker of the world's champs always has two well-oiled bats hanging near the kitchen stove, seasoning.

McGraw has three of the largest men that ever got into a baseball uniform in Evans, Tesreau and Jacobson. Evans and Tesreau are pitchers and Jacobson is an outfielder.

Bill Sweeney, the second baseman of the Boston Nationals, has demanded a salary of $5,200 for the coming season. Bill received $3,000 last year. The big increase is asked as a result of Boston's refusal to sell him to Cincinnati, where he was offered the manager's job at $7,500.

Sid Burns, the English welterweight, is headed for this country in search of new laurels—likewise a few of Uncle Sam's dollars. His first match will be with a good man at Brooklyn, after which he goes to Philadelphia, where he may meet Mike Gibbons.

It may not be generally known, nevertheless it's a fact, Johnny Kilbane, the new featherweight champion, is the youngest boy in ring history to hold the title. He is 22.

Manager Mack has admitted that he intends to retain Rodger Salmon, of Princeton; Carl Brown, of Atlantic City, and Gipe, the big blonde twirler. He will educate this trio and have them as a reserve squad for the day when the regular pitchers begin to blow up.

"This is going to be one of the worst years ever known for fighting champions. The first to tumble was Abe Attell, and he will be followed into defeat by Jack Johnson. Tab this prediction closely and get your self a little bet down. You'll cash sure." This handed out by Jack Curley, manager of Jim Flynn, Johnson's opponent.

Rattling the Skeleton.

A match game of baseball took place on the grounds near the Potter Press works this morning between the "champions" of Second street and the "no goods" of Front street. The spectators were limited to seven men and a dog. While it lasted the game was exciting to the players—and the good points made were so numerous that for space we are unable to record them. At the end of the third ining the score stood 16 to 0 in favor of the "Champions." A wild throw on the part of one of the players lost the ball somewhere in the vicinity of Grant avenue and the umpire was chased home with a bat for awarding the game to the champions.

Rare Black Fox is Shot.

Sussex, March 6. — George Tice, a hunter in the vicinity of Beaver Lake, shot a black fox a few days ago. It is the first black fox so far as he knows thath as been shot in northern New Jersey. Mr. Tice will keep it to adorn his study floor.

Packey McFarland Won.

New York, Mar. 6.—Packel McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, won all the way in a 10-round bout with One-Round Hogan, of California, at the Fairmont Athletic Club, here, last night.

GREAT FOUL-FLY CATCH.

"One of the funniest things I ever ran into in baseball wasn't exactly a part of a game but it's a baseball story just the same," said John W. Murray, one of Plainfield's old-time amateur stars, during a fanning bee around the radiator the other day.

"During the days when the old Crescents were holding the center of the stage, we had a reporter in town by the name of Griswold Harte. They tell me he was a son of Bret Harte, the author, but I'd never have suspected it from baseball stories he wrote.

"One Saturday Harte stayed away from a game he was supposed to report, and Monday morning he went to another newspaper man and asked him for the story. The other man was a joker and Harte's feeble baseball average offered too good a chance to pass up. Harte swallowed everything the other man told him.

That afternoon when Harte's paper came out the paralyzed fans read this start-off to his baseball report:

"'The feature of an exciting game which the invincible Crescents won on Saturday was a spectacular catch of a foul fly in center field.'"

PERFECT BOWLING SCORE MADE BY NEWARK PINNER

Arnold Lisk, of Newark, had his name engraved in the bowlers' hall of fame by rolling a perfect score of 300 in the South Side tournment in a match against the Night Owls, in that city Monday night. Lisk, who is a member of the Tuxedo team, performed the stunt in the second game. Every one of his twelve hits were perfect and a big cheer went up from the bowlers present when he cleared the stripes of all the pins on his twelfth ball.

ANGLERS ARE WORKING AGAINST BLUEFISH BILL

There were more rod and line fishermen at Trenton last week than have been seen there in five years. The majority of them were working against a bluefish bill that placed a legal limit of twelve inches on bluefish. Frank Halstead, of Jersey City, was doing missionary work among the Hudson County legislators, asking them to vote against the bill if it came on the floor, because it would prevent the rod and line fishermen from catching pound bluefish for food as well as sport. Chairman Radcliffe was induced to hold the bill in committee for future discussion.

It is claimed by those interested that, as the bluefish are migratory it would be unfair to prohibit the Jersey fishermen from catching them when every other State permitted it. All of the rod and line men said that if the fish were under the control of the Federal Government they woud agree to limitations willingly but as more snappers are caught in the meshes of the pounds along the shore in one month than are caught byrod and line in one year, they had to disagree with the introducer of the bill.

The measure was finally reported to the House, but was disposed of by its withdrawal from the files by Assemblyman Adams.

PITTSBURGH GIRL TO FENCE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 6. — Miss D. R. Wakefield, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Attorney J. A. Wakefield, has authorized a challenge to Baroness De Meyer, Mrs. W. H. Dewar, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., and Miss Bayless, of New York, to an elimination series of fencing bouts to determine the world's women championship. The bouts will be promoted by the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, of which Miss Wakefield is a member, and its fencing instructor, T. W. Postgate.

Postgate declarded his belief that the girl, who fences with either hand would be able to prove her superiority over all those mentioned. Miss Wakefield began fencing in a Parisian finishing school, and is willing to combat under the European or American regulations.

SAYS IRA TO CY—

Cy Morgan, the Athletics' spitball slinger, who is the only real minstrel man in baseball, often runs into verbal tilts with big Ira Thomas, whom Connie Mack says is the best catcher in the game. The point of the following storiette is Cy's batting average, which is .0003-8.

"Say," yelled Cy to Ira one day, "if I was as big as you, I'd hit a home run once in a while."

"If I was as big as you," grinned back Ira, "I'd hit a single now and then."

PINNERS AND WRITERS HAND IT TO PRESS AGENT

The press agent for the National Bowling Tournament, to be held in Paterson, is being panned by sport writers and pinners all over the country for a story he originated to boost the game. In the article he tells of a man who was found using a steel ball and a magnetized headpin to roll big scores. It tells how the deception was found only through a green pin boy, who set the magnetized pin on No. 10 spot instead of No. 1, and only after the bowler had cleaned up the town.

As a matter of fact a little reasoning will show the article to be a fake pure and simple, say his critics. If a pin were magnitized strong enough to attract a heavy tenpin ball, it would be strong enough to draw the ball to it and hold on with the tenacity of a leech, they aver. It is dollars to doughnuts that the man who wrote the article is a newspaper man with an imagination, and that he never bowled a game of tenpins, says the real pinners.

BASEBALL ENTERED LARGELY INTO THIS VISIT

Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield schools admits having something more than a fondness for the noble game of baseball. He never misses a chance, when possible, to view it from a seat as near the foul lines as he can get. Like all ardent admirers of the sport and those who perpetuate it, he will "fan" on the slighest provocation.

Ross N. Hood, of Philadelphia, a normal school mate of Mr. Krebs and third baseman of the team in '88 when Mr. KKrebs was the mainstay of the pitching department of the Kutztown, Pa. Normal School, called on the superinendent Monday. Seated near a radiator they played again many of the games of the season following the big blizzard. Mr. Hood said that he always had more work with Mr. Krebs in the box than any other pitcher, because his favorite and most effective ball was a drop.

It seems to be that this sort of ball always makes more work for the infield and when a team is composed of right hand batters, the third baseman bears the brunt of the heavy work.

MAVING PICTURES SHOW KILBANE'S EASY VICTORY.

New York, Mar. 6.—The downfall of Abe Attell, the former featherweight champion pugilist, was shown yesterday at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre, when the moving pictures of his contest with Johnny Kilbane were displayed for the first time.

Twelve of the twenty rounds were shown, and there is no room left to doubt the superiority of Kilbane. In nearly every round the Cleveland pugilist outgamed and outpunched Attell. It was seen early in the battle that Kilbane was the master of the situation, showing cleverness and shiftiness of movement. It was at Attell's own game that Kilbane won. The latter's quickness and infighting was a revelation, while his knowledge of ring science accounted for the wide margin of victory.

There was considerable disappointment over the elimination of the rounds in which Attell was guilty of butting and especially the sixteenth, where Referee Eyton stopped the fight and thoroughly wiped the greasy substance from Attell's body. In the fourteenth round Kilbane was shown to advantage, when he landed fourteen bows without a return.

CHICKEN RAISERS AND FANCIERS OUT IN FORCE

The New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall on West Front street last night. In the large audience present was a large number of women chicken raisers and fanciers.

F. Warren Summer, president of the Union County Poultry Association, delivered a most interesting address on "Artificial Incubation and Brooding." He has devoted considerable study to this phaze of producing fouls and is considered one of the best informed experts in this section. Every detail of incubation and brooding was thoroughly explained and many little tricks of the trade and helpful hints were fully discussed by the speaker.

Marshal E. Tilton was elected vice-president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. S. McAfee, whose business takes him out of town.

The clerks showed considerable alley talent. Causebrook was high man for the session with a mark of 222 in the second game. Swalm leveled the wood for 221 in the last contest for second high. Gardner of the visiting team showed a score 213 for his pinning in the last contest.

CITY CHAMPIONSHIP CUP PRESENTED TO N.P.H.S.

The city championship cup won by the N. P. H. S. basketball team was presented to the school this morning by Captain Taylor. Superintendent H. C. Krebs, on behalf of the school, accepted the trophy. Principal Phelps presented each member of the team with a gold medal showing the cup they had captured. There is also another cup coming to the N. P. H. S. five for having won the Somerset county championship. No date has been set for awarding it as yet.

The creditable showing by the N. P. H. S. basketball team has been a matter of considerable favorable comment by those interested in borough school affairs, whether they are interested in sports or not. The team had no trouble in putting away the best teams that the Plainfield, New Brunswick, Battin, Westfield, Rahway and Bound Brook High Schools could produce.

The team at the start did not promise as much as has been accomplished and in no small degree the success attained is due to the excellent coaching of Mr. Webster. Acting as coach he had the boys drill almost continuously on team work and passing with the result that defense and attack playing were greatly strengthened. The true shooting developed by the Taylor brothers and Dunning taken in connection with this comprehensive team work pulled many a victory from teams considered much stronger in every department.

The application of similar tactics were used in fortifying the guards, Townley and Burner, who while often going against much larger boys skilfully manoeuvred to spoil or render ineffective their opponents' sure shooting.

No Chance for Chesbro.

Jack Chesbro, the veteran pitcher, who retired from baseball in 1909, was unconditionally released by the New York American League Club Monday. Chesbro recently expressed a deside to "come back" but Manager Wolverton, has so many pitchers in hand, that experimenting with Chesbro seemed a waste of time.

Yale Cop for Sweden.

New Haven, March 6.—"Jim Donnelly, Yale's campus "cop," will attend the Olympic games in July as the guest of the senior class of the academic department of the university. The decision to send "Jim" abroad at the expense of the class was made at a meeting of the class last night.

Local Gunners at the Show.

The members of the Independent Gun Club will attend the Sportmen's Show in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night in a body. The occasion for the visit is the competition at the traps of several members, among them being Dr. Leonard and Clarence Mundy.

MRS. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

President's Wife, Who Listened to Strike Inquiry Testimony.

Copyright by Harris & Ewing.

TALES AFFECTED MRS. TAFT.

But President's Wife Sat Awhile and Heard Strike Inquiry.

Washington, March 6.—The city authorities of Lawrence, Mass., began their defense against the charges that the police and militia had brutally treated men, women and children strikers in the course of the woolen mill strike.

Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, was an interested listener for an hour or so.

From the lips of a young woman Sunday school teacher of Philadelphia Mrs. Taft heard how the policemen had torn apart mothers and children when an attempt was made to take the children from the strike ridden city to the refuge offered them in Philadelphia and how women prisoners in a patrol wagon were clubbed. The stories affected her noticeably.

C. F. Lynch, commissioner of public safety in Lawrence, declared that the police interference was based on the belief that the parents' consent had not been obtained.

CANTON REPORTED IN STATE OF ANARCHY

Discharged Soldiers Go About In Lawless Bands.

Shanghai, March 6.—The situation in the country bordering on the city of Canton and in that city itself has become intolerable, where a state of anarchy exists. That is the information received here in authoritative telegrams from Canton.

Soldiers, who have been discharged from the service, are going about in bands murdering and pillaging. Murders are frequent, and the corpses of the victims are cast into the West river and are carried downstream. Terrible scenes are enacted in Canton daily, and the details are so horrible that they cannot be published. A typical incident is reported in which a well known Chinese, who refused to comply with the demands of a band of robbers, found on returning to his home that his whole family had been slaughtered.

A dispatch from Weihaiwei states that 1,000 people have been killed in the outbreaks there.

Peking, March 6.—American and British tobacco stores in Paotingfu were sacked and looted of goods valued at $50,000.

Three American warships have left Shanghai for the north.

It is reported that 2,000 troops have revolted and sacked Kiukiang, in the Yangtse valley.

Several parties of mutineers returned here with the intention of renewing the looting. They were immediately seized and beheaded.

CHALLENGE SENT TO TAFT'S CAMP

T. R.'s Manager Proposes Presidential Primary.

M'KINLEY WANTS TO KNOW

Asks Senator Dixon, Author of Letter, to Furnish Authority For His Challenge Before Making Any Answer Directly on the Proposition For a Test.

Washington, March 6.—A challenge to assist him in having the selection of the Republican presidential nominee submitted to the voters in every state possible was issued by Senator Joseph M. Dixon, manager of the Roosevelt boom, to Congressman William B. McKinley, manager of the Taft boom.

To this challenge Manager McKinley fired back a quick reply calling on Sen*ator Dixon for a statement of his offi*cial status before entering further into the matter.

Here is the challenge issued by Senator Dixon:

My Dear Mr. McKinley—For the purpose of determining definitely whether the Republican voters of the country desire Colonel Theodore Roosevelt or President Taft as their candidate in the approaching presidential campaign, I here*by challenge you to a test by means of* primaries in every state of the Union.

I take it you will agree with me that the chief object we are both seeking is the election of a Republican to the presidency next fall.

The first requisite to such success is that the national convention shall nominate as the party candidate the man who has the greatest strength with the voters themselves.

We ought to have a free and voluntary expression of opinion directly from the voters who will cast the ballots that will determine finally the verdict at the polls.

Of course, I am aware of the action of the Republican national committee on the primary question at its meeting in this city last December, and I know the argument on which it was based. In my judgment no argument can justify that action. In every state and district in the Union proper arrangements can be made and effectively carried out for securing a free and voluntary expression of the will of the Republican voters. If it cannot be done by a state wide primary, which would be preferable, it can be arranged for by districts, under the supervision of proper committees. In Ohio, for instance, there is a proposition for district primaries, which, while not as satisfactory as the state wide presidential preference primary provided by law in North Dakota, Wisconsin, Oregon, Nebraska, California, New Jersey and South Dakota, nevertheless will result in obtaining a direct expression from the voters themselves.

With your co-operation similar arrangements can no doubt be effected in all other states where legislatures are now considering the enactment of presidential preference primary laws. I am informed *that in several states where the presiden*tial preference primary question is awaiting legislative action the influence of men who are working with you is cast determinedly in opposition. Your co-operation with me in such states no doubt would result in the enactment of these laws, with considerable spread thereby of the presidential preference primary under direct legal sanction by the state.

Let me call your attention again to the fact that Colonel Roosevelt has declared that he is not an active candidate for the nomination, but will accept it if it comes to him as the demand of the voters of the party. His letter to Mr. Moore of Pittsburgh, sent out by your headquarters and published in the newspapers, is an additional proof of this attitude and of the fact that in now saying he will accept the nomination under the conditions specified he is merely responding to a popular demand.

The voters of the country have an unquestionable right to express their desire, and I sincerely trust you will accept this challenge and prepare to co-operate with me in the arrangement of such primaries.

Commissioned officers are necessary to direct an army, but it is the rank and file that win the victories. Respectfully yours,

JOSEPH M. DIXON,
Chairman National Roosevelt Executive Committee.

This is the letter that Manager McKinley fired back at the Roosevelt chairman:

My Dear Senator—I am just in receipt of your letter delivered by special messenger. Since you are pleased to apply to your communication so grave a term as "challenge," it becomes somewhat important to have our respective relations to candidates made clear at the outset. I would therefore say that I have been asked by President Taft to act as a director of a bureau with headquarters in Washington, organized for the purpose of securing his renomination for a second term. Before answering your "challenge," I desire to know whether you are acting as chairman of the "Roosevelt executive committee" either by selection or authority of Mr. Roosevelt and also whether your so called "challenge" was issued by authority of Mr. Roosevelt, whose nomination for a third term as president I understand you and your organization are attempting to secure. Respectfully yours,

WILLIAM B. McKINLEY,
Director National Taft Bureau.

Stimson Speaks For Taft.

Chicago, March 6.—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson delivered here his promised address on his position in the coming presidential nomination struggle. It was a strong advocacy of the nomination of President Taft.

Mr. Stimson was inclined to parry questions as to what Colonel Roosevelt had or had not told him about a third term matter.

"Did you hear Colonel Roosevelt declare that he would not run again?" he was asked.

"No, indeed. I never heard him say that," replied Mr. Stimson.

Pulpit Lecturer Kills Himself.

Baltimore, March 6.—The Rev. Walter R. Rhodes, pastor of the Onancock (Va.) Baptist church, a lecturer of note committed suicide. He had been in ill health. Mr. Rhodes was a direct descendant of Zachariah Rhodes, who with Roger Williams, established the first Baptist church in America.

WILLIAM H. ANDREWS.

Who May Be One of New Mexico's First Two United States Senators.

ANDREWS LIKELY TO WIN.

Republican Leader Expected to Be Chosen a Senator by New Mexico.

Santa Fe, N. M., March 6.—On March 11 the first legislature of the new state of New Mexico will convene. On March 21 it will proceed on joint ballot to choose two United States senators. Probabilities point to the early election of Mr. H. Andrews, formerly delegate from the territory to the national house of representatives, to one of the seats. Mr. Andrews, prior to 1902, was a prominent Republican of Pennsylvania.

NO PAY FOR SERVICE TURNED GEN. OROZCO

That's the Reason Given For Him Leaving Madero.

City of Mexico, March 6.—It is announced that General Pasqual Orozco deserted President Madero because the latter failed to pay him for his services in the last year.

Fifty federals, including Colonel Zubieta, have been killed in an ambush by rebels near Torreon.

All the political clubs at the capital signed a petition to congress asking for the resignation of President Madero. No reply has been received.

Atlixco, an important town in the state of Puebla, has been captured by Zapatistas. Twenty federals and thirteen rebels were killed.

The German ambassador has warned his countrymen to leave disturbed points in the republic.

El Paso, Tex., March 6.—Antonio Samorio, an El Paso tailor, who excited the rebel garrison by spreading the report in Juarez that federal troops were coming, received a sentence to be executed. Sentence was suspended because he is an American citizen, but the man has not been released.

General Salazar, who left Juarez for Chihuahua to join the forces that departed Sunday to the aid of Pasqual Orozco, reached here and with the rest of the rebels, nearly 3,000 strong, entered Chihuahua, where Orozco and his men and the people generally received them with rejoicing. Pancho Villa and his loyal force is just outside Chihuahua.

A train load of American refugees from Chihuahua has arrived here, the first from that place in many weeks.

A train bearing 150 refugees from Pearson, Mexico, reached Juarez on the Mexican Northwestern railroad, which the rebels are permitting to operate regularly.

CALLS GOVERNOR "PINHEAD."

Representative Clark of Florida Defends His Everglades Position.

Washington, March 6.—Denouncing Governor Gilchrist of Florida as a "pinhead," Representative Clark of Florida declared in the house that Florida "land sharks" are robbing thousands of investors.

"I am opposed to the exploitation of these Everglades lands by conscienceless land sharks to the disgrace of my state," said Clark in refuting a published attack by Governor Gilchrist charging that Clark was aiding western railroads in bringing discredit upon the Everglades.

"The sharks have bled and robbed women and children and depleted the savings of working people all over the country. I have not attacked the Everglades, but only contended against conscienceless misrepresentation and deliberate falsehoods about the lands."

The Bathursts Divorced.

London, via Glace Bay, March 6.—Captain Sir Frederick Bathurst was granted a divorce from his wife because of her alleged misconduct with Marquis Pierre de Jancan. Lady Bathurst is the second daughter of Baron Inchiquin and a sister of Mrs. Marcond, wife of the wireless inventor.

Mrs. Van Claussen Honan Sane.

White Plains, N. Y., March 6.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, at White Plains, signed an order which declares Mrs. Ida Van Claussen Honan of New York to be sane and releases her from the Bloomingdale asylum.

"Brother Jonathan."

The origin of the term "Brother Jonathan" as applied to the United States is as follows: When General Washington, after being appointed commander of the army of the Revolutionary war, went to Massachusetts to organize it he found a great want of ammunition and other means of defense, and on one occasion it seemed that no means could be devised for the necessary safety.

Jonathan Trumbull, the elder, was the governor of the state of Connecticut, and the general, placing the greatest reliance on his excellency's judgment, remarked, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject." The general did so, and the governor was successful in supplying many of the wants of the army. Thenceforward when difficulties arose and the army was spread over the country it became a byphrase, "We must consult Brother Jonathan," and the name has now become a designation for the whole country as John Bull has for England. —C. C. Bombaugh, "Gleanings For the Curious."

First International Band Contest.

The earliest record of an international band contest is of one held in the year 1720 between the bands of Handel and Buononcini, a gifted Italian composer, who by his friends and admirers was declared to be infinitely superior to the German master. The king headed the partisans of the German and the Prince of Wales those of the Italian artist. The controversy has been perpetuated in the lines of John Byron, a popular poet of his day:

Some say, compared to Buononcini,
That Mynheer Handel's but a ninny.
Others aver that he to Handel
Is scarcely fit to hold a candle.
Strange all this difference should be
'Twixt tweedledum and tweedledee.

An international band contest on a much larger scale was held in connection with the Paris exhibition of 1867, in which selected bands from Austria, Bavaria, Baden, Belgium, France, Holland, Spain and Russia competed in the presence of 30,000 visitors. Russia took the first prize, closely followed by France and Austria.—London Standard.

The Fly's Buzz In Music.

It was Mendelssohn who first put fairies into the orchestra, and that composer's incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is surely the happiest accompaniment to Shakespeare's play. But there is more than the revels of fairies in Mendelssohn's work. There is the buzzing of a fly which one day in the summer of 1826 flew about Mendelssohn's head as he lay on the grass with a friend in the Schonhauser garden, Berlin, planning the overture. As the fly buzzed by Mendelssohn said "Hush!" and listened intently for a time. Afterward, when the overture was finished, the composer pointed to the modulation of the cellos from B minor to F sharp minor in the middle section and said, "There: that's the Schonhauser fly." That overture has become one of the world's musical classics, and Mendelssohn was a boy of eighteen when he wrote it.—London Chronicle.

Kept Her Word.

"Miss Tenspot always declared that she wouldn't marry an angel from heaven," announced Mrs. Gazzam, "and yet she is actually engaged to marry young Mr. Skidmore."

"That's all right," commented Mr. Gazzam. "No one who knows Skidmore will accuse him of being an angel from heaven."—London Answers.

The Height of Hopefulness.

He—After I am out of college, darling, I may have to wait a few months before I can make enough to support you. She—It is so hard to wait. He (bravely)—I know it. But of course you know the world doesn't know anything about me yet.—Exchange.

Hahne & Co. Awnings Laugh at the Sun

They Are the Best Awnings Obtainable

When we say that our awnings laugh at the sun's rays we do not mean to infer that the awning stripes we use, though the best manufactured, will not fade, for there is no such thing as a nonfadable awning—they cannot be had at any price!

We simply use the best materials that can be put into awnings, guarantee you the most careful workmanship and the most expert hanging, and give you the service at the lowest possible price and let it go at that.

No one can promise you any more and make good their promise.

We make and sell more awnings than any other two or three shops in town. We've built the business on the basis of highest quality, best service and fairest price.

FRAMES AND FIXTURES.

We use the best and heaviest galvanized frames, close to one-half inch thick, on all window awnings of standard sizes.

For porches we use 3-8, 1-2 and 3-4 galvanized pipe, the solid iron being too heavy for porch use because of the greater widths and lengths required.

We also use head rods at top of awning, thus saving your woodwork and making awnings easy to put up or take down.

We use the best and most fully guaranteed awning stripes, giving you wide choice of colors, including the popular browns and tans, reds, blues, greens—colors that will not run, no matter how much exposed to rain and wind they may be.

In making the awnings, the frames are enveloped in a pocket—a most important feature—introduced by us, copied by very few—so that they will withstand the heaviest wind storms.

If you will observe many of the awnings hung by others you will find that the awning covers are attached to the frames only here and there with little patches, making it easy for a violent wind to rip them to pieces.

AWNINGS GENEROUS IN SIZE.

We make all our awnings in generous sizes, making them look dressy and full, hanging as low as need be to keep out all the sun, yet so that they may be raised to let in the air when the sun is not beating upon your windows. There is as much difference between Hahne & Co. awnings and many that you get elsewhere as there is between a carefully tailored suit and the most ordinary hand-me-down.

If you want the best awnings, at the fairest prices, send us word at once and our experts will come and measure your windows or porches, bringing samples of stripes for you to choose from, relieving you of any further worry or bother.

Orders placed now will be subject to a discount of 10 per cent.

Our telephone number is 3460 Market.

The Scrap Book

An Innocent Abroad.

James Morro, day clerk at the Hotel Edward, in Kansas City, Mo., encountered a "new one" recently. The night before the "new one" was sprung a rural citizen from another state registered at the hostelry and was given the only unoccupied room in the house, one with a private bath in connection with it.

The next time Morro was approached by the guest was when the latter was ready to check out.

"Well, did you have a good night's rest?" the clerk asked.

"No, I didn't," replied the rural innocent. "The room was all right, and the bed was pretty good, but I couldn't sleep very much, for I was afraid some one would want to take a bath, and the only door to it was through my room."

Greatness.

Years of toil and years of care,
Years of patient faithfulness,
Years of hope and of despair,
Strength and courage measureless,
Mercy for the weak,
Bold where boldness must be shown,
Brave enough to stand alone,
Unafraid to act or speak
When the cause is just,
Knowing whom to trust,
Whom to turn from in the stress
Unbelieved;
Finally, when sweet success
Is achieved,
After all your foes are faced,
Knowing how
To wear worthily the laurels placed
On your brow.

—S. E. Kiser.

Nothing More to Say.

John came home from the office in the evening in a rather bad humor and after a quick look at his smiling better half said:

"You must have called me late this morning, Sylvena. It was 12 o'clock when I reached the office, and I had an important appointment for 10 o'clock too."

"Why, I called you at 7:30, John!"

"Was the clock right?"

"Yes; I set it last night when you came home. You remember I called downstairs when you came in and asked you what time it was, and you said 10:30. The clock in my room said 1:45, so I turned it back to agree with your watch, and, of course, I called you by the correct time this morning."—Buffalo Express.

The Mule's Error.

One one occasion, writes Attorney Earl B. Smith of Somerton, Yuma county, Ariz., I was obliged to remain at a primitive southern Arizona ranch over night, and at about dusk I was given a quilt, a clean sheet and a pillow and told to take them to the top of a twenty foot alfalfa stack and make up my bed. Knowing the conditions of the country, I did not murmur and climbed the pole ladder to spend the night. I never enjoyed a better night's rest at any hotel. At early dawn I raised my head and saw two yearling mule colts feeding at the edge of the stack. We exchanged glances for a few moments, while the mules' ears showed keen astonishment. Suddenly I rose to my feet, and in doing so the white sheet clung to my shoulders, whereupon the colts "lit out" down the lane as if the Angel Gabriel were descending to take them to celestial pasturage. While at the breakfast table I related the incident, which was much enjoyed, but no remarks were made at the time. As one of the ranch hands was passing out of the door he said in a subdued but distinctly audible voice that it was the first time he had ever heard of a lawyer being mistaken for an angel, and nobody but a mule would have made such an error.—Case and Comment.

A Sight Unseen.

Mr. Heyburn of Idaho sometimes has trouble in getting a large audience of his fellows when he speaks on the floor of the senate. One day last July he rose to make a speech, and, seeing that there were only three men besides himself in their places, he moved to adjourn. This was prevented by the assembling of a quorum of senators who had been sitting in the cloakrooms. In beginning his delayed speech he said: "I do not understand the conduct of senators. I have seen them under all phases. I have seen a senator leave this chamber when he should stay here to receive good advice. I have seen him leave this chamber when by remaining he could have given good advice. The only thing I never saw a senator do was to back out of the door in the middle of his own speech."

The Foot Astray.

William F. Cody was once relating a story which concerned an Indian who had met with an accident in a Buffalo Bill show. It was necessary to amputate the Indian's leg, and in the description of this operation Cody was interrupted frequently by a young doctor who injected technical and medical terms into the straight vernacular of the scout. He was irritated, but ignored the doctor. "A few days after the operation," continued the narrator, "the Indian learned that his leg had been buried. With a whoop he leaped from his bed and jumped upon the doctor with both feet."

"Jumped with both feet after an operation?" shouted the doctor, exulting in his exposure of the great scout's absurd story.

"I said upon the 'doctor with both feet,'" explained Cody, "in order to distinguish him from the other hospital physician, who had only one foot, having put the other into people's affairs so often that he lost it."

SMITHERS GOT A BUMP.

The Minister's Comment When He Heard How It Happened.

Within one minute of stepping out of the taxicab in front of his home Mr. Smithers received two separate and distinct shocks. The first was the size of the bill, and the second was the result of his argument with the chauffeur. Mr. Smithers used such language to the chauffeur before he paid the bill that the taxi man could not resist the temptation to swat Mr. Smithers just once before departing.

On either side of Mr. Smithers lived a gentleman of the cloth, and once during the fracas with the chauffeur Mr. Smithers thought he heard some one spring a shade in the house next door, but before he had time to turn and see who it was the chauffeur landed with that swat. When Mr. Smithers regained his feet the only thing present which had not been there before was a lump rapidly rising in the center of his classic brow.

Next evening at a banquet he met his good neighbor on the east, the Rev. Mr. Havens, who greeted him cordially, but eyed his lump.

"Why, my dear friend," began the clergyman solicitously, "how did you meet with your painful injury?"

"Oh—eh—er—I had to go down into the cellar last night to see about something that went wrong with the furnace. Beastly things, furnaces, you understand. Always getting out of kilter and making you go down into dark cellars—er—and poking round in the blackness." Then Mr. Smithers proceeded into many minute details of how he had hit his head against a projection, how it had felled him to the earth, how he had risen painfully and dragged himself upstairs, but how, in spite of all he could do the lump had come out and asserted itself.

The minister listened. "Queer, isn't it," he remarked reminiscently, "how people get hurt? There was a woman I knew who came to church one Sunday morning with a wound upon her forehead, and when I inquired of her how her injury was received she hastened to assure me that it was nothing at all serious. 'I—I bit it,' said she."—New York Press.

Lowell's Pun.

Once after exposing the ridiculous blunders of the editor of certain old plays James Russell Lowell concluded with the remark, "In point of fact, we must apply to this gentleman the name of the first king of Sparta." No one remembered, of course, what this was, but when they looked it up they found it was Eudamidas.

The Young Member.

Grantley Berkeley in his "Recollections" notes one of the shortest parliamentary speeches on record. It was in the house of commons. Leonard

"I AM BUT A YOUNG MEMBER."

Charlton tried to make a maiden speech, and, rising in his place with a very bald head, known, too, as he was to everybody as one of the oldest stagers in all the ways of the world, he began with great affectation of inexperience and with an exceedingly mild voice, "Mr. Speaker, I am but a young member." On hearing this assertion from so crafty a man, possessing so venerable a pate, the entire house roared with laughter. Twice he stopped, and three times he commenced with these words, but it was useless. The house would not listen, and he never essayed to speak again.

Out of the Battle.

There is in existence a very modest man who, though now peacefully employed, has in his day seen fighting in many parts of the globe His friends know this and lose no opportunity to draw him out anent his thrilling war adventures. But the veteran's modesty is such that his tales are more than likely to be colorless and disappointing. Once some of his friends cornered him and by artful subterfuges led the conversation straight up to a certain battle, in which, as they knew, the veteran had participated. In a moment of carelessness he allowed himself to be trapped into statements regarding that battle, whereupon, noting that he had warmed to the subject, one of his friends suddenly said, "You were in that battle, weren't you?" "Y-yes," confessed the veteran, much embarrassed. "Tell us about your experiences on that day," commanded one of the gathering. There was a breathless silence. The fighter saw there was no way out of it. "On that day," he began slowly, "at a conservative estimate"—all leaned forward eagerly—"I ran twelve miles."

—Church—Did you every try working in a tunnel?

My back ached constantly and there was pain across my kidneys. My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply and they made a different man out of me. I got this remedy at Randolph's Drug Store and my experience was so satisfactory that I cannot make my endorsement of it too strong. NEW BLOW AIMED AT SUFFRAGETTES

Government Makes Arrests on Conspiracy Charges.

LONG SENTENCES POSSIBLE

Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and Miss Christabel Pankhurst Arrested In Raid on Headquarters, and Warrant Is Out For Mrs. Pankhurst. Records Seized.

London, March 6.—A new and determined stand against the suffragettes was put in operation by the government by issuing warrants and arresting leaders of the movement on conspiracy charges, for which a prison term of seven years may be imposed upon conviction. Inspector McCarthy and a large number of detectives raided the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political union.

They were armed with warrants for the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and Miss Christabel Pankhurst. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence were arrested immediately, but Miss Pankhurst was not present. The Lawrences were taken to Bow street police court. Miss Pankhurst was arrested this morning.

The specific charge against the persons arrested is conspiring to incite certain persons to commit malicious damage to property. It is understood that warrants have been issued for other leaders.

Meanwhile a section of detectives took formal possession of the offices of the union and seized all the books and papers, which are now being examined.

Miss Vaughan, the assistant editor of the suffragette paper Votes For Women, was present in the union rooms, but was not arrested. To an interviewer she said that if the government thought it was going to crush the women by making arrests and charging them with conspiracy it was greatly mistaken. On the contrary, this action would bring an immense accession of supporters to the militant movement.

The action by the police was the result of Prime Minister Asquith's consultation with the attorney general. The exact line of procedure against the union has not yet been indicated, but it is assumed that it will include the attachment of the funds of the organization, which, it is claimed, amount to $500,000.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is now in Holloway jail, is included in the conspiracy indictment with the others.

The maximum penalty, if convicted under the conspiracy charge, is seven years' imprisonment at penal servitude.

M'FARLAND BEATS HOGAN.

Chicagoan Played With Californian at Fairmount Athletic Club.

New York, March 6.—There was no doubt about Packey McFarland's superiority over One Round Hogan at the Fairmount Athletic club. Hogan was a toy in the hands of the wonderful Chicago boxer. From the moment the men put up their hands it was apparent that McFarland had assumed an easy task. He was so fast on his feet that Hogan was clearly bewildered.

McFarland evidently tried for a knockout more than once. He had the "native son" groggy when the ninth round ended, but he could not floor him. Hogan braced up in the last round and took desperate chances, but he could not land and received an artistic lacing.

ASTOR PAYS $5,000 FOR DEATH

Settles Suit Brought by Mother of Man Killed at Beechwood.

Newport, R. I., March 6.—The $30,000 damage suit brought against Colonel John Jacob Astor by Mrs. Bridget McCrohan of this city for the death of her son, Eugene McCrohan, at the Astor summer home, Beechwood, in 1909, has been settled. A stipulation was filed with the clerk of the superior court entering judgment in the sum of $5,000, with no costs.

SAILORS WASHED OVERBOARD.

Two Jackies on Wompatuck Drowned In Storm In South Pacific.

Washington, March 6.—During a heavy storm on March 3 in the south Pacific Lewis K. Winters of Wellsboro, Pa., and Joseph Pasternak of New York city, sailors on the U. S. S. Wompatuk, were washed overboard and drowned, according to a cablegram received at the navy department from the Philippines. The bodies were not recovered.

Parsons Trial Is Delayed.

New York, March 6.—Owing to the illness of Miss Josephine Nicoll, daughter of De Lancey Nicoll, chief of counsel for the defense, the trial of John E. Parsons, former counsel of the sugar trust, and others indicted with him on a charge of conspiring in restraint of trade was postponed.

Steel Suit Postponed.

Philadelphia, March 6.—The government's suit against the steel trust was indefinitely postponed by Judge Gray, who held that the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Lanning would have to be filled before the hearings proceeded.

MRS. RALPH H. THOMAS.

Whose $6,000 Earring, Which She Lost, Was Returned by Finder.

LOST EARRING RETURNED.

Mrs. Ralph H. Thomas Dropped Jewel at Opera and Woman Finds It.

New York, March 6.—Less than twelve hours after she had reported its loss to the police a diamond and emerald earring, valued at $6,000, lost by Mrs. Ralph H. Thomas, divorced wife of Frank J. Gould, was returned to her by Mrs. Sherwin, who had found it at the Metropolitan Opera House. Mrs. Sherwin, after seeing the story in the papers, returned it to the Thomas home, 540 Park avenue.

PARKER HEIRS TO CONTEST.

Charge Legal Adviser and Sole Executor of Deceased With Fraud.

New York, March 6.—The heirs of Joseph Parker, the New Haven paper manufacturer, who died in this city on May 9, 1910, have brought suit to set aside his will, which was admitted to probate a month after his death without protest from his next of kin. The complaint alleges that the will was executed through the fraud of James M. Townsend, a lawyer, at 165 Broadway, who had been Mr. Parker's legal adviser for seventeen years. The complaint alleges that the entire estate amounts to about $1,300,000 and that the residuary estate, which it gives to Mr. Townsend, will be over $1,200,000.

The answer of Townsend, who is the sole executor under the will, has not been filed.

WOMEN'S TAFT CLUB.

Suffragists of California Form a Boost Organization.

Washington, March 6.—California women are getting prominent places in the active Taft organization now being perfected in that state, according to a telegram received at the White House. The suffragists have formed a separate organization, known as the Woman's Taft auxiliary, which will be affiliated with the regular organizations and have equal activity in the preconvention campaign.

The telegram announces that the Taft organization is now complete. Charles M. Hammond, a brother-in-law of Colonel Roosevelt, has been selected state president of the organization.

TRICKY ELEPHANTS.

The Cunning They Displayed In Procuring a Stolen Meal.

Singular as it may seem, elephants which have associated with men entertain the notion that, under special circumstances, they are not responsible if they utilize another to commit an illegal act. The following is an instance of this elephantine morality.

A man in Rangoon bought three young elephants to send to England. They were tame and playful, but cunning. Knowing that it was wrong to steal paddy (unhusked rice)—the idea had doubtless been impressed upon them by punishment for stealing—they would not touch it themselves, but if a boy went to see them he would be seized by one, the little trunk would be coiled around his arm, and he would be led to where the paddy was kept in bags.

The elephant would make a cat's paw of the boy's hand to take up a handful of paddy. Then, letting go, he would turn up the end of his trunk, open it and coaxingly invite the boy to drop in the paddy.

Should the boy, however, put it back in the bag his arm would again be seized by the trunk, and his hand would be again inserted into the paddy bag.

The boy, anxious to be released, would usually drop the paddy into the trunk, and the elephant would blow the rice into his mouth. After repeating the operation several times the elephant would scamper off, feeling that he had got the paddy without stealing it.—Harper's.

GAMBLED IN SECRET.

The Romance of Mark Lemon's Most Successful Drama.

There is a singular story connected with the play "Hearts Are Trumps," which Mark Lemon, the famous Punch editor, wrote many years ago. When Mark Lemon was visiting a friend's house one day he found there an elderly gentleman with long white hair and a worn, sad face. He was very seedily clad, and there was something in his appearance which excited Lemon's curiosity. When the visitor had gone Mark inquired who he was.

"A rich man once," replied his friend. "Lost everything at the gaming table. But the strangest part of the story is that no one, not even the members of his own family, suspected him of gambling until the crash came. He had kept it a secret from all who knew him. He is now little better than a beggar. He comes to me sometimes and I give him a good meal for the sake of auld lang syne."

The tale haunted Mark, says Thormanby in "The Spice of Life." He imagined a daughter waiting at home night after night for the gambling father, ignorant of his secret vice until the day of ruin revealed the cause of all those mysterious absences. He worked the idea into a play which he called "Hearts Are Trumps," the most successful of all his seventy dramas. On the first night it was produced, glancing into the pit, he saw seated among the audience the very man whose career had suggested the plot.

A Contrast In Monarchs.

Emperor Napoleon has often been seen detaching his own cross of the Legion of Honor to place it himself on the breast of a hero. Louis XIV. would first have asked if the brave man was a noble. Napoleon asked if the noble was brave. A sergeant who in battle had performed prodigies of valor was brought before Louis XIV. "I grant you a pension of 1,200 livres," said the king.

"Sire, I should prefer the cross of St. Louis."

"I should think so, but you will not get it."

Napoleon would have embraced the sergeant. Louis XIV. turned his back on him. It is the decided distinction which separates the two epochs.—From "Recollections of an Officer of Napoleon's Army."

An Eccentric Vicar.

One wonders what London thought of Robert Stephen Hawker, the vicar of Morwenstow, when he visited London (for the second time in his life) in 1864. Lord Exmouth, invited to lunch with him at the Great Western hotel, Paddington, found him dressed precisely as he used to dress in his Cornish village—fisherman's knitted jersey, long purple coat and wading boots. Lord Exmouth, bubbling with laughter, said, "I am not surprised the waiter should say there was no clergyman here." To which Hawker replied: "No doubt you would rather see me dressed like a waiter, with a black coat and white choker! I've felt obliged to say 'Sir' to him twice already."—London Express.

Dyaks Fond of Monkey Meat.

The Dyaks of southwestern Borneo hunt nearly all the game in the vicinity of their settlements with spears except in the case of the orang outang, which is hunted with guns. It seems that these wild people are very fond of the meat of the orang outang and consequently those animals are very scarce in the neighborhood of Dyak camps.

Not Acquainted.

"Are you at all familiar with Plato?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle.

"No; that's one thing Josiah always blames me for. He says I never make real friends with anybody."

Welcome.

"I s'pose I look like a tramp, Catherine Ann, but I'm your cousin, Cy Barker, back from the Klondike with $40,000 in gold. Gee, don't smother me!"—Chicago Tribune.

We take pleasure in announcing to the men of Plainfield and vicinity our great semi-annual ten-day tailoring sale, which began Wednesday morning. To those who have taken advantage of our previous custom tailoring sales little need be said. They know. To those who have never worn a Bamberger $13.80 custom tailored suit or coat we wish to say that these garments are the best ever produced at the price. They fit. They possess style and individuality. They are faultlessly finished. They are made of the same materials that you usually find in much higher priced suits. This year's sale is the best yet. The materials are much more diversified than ever before and of better quality, too. DENIAL OF INJUNTION UPHELD IN WATER CASE

Somerville, March. 6.—Giving credit to allegation by the Somerville Water Company, that it had no intention of taking water from the Raritan or its tributaries to fulfil contracts with three other water companies, without first acquiring a right to do so, the Court of Errors yesterday affirmed Vice-Chancellor Walker's denial of a preliminary injunction against the company prayed for by riparian owners on the Raritan.

In the syllabus it is declared that "a preliminary injunction will not be granted merely to allay the fears They must show the court that the acts against which they ask protection are not only threatened, but will, in all probability, be committed to their injury.

The Somerville Water Company, according to the bill of complaint was organized in 1881 to supply the towns of Somerville and Raritan. In 1907 the company contracted with the Piscataway Water Company, the Raritan Township Water Company and the Elizabethtown Water Company to furnish water, not to exceed 20,000,000 gallons a day.

The company, without lawful authority, the complainiants alleged, laid a thirty-six inch main from a point near its pumping sation in Raritan, through Raritan and Somerville, and applied to the authorities, for permission to extend the main along a county road from the Somerville line to a point in the county of Middlesex.

This action led to the institution of injunction procedings before Vice-Chancellor Walker by Bernard who claimed that they would be greatly damaged by the proposed diversion of twenty millions of gallons of water for the benefit of the three water companies named.

The defendant water company denied that it had any intention of taking water "without first acquiring as against the complainiants a right so to do, either by purchase or comdemnation." The answer further stated "that the company never claimed, and does not now claim, to have any such right."

STILL A FEW HORSES IN SPITE OF AUTO TRADE

There will be plenty of work for the S. P. C. A. for years to come, in spite of the growing use of motor cars and trucks, according to Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, special officer of the Union County S. P. C. A.. Mrs. VanHoesen said today:

"A gentleman in talking to me the other day made the remark, 'That there would soon be no further use for the S. P. C. A. as far as horses were concerned as they were a vanishing factor in modern life.' Perhaps there are others that feel the same way so I wish to state a few facts:

"In 1900 there were 21,203,901 horses in the United States. By the census report of 1910 there were 22,813,850, a gain of 1,609,949. In 1900 there were 3,438,523 mules in the United States, in 1910 there were 4,453,943, a gain of 1,015,420. The total value of the horse, mules and colts reaches the sum of $2,598,699,908, leaving only $2,296,248,874 as the total value of all asses, burros, goats, poultry and bees.

"While cattle increased in total value during the decade less than one per cent., horses and colts increased in total value 132 percent, and mules and colts 166 per cent.

"So in the face of these facts, my opinion is that there will be plenty of work for the S. P. C. A. for years to come, and more work each year, until we have compulsory humane education in the schools."

PAID FIRE CHIEF MEASURE GOES THROUGH OVER VETO.

New Brunswick, March 6.—The ordinance under which a paid fire chief is to be appointed at a salary of $1,250 a year, was passed by a unanimous vote over the veto of Mayor John J. Morristown at the regular meeting of the Council. It raised the pay of theoverseer of the poor $300. He held that under the law this could not be done pending the term of the present overseer.

The question of a filtration plant for the city is to be discussed at a meeting of the board next Monday night as a committee of the whole. A comission is to be appointed of five members, to be known as the Water, Purification and Filtration Commission, to arrange for issuing bonds for $100,00 for a filtration plant.

PROBLEM OF THE CHURCH PAPERS IS CIRCULATION.

The annual meeting of the Methodist book committee has lately been held and two full rays given to the discussion of "Christian Advocate." These are the titles of the official weekly papers, as the New York Christian Advocate, the Northwestern Christian Advocate, etc., representing different sections of the country. Some of these are not conducted at a profit. These advocates constitute the most elaborate system of church publication of any denomination, but the same problem of falling circulation is to be found in some modified form in other denominations. Facts which the Christian leaders look in the face are these: "Christian Advocates," South as well as North, is 246,000.

There are 1,000,000 Episcopalians The total circulation of all Episcopal weeklies, as given by themselves, is less than 50,000. In other religious bodies practically the same showing is made. The conservation congress of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, held in April, is to have a publicity commission, and the question of religious weeklies is to come before it.

SUGGEST WEEK OF PRAYER FROM MAR. 31 TO APRIL 6.

The international brotherhood committee suggests that a week of prayer be held in holy week, March 31 to April 6. This brotherhood committee is the result of a conference held in Chicago in 1910 by representatives of various brotherhoods. While this recommendation is for a distinctive interbrotherhood week of prayer, it is suggestive for all churches. For a number of years some Protestant denominations of the congregational order have gradually observed more and more the week preceding Easter, a week usually regarded as interesting only the liturgical churches. To make of this week not only one of prayer but of reflection by the whole church on the daily events of the week which contained Gethsemane, the cross and the tomb, would be a signal evidence of the spirit of unity.

THE CHURCHMAN PASSES UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT.

The Churchman, recognized as an official organ of the Protestant Episcopal church, passes under an entirely new management this month. A syndicate of prominent Episcopalians have taken over the paper from Marshall H. Mallory, the present owner, and Dr. Silas McBee, editor for sixteen years, will retire. It had been expected that Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector since 1892, of the Episcopal church of Newton Centre, Mass., and editor since 1898 of The Church Millitant, diocesan paper of the Massachusetts Diocese, would be the new editor, but he has declined the position.

While the real reason for this change of management of The Churchman is not made known, it is said, that the editorial attitude has offended influential members of the church, especially the protest of The Churchman against the abandonment of services in St. John's chapel, Varick street, New York, by Trinity parish. Under the new control it is promised that the paper will represent "all schools of thought in the denomination."

The Archbishop of Canterbury England, in an address in the cathedral to the clergy of his diocese has called for the abolition of poverty. He entertains the hope that poverty will be eliminated in England in two generations. The archbishop sees no short cut, but he believes a way can be found by perseverance. "We who are here today," he said, "may ourselves be quite unfitted to hammer out the solution, but it is the task of the workers in the church of God to foster the growth of such a spirit as shall make those results certain, and to promote such a sense of responsible brotherhood on earth that men shal see that the solution by whatever pathway reached is imperative and inevitable. By that their resolve anr prayer. It was by a better understanding of what their problems were that they would place themselves in a more favorable position for solving them."

SENATE JAMMED AT L. O. HEARING

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer One of the Speakers in Bill's Favor.

USES VIGOROUS LANGUAGE

People, He Tells Senators, Demand Measure As a Right and Not Act of Grace—Griggs As Vigorous Against the Bill.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 7.—Local option advocates and opponents arrived at the State House in delegations of hundreds yesterday when the Senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, held a public hearing on Senator Gebhardt's local option bill. The Senate chamber was entirely too small to accommodate the throngs and the galleries were crowded to the doors. When the Senators arrived they found that even their desks had been taken and many of them were crowded back against the walls. About ten of the twenty-one Senators remained during the hearing.

Among the arguments were those viewing the brewing industry as a business proposition, because of the number of men it employed. On the other hand the hardships the traffic is said to bring about was pointed out. Ministers and members of the W. C. T. U. were out in force and Rev. Edward I. Stearns, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, was busy marshaling his forces. The beer manufacturers and saloonkeepers, too, were on the alert throughout.

Former Governor John W. Griggs was the principal speaker against the bill. Judge A. Z. Blair, of Adams county, O., was the chief speaker for the measure.

When former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield urged the passage of the measure he said that next to Heaven there is no place higher than a public office used for public good and next to hell there is no lower place than a public office used for private gain.

Mr. Swackhamer said in part:

"We appeal to you for a right which you hold in simple trust for the people; a right recognized by the Constitution and sanctioned by law; a right exercised by the people of all but three States of this Union; the right of the citizens and taxpayers in the municipalities of this State to put their opinions about granting or denying liquor licenses into the ballot-box; the right to settle at their own door sills the saloon question, as they have settled every other question for more than a hundred years by the American method of the freeman's ballot.

"This legal, constitutional, American political right is inherent in American citizenship, for all sovereignty is vested in the people; so says the constitution under which you hold your offices, but this right cannot be exercised without an enabling act, a local option law; and the people, who pay your salaries, and whom you represent, demand this measure, not as an act of grace, but as a writ of right.

"We know that a huge business, so vicious that it cannot live a day without a license permit, stands like a granite wall against this bill. We know that a powerful, special interest, the only special interest that has escaped the reformer's lance, wants you to put this bill to death, and will, if it can, put you politically to death, if you dare disregard its wish; but political death is not the most dreadful form, and we believe there are representatives here who would rather end their political careers by an act of justice in the performance of a duty, than to survive politically by the mean surrender of this popular right.

"Every popular right, but local option, has been advocated by the champions of popular government. Every special interest, but the saloon interest, has been assailed from every side. Why is this one popular right rejected and deserted? Why is this one special interest left unmolested? The saloon, chin deep in politics, may say: 'This is a moral and religious issue, which has no proper place in politics;' but, is there any power on this planet that can give this franchise to the people, but the Legislature? I do not know, but I believe that, while I speak, every man here says in his mind and conscience: 'The principle is right; the people are entitled to this law;' but, this thought may come up: 'Is it politically safe for me to declare it and vote it?'

"Gentlemen, next to Heaven, there is no higher place than a public office used for the public good; next to hell, there is no lower place than a public office used for private ends."

Lecture On Holy Land.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will give a talk on his trip to the Holy Land and show curios, to the Junior Epworth League of Grace M. E. church tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

TROLLEY CONDUCTOR IS CRUSHED BETWEEN CARS

Charles Weaver Goes to the Hospital as the of Result an Odd Accident at Front and Somerset Streets.

Charles Weaver, twenty-six years old, a conducter on the Netherwood trolley line, was caught between two cars at Front and Somerset streets, at 10:30 last night, receiving serious injuries that necessitated his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. His left leg sutained a compound fracture and numerous abrasions caused a great loss of blood, leaving him in a very weakened condition. His condition today was reported as being fair.

Weaver, who is married and lives on Greenbrook road, came from Netherwood on the down run a short time after the Fourth street car had reached the Somerset street turning point. He was in the act of swinging his trolley pole and was between the two cars when Michael Flynn, motorman of the Fourth street conveyance, started up. He knew the Netherwood car was ahead of him, but on account of water dimming his vestibule glass, believed it to be further ahead than it was. He was unaware that Weaver was in between. The latter was caught unawares and jammed by the fenders, his cries giving Flynn the first intimation that something was wrong.

The injured man was lifted out by the other trolleymen and Patrolman Birmingham called the ambulance. Weaver retained consciousness and displayed great nerve throughout the ordeal. Traffic on all local lines was held up half an hour as a result of the accident.

NEW P.C.C. SECRETARY; ACTIVE SEASON EXPECTED

Dr. F. E. DuBois was elected trustee and secretary of the Plainfield Country Club at the March meeting of the trustees last night. He succeeds George S. Clay, who felt obliged to retire after several years' service on account of the pressure of other duties. Mr. Clay's resignation was accepted with regret.

Appointments to the various committees will not be made until the next meeting of the board. In the meantime the trustees authorized important work to be done this month. The clubhouse, farm house and caddie house are to be painted. The latter is to be moved from its present site to a position between the first tee and the eighteenth. The grounds committee was directed to complete the work of widening and resurfacing the driveways, employing extra labor if necessary, so as to have the work entirely completed before the club opening.

The green committee will be prepared to start in on seeding and top dressing as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Extra labor will be employed if necessary in order to rush the work along. It is confidently expected that the new holes will be in play before summer.

Tuesday, May 28, was allotted for a one day's women's golf tournament, similar to that of last year, under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association.

A feature is to be made this year by the house committee of the social side of club life, by way of teas and special entertainments; the Saturday dances for club members will be continued as usual.

Several new members were elected last night, from applications already on file, and an unusually active season in all departments is expected.

The trustees in attendance at the meeting were Leighton Calkins, president; John P. Stevens, vice-president; S. D. Lounsbery, treasurer, and R. H. Cox, J. E. Erickson, S. W. Merrihew, R. S. Rowland and J. P. Murray.

LECTURE RECITAL WILL BE REAL MUSICAL TREAT.

One of the greatest treats that music lovers are to have in Plainfield this spring will be given at the residence of Mrs. Isaac Schwed, of Evergreen avenue, on March 15. The Plainfield Equal Suffrage League has engaged Mrs. Victor W. Goldberg to give her lecture recital on "Koenigs Kinder."

The story of the opera is told act by act. The principal arias and songs are played and sung and the educational value will be in a measure understood when it is said that one gets a getter idea of the composer's idea than they would at an ordinary full company production of the opera.

ORGANIZATION SOCIETY SEEKS JOBS FOR 10 MEN.

The Charity Organization Society has a list of eight or ten able-bodied men who are willing to do work of any kind. Some are mechanics, others brick layers and still others are capable of doing handy work of all kinds. The organization would like to secure employment for these men, and their names can be secured at the rooms in the Babcock building.

FIRE CHIEF'S CAR TO BE ROADSTER OF N.Y. TYPE

The councilmanic fire and building committee at its meting last night decided on a roadster type of automobile for Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department. One of the seats will be removed and provision made in the rear to carry rubber boots, coats, etc., for the chief and his men.

There seems to have been some misunderstanding regarding the car originally recommended for the chief, as the committee had no intention of purchasing a touring car, as referred to by Mayor G. W. V. Moy in giving his reason for vetoing the purchasing resolution. When equipped as planned by the committee the car will be similiar to those used by the New York fire department. Chairman D. W. Taylor and Fred Endress, of the committee, have been given authority to close the deal.

PLANS FOR CONVERSION OF THE CHEMICAL ENGINE

Plans for converting the chemical engine at fire headquarters into a motor-driven apparatus have been considered by the councilmanic fire committee to the extent of securing estimates. Several bids have been received and the one that impresses the committee most favorably is from the International Motor Company, of this city, formerly known as the Saurer Motor Truck Company.

The company offers to make the desired changes and provide the chemical engine with a suitable chassis, complete, for less than $4,000. The apparatus would be a combination chemical and hose affair, thus making it possible to do away with the two horses now used for the engine, as well as two extra horses for the hose wagon. This would mean considerable saving.

The Woodhouse-Lough Auto Machine Company, of this city; also the Knox Motor Company, the Comer Motor Company and the Packard Company have submitted bids for the work, but the committee say that none of the estimates appear as advantageous as that of the International Motor Company. The fire committee will have another meeting soon, after which some recommendation will be presented to the Common Council for action.

SENATORS FAVOR SILZER FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 7. An unusually high tribute was paid to Senator

Senator Silzer.

George S. Silzer, Democrat, of Middlesex County, yesterday afternoon, when the entire Senate, with a few exceptions, called on Governor Wilson and urged him to appoint Senator Silzer Secretary of State. Senator Edge, Republican leader, acted as spokesman, and said to the Governor that they had come to place up with him the question of the appointing before it was made, instead of advising with it after it was made. SenatorEdge paid Senator Silzer a high tribute as to his fitness for the position.

Governor Wilson said that he appreciated the visit of the Senators and woud consider their request. He gave no indication of what he would do.

All the Republican Senators were in the delegation except President Grince, who was detained. Senators Low and Slocum, of the Democrats, did not go, as they are standing for the appointment of David Crater, of Monmouth County. Senator Slocum is for Crater, because he represents Monmouth. Senator Low is for Crater, as a member of the Democratic State Committtee.

FRED D. STOVER WINS PROMOTION IN THE WEST

The New Meadows Tribune, of New Meadows, Adams county, Idaho, of a recent date, publishes the following item concerning a former Plainfield, under the caption, "A Deserved Recognition:" "At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the P. & I. N. Railway held February 8 last, at the New York office, Fred D. Stover was duly elected to the office of assistant treasurer of the company. And it is a pleasant duty to add our feeble congratulations—voicing this worthy young man's numerous friends' sentiments. And Fred will 'make good.'"

Mr. Stover is a brother of Stephen Stover, of this city, and lived here before going west. He will be remembered as a member of the Y. M. C. A. baseball team and was popular among the fans.

Save Firemen Some Steps.

The North Plainfield Council last night authorized the installation of an extension telephone in the fire house. The only instrument in headquarters at present is located in the sleeping quarters. As the men during the day time are always on the ground floor it necessitates a run upstairs everytime a call is answered.

—Neuman Bros. are offering strictly fresh eggs. The prices are steadily going down.

It was decided by the North Plainfield Council last night that the report of Suffern & Son, the auditors who made the annual audit of the books of the borough, will be published without the paragraph regarding the increased expenses of the street department in 1911 over the sum spent in 1910. The action was part of a lively session.

The expunged paragraph caused the appearance of former Mayor N. B. Smalley, at his own request, before the Council at the regular March meeting last Friday night. It stated that the details regarding the increased expenditures were not available.

Mayor Smalley gave a detailed accounting of all the money spent and furnished the Council with copies of the same after explaining each item. The former executive stated that the details were just as available to the accountants as they had been to him but so far as he was able to learn no effort had been made to obtain them. He made his copy from the books in the office of the borough clerk, which had been turned over to the new administration the first of the year.

There was considerable objection, lead by Councilman Rushmore, to the paragraph being expunged. A number of minor discrepancies in the report have also developed and these were ordered corrected before the report goes to press.

Several tilts developed between members of the Council and former Borough Clerk F. A. Martin, who had discovered the errors and had taken the liberty of noting them on the certified copy sent to the printer without formally notifying Mayor Clark of the change. Mayor Clark commended Mr. Martin for not wanting an erroneous report to go out, but seriously objected to his taking upon himself the authority of making the change.

During the action of the debate on the changing of the report a dialogue between Councilman Buttfield and Mr. Suffern engaged the attention of the Council and gallery. The councilman asked the auditor to give the per cent. of increase in the street department and received the reply that it was 20 per cent. Then the per cent. of increase in the sundries was asked for, and it was shown to be more than 90 per cent.

Councilman Buttfield asked why the accountant had given his whole attention to an increase of 20 per cent. in one department and did not attempt to give any detailed information regarding the cause of an increase of nearly double in another.

After continued questioning on the part of the councilman and more or less hesitation on the part of the accountant, the admission was made that attention had been called to the street department increase. No names were mentioned.

On behalf of the State Trust Company, Councilman Milne read a communication in which that institution offered the same terms for the handling of the borough funds as that made last week by the Plainfield Trust Company and Councilman Rushmore read one from the Plainfield Trust Company offering the terms made last week for either the borough money or the school fund or both. The terms made last week were contingent on the school money being deposited with the Plainfield Trust Company, and over the placing of this money the Council has no control.

Seeing that another lengthy discussion was about to be launched on this matter and that the councilmen's nerves were being worn to a frazzle by the continued bickering, Councilman Woolston offered a resolution to law the propositions on the table until the next meeting. This was carried, only Mr. Rushmore voting in the negative.

Councilman Rushmore moved that the recommendations of Suffern & Son regarding the keeping of the borough books be adopted. The change in the system would increase the work of Tax Collector George F. Brown, and he protested against the move. The matter was left in the hands of a committee composed of Councilmen Buttfield, Rushmore and VanArsdale for adjustment after looking into the advisability of the recommendations. The Council will meet again next Thursday night.

Saving a Little Girl.

The Board of Managers of the Children's Home Association, is sending to a sanitorium in New York State, a little girl who has developed tuberculosis in its earliest stage and if she can remain there, the chances are highly favorable that the disease will be checked and the child fully restored to health. Washington, March 7.—The war department was notified by General Bell at Manila that the second and third battalions of the Fifteenth infantry, 800 officers and men, had sailed for Taku.

Admiral Murdock, commanding the Asiatic fleet at Shanghai, reported that the collier Abarenda sailed from Shanghai with 200 marines to re-enforce the legation guard of about 300 marines at Peking. The Abarenda was accompanied by the cruiser Cincinnati. The transport Buffalo sailed from Chefoo for Taku, the nearest approach to Tientsin, and the torpedo boat Decatur sailed from Wuhu for Nanking, up the Yangtse river.

Shanghai, March 7.—It was reported here that Rev. F. Day, a missionary, had been murdered at Chinchow by mutinous soldiers. The missionary was attached to the mission of the Church of England and to the district of Paotingfu. He was on a tour of his district when killed.

He was accompanied by Bishop Scott and another missionary, F. S. Hughes. The Rev. Mr. Day and Mr. Hughes left Bishop Scott at Tienchwangying and went to Chinchow, where mutinous soldiers were looting. The troops seized the conveyances of the two men, and the missionaries attempted to recover them. The soldiers became angry and fired, killing Dr. Day.

Mr. Hughes escaped and made his way to the municipal building and is awaiting help from the British authorities at Peking.

BOB ELLERS' LAST DOLLAR KEEPS ON SLIPPING AWAY

Considerable interest was aroused a few days ago in a Plainfield store, when the proprietor received in exchange for some goods a dollar bill upon which there was a curious inscription. On one corner of the bill, which was in an excellent state of preservation, was written "Bob Eller, Georgetown Square, Washington, D. C. The last of $50,000. Wine, Women and Song."

When the bill was received by one of the clerks the writing was not noticed, but was discovered later by the proprietor. It was the intention to keep it, but in some way it went to the City National Bank with some other money for deposit. An effort was made to recover it, but the bank people were unable to find it.

DEMANDS SHEATHS FOR STILETTO-LIKE HAT PINS

(Special from Staff Correspondent)

Trenton, March 7. — Women will have to protect their hat pins so that the sharp points will not injure other persons if a bill introduced in the House yesterday by Assemblyman Murray meets with the approval of the members.

Mr. Pickart would authorize governing bodies to make provisions for the support of children who are abandoned or whose parents are confined in prison. He would also fine a father not less than $500 and put him in prison not less than two years who abandons his wife and children and fails to support them. Under a bill by Mr. Donnelly clerks, surrogates and sheriffs of counties of less than 50,000 population are to receive a salary of $3,000.

Mr. Henessy has bills requiring the advertising for building or other county suppiles of more than $500 in amount and the giving of bonds by sinking fund comissioners and those appointed to acquire or construct county buildings.

From Cranford Chronicle.

Six thousand dollars saved and a decisive vote pronounced against the further investigation of a municipal water supply question by Engineer Fuerties, is the result of the special election held on Tuesday — a result upon which, we submit, Cranford is to be heartily congratulated. In both districts the appropriation voted on was beaten decisively, and it is now a matter of plain figures that the project is dead as a door nail. The vote was as follows:

First District—Against, 91; For 64.

Second District—Against, 84; For, 59.

Total—Against, 175; For, 123.

The lack of public interest in the matter is evidenced by the small number of votes cast, in spite of the fact that on Monday afternoon circulars urging a "Yes" vote were sent out by mail to a selected list of citizens who were thought to be favorable to the appropriation.

But as the vote shows, a heavy majority of the citizens who did take the trouble to go to the polls had studied the question for themselves and arrived at the conclusion that the appeal should be denied.

Mr. Fuerties will now have the leisure to reconcile, if he can, his recommendations against, and for the Echo Lake supply and to spend his fee of $1,000, already received from Cranford, in taking another delightful trip to Venezuela.

The absence of W. M. Sperry in Florida, and of S. R. Dresher in Europe raises the question by whose authority was their names attached to the circular above mentioned? Another gentleman informs us that his name was used without his knowledge or consent, and that he was opposed to the appropriation advocated in the circular. Such tactics come pretty near the border of forgery, and every man on the printed list who did not read the circular prior to the publication, and authorize the printing of his name, has reason to call the guilty parties to account.

The regular meeting of the Young Friends' Association will be held tomorrow night at the home of Charles E. Vail, on Norwood avenue. The subject will be "The Work of the Peace Conference and Its Treaties."

HUNT OF STATE PROD FOR SLOW-PAY RAILROADS.

CHEERS AND TEARS FOR FAMOUS FLAG

Demonstration of Enthusiasm Occurs In House.

ARE UNANIMOUS FOR BILL

Appropriation of $30,000 For Preservation, Protection and Exhibition of Naval Trophies Approved Without a Dissenting Vote—Gallery Visitors Applaud Without Interference.

Washington, March 7.—Banging their desks and cheering in an outburst of enthusiastic patriotism inspired by the sight of a famous old flag and some wiping tears from their cheeks, the house of representatives unanimously passed the bill appropriating $30,000 for the repair, preservation and exhibition of the 136 trophy flags which record the history of the navy of the United States from 1812 to 1912. Several congressman spoke for the bill, including Representative Bates of the committee on naval affairs.

The first demonstration occurred when a great, square ensign of navy blue with yellowed white letters straggling across it was thrown over a big easel placed in the well in front of the speaker's desk.

"This tattered ensign," cried Representative Bates of Pennsylvania in ringing tones, "is Commodore Perry's battleflag, inscribed with the words, 'Don't give up the ship!' the last utterance of Captain Lawrence of the ill starred frigate Chesapeake. It was hoisted to the masthead of Perry's flagship at the battle of Lake Erie as the signal for action. Don't you want it preserved?"

There was silence for a moment, and then every member of the house jumped to his feet. The galleries caught the contagion and applauded unreproved by Speaker Clark.

Then while Mr. Bates referred briefly to historic naval battles in which the United States was victorious pages draped other historic flags across the easel for the house to see. Some of them were mere rags, tattered, torn, moth eaten and discolored. Others, some not oldest among them, were faded, but almost whole. A cheer from the house greeted the production of each trophy.

PERKINS MESSENGER TO T. R.

Brings Word From Dixon, but What It Was Is Secret.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 7.—George W. Perkins came to Sagamore Hill bearing a message to Colonel Roosevelt from Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, the chairman of the executive committee of the national Roosevelt committee, who left New York without being able to meet the colonel.

When the colonel was asked about the visit he said that it was true that Mr. Perkins had come to see him and added that he brought a message from Senator Dixon and then went right back to New York. He had nothing further to say.

When George W. Perkins motored back from Oyster Bay to his home he refused to see reporters. He had hardly got into the house when a taxicab containing Senator Dixon drew up to the Perkins home. The senator climbed out clutching a handbag and was swallowed up without a word. Pretty soon along came Frank A. Munsey and next Editor Henry L. Stoddard's automobile.

CUT OUT MAN'S LUNG.

New Method May Be Used In Case of Tubercular Patients.

Boston, March 7.—Dr. Samuel Robinson, visiting surgeon at the Massachusetts General hospital, and Dr. John T. Bottomley of the Carney hospital, tied off and cut out the entire right lung of William Roberts, who was suffering from abscess, by a new method of ether administration.

The surgeon said the method was so new that it was yet impossible to say whether a tubercular lung could be taken out in the same way.

RAILROAD HELD FOR LYNCHING

Must Stand Trial as Conspirator, Says United States Court.

New Orleans, March 7.—The Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific railroad must stand trial before a jury as a conspirator in the lynching of Robert T. Rogers at Tallulah, La., in 1907.

So has decided the United States court of appeals, which reversed the lower court and ordered a new trial.

Rogers' widow charges that lynchers were carried to the scene of lynching in a special train.

SURPRISES MARK CONTEST

time of the special prize period makes the contest doubly alluring and fascinating. In fact one of the pleasant features of the special prize offer is that a new contestant has the same opportunity to win one of these valuable prizes as any of the contestants who have been in the race from the beginning. It is activity for a three weeks' period that will meet its commensurate reward; and in winning one of the special prizes the contestant places herself in a fair way to enjoy one of the delightful European tours.

When the fact is known that in other contests of this kind candidates have been known to enter the race when the voting period had half expired and by dint of ambition and enterprise roll up a trip-winning majority, it may readily be seen that the present contestants need to be continually on the alert. It will also prove an incentive to many of the nominees who are still rambling about in the field of indecision, many of them with campaigns well outlined, waiting only for the word of encouragement from their friends which invariably musters courage and energy.

The best and quickest method of securing votes is, as you have learned, by getting paid-in-advance subscriptions to the Daily Press. The Press is an up-to-date, progressive newspaper, its news is comprehensive, terse and graphic, and is a paper which is worthy of a place in every home. Many communities much larger than Plainfield would take pride in a newspaper the counterpart of the Press. The friends of the contestants care to know that they are interested in winning a trip. Tell those you know about the great European tour you are desirous of winning, and then watch your vote list grow.

CHINESE EAGER TO HEAR OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

Mrs. D. H. Davis, who has been in charge of the Seventh-Day Baptist mission station at Shanghai, China, for the past thirty years, addressed the members of the Woman's Society for Christian Work at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Davis returned from China prior to the change of the form of government to a republic and she did not touch on that event.

The address covered in detail the suffering of the natives during the famine, and described the rescue work on the part of the missionaries and government officials. Mrs. Davis spoke hopefully of the spread of the Gospel among the Chinese and of their willingness to learn about Christ. She predicts a great future for the progress of Christianity in China.

In addition to the address there was an informal entertainment comprising violin selections by James Dorr, twelve years old, accompanied on the organ by his mother, Mrs. Russell Dorr; violin selections by Arthur Lewis, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Charles L. Lewis. Roy Titsworth sang several vocal solos. Mrs. David E. Titsworth had charge of the program, and Mrs. E. F. Champlin was chairman of the refreshment committee. Tea and wafers were served.

COAL STRIKE COMING?

Having decided not to grant the miners' demands for a twenty per cent. increase in wages, the anthracite operators are making preparations to face what will be one of the biggest strikes this country has ever seen should their terms not be agreeable to the workers. The formal reply of the operators will be issued on Tuesday and it is not improbable that within the week the miners' union will definitely determine whether to order a walk-out on April 1, when the present agreement terminates. It is declared by the operators that it is out of the question for them to discuss a twenty per cent. raise, though they may consider and finally grant a five per cent. increase. On the other hand the miners say that the cost of living has gone up so much since 1902, when the sliding scale was made by the Roosevelt commission, that necessity demands that there be a one-fifth raise. Not only this but their very existence as a union is threatened, they declare, if they lose this fight.

Some idea of what a strike of the anthracite coal miners would mean to the country may be gained from the six months' experience in 1902. The total number of strikers then was 145,827. Now 180,000 men would be affected and should the bituminous miners join in the walk-out, which is possible as their agreement terminates at the same time and their demands for a raise have not been granted, there would be 600,000 more on strike. Other workers, connected with mining in some capacity or other, would be unemployed. In 1902, there were over 38,000 in this class. There were 367 collieries involved in that big strike and the total loss of wages to the miners and other employes affected amounted to $24,000,000. The loss to the business men in the coal regions alone was over $20,000,000. It cost the State of Pennsylvania more than $1,000,000 for police and still the estimated damage to the mines was placed at over $2,000,000. The loss to the operators soared to tremendous figures, a conservative estimate placing the total at $40,000,000. Ponder over these figures and think what terrible depression a strike of any duration would bring.

Some 800 women scattered about the State are responsible for a petition presented to the Senate by Mr. Pierce urging the repeal of that provision of the employer's liability law affecting the employers of domestic servants. Another Senator, Mr. Gaunt, is about to offer a bill which would exclude farm laborers. This is pretty much like the tariff. The average man holds the protective and revenue scheme responsible for the existence of the trusts and for the high cost of living, but let a move be made to reduce the schedule rate on something from which he derives his income and just listen to him "holler." "It makes a difference whose ox is gored."

In the rightful exercise of its prerogative, the State Senate yesterday recommended to Governor Wilson the appointment of State Senator George Silzer for the Secretaryship of State. The Middlesex senator is a very capable man and he is particularly well equipped to discharge the arduous duties of this most important post. It is therefore to be hoped that the Governor will make an exception to his rule not to appoint a legislator to another office and that he will do so to deservedly honor a man to whom honor is due, George S. Silzer.

Women make 48.4 per cent. of all purchases and are responsible for a total of 59.9 per cent. of all purchases, an association of advertising experts finds after a careful investigation of the woman's part in disposing of the family incomes. "The importance to the advertiser of getting next to the women," remarks an exchange, "is too obvious for comment. It ought to be equally plain that the way for the advertiser to gain the attention of women is to get his message into the family circle."

More than likely the rumor emanating from London to the effect that Robert F. Scott, the British naval officer who started off on June 1, 1910, in quest of the South Pole, had reached his goal, is without foundation. As the newspapermen know best of all, a very small percentage of rumor is really founded on fact, and the circumstantial evidence to corroborate this particular report is so slight as not to warrant it being given any credence.

According to the report of Secretary of the Navy Meyer, the target skill of our gunners is 1,200 greater than in the Spanish War. Yet, it costs the Federal Government but $600,000 a year to bring about this high grade of efficiency. The Secretary is quite correct in his opinion that the true aim of the gunners is a big asset and well worth what it costs.

If the efforts of Senator Wainwright are successful, the New York Legislature will appropriate $10,000 for a fund for the erection of a monument in the commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Horace Greeley. A movement of that importance should be made nation-wide in scope.

JOHN D.'S PASTOR.

When Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton was pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, Cleveland, Ohio, he preached to John D. Rockefeller and some thousand or more others.

He left there when called to the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, New York, where he tells the Gospel truths to a congregation of affluence and influence.

But New York is no place to bring up a family, neither is it a place to live the simple life and live next to nature.

Hence the doctor looked about. He was an ill man at the time and in search of health. That's why he stopped off at Plainfield just to look around. He was a stranger at our gates.

"Quo Vadis," was the salutation of a cabby. "In search of health," my good friend," replied the man of the cloth. So to Watchung the stranger was carried.

"My good friends," said the doctor at a Plainfield banquet a year later, "I am a farmer and am proud of it. I make my abode in that beautiful valley nestled among the Watchug mountains. Verily it is the Switzerland of America."

HUGH F. FOX ON CHARITIES WORK

He Tells of the Coming Conference in Orange and Its Background.

DEPARTURE FROM OLD TYPE

History of the Organization of the New Jersey Conference of Charities and Corrections—Altruistic Effort in the State.

The program for the coming conference, which is to be held in Orange March 24 to 26, deals with the relation of our schools to pauperism, delinquency and crime, writes Hugh F. Fox, of this city, former president of the New Jersey Conference of Charities and Corrections, in the Newark Call. It is an entirely new departure in such conferences, and reflects the genius of the present president of the conference, Professor Royal Meeker, of Princeton. Among the subjects to be discussed are: Education for efficiency; experiences with exceptional children; preventive vs. curative education; New Jersey's rural schools; educational values; the schools as social and recreational centres; open -air schools, and moral and physical education. New Jersey's new law for compulsory medical inspection of school children is developing many new problems, or, rather, has given us a more definite knowledge of the measure of some of the old problems. We are beginning to realize what the the full meaning of education for citizenship applies in physical and moral standards. We are also learning that ill-nourished, under-vitalized, anaemic and sickly children are handicapped from the start, and that their condition is a matter of the greatest public concern. In other words, we are beginning to relate the public school system to social welfare and community interest in a broader way than ever before, and from a physical as well as an educational standpoint are learning the lesson of individual treatmen, and intensive methods.

While the field of the New Jersey conference has widened each year, it is still pre-eminently practical, and is so crystalizing the social forces of the State as to influence public sentiment in developing "a body of thought" about questions of human concern.

The New Jersey Conference of Charities and Correction was organized eleven years ago by Dr. William H. Allen, who was at that time the secretary of the New Jersey State Charities Aid and Prison Reform Association. The New Jersey Review of Charities and Corrections appeared in its first issue as a conference number, and with the backing of the State Charities Aid Association, the conference was an assured success at the start. The first meeting was held at the State House in Trenton on February 20, 1902, during a blizzard which demoralized the train service. In spite of this handicap, however, over 100 out-of-town delegates were present, represeting fifty communities, and practically every branch of public and private relief and correctional work. The late Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, was the first president of the conference, the other presidents having been the late Benjamin F. Lee, of Trenton; Professor E. R. Johnstone, of Vineland; Bleecker Van Wagenen, of Orange; Hugh F. Fox, of Plainfield; the late Rev. Francis A. Foy, of East Nutley; Mrs. Mary C. Jacobson, of Newark; Arthur W. McDougal, of Newark, and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of Hoboken.

The purpose of the conference is to bring together the hundreds of men and women who are dealing at first hand with the problems of human affliction and distress. It shows the points of contact, and the need of co-operation between private benevolent agencies and public relief officers, and their inter-relation with health officers, sanitary officials, medical inspectors, school teachers, truant officers, probation officers, tenement house and factory inspectors, recreation workers, and the whole army of people who are trying to prevent evils, as well as to remedy them, and are working for efficiency in government and the betterment of the people.

The field is so wide that it is utterly impossible to cover it in any one conference. The programs of previous years indicate the trend toward selective subjects, based on the immediately practical questions of the day, rather than the academic treatment of theories. Thus the first year's program took a general survey of the State, while the second year emphasized the work of child-saving and reformatory measures. Private charities were dealt with more particularly in the third conference, while public outdoor relief, the care of defectives, the juvenile court and probation work were the notes of the following year. The sixth conference dealt particularly with medical charities and tuberculosis, the treatment of the criminal, truancy and child labor laws and almshouse administration. The following year child labor, immigration, inebriety and public hygiene were among the subjects considered. In 1908 the State's supervision of charities, State and local boards of health, civil service reform, law enforcement and the care of the blind were the subjects treated. Vagrancy, deserting husbands and preventive work by the municipalities and by the State were the principal subjects of the next conference, while the last two meetings have gone even farther afield.

At the Princeton conference last year the attendance was so great that it taxed the capacity of the largest audience chambers at the university. Every man and woman who is interested in knowing what New Jersey is doing for the social welfare of its citizens is invited to come to the conference and take part in its proceedings. Schools, churches, clubs and private benevolent societies and institutions will all find something of interest.

The conference has no constitution, no charter, no tangible assets and no commercial rating. It is essentially a conference for the exchange of information, experience and ideas. It collects and distributes facts, records experiences, establishes standards, tabulates results, indicates what the next step should be and applies the test of values in all social welfare work. The conference, however, does not adopt resolutions which commit it to any action, and allows no one to express an opinion in the name of the conference. The dominating thought of the conference may perhaps be said to be its insistence upon trained service, efficiency and consecration in organized and social work.

The citizen is concerned in the conference, because it counts the cost of pauperism and crime, not only the huge money cost, but its drain upon the life of the people. In these complex times plain people get bewildered by the many claims upon their interest. But the conference deals with fundamental questions and issues which are at the very core of communal life. The standard of living and the standard of citizenship are simply different ways of stating the same problem, and we can not escape our responsibility for making the standard true.

The conference is most valuable for the specialist also. It gives him the perspective that he needs in his work, and shows him how he may coordinate it with other departments of activity, without lessening the importance of his own particular part in the social structure. It gives practical workers in many fields an opportunity to profit by the mistakes which they and others have made, as well as by the successes they have achieved. The attrition of ideas is suggestive and stimulating, and personal acquaintance among men of like purpose makes for mutual understanding and sympathy.

The conference has done much to promote the solidarity of the State, to break down the barriers of provincialism and to overcome religious and class prejudice. It has left an impress upon and given an uplift to each community that it has visited, and has opened up a vista of opportunities for personal service and social progress to many men and women whose souls have been stirred by the spirit of divine fraternity, but who have needed the impulse of a definite object.

UNION COUNTY WILL GET $30,000 FROM AUTO FUND

Elizabeth, Mar. 7, (Special).—During an interview with State Road Commissioner Stevens in Trenton, County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt, County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer and Freeholders Krouse, Wilbur and Meisel, of the Freeholder committee on roads, received assurances that Union county will get $30,000 out of the State automobile fund for the improvement of roads.

The money will aid considerably in the bettering of the county roads. The State distributes among the different counties various sums from the automobile license fund. The distributions are made principally for the purpose of improving the roads for automobilists.

Attempts to get the money for Union county have been made for the past month or more. It is now practically certain that $30,000 will be the amount for this section. There are many feet of undeveloped roads in the county, making conditions bad for automobilists as well as for other users of the thoroughfares. It is hoped that a remarkable change will be brought about by the automobile fund money.

PETITION AGAINST SUNDAY OPENING IN THE BOROUGH

A petition requesting all merchants in North Plainfield to discontinue doing business on Sunday is being circulated by a prominent Somerset street grocer. This petition is being prepared in anticipation of the receipt of one from residents asking grocers and butchers to keep their places open until noon on Sundays the same as other stores are doing since a recent interpretation of the Sabbath observance law.

The residents who want Sunday opening base their request on the convenience it would be to them to have grocery stores and butcher shops open on Sundays and see no reason why the articles furnished by these stores should not be as easily obtainable on Sunday as the commodities handled in the others, which are not in strict classification of necessities or food stuffs.

The merchants of stores now remaining closed on Sundays, while admitting the probable loss they sustain, assert that they do not want to have their one day of rest encroached upon.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

MAPLE SUGAR DESSERTS.

NOW that the season for fresh maple sugar is at hand housewives who are able to avail themselves of this delicious American sweet may be glad of some recipes which will enable them to make a more extensive use of it.

For the Lunch Basket.

Maple Sandwiches.—Remove the crusts from thin slices of whole wheat or Boston brown bread. Butter lightly and sprinkle over the butter some pounded maple sugar and finely chopped nut meats. The nuts and sugar may be put through the food chopper.

Here is a recipe for a nice yet wholesome cake.

Maple Layer Cake.—Take a cupful of powdered maple sugar and mix it with half a cupful of rich cream. Sift a teaspoonful of baking powder in one and one-fourth cupfuls of flour, adding a teaspoonful of cinnamon and half as much allspice.

Add the yolks of three eggs beaten light, a tablespoonful of cold water, then mix in the flour and, lastly, the stiffly whipped whites of four eggs.

Pour in layer cake pans or bake in a loaf. The frosting for this cake has desiccated or fresh cocoanut mixed in. For a filling between layer cakes make it quite thick with the cocoanut and a little thinner for the smooth frosting for the top of the cake.

Luscious Puddings.

Maple and Tapioca Pudding.—Put two cupfuls of milk in an enameled saucepan. Stir into this two tablespoonfuls of fine tapioca, cook for twenty minutes and remove from the fire. Add the well beaten yolks of three eggs and a pinch of salt.

Put again over the fire and stir till it thickens, then allow it to get cold. Add one cupful of chopped nut meats and two-thirds of a cupful of maple sirup. Pile the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs on top and serve.

Maple sauce that may be served with a plain pudding, one that is not too sweet, may be thus prepared.

Maple Dressing.—Take ten tablespoonfuls of powdered maple sugar. Add a tablespoonful of pastry flour and pour slowly into a cup of boiling water. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly for about five minutes. Then mix in two level tablespoonfuls of butter. Take from the fire and add just enough vanilla to flavor, but not to kill the maple taste. Serve with any pudding that is not very sweet and rich.

FASHION BREVITIES.

Hairdressing This Season Harmonizes With Frock.

With the "little frock" has come the simple coiffure. But, like all simple things, the neatly dressed head is the result of a careful arrangement of strands of hair and sometimes the skillful use of supplemental hair to gain effects which our own growth would not give.

The neatly waved head, with one's own hair divided by the master hand into even strands and with a rippling wave covering each ear, is not as easy as it looks.

The plain, smoothly fitting petticoat is a necessity beneath the fashionable gowns. The skirt pictured is adapted for all the materials used for petticoats. It is finished with a circular flounce edged with a plaited frill.

Good Form

The Well Bred Voice.

One of the elementary laws of good manners prescribes that we shall practice self control, says Florence Howe Hall. Cultivated society goes a step further and demands of us personal refinement. Americans understand this very well so far as dress and outward appearance go. There is perhaps no other nation that pays so much attention to dress as we do. Our countrywomen are admired in Europe for their well made clothes, as well as for their own good looks.

But when they open their lips to speak, alas, all is changed! The harsh nasal tones jar most unpleasantly on the ear. The truth is we do not pay proper attention to the way in which we speak. We do aim at distinctness of utterance, and this we usually achieve. Speech should above all be intelligible, and Americans endeavor always to be understood. This is an excellent thing so far as it goes, but it does not go far enough. Why should we be more slovenly in speech than we are in dress?

The woman who has her hands manicured, her hair and face massaged, but who utterly neglects the cultivation of her voice, has not a proper appreciation of values, as the artists say. She should take lessons in singing or in voice culture, and she should have for a text in her boudoir the lines:

Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman.

When we hear Englishmen or Frenchmen talk it is evident that they have a respect and admiration for their own language. They try to pronounce it so that it will sound well. They seem to understand instinctively that beauty of speech is as great a pleasure to the ear as a beautiful object is to the eye.

If the American woman is wise she does not adopt the British peculiarities of intonation and accent. Nor does she endeavor to make her vocabulary agree with that of the English. She understands that our common language has developed along different lines in the two countries. "Apothecary" and "lawyer" are old Shakespearian words quite as good if not better than the modern British "chemist" and "barrister."

The endeavor to make oneself heard above the din of traffic and conversation is in part responsible for our natural harshness of utterance. At an afternoon tea, where the voices of the women soar higher and higher till they almost reach the screaming point in the vain effort to make themselves heard, the result is disastrous. The habit of calling up and down stairs is also very bad for the voice.

Entertaining Guests.

There are some strict rules indorsed by those who know what is "good form" and others who do not concerning the entertaining of a guest.

A hostess should not accept any invitation that does not include her guest, and she may with propriety (if cards of invitation are received not including a guest) let the prospective hostess know that an invitation is expected. This can be done by telephone or note, simply stating that "I have a young lady (or a man) friend visiting me and should like a card of invitation for her (or him) to your dinner (or ball or whatever) for such and such a date."

If there are callers who are not aware of the presence of a guest a hostess may say she has a friend visiting; then the caller asks to meet whoever it may be. An excellent plan and one generally adopted by those who entertain a great deal and are consequently invited out often is to give an afternoon "high tea," when simple refreshments are best form and everybody in the line of acquaintances invited to meet "Miss Dash."

In the case of a man guest the men of the family see that he has a chance of meeting other men. There may be an evening arranged as well as "bachelor" affairs, where he can be delightfully entertained.

It is good form to just inform a hostess when invitations are received to a dinner, a card party or an affair when special arrangements are to be necessary that one will bring a visiting guest. This is all that is needed.

If one has a reception or affair of any sort the hostess should see that her guest of honor, the one that is visiting her, meets every one present if possible. If a dance the guest should have the men brought to her to fill her dance card and the host sees that she is cared for in every way.

Also a hostess should defer to the wishes and plans of a guest. There may be friends the latter wishes to see that her entertainer is not acquainted with.

On Shaking Hands.

The woman who offers her hand upon accepting an introduction conveys thereby a sign of cordial welcome of the acquaintance, but in formally fashionable society none but the hostesses pursue this course. The inclination of the head, a smile and a murmur of the name constitute a full recognition of an introduction in the eyes of many who regard their bearing as the expression of the best form. In a rather crowded drawing room this mode is to be commended, but at other times a woman, whose prerogative it is to take the initiative on this point, will not greatly err in almost unvaryingly offering her hand.

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association.

Contributing Staff.
Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

The good people of Metuchen have organized a Parent-Teacher association with a surprisingly large charter membership of seventy-five. The society was formed Wednesday a week ago when Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., and Mrs. S. D. Schuyler, of this city, took a prominent part. Each made an address telling what could be accomplished by such an association and how prosperous were the Plainfield societies. The movement at Metuchen was conducted under the auspices of the Borough Improvement League's child welfare committee. Mrs. A. C. Hunt was unanimously elected president and Principal VanKirk, of the high school, vice-president.

At an important and interesting meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Roselle High School, about seventy-five attended. An effective and helpful address was made by Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., of Plainfield. The question box was conducted by Supervising Principal Davis and proved a profitable part of the meeting. The people of the borough, representing all classes, have taken hold of the new organization and its work with much enthusiasm and the membership has now reached one hundred and thirty. A banner in the school colors, bearing the words, Parent-Teacher Association, was presented to the grade having the greatest number of mothers present.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held at the Irving School last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. G. O. Stevens presided. Miss Petrie had charge of the question box. Over a hundred members were present, many taking part in the discussion of the questions relating to the home and school life of the child. Miss Ripper, Mrs. J. C. Pierson and Mrs. Casker were appointed on the Friendly Visiting Committee. A membership committee was also appointed. The association expressed its appreciation of this column published weekly by The Daily Press, keeping them in touch with the work of the national, State and local work of the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Associations. Refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed by teachers and parents.

The Press has reported the informal meeting held at the Plainfield High School on Tuesday to discuss plans for the reorganization of the Parent-Teacher Association in that school. Many requests have come from parents and teachers for a continuation of the meetings of the association and an early date will be set for such a meeting.

The requests from Parent-Teacher Associations for copies of the questions sent to the parents of the Franklin School children by the association of that school, two years ago, have been so many that they are published today, with the hope that other Parent-Teacher Associations may find them helpful.

To co-operate with the teacher for the good of your child, will you visit the school, which your child attends, once during the school year, and remain during one session, observing the following points: Fire escape, ventilation, seating capacity, number of children in the room, drinking water, toilet rooms, play-grounds, playroom for stormy days.

How does your child compare physically and mentally with children of the same age?

Do you co-operate at home in the following ways:

By knowing your child's teacher.

By providing a well-cooked and wholesome breakfast, planning plenty of time to eat it.

By sending your child to school on time, properly clad for the weather, providing rubbers, umbrella and suitable wraps.

By sending your child to the toilet the last thing before leaving home.

Do you show an interest in the school work, report cards and report of the Board of Education?

Do you praise good work and know the reason if poor work is shown?

Do you plant for an uninterrupted study-hour?

Do you provide proper light and ventilation in living and sleeping rooms?

Do you provide wholesome food at proper hours, especially at noon?

Do you know that tea and coffee are very injurious?

Do you provide too many sweets?

Does your child sleep ten hours each night?

Do you teach the value of money by giving an allowance, be it ever so small?

Do you know, not only where your child is, but what he is doing?

Do you attend the meetings of the Parent-Teacher Association?

If you do these things, do you realize how your child is affected by association in school, with children who have not such care?

Please keep this letter for reference.

St. Petersburg has a juvenile court with M. Okouneff as judge. Five probation officers have been appointed with a salary of 3,000 francs per year. Some volunteers also serve.

At the Women's Congress opened in Berlin, February 27, it was proposed that German women be legally debarred from marrying unless they have a certificate showing a proper training in domestic science.

Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, of the Plymouth church, Brooklyn, will speak to the Denver Circle of National Congress of Mothers some time during March.

Between the home and the school there is a chasm as well as a link. The child is the link—the street, the chasm.

It is told that a bill making wife-desertion a felony was killed in the last Legislature of Oregon but that one was passed making it a felony to desert cattle on the range.

The Parent-Teacher Association of California gave a largely attended picnic at the opening of the school year in a canyon near Monrovia. Notes were compared and plans and methods talked over. Since California women are to have the benefit of the ballot there is a general awakening to the special needs of school children and without doubt this is where the new power will be first seen.

"All this enthusiasm for the nurture of children will at last arouse public opinion in regard to the transmission of that one type of disease which thousands of them annually inherit and which is directly tracable to the vicious living of their parents or grandparents.

In Idaho an auxiliary club for young mothers has been formed and is meeting a real need in giving help to inexperienced women in caring for the child up to school age.

"The Use of Suggestion in Education" was the subject of a talk given before the Philadelphia Mothers Club.

In Virginia it is feared that the mothers have deviated from the original purpose and have become interested in beautifying playgrounds supplying fiction and pictures for school buildings, etc., instead of following definite lines of study and training in the physical, mental and moral phases of child nature. This is a natural trend that must be controlled.

Mrs. Frank De Gamo, chairman of rural child welfare and special agent of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, spent three days in Delaware giving lectures with stereopticon views to branches of the Delaware Congress of Mothers.

Mr. Hayward, of Delaware College has offered to go at any time to any town in that State to talk about the proper care of milk, the cow and the stable.

The Central Presbyterian church of Wilmington, has announced that the parents will swing into line and join the Congress of Mothers. This church has held parents' meetings for two years and will now definitely take up a course in child study. The highest welfare of the child can only be attained by his spiritual development and to secure that, is surely the definite duty of every church.

War marked the day of the man, religion the day of the woman; with the day of the child will come the service and brotherhood of man. (Wood Hutchinson, M. D., in Good Housekeeping.)

The Child Study Circle of Atlanta is following a detailed course of study outlined and sent out by the University of Chicago. It is said to be a comprehensive course, scientific, practical and interesting. It has not always been an acknowledged fact that the rearing of children is a work requiring more knowledge and understanding than can be furnished by haphazard ideas culled from the experience of older friends, mother or grandmother. Today women are listening where words are spoken, they are reading what books are written, they are turning to whatever help is offered them and applying all to the ordinary, every-day problems of training and developing the bodies, minds and hearts of the children in their care.

Legal Customs From the Church.

When one lawyer refers to another as "brother attorney" he employs an ancient phrase peculiar to religious and legal fraternities and suggests the close historical relation between the callings. In England for two and a half centuries after the Norman conquest all high legal offices were filled by churchmen. Laymen could not hope for advancement or for clients, and indeed the only path to the acquirement of a professional education lay through holy orders. The fraternal form of address common to the church passed naturally into legal phraseology. Brother So-and-so of the monastic order was "brother" also at the bar. So strong was popular prejudice against admitting the competency of mere laymen at law when this class began to practice, about 1300, that lay barristers adopted a black velvet skullcap or coif to conceal their lack of tonsure, the distinguishing mark of the priestly clerk. Down to our day both the form of address and the peculiar headgear have remained, although we have ceased to associate the two professions whose early intimacy was the original reason for their existence.—Green Bag.

—"Why does that old maid use so much paint on her face?" "She's making up for lost time."—Brooklyn Life.

CAPTAIN ROBERT F. SCOTT

Rumor In London Says He Has Reached the South Pole.

New York, March 7.—The London report that Captain Robert F. Scott of the British Navy, has reached the South Pole, is not credited here. As it is unconfirmed it is considered as an idle rumor unworthy of consideration. The New York Times, which arranged with Captain Scott, before his departure on June 1, 1910, to get his story exclusively, dismisses the report as unworthy of belief.

Captain Scott sailed from London on the Tetra Nova June 1, 1910, stopping at New Zealand on his way to Ross Sea, in the Antarctic regions. The Terra Nova is the largest and strongest of the old Scottish whalers. She was built at Dundee in 1884 and is 187 feet long and 32 feet in beam.

Since 1903 the Teera Nova has been engaged in polar trips, having been in both the Arctic and Antarctic regions.

MINORITY SUGAR REPORT.

Race Problem Urged Against Removal of Import Duty.

Washington, March 7.—The preservation of the purity of the Anglo-Saxon race and the stability of the government in Cuba are menaced by the Underwood free sugar bill, according to Representative Fordney of Michigan, Republican, who presented to the house the minority report on the Democratic sugar measure. Mr. Fordney charged further that the Democratic party had entered into an unholy alliance with the sugar trust, "the sole beneficiaries of such legislation."

Fordney argued that if Cuban sugar was deprived of a market in the United States turmoil and excitement would follow in Cuba, thus forcing this government to annex the island. Mr. Fordney urged southern Democrats to oppose the free sugar bill. He reminded them of the race problem in the south.

DENIES SHE SHOT HUSBAND.

Former Society Belle, Accused of Deed, Out on Bond.

Atlanta, Ga., March 7.—Mrs. Daisy Ulrich-Ogle Grace, widow of a millionaire Philadelphia paper manufacturer, charged with shooting her present husband, Eugene H. Grace, a prominent young Atlantan, at their home here and then locking him in the house to die, was released on heavy bond. Grace is in a critical condition and may die.

Mrs. Grace before her marriage was a society belle known in Philadelphia as "Daisy of the Leopard Skins" on account of the fur coats she wore. Despite the accusation of her husband Mrs. Grace denied that she fired the shot.

MAGNATES MUST DEVELOP STARS

Arthur Irwin, Yankees Veteran Scout, Says His Job is Getting Harder.

NOTHING LIKE THE OLD DAYS

Money Could Buy Stars Then—Now They Have to Be Made—None of the Present Day Top-notchers Brought Fancy Prices, He Says.

"Digging in the minors and little jerkwater towns for future diamond stars isn't what it is cracked up to be," says Arthur Irwin, the Yankees veteran scout, who is soon to leave on another scouting tour. According to the man whom the Yankees depend upon for their star players, real good baseball players are at a premium these days.

"Scouting," comments Arthur, "isn't like it used to be. There was a time when a man could go through the bushes and pick up all kinds of men; but times have changed since then. The scout who is lucky to pick up one really good ball player during a season can congratulate himself and feel satisfied that he has earned his salary."

Scout Irwin declares that there never was such a slim market for ball players as at the present time. "Big league clubs," says Irwin, "are not in the market to sell star players, naturally, and that's why it is so hard for any one club to gather a galaxy of stars. Every club owner wants to hold on to his best men, for they are the ones who bring success to his club. Money cannot buy them. The club owner must rely on the scout, for he is the one man behind the gun, so to speak. He is the man who unearths the stars.

"I remember the days when money could buy big men; but how clubs must develop them. Few of the leading batters today were purchased for large amounts, but of course there are exceptions. Take Detroit's case with Ty Cobb, for instance. The Tigers got him from a small bush league but they had to develop him first before he was anything. Most every headliner brought to the majors had to be sent back to the minors for seasoning.

"There's Tris Speaker of Boston, for instance. When the Sox got him he didn't know much, but he was a man who could be taught. The Sox saw that and sent him back to the minors to learn something. Jimmy Collins' case is another similar one. It took Pittsburgh two years to develop Jack Miller, but after the Pirates got through with him they made a great second baseman out of him. Devore of New York didn't amount to much when the Giants got him. McGraw, however, saw a future for him and made him learn in the bushes. What was the result? The Giants developed a great little outfielder.

"It took the Phillies a year to make a good pitcher out of Chalmers. When we got Connell a lot of persons said he didn't amount to much; but I knew better. I watched that man and I saw the makings of a great pitcher. You want to watch that fellow this year. The year's experience and teachings he has had in the International League is going to have its result this year. Russ Ford was a gawky fellow when we got him, but after a year's workout with Jersey City he developed. Of course all these fellow's showed signs of better playing form when they were first looked over, and all they needed to develop was some one who could teach them what to do.

Irwin says he doesn't think it a wise plan to spend large sums of money for players. "Pick up youngsters who look good," says Irwin, "and you will get better results. That is my plan. Youngsters make better players than these so-called stars."

No one knows the scarcity of real stars better than the scouts, declares Irwin. "Pittsburgh has spent fully $50,000 in the past five years and as yet it hasn't secured a first baseman. They have never had a real first sacker since the days of Kitty Bransfield. They need a first baseman so badly this year that either Wagner or Miller may have to cover the bag.

"The St. Louis Browns have been trying for five years to pick up a third baseman, but they haven't got a star to cover the place yet.

"The time is now ripe when clubs must develop their own men. You can't buy the talent any more. The competition is too great. And the fellow who is able to pick up the men who show future ability is the man who can bring success to a team. Developing players is the keynote to a team's success. Unless managers can do this they stand little chance to build up winning teams no matter how much money is behind them."

JONES, THE GREAT MILER, AN ABILITY CONSERVER

Probably no other college athlete takes such splendid care of himself as John P. Jones of Cornell, the holder of the world's amateur record for the mile. In particular Jones makes it a rule not to overdo athletics.

He did not compete in a single meet from the time of the 1911 intercollegiate meet until the cross country run in the fall. He has resisted all requests that he run for athletic clubs and has confined his competition to meets in which Cornell has teams.

JOHN PAUL JONES, HOLDER OF THE WORLD'S RECORD FOR THE MILE.

On top of his splendid mile performance at Boston a short time ago he ran a half mile recently in New York, winning the two mile relay race for Cornell, the time for his relay being 1 minute 57 seconds. There is no doubt that if he desired Jones could establish a new world's record for the half mile indoors.

Champion Trotting Gelding.

Chauncey Mitchell, the champion trotting gelding of last season, will campaign this year in the colors of C. K. G. Billings, who recently bought the rare trotter for $4,500. Charley Mitchell last year hung up a record of 2:04¼.

THE GINGER JAR

How are you hitting 'em?

Next Saturday night the pins will begin to fall in the National Bowling Tournament at Paterson.

Jake Daubert's name is seldom heard in Cleveland and breakfast foodily speaking there's a reason. The Naps once owned him and let him go to the minors.

As a winter's recreation Frank Schulte, the slugging right fielder of the Cubs, spent the season in Chicago writing pomes about the team.

The first thing that Connie Mack said when he landed at San Antonio was that the team he feared the most was the Yankees under their new leader Harry Wolverton.

It's use would be appreciated here! A metal backed rubber ring, fastened out a few inches from the wheel of an automobile, is claimed by its inventor to prevent splashing the mud on pedestrians.

The matter of sizing up a recruit in four of five weeks is one of the biggest gambles of the game in which many a busher looses out in the show down.

Snapshots of the youthful batting phenom in March:

Swing.

Moving picture of the same young man in May:

Fan.

Can.

The twenty greatest men, richest men, wisest men, oldest doctors, and greatest players in the game have all been selected. But till yet no one has been brave enough to pick the twenty biggest dubs or the twenty largest tanks.

Russell Ford looks better than any other year at this time it is said. On his way to the training camp he hopped off the rattler in Chicago to see his receiving mate, Ed Sweeney, who by the way looms up as a genuine hold-out. Russell says the Moose is doing well in business and don't care whether he plays ball this summer or not.

"Lanky" McConnell is the latest Yank to report. He strolled into camp yesterday from his home at Anderson, S. C. Big Mac is no stranger in fast company. He was about the best pitcher in the International last year and had Somerville eating out of his hand here in the last game in the Central New Jersey League. Besides that he played first base under Stallings for the Yankees in 1909 when Chase had the small pox.

All fans agree that the pitcher who holds up a game by pesky deliberation in delivery is worse than the homegoer who needs holding up.

The happiest moment of a rookies life is when the majors draft him from the minors. The saddest—when they send him back.

Fraternal League Match.

The Red Men's five and the Elks' bowling team are scheduled to roll a match in the Fraternal bowling league on the Olympia alleys tomorrow night. This is the second meeting of these quintets in the tournament.

WHEN JACK DOYLE HAD HIS TROUBLES AS A MANAGER.

Talking about "foreigners" breaking into the game, Hughey Duffy tells a good one on Jack Doyle, who managed the Milwaukee Brewers about five years ago. Doyle was also strong for the Celts as the only real player worth while, and the story goes that Duffy ran across Doyle in the east during the middle of the playing season when the Brewers had crawled down to the cellar hole and were rapidly intrenching themselves against disturbance the rest of the season. Doyle, of course, wasn't going around with a "won't come off" smile chasing itself over his countenance. In fact, he was just about as happy as a chicken during the flood season.

"How's your team going?" asked Duffy.

"Going?" roared Doyle. "How do you think it's going, and how can any team go when you can't pronounce the names of half of your players?"

Doyle was probably referring to Frank Schneiberg and a few more players with Teutonic names who were drawing money from the Havenor treasury at that time.

CHANGED GOLF DATES WILL ENABLE HILTON TO COMPETE

Announcement has been made that owing to the fact that the British amateurs could not arrange to play on the date previously named, it had been decided to hold the United States Golf association championship at the Chicago Golf club in Wheaton, Ill., Sept. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. It has also been decided to change the date of the national open championship from June 27 and 28 to Aug. 1 and 2, to enable American professionals to play in the British championship.

By these changes in dates it will give Hilton, the international champion, an opportunity to compete in this country this year.

Simultaneously it was agreed to change the date of the Western Golf association open championship in Chicago, set for Sept. 5 and 6, at the Idlewild Country club, to some time during August.

RUTHERFORD ELKS TO HOLD ATHLETIC ENTERTAINMENT.

Rutherford Lodge, B. P. O. E., 537, has arranged an all-star athletic entertainment to take place in the Elks' hall, in that place, on March 20. The feature bout of the evening will bring together Kid Fink and Leo Baker, both of Passaic, and if their past performances count for anything, this six-round go should be a hummer from gong to gong.

Tommy Carroll, from Battling Hurley's camp, and Eddie Jordan, of South Paterson, will clash in the semi-final. The other two bouts on the program will be Kid Goodman and Tiger Young, both of New York city, and Kid Monroe, of Passaic and Kid Minger, of Garfield.

HOW AN ELEVEN FROM THE ATHLETICS WOULD LOOK.

There was some talk at the recent meeting of the baseball magnates to hold their men under twelve months contracts. If they ever do and Connie Mack decided to take up any other sport to keep his players busy he could put in the field an eleven that would look as good as any the game has ever seen.

The lineup would look something like this:

GOLF VS. BASEBALL.

"Gee, but you golf players got a cinch game," said Jim Scott, dean of the pure amachoor twirlers, the other day to Marty O'Loughlin, professional at the Country Club. "If they planted our pill on a nice little mound and everybody carefully backed away a half a block to be sure no one joggled our elbows, only a rummy could fail to hit .800."

"Cinch be jiggled," retorted Marty. "We haven't anything on you ball players. Whenever you do hit the ball there are seven or eight guys on the job to chase it and throw it back. We have to chase after the ball and lam it all the way back home ourselves."

"That's a bum point," said Jim. "Why, if we could field our own balls, we'd hit 1,000 and never stop scoring."

Speaking of Marty O'Loughlin, it is said that while a professional he naturally feels impeled to hand out a little Scotch when he talks golf, he always loyally mixes some Gaelic with the Scotch. His favorite links expression is said to be "Erin go hoot!"

LOVING CUP FOR MOST POPULAR BOWLING TEAM

A theatrical manager of Paterson has offered a handsome silver loving cup valued at a hundred and twenty-five dollars to the most popular bowling team that visits Paterson during the sixth annual tournament of the National Bowling Association to be held there March 9 to 30.

This contest is open only to visiting teams and the voting will be conducted by the patrons of the play house holding reserved seat tickets. To each paste board will be attached a coupon where upon the holder may register his choice for the trophy.

Entries for the Silk City tournament closed last Saturday night, and the completed lists show that there are two hundred and ten five-men teams, four hundred and eight two-men teams, and one thousand individual entries. This makes the Paterson tournament rank third in size that the National organization has promoted. It is surpassed only by the Madison Square Garden contest, and the games at Buffalo.

Newark has sent twenty five-men teams to the tournament, New York has contributed seventy-three quintets, Philadelphia twelve, and Passaic county fifty. Entries in lots of one or two teams have also been received from points in Canada, most of the middle class cities in New York State, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit Washington, Richmond and Baltimore.

EASTERN LEAGUE TITLE CLINCHED BY TRENTON.

Trenton, March 7.—Trenton virtually won the Eastern League basketball championship last night by defeating De Neri by the score of 37 to 17.

The locals have a good lead now and are looking forward to the world's championship series with Johnstown, the winner of the Central League pennant.

Bar Kidney Punch.

New York, March 7.—In the future no boxer will be permitted to hit his adversary over the kidneys, according to the rule passed by the State Athletic Commission yesterday. The Commissioners have couched the terms of the rule in mandatory language and will insist that it be enforced from now on. Fight fans will hail the enactment of this rule as one of the best ever passed by the Commission to safeguard the interests of boxing. The kidney punch has long been frowned upon by the habitues of the ringside. As there was no official ruling against it, boxers used it whenever they felt so disposed.

Elks' League Match.

The Elks bowling team are scheduled to roll a match in the Elks' tournament with the Elizabeth Bills' five at that place tonight. A large delegation of rooters will accompany the team to the county seat.

Rattling the Skeleton.

A considerable number of the finny tribe of suckers which inhabit Cedar brook are taken from the waters nightly. In two evenings this week, George VanNess and his brother succeeded in gigging 131 fine fish. Most of the fish were taken from the brook in the south section of the city. Another party of giggers waded through Green brook one evening recently, but the result of their expedition was a tomtao can and a paintkeg. (Daily Press Thursday, April 12, 1888).

WOMEN PETITION AGAINST EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 7. (Special.)—Signed by 800 members of women's clubs throughout the State, a petition was presented to the Senate last night urging the repeal of he employer's liability law. It was offered by Senator Pierce, of Union county, and was referred to the Judiciary Committee. The women are opposed to it because it makes the employers of domestic servants liable for accidents to their employes. Senator Gaunt, of Gloucester, has in a bill excluding the employers of domestic servants and farm laborers from the provisions of the law.

TIGHTENING THE COILS ABOUT ALLEGED FORGER

Another link was added today to the chain of evidence against James Turner, colored, arrested yesterday as an alleged forger and passer of bad checks. The dauhgters and two servants of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Washington Valley, identified him as the man who worked on the clergyman's place for two days last month, when a blank signed check, which was afterward cashed at the Plainfield Trust Company, disappeared, and Dr. Eaton identified another check which was offered to Robert Murray, as one torn from his check book.

Turner had already been identified as told yesterday, by Mr. Murray and an employee of Frank Linke, who was given a worthless check for $10 Saturday. The negro will be arraigned tomorrow in the city court. He denies his guilt.

Turner's arrest here caused concern to another colored James Turner, who is afraid people will think he is the suspect. He lives at 630 West Third street, and works industriously as an ash carter during the chilly season and as a garderner durthe summer.

20th Century Wreck.

Cleveland, O., March 7.—Five Pullmans of the Twentieth Century Limited were derailed just outside the Collinwood yards here early today. They smashed into a shanty occupied by George Mouer, a switchman, instantly killing him. A few of the passengers suffered trivial injuries. George Hall, of Woonsocket, R. I., were taken to a hospital and one of his arms amputated. None of the train crew was hurt.

Big Fire In Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., March 7.—Fire early today destroyed the plant of the Illinois Woollen and Cotton Manufacturing Company, at Nos. 902-904 South Morgan street, and spread to tenements at either side, routing out thirty-two families. There were several explosions of gas in the basement of the structure. The damage amounted to $75,000.

INTERESTING TALES FROM INSIDE THE COUNTY JAIL

Stories seldom told, yet vibrating with interest, lurk in the county jail, where they may be heard if one finds Warden Dodd, who is widely known in Plainfield, no humor intended, in a communicative mood. There are tales of near-escapes from the jail, of how the prisoners found a way of lighting cigarettes without matches and stories of how drinks were smuggled into the jail, until the tricks of the prisoners were discovered. The supervision of the jail looks like an easy proposition to the casual observer, but it is a position which calls for constant watchfulness, for when everything is apparently quiet and the prisoners most tractable they are likely to be planning a delivery.

Matches are forbidden property in the jail, and how carefully prisoners will plan for one, or two puffs of a cigarette is shown in a story told by Warden Dodd.

It happened years ago before the present courthouse was built. The warden had reason to believe that the prisoners were smoking, but he could not ascertain how they were getting matches. Finally he went into the old courthouse and stationed himself at a window from which he could see inside the jail, and was rewarded by seeing half a dozen prisoners taking turns at smoking a cigarette. The warden cornered one of the smokers, who finally confessed that he had been smoking and told how the cigarette had been lighted. One of the jail inmates had manufactured a "buzz saw," made of a piece of string and a steel button cut from his coat. By spinning this so close to the floor that it struck the stone he managed to get sparks enough to set fire to a pocket handkerchief. The linen was allowed to smoulder until it formed excellent tinder, and thereafter one spark was enough to create a light.

The tinder was kept hidden between the leaves of a magazine and Warden Dodd still keeps it as a curiosity.

There are always two trusties at the jail. These are generally men who have been committed for short terms and whose whereabouts when they are out of jail are well known to the police. They are allowed the freedom of the jail yard and are kept busy doing odd jobs. A few years ago, when the jail was rebuilt and various improvements were made, two electric fans were installed in the kitchen for ventilating purposes.

To allow the free circulation of air in the culinary department it was necessary to cut two new windows. The sides of these were cemented and they were protected by thick iron bars set about two inches apart. One day the warden discovered that the cook had been drinking and he set out to trace the source of his liquor supply. It was not difficult. When the warden was supposed to be at dinner the cook, who was a prisoner himself, lowered a piece of cord through one of the ventilators and stealthily drew it up again. When it hove into sight there was a black bottle hitched to it. It was discovered that the trustees were obtaining drinkables from outside and supplying them to the cook. A piece of strong fine mesh wire stopped the transfers.

URGED ATTACK ON KNOX AND PARTY

Fifty Nicaraguan Anti-American Conspirators Arrested.

TRAIN CLOSELY GUARDED.

Machine Guns and Soldiers Precede and Follow Visitors From Coast to Capital—Secretary Pays Visit to Congress and Supreme Court of Republic.

Managua, Nicaragua, March 7.—Fifty leaders of an anti-American crowd here were arrested shortly before the arrival of Secretary Knox and his party and placed in jail to remain until the party leaves. They included the entire editorial staffs of the two newspapers Diario de Nicaragua and the Diario Moderno. In the papers had been published letters and display headings suggesting violence toward the secretary and his party. This was the first sign of anti-American hostility that has openly appeared.

The government was aware of the movements of the plotters, and all precautions were taken to prevent any untoward event. During the 100 mile run from Corinto to Managua a pilot train carrying fifty soldiers and a machine gun preceded the special on which Secretary Knox and party were traveling. The special was followed by a train carrying 100 soldiers and another machine gun.

Secretary Knox and party drove about the city and attended the session of congress. The people made a holiday of the day, and the visitors were greeted in the most friendly manner. Numerous festivities had been arranged for the day, and all were attended by great crowds. After the visit to congress Mr. Knox and party visited the supreme court, after which the president of the republic gave a grand reception in their honor.

STILL HOPE TO SETTLE IT.

Government Continues Efforts to Enter British Strike.

London, via Glace Bay, March 7.—Premier Asquith and his ministerial colleagues, aided by the conciliation board, under the presidency of Sir George Ranken Askwith, began another effort to bring the striking miners and mine owners together. There were several conferences. Meanwhile the government hesitates to bring in the bill in parliament for the establishment of a minimum wage in the collieries.

The ministry is thoroughly alarmed over the dangers from the strike.

The trades unions at Grimsby, where there is great distress, have asked the mayor of the town to apply the law for feeding poor children, many of whom are going to school without their breakfasts.

All the industries in the midlands, where the biggest iron and steel industries are located, are at a complete standstill.

SZECHNYI JEWELS STOLEN.

But Police Found and Returned Them; Valued at $200,000.

Vienna, March 7.—The newspapers here print a story to the effect that jewels to the value of $200,000 were stolen from the residence of the Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, at Budapest last week. A detective found the jewels wrapped in a newspaper, where they had been hidden in a garage attached to the house.

Countess Szechenyi sent a check for $600 as a reward for the detective who had discovered the jewels. The chief of police ordered the detective to return the check on the ground that the police are not allowed to receive rewards for doing their duty.

TAFT TO ANSWER T. R.

Will Reply to Columbus Speech In Address at Chicago Saturday.

Chicago, March 7.—One of the biggest political events prior to the national conventions, local political leaders say, will be the visit of President Taft to Chicago next Saturday.

As guest of honor of the Swedish American League of Illinois the president will make his principal speech of the day. It is understood that he will reply to the address made by Theodore Roosevelt recently at Columbus.

The occasion will be the anniversary commemoration of the sinking of the Merrimac by the Monitor in Hampton Roads and in commemoration of the inventor of the Monitor, John Ericsson.

ENTERED SCHIFF HOME WITH KEY, HE SAYS

Brandt Expected to Tell This to Grand Jury.

New York, March 7.—Before Folke H. Brandt went before the conspiracy grand jury it was known that he intended to tell that body that he entered Schiff's house on the night of March 8, 1907, by means of a key that he had had for several months, that he didn't expect to encounter Schiff, that Schiff came on him unexpectedly and that he hit his former employer with a bowling pin as a result of an altercation.

The examination of Brandt was regarded as practically the climax of the investigation. Other witnesses may be called, but it was said that the work of the grand jury is about finished.

CRY "DEATH TO AMERICANS!"

Mexicans In Riot Near City of Mexico. Crespo Secs Taft.

City of Mexico, March 7.—A riot occurred at El Carmen, a suburb of this city, and a mob rushed through the streets shouting, "Death to the Americans and Orozco, Vasquez and Zapata!" Six persons were wounded.

Five hundred Americans left here bound for any port they can reach.

It is reported that General Hernandez, with 300 federals, has defeated a force of rebels near Mecaxa. Two hundred rebels and 200 federals fell.

Two thousand Americans have registered themselves and their property at the consulate here in order to prepare for claims for indemnity later.

Washington, March 7.—Conditions in Mexico were given consideration at a conference between President Taft and Senor Crespo, the Mexican ambassador.

The visit was for the purpose, it is understood, of presenting a personal appeal from President Madero that the shipment of rifles and ammunition through El Paso be prevented and that steps be taken to stop the activities of Emilio Vasquez Gomez at San Antonio, Tex. The Mexican government insists that he has signed a proclamation as provisional president and that from American soil he is directing the revolution.

MERCHANTS KILL A BILL.

Arguments For Liquor Selling by Department Stores Are Effective.

Albany, N. Y., March 7.—Prominent business men of New York city, including E. W. Bloomingdale, Jerome Siegel and J. R. Butler, before the assembly excise committee opposed the McKee bill prohibiting department stores in New York from selling liquor.

The merchants insisted that the practice had never been abused. J. H. Patterson of the Antisaloon league thought women who were too timid to go to a saloon "worked" the liquor branch of the department store. The opponents made such a good impression that the bill is not likely to be heard again.

Wireman's Leg Burned Entirely Off. Lives, but Can't Recover.

New York, March 7.—Eleven thousand electric volts passed through the body of John Hill, a wireman at the New York Central power house. He is still alive, but no trace of his right leg between the knee and ankle remains. His right lung collapsed under the electrical shock. There is no chance of his recovery.

The Scrap Book

The Brass Ornament.

The junior member of the old law firm of Goldsmith, Colston, Hoadley & Johnson having used the phrase "a shining ornament of the Cincinnati bar" in referring to some other lawyer, Murat Halstead seized upon the phrase and thereafter invariably referred to Mr. Johnson as "the brass ornament of the Cincinnati bar." At an evening gathering Mr. Halstead saw a handsome woman. He begged to be presented and was—to Mrs Johnson. It did not occur to him who the lady might be. He was curious about her. "Johnson, Johnson?" he repeated. "I have never had the pleasure of meeting you before, Mrs. Johnson. Do you live in Ohio?" "Oh, yes," replied the lady, brimming over with smiles; "I live in Cincinnati." "Indeed!" said Mr. Halstead, quite astonished. "May I inquire of what family of Johnsons you are?" The smiles were more than merry this time. "Mr. Halstead," she replied, "for fifteen years I have been trying to polish up the brass ornament of the Cincinnati bar."

The Way to Live.

Let me but live my life from year to year
With forward face and unreluctant soul,
Not hurrying to nor turning from the goal,
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past, nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils, but with a whole
And happy heart that pays its toll
To youth and age and travels on with cheer.

—Henry van Dyke.

Her Leap in the Dark.

The wife of a leading minister in a New Jersey town was sitting on the porch of the manse when a man with a grip in his hand started to come up the steps. Spotting him at once for a book agent or a peddler, she said firmly, "Nothing today."

"Have you one?" queried the stranger.

Fearing that an affirmative answer might lead to further conversation in which the salesman would try to demonstrate the improvements made in the article since she had purchased hers, the minister's wife answered shortly, "No!"

Shaking his head, the man retreated down the steps, repeating this sentence several times, "Hasn't got one, doesn't want one."

The man's manner and tone of voice awakened the woman's curiosity, so very soon she went over to a neighbor's house where she had seen the man stop and asked:

"What was that man who was here a few minutes ago selling?"

To her astonishment and chagrin the neighbor replied, "Bibles."—Lippincott's.

Looking Ahead.

David A. Ball of Pike county, Mo., was once state senator and acted as lieutenant governor during the two years he presided over the senate. He had an ambition to be lieutenant governor in fact.

One day he confided this ambition to his old family doctor. "The old man," Ball says in telling the story, "walked two blocks with me without making any comment. Then he turned and said:

"'That's all right, Dave, but look here: Suppose you were elected and the governor should die. Wouldn't that leave Missouri in a mighty bad fix?'"—Saturday Evening Post.

Missed His Customer.

"When I was a cub reporter, struggling along on a minute salary," said George Ade, "I had just one asset in life which enabled me to 'tide over' that period in every week when poverty seemed to be staring me in the face. This consisted of a handsome gold watch, keepsake of college days in Indiana. Tuesday was payday at the newspaper office. By Friday I would be 'broke,' and I would tote the watch over to the pawnshop of a man who now conducts a handsome jewelry shop in State street. On the watch I obtained $5, and by administering my affairs carefully I managed to worry through until payday. Then when I had received my small salary I would hurry to the pawnbroker's and release my watch.

"Finally, after this had gone along for many months, I received a raise in pay. It was enough to release me from the necessity of pawning my watch regularly. So I visited the pawnshop no longer.

"One afternoon about ten years afterward I was accosted in State street by a man. I recognized my old pawnbroker friend, now the prosperous jeweler.

"'What's the matter, George?' were his first words. 'Did you lose that watch?'"

Judge Hoar's Retort.

Of innumerable occasions when Judge Hoar indulged in the retort mordant perhaps none gave him greater satisfaction than the following: B. F. Butler, his chief adversary at the bar in the fifties as counsel for the defense, closed with this emphatic appeal to the jury: "We have the highest authority for saying, 'Everything which a man hath will he give for his life.'" When Hoar's turn came he said: "It has for a long time been suspected by those who have watched Mr. Butler's career that he has recognized as the highest authority the individual upon whom he now relies. For, gentlemen, as you well know, the statement which he quotes from the book of Job was made by Satan."—Harvard Graduates' Magazine.

—"Has his family got a skeleton in its closet?" "I don't know about what they've got in the closet, but they've got one in a hobble skirt."—Houston Post.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 3, 1912.

Topic.—The Christian virtues.—III. Patience.—II Thes. iii, 1-5. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The epistle of Paul to the Thessalonians dealt with the great doctrine of the second coming of Christ. They were the first epistles of the apostle, and the early church looked for the speedy return of the risen and ascended Lord. In Thessalonica especially this idea seemed to have taken deep root in the hearts and minds of believers. Work was abandoned, and the coming of Christ was constantly expected. The people were impatient for His second advent. It is little wonder, therefore, amidst the serious and perplexing conditions of such a situation that the apostle should write to them, "The Lord direct your hearts into the love of God and into the patient waiting for Christ," or, as the revised version translates it, "into the patience of Christ." Had they had His spirit of patience they would have worked and waited until the time of His coming; but, being overanxious and impatient, they committed many follies and stand as a type of many Christians throughout all ages.

The age in which we live is characterized by its impatience. No Christian virtue is in greater need of cultivation among the American people today than that of patience. In commercial life, fortunes must be amassed in a day. To patiently toil and wait for the results is no longer a characteristic of the American people. And, as with the Thessalonians, folly and ruin usually result. The same spirit of impatience pervades to a great extent the life of the church and the lives of individual Christian workers. Immediate results is the demand of our time. Reaping must speedily follow sowing or there is doubt, mistrust and dissatisfaction. But God's laws work regularly and logically, and His hand cannot be forced. Folly and disappointment only follow all attempts to change the method of divine procedure. Impatient fretting over the conditions of life, its sorrows and adversities, or its daily vexing routine only adds misery to misery and unfits us for the real responsibilities of life.

Patience is a product of prayer. Paul's wish for the Thessalonians is really a prayer. "The Lord direct your hearts into * * * the patience of Christ." Every grace is a gift of God, and patience is a Christian grace. We may well therefore pray for the grace of patience. Moreover, like all other Christian graces and virtues, patience is possible of cultivation. The practice of patience increases the power for patience. Let us therefore not only pray for the virtue of patience, but increase our patience by using that which the Lord has given and does give to us.

Christ is the supreme example of patience. "The patience of Christ!" What patience possessed the Lord in all the circumstances of His life. How patient He was with His disciples in dealing with their blundering errors and unbelief; how patient in the great crises of His life; how patient with the weaknesses and frailties of human nature. By prayer and practice let us seek "the patience of Christ."

Things Proved by Christian Endeavor's First Thirty Years—

That young people can be trusted.

That prayer meetings pay.

That promises educate.

That system succeeds in religion as in business.

That folks all over the world are pretty much alike.

That the differences between the denominations are not worth fighting for.

That young people can be loyal to their denomination without being shut up in it.

That young people enjoy Christian service.

That missionary meetings can be made fascinating.

That in union there is strength.

That little things count—little pennies, little sentences, little prayers, little deeds.

That young people will be just about what you expect them to be.—Arrow in Christian Endeavor World.

Red Letter Advertising.

A plain white card the size of an ordinary envelope. At the one side a broad "C," and at the other side a broad "E."—both glaring red.

That secures attention at once. Looking closer one finds that a message is printed in black italic letters upon the red of the "C" and the "E."

It is an invitation to attend the birthday party of the Springfield (Q.) Presbyterian Endeavorers. Surely a simple, inexpensive and effectual method of making the meeting known.

Dr. Clark Abroad.

Dr. Clark's latest tour has taken him into Russia. This is the first time it has been possible to openly present Christian Endeavor in the czar's domain, so suspicious and superstitious have been the authorities.

Dr. Clark reports the formation of many societies and an intelligent taking up of the Endeavor idea in many quarters of the great empire.

Excellent Concert Promised.

The musical clubs of the Pennington School for Boys will give a concert at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, tomorrow night, and a fine program is promised. The clubs are considered the best in the history of the school. The clubs recently appeared at the Summerfield M. E. church, Newark, and the concert was of excellent merit in every number.

Sea of Galilee.

"Round About the Sea of Galilee" was the topic of the second in the series of lectures delivered last night in Grace church by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson. The lecture was illustrated by slides from actual photographs taken on the shores, and was in the nature of a walk in search of marks which would call up memories of Jesus.

COAL PRICES GO HIGHER ON THE STRIKE RUMORS

New York, March 7.—Taking advantage of the threatened strike of the coal miners in the anthracite regions of the United States speculators in the commodity yesterday boosted prices from 30 to 50 cents a ton. The increase was confined almost wholly to steam coal, used mostly for heating purposes in large plants. The storage yards of the coal operators are reported almost empty in this part of the country and the speculators or middlemen apparently hold the whiphand.

The anthracite coal operators last night issued a statement to the effect that the advances are made by the retail dealers and not by the operators. The prices of "domestic" sizes, the operators say, have remained practically unchanged for nine years.

DOOM OF HISTORIC OLD STINES BRIDGE LOOMS UP

Stines' bridge, one of the most frequently mentioned and familiar landmarks in this section will be changed beyond recognition if the desires of the residents of the western part of the borough is granted by the Somerset County Board of Freeholders.

A petition requesting a new structure on the site of the historic old wooden bridge has been circulated and already has more than seventy-five signatures of land owners, taxpayers and travellers who are obliged to use West End avenue. This will be presented to the Freeholders and immediate action requested as the old meeting and lounging place of strolling couples for several generations is in bad shape.

Last summer a horse fell through the weakened planking and by the narrowest chance the county was saved a law suit.

In addition to the unsafe condition of the present wooden span, it is much narrower than the roadway and until this is remedied the owners of adjoining land are held up in making a lot of proposed improvements. They are unable to lay sidewalks or put in curbing until the boundary lines of the roadway are defined and the proper grade established. The approach on both sides is also bad and could be fixed at the time of building the new structure.

VICTIM OF PLOT, CLAIMS SENATOR

Testimony In Fitzherbert Inquiry Indicates It.

OSTBY IS CONTRADICTED.

Accusations of New York Man Denied by Legislator Under Inquiry—Says He Introduced Bills at Request of Dr. Ridner and Intended to Withdraw Them.

Trenton, N. J., March 7.—The state senate resumed the trial of Senator Richard Fitzherbert of Morris county on charges of aiding and abetting an alleged attempt to extort $5,000 from the Commercial Acetylene Gas company of 80 Broadway, New York, in connection with bills to practically prohibit the manufacture and use of acetylene gas in New Jersey, the alleged attempt at extortion having been made, it was charged, through Dr. George S. Ridner.

Attorney General Wilson, who is conducting the state's case, announced that Dr. Ridner would not be called by the state. Dr. Ridner, the attorney general held, was a witness for the defense. After a long discussion Mr. Edwards, counsel for the accused senator, announced that he would call Dr. Ridner. This will allow the attorney general an opportunity to cross examine.

Senator Fitzherbert was called to the stand. Questioned as to senate bills Nos. 79 and 110, limiting the use and manufacture of acetylene gas in New Jersey, he said he had introduced them at the request of Dr. Ridner. Witness declared that when he heard there was talk of money in connection with the bills he told Dr. Ridner he was going to withdraw them, but while seeking advice the exposure came.

Senator Fitzherbert contradicted the testimony of Ostby, sales manager of the Acetylene Gas company, in which Ostby alleged the sum of $5,000 was mentioned and denied Wisehart's statements implicating him in the alleged attempted extortion. The testimony led to the belief that his counsel was endeavoring to show a frameup by political enemies to discredit Fitzherbert.

At the request of the Democratic members, represented by Minority Leader Fielder of Hudson, the senate decided to defer until late today its final action upon the charges involving Senator Fitzherbert. The trial of Senator Fitzherbert in expulsion proceedings was concluded, and the Republicans were in favor of terminating the scandal by taking a vote at once.

VICTIMS OF EXPLOSION.

One Blown to Pieces and Four Others Seriously Injured at Wallington.

Passaic, N. J., Feb. 7.—One man was blown to pieces and four others seriously injured in an explosion in the works of the Anderson Chemical company at Wallington, across the river from here. The force of the explosion was terrific, and the report could be heard for miles around. The plant was badly wrecked by the blowup, and the flames that followed it demolished it completely.

The man killed was Andrew Dolak. The injured were Stephen Urchik, seriously burned and with a severe wound in the head; Andrew Frechak, who has fractures of the legs; William Ophoff, who is covered with bruises and cuts, and Otto Richter, foreman of the plant, who is severely bruised.

The five men were in the room where the explosion occurred. In one end of the room was a seventy gallon tank filled with amylacetate, which is used in finishing patent leather shoes. From some cause the tank blew up. Dolak was near it at the time. He was blown through the roof and his body scattered in fragments. The other men were blown through the windows or through openings torn in the walls. Some of them were picked up fifty yards away. Richter was saved from more serious injury because he was blown against the wire of a chicken coop.

The flames started immediately after the explosion and soon were beyond control of the factory hands and the men of the Wallington volunteer fire department. The loss is placed at between $50,000 and $60,000.

Falls Through Air Hole—Catches Rope Thrown From Machine.

Nutley, N. J., March 7.—While taking a short cut across Yantacaw lake here Peter Williams had a narrow escape from drowning.

There was snow on the ice, and Williams went through an air hole. He sank immediately and held on to the edge of the ice until the arrival of Frank Doane, who heard Williams' cries for assistance. He threw one end of a long rope to Williams, fastened the other to his automobile and slowly pulled him to a point of safety.

HE WHO RESONATES WON'T BE CROSSED

Peoples Whose Natures Are Not in Tune Responsible For Much Discord.

LECTURING SAVANT SAYS SO

Dr. Tyndall Touches on Other Interesting Things in Address on "Wireless Telegraphy" at First Baptist Church.

That much of the discord among people is due to the fact that their natures are out of tune and do not resonate, is the belief of Dr. Charles Tyndal, the scientist of Mt. Vernon, N. ., who gave a practical demonstration on "Wireless Telegraphy" at the First Baptist church, last night, under the auspices of the Men's Bible Conference Class.

In demonstrating the theory, Dr. Tyndall made use of a piano, tuning forks and ordinary drinking glasses, and he showed in striking a key on the pina how the sound was picked up by other wires of the instrument. The tuning forks and glasses vibrated to the same note.

The lecturer told how through the sound of his voice he had been able to make an ordinary dish vibrate at a distance of several feet; how the presence of a lamp shade in a room would visibly effect the tone of a piano until it wah though to be out of tune and needed repair. The speaker then declared that human nature was just as easily disturbed by being out of tune, resulting often in what is more comonly known as "family jars."

Dr. Tyndall first explained in a simple way the principles of wireless telegraphy how ether waves are used in the tramission of sound over great ditances untoil at present it is possible to hold communication by wireless between points 4,000 miles part. The lecturer had a simple apparatus with him and he demonstrated the use of it.

He placed a bell on the receiving end, making it posible for the audience to note the transmission of messages through dots and dashes from one point in the room to another. He then took the transmitter outside of the church and sent a message through the stone walls. Each time he pressed the key the bell at the receiving end would respond instantly.

A considerable part of Dr. Tyndall's lecture was taken up with a somewhat minute description of the

SCHOOL CHILDREN RECEIVE THEIR GOVERNMENT SEEDS

The pupils of the Plainfield schools are anxious for garden-making time to come. Yesterday a consignment of government seeds was received for distribution from Senator James E. Martine. A sackful of packets was delivered to each school.

In previous years the children have been encouraged by the teachers in the cultivation of flowers and vegetables, but it has always been at the expense of the pupils.

A great number of children have made requests for seeds that never before evinced any interest in gardening. That will please Senator Martine, who sent the seeds to start up a general interest in agriculture among the youngsters of Plainfield.

SURPRISE ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE PROBASCO CLASS

The Dr. Probasco Bible class of the First Baptist church was entertained at the Y. M. C. A., last night, by Dr. Reynolds, of New York, a monologuist. Afterward Dr. Probasco gave an interesting account of his recent trip to Porto Rico.

The doctor described the methods of tobacco raising, and told of the primitive domestic life of the inhabitants. Dr. Probasco said that on Sunday he would continue the talk, giving some additional interesting facts pertaining to the religious life of Porto Rico.

It was announced that the annual class play will be given in about three weeks, the name and the exact date to be given soon. The class gave a vote of thanks to Arthur M. Harris, who although unable to be present, as he expected, to give a talk to the young men, kindly engaged Dr. Reynolds to furnish part of the entertainment.

Entertained Bible Class.

The Loyal Band (class 24) of Trinity Reformed Bible School, was entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Kinney, of East Sixth street. Work of the various committees was discussed. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Thirteen members of the class were present.

KEEP THEIR GAZE FIXED ON TRENTON

Suffragists Preparing to Send Large Delegation to the Hearing on Amendment.

A LETTER SPURS THEM ON

Miss Belle Tiffany Sends It to Be Read at a Meeting—Everyone Present Determines to Make the Trip.

Increased determination to send a large delegation to the suffrage amendment hearing in Trenton on March 12 was roused among the members of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield at a meeting yesterday by the reading of a letter from Miss Belle Tiffany, who is a member of the Joint Legislative Committee of Suffrage Organizations of New Jersey. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, president of the League.

Miss Tiffany said in part:

"On March 12 in the State House, Trenton, there will be a hearing before the Legislature on the "Woman Suffrage Resolution." This hearing has been granted by the joint Senate and Assembly Judiciary Committee and set for 10 to 11 a. m. This is our opportunity to make such a demonstration as will indicate to the Legislature the enthusiasm in the cause and to disprove that 'Women do not want the ballot.' Thousands must necessarily be kept away by their daily occupations so that the largest possible attendance will still be a small fractional representation of our supporters. This indicates the imperative obligation upon each one who can possibly attend.

"March 12 will be "Votes for women Day" in New Jersey. The day will only be won by sacrifices. Time, money, personal inconvenience or social engagements should not interfere. Nothing but prompt, persistent, systematic effort will secure success."

After hearing the letter all the women present at the meeting promised to go to the hearing. One member said: "Of course, I am going. You couldn't keep me away."

All those who are able will connect with the "votes for women special" at Jersey City, Newark or Elizabeth. Elizabeth is of course, the point nearest to Plainfield. The cost of a round trip from Elizabeth to Trenton (special rate is $1.30.) Banners will be supplied each person on the train or at the State House.

On reaching Trenton the suffragists will form in line and march to the State House. At the hearing will be some of the ablest speakers in the country to plead the cause of equal suffrage. Any one, whether or not an acknowledged advocate of votes for women is welcome to attend the hearing and further particulars can be obtained from Mrs. Riley. Also tickets on the "special" if desired.

BLOOMFIELD WOMAN DIES AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL.

Miss Jessie Robertson, aged 31 years, who was operated upon at Muhlenberg Hospital, on February 20 for appendicitis, died at that institution, last night. The disease was in an advanced stage at the time of the operation, and but little hope for recovery was entertained from the first.

Miss Robertson's home was in Bloomfield, and at the time she was taken ill, she was visiting her sister, Mrs. H. G. Lucas, of Berkeley Heights. The remains were taken to the late home at Bloomfield today, where the funeral will be held.

CALLS ROOSEVELT DOUGLAS OF TODAY

Judd Stewart on 'Lincoln on Present Day Problems as Represented by Candidate.'

MAKES AN ATTACK ON T. R.

"'Substituting Falsehood and Deception for Truthful Evidence and Fair Argument' He Attempts to Mislead American People.

Declaring that their "utterances in their first inaugural adresses clearly indicate the inherent differences between the two men, one always for a row, the other always for peace," Judd Stewart, of Willow avenue, North Plainfield, yesterday forwarded to Herbert Bigelow, chairman of the State Constitutional Convention of Ohio, an open letter, which will be widely distributed, entitled "Abraham Lincoln on Present Day Problems as Represented by Theodore Roosevelt."

After declaring that no honest man except through inexcusable ignorance can say that Lincoln ever attacked the constitution, and that in his Columbus speech Mr. Roosevelt failed to repeat all of a sentence, in which Mr. Lincoln referred to the right of the people to change the government, Mr. Stewart says: "Does not this seem prophetic? The man of genius, the man of ambition unbounded, the man who would do no good but who demands distinction, has arrived." The letter concludes:

"I submit that these utterances are applicable to the present situation in our political life, and demonstrate with almost prophetic foresight Lincoln's criticism of the man with leisure to study and with access to history applies to Roosevelt, and that Mr. Roosevelt now occupies a position similar to that of Stephen A. Douglas in Lincoln's day, 'substituting falsehood and deception for truthful evidence and fair argument,' whenever he attempts to mislead the American people into false belief as to Lincoln's views respecting the Supreme Court and the constitution of the United States."

John T. Hettick, an attorney, aided in the preparation of the letter, which has been printed in phamplet form.

Mr. Stewart for years has been considered one of the best informed men in the country on the life and works of Abraham Lincoln. His collection of Lincolniana is the second finest in the world.

HOLY CROSS MEN'S CLUB TO HEAR RECTOR LECTURE

The Men's Club of the Church of the Holy Cross met in regular monthly session last night and heard a number of encouraging reports from the various committees. Among the reports arousing enthusiasm was the one of the amusement committee which gave the plans for organizing a glee club, and that of the athletic committee which reported a brilliant outlook for spring, summer and fall.

Rev. W. S. McCoy, the rector, at the request of the entertainment committee, is arranging to deliver a lecture on "A Trip Through a Canadian Mining Camp." The lecture is to be illustrated by slides made from photographs taken by the rector on a visit to the mines at Cobalt.

Change Name to Bible School.

The officers and teachers of the Temple Baptist church Sabbath school met last night at the home of John Viebrock on Berckman street, and made numerous changes in the by-laws and constitution. It was decided hereafter to call it the Bible school, instead of Sunday school, and a different arrangement for the heads of committees was made. A social hour followed.

WE MUST DO IT.

After reading the proofs of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton's editorial for tomorrow's issue, it was decided necessary to print many extra copies on Saturday. You will know "the why" when you read what the good doctor has to say. Suffices to mention that the editorial will cause a whole lot of comment and is bound to be re-printed in dailies published in cities much larger than Plainfield. SCOTT AND AMUNDSEN REACH POLE IS REPORT

Norwegian Explorer First Sends Tidings Giving Credit to Britisher--Private Messages Credit Amundsen With Getting to Goal.

The south pole has been reached both by Captain Robert F. Scott, the British explorer, and Captain Raold Amundsen, the famous Norwegian explorer, according to information believed to be authentic.

Captain Amundsen, who has just reached Wellington, New Zealand, on his return trip and who is believed to have met the Scott expedition, also returning, but by a longer route, wired to London that Captain Scott had reached the pole. He did not give details nor mention his own success. Since then, however, private messages have been received in Christiania from Captain Amundsen, the contents of which have been withheld for the time, but which are said positively to contain the statement that Amundsen's expedition reached the pole.

BAD CHECK PASSER CONFESSES GUILT

Denied It, In the Face of Evidence, Until Chief Kiely Grilled Him.

COMMITTED TO ELIZABETH

Negro Planned a Big Haul, But His Operations Were Nipped Before He Had a Chance to Work More Than Two Victims.

James Turner, the young colored man arrested by the city police, Wednesday, on suspicion of being the negro who had passed a worthless check on Frank Linke and cashed another check stolen from Dr. Charles A. Eaton, admitted his guilt to Chief Kiely yesterday afternoon. Previously he had stoutly protested innocence in the face af accumulating evidence, and his reversal came only after a "sweating" process.

He was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning and waived examination. In default of $500 bail he was committed to Elizabeth to wait the action of the Grand Jury.

Turner planned to make a good sized haul by his operations but he secured only $25. Of this amount $15 was paid to him on the check stolen from Dr. Eaton's home while he was employed there for a few days, and the remainder came from Frank Linke, who accepted a bogus check. Attempts were made to work Robert Murray, the auctioneer, and T. S. Armstrong, the druggist, but in both instances the intended victims became suspicious.

DETERMINED WOMAN HOLDS UP TROLLEY LINE

A Westfield woman held up a main line trolley this noon and threw the whole P. S. C. running schedule out of whack by more than ten minutes And all because she wanted her own way, and got it.

The woman who gave her name after gaining her point, as Mrs. Ryer attempted to board the car by the front door at Watchung avenue and Fourth street. The motorman called "Exit only," and closed the door after the woman was on the step. From the inside the motorman advised her to dismount and enter by the rear door, according to the rules Mr. Ryer refused.

The motorman didn't dare start with the woman hanging to the car handle and all efforts to induce her to release her hold were haughtily ignored. After a ten-minute wait the company's rule was broken; the woman entered, calmly seated herself and traffic was resumed.

HOW ONE'S HOME MAY BE MADE ARTISTICALLY RIGHT

"The How and Why of an Artistic Home," was the subject of a lecture given at the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon by F. Alvah Parsons, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. Mr. Parsons is the head of the New York Art School, an authority on art work, and well fitted to discuss the subject assigned him in this first of a series of three lectures on practical topics.

Mr. Parsons devoted the first part of his talk to the many common mistakes made in making the home artistic and attractive, chiefly through lack of harmony, colors and such factors, etc., and he then proceeded to show how the artistic can be obtained in the home by the proper blending of colors and arrangement of lines.

The speaker referred to decorations, the use of wall-papers, and the hanging of pictures and draperies, pointing out how through the exercise of a little judgment all can be made to harmonize and bring about a pleasing effect to the eye. The lecture was marked by a great many helpful suggestions, all of a practical nature.

The second lecture on "Good Taste in Dress," will be given by Mrs. Helen G. Fisk, of the New York Teacher's College, at the Y. W. C. A., Thursday afternoon, March 14, and Miss Farrell, of Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, will give the third lecture at the same place and time on "The Management of the Home."

PROSECUTOR TO INVESTIGATE CASE

To Examine Fitzherbert Evidence to Find Possible Grounds for Criminal Action.

COURT DETAINS GRAND JURY

Fitzherbert Guilty and His Punishment to Be Determined By His Colleagues Next Week—Defendant Not Expected to Resign.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 8.—Senator Richard Fitzherbert, of Morris county, having been adjudged by the New Jersey Senate guilty of conduct inconsistent with the duty and trust of a Senator, in connection with the acetylene gas bills, Prosecutor William J. Crossley, of this county, will at once examine into the evidence and all phases of the case to ascertain if there be ground for grand jury action.

Prosecutor Crossley said today he proposed to investigate the case. When asked if the matter had been referred to him officially by the Senate, he said it had not yet, but he intimated that probably it would be.

His statement was: "I will examine the evidence carefully and whatever other light I can get on the case and, will then determine my action in the matter. I cannot discuss the case further at this time."

The present Mercer Grand Jury has been making a special probe into conditions in the county as the result of the automobile accident after a "joy ride" several weeks ago in which five young persons lost their lives. Judge Gnichtel has directed the jury to remain in session until the next term, so it will have ample opportunity to investigate the Senator Fitzherbert case, if it be referred to them. The jury is noted for the high standing of its members and the thoroughness of its work.

Divided closely on political lines and with partisanship manifesting itself in several ways, the Senate found Senator Fitzherbert guilty by the vote of 11 to 9, as told exclusively in the Daily Press yesterday. The vote was taken amid suppressed excitement in the great throng that crowded the Senate chamber. Every foot of space in the galleries and lobbies was occupied and the spectators overflowed into the chamber itself. All through the proceedings yesterday there was the greatest interest manifested. The vote was as follows:

NETHERWOOD CHURCHMEN COOK AND SERVE A SUPPER

The men of the Netherwood Reformed church served a supper in the church last night. Fletcher Willis as chef displayed a proficiency in the culinary art that surprised his neighbors and friends. He was ably assisted by Rev. Royal Stout, the pastor, and F. A. Cooper, who acted as head waiter.

More then a hundred portions of the viands were served to members and friends of the church and residents of the eastern end of the city. Any misgivings that may have been felt regarding the ability of the men to cook and serve a supper was entirely overcome, and nothing but compliments were heard by those who had dined.

LADIES' AID PLANS TO HELP MONROE EXPAND.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. As it is not definitely known as yet what will be done regarding this proposition, nothing in the way of permanent plans were formulated by the women present although all expressed their willingness to participate.

RAPID AMERICANS.

An English Critic on Our Barber Shops and Rocking Chairs.

I cannot find that quickness is an American characteristic. What is mistaken for quickness is a kind of nervous fidgets, for the American is infinitely restless and nervous. It is shown in his passion for doing many things at once. The barber shop, a thing characteristically American, affords a wonderful example of this substitution of restlessness and circumstance for real rapidity and economy of time. The business man, still in his dramatic character of a locomotive pressed for time, hurries into the barber shop and extends himself in a chair, feet and hands outspread, a bootblack engaged on each boot, a manicurist on each hand and the barber himself operating on his head. But such are the seductions of the barber shop that he probably spends twenty minutes or half an hour there, as against the Englishman's four or five minutes.

It is time simply wasted, from a business point of view; that is to say, it is spent in sheer luxury. For the Americans, being among the cleanest people in the world, have a Roman sense of luxury in everything that appertains to washing and care of the body; and their lavatories and barber shops are like temples raised to some goddess of health and cleanliness. And, finally, it was America that invented that triumph in the achievement of two opposite things at once—the rocking chair. So restless is the American that even when he is resting he wants to be moving, and consequently he has achieved this infernal engine, the rocking chair, in which (when he is obliged to remain in one place for a time) he can indulge in a continuous movement which yet does not advance him an inch. He can thus be busy even while he is at rest.—Filson Young in English Review.

ANIMALS WITH HANDS.

Kangaroos Are Fond of Using Their Fore Feet In Feeding.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it into their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of its mother's pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other.

The slow, deliberate clasping and unclasping of a chameleon's feet look like the movements which the hands of a sleep walker might make were he trying to creep downstairs. The chameleon's are almost deformed hands, yet they have a superficial resemblance to the feet of parrots, which more than other birds use their feet for many of the purposes of a hand when feeding. To see many of the smaller rodents—ground squirrels, prairie dogs and marmots—hold food, usually in both paws, is to learn a lesson in the dextrous use of hands without thumbs.

Nothing more readily suggests the momentary impression that a pretty little monkey is "a man and a brother" than when he stretches out his neat little palm, fingers and thumb and, with all the movements proper to the civilized mode of greeting, insists on shaking hands.—London Graphic.

A Curious Windstorm.

A peculiar freak of weather is the storm called the "williwau." This form of storm is confined to that far off island Tierra del Fuego. The coast is indented with deep fiords crowned with high mountains. Down from their gorges drops the williwau. A low, hoarse muttering is heard in the distance. Suddenly, without the least preliminary puff, a fearful blast of wind drops upon the sea. The water is not raised into waves, but driven into fine dust. Fortunately the shock lasts but ten or twelve seconds, and calm follows at once, for no vessel could stand such a wind for even half a minute. During the coming and going of a williwau the barometer may be watched to drop a tenth of an inch or more and rise again at once.

She Was a Skeptic.

In pioneer days a settler near the present town of Albany, Mo., bought for his wife the first cook stove ever seen in that part of the state. It was an object of great curiosity, and the woman's next door neighbor, who lived ten miles away, came to see how it would work. Without comment she saw the dinner cooked. She ate the meal with judgment held in reserve and then remarked, with a shake of the head:

"Well, Sarah, it cooks all right, and the victuals taste good, but I don't believe it will ever be a success."

Mistakes.

To make mistakes is human. Everybody makes mistakes, the best of us included. To acknowledge mistakes is commendable. It is evidence that one is learning by experience, and it shows that he has the courage to acknowledge a blunder. Courage is a rare quality in these days.—Leslie's.

Badly Expressed.

"Yes, Aunt Mary went out without her rubbers, and now she is in heaven." "My, my! What dreadful things result from a little carelessness!"—Exchange.

The Wrong Man.

"Just a minute, old chap. You're just the man I want to see."

"No, I'm not. I can't spare a cent."—Pittsburgh Post.

If your eyes are always cast down, cobwebs will gather on the ceiling.

The Trustful Aviator.

"Modern politics," said an English clergyman, who is visiting this country, "is worse than modern business. You here in the States are so used to political corruption that you joke about it. I heard a joke about it on the boat coming over. An aviator—the joke ran—descended in a field and said to a rather well dressed individual:

"'Here, mind my machine a minute, will you?'

"'What?' the well dressed individual snarled. 'Me mind your machine? Why, I'm a United States senator!'

"'Well, what of it?' said the aviator. 'I'll trust you.'"—Washington Star.

Think of It!

Two brothers, each of whom is nearly six feet and a half tall, were one day introduced by an acquaintance to a young lady. As she sat gazing up at the pair of giants in wonder and awe she exclaimed:

"Great heavens, suppose there had only been one of you!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

FRENCH AND GERMAN COLORS

Supposed Origin of the Tricolor and the Teuton Flag.

For five centuries black and white have been the Hohenzollern colors, and the first verse of the German war song, "Ich bin ein Preusse," is:

I am a Prussian! Know ye not my banner?
Before me floats my flag of black and white!
My fathers died for freedom; 'twas their manner—
So say these colors floating in your sight.

The mercantile marine tricolor of black, white and red is emblematic of the joining of the Hohenzollern black and white with the red and white, which was the ensign of the Hanseatic league. This flag came into being when the North German Confederacy was established, Nov. 25, 1867, at the close of the Austro-Prussian war. The red and white represent the commercial prosperity of the nation, while the black and white symbolize the strong arm of the state prepared to protest and foster it.

Nowhere have historical events caused so much change in the standards and national ensigns of a country as in France. The oriflamme and the chape de St. Martin were succeeded at the end of the sixteenth century, when Henry III., the last of the house of Valois, came to the throne, by the white standard powdered fleur-de-lis. That in turn gave place to the famous tricolor which was introduced at the time of the revolution, but the origin of that flag and its colors is a disputed question. Some maintain that the intention was to combine in the flag the blue of the chape de St. Martin, the red of the oriflamme and the white flag of the Bourbons. By others the colors are said to be those of the city of Paris. Yet again other authorities assert that the flag is copied from the shield of the Orleans family as it appeared after Philippe Egalite had knocked off the fleur-de-lis.—Kansas City Star.

A Revised Opinion.

A well known after dinner speaker of New York was going home from a banquet on a surface car. At his corner he signaled the conductor to stop; but, as he swung off the platform, the car started up again, and he plowed the asphalt for ten feet with his face and figure. He struggled to his feet to see the car fading away and a large, tired looking policeman contemplating him from the sidewalk.

"Did you see that?" demanded the victim as he limped toward the pavement.

"I did," said the policeman, "an' it was your own fault."

"I didn't ask you whose fault it was!" snapped back the after dinner speaker. "I asked you—Did you see it?"

"I did not," said the policeman.—Saturday Evening Post.

Cromwell's Spurs.

It is generally acknowledged that the most brilliant light cavalry officer Great Britain has ever produced was Oliver Cromwell. It is therefore peculiary unfortunate, but it is nevertheless a fact, that on the statue of the Protector which stands outside Westminster hall the spurs are represented as attached to the boots upside down. Further, the left spur is on the right foot, and the right is on the left, while it is insisted by the best experts that the spurs are not of the period.—"The Bargain Book."

AMERICAN GIRL HAS HER CHINESE HUSBAND ARRESTED.

Trenton, Mar. 8.—Chun Hun, a Chinese laundryman, of 104 South Warren street, was arrested on complaint of his wife, Annie Hun, on a charge of non-support. According to the charge, Hun has neglected to support his wife and their little five-months-old girl, and in addition has led Mrs. Hun a life if misery and suffering. The arrest is the culmination of a shattered romance.

Mrs. Hun has been living with her mother at 25 Groveville avenue, since being driven from home by her husband. She took the case up with Overseer of the Poor Alfred Parker several days ago and a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Hun. He was taken into custody yesterday afternoon at his laundry and locked up in the Central Police Station, to await a hearing in Central Court before Judge Naar.

Mrs. Hun became the Celestial's bride a year ago. They were married by the Rev. Ross Slack.

SUMMIT IS INSISTENT ON PROPER MILK STANDARD.

Summit, Mar. 8.—The ordinance of the Board of Health, requiring all cows supplying milk to this place be tuberculin tested, is to be rigidly enforced. The board has refused to accept the tests made to cows in Newark prior to last October, as it is considered that the test was not as carefully made as it should have been. It is declared that another test is necessary before the product of such cattle is allowed in the borough.

The dairymen say that when the State passes upon cattle that should be sufficient. It is said that the price of milk, which is now ten cents a quart, will be raised by the first of July. Heretofore milk has gone down in price about that season of the year.

TWO FIND SOUTH POLE

news of her husband's reported success.

London, March 8.—Reports received here state that Captain Scott and not Captain Amundsen discovered the south pole.

Wellington, N. Z., March 8.—Authentic reports state that Captain Scott has discovered the south pole.

Amundsen There Dec. 14-17.

London, March 8.—Captain Raold Amundsen has discovered the south pole. Definite news has been received in London, via Christiana, that he reached the pole between Dec. 14 and 17.

Christiana, March 8.—The king has received a telegram from Captain Raold Amundsen, but the contents have not been divulged. The newspapers Aftenposten and Tidens Tegnuj will print the telegram later.

Captain Amundsen's brother Leon says Raold will go on a lecture tour of Australia and Europe, after which he will head an expedition to the north pole. Meantime the Fram, after making necessary repairs, will go to San Francisco, where Amundsen will meet her in 1913.

Christiana, March 8.—A citizen here has received a private telegram from Captain Amundsen's expedition stating that Amundsen reached the pole.

Lieutenant Shackleton's Comment.

London, March 8.—Lieutenant Sir Ernest Shackleton, commenting on Captain Amundsen's announcement that he discovered the south pole, points out that Dec. 14 to 17 means that when he reached the geographical pole he waited three days, taking noon observations, so as to accurately determine his position and exclude any uncertainty.

The advantage of three days' observations, Lieutenant Shackleton explains, are these:

Assuming that the explorer took a noon observation of the altitude of the sun and found he was at the pole, a degree of uncertainty would exist because of the slow movements of the sun, which completes a circle with a hardly perceptible rise or fall. If an observation is taken on the second day at the same spot and the difference of the declination of the sun in its north or south path corresponds with the observation the day before and it does this on the third day he may safely assume that his position is accurate. If he was using the theodolite, which is undoubtedly a most accurate instrument, there is no doubt that he could ascertain the position of the pole to one mile.

Lieutenant Shackleton, having in mind the conflicting earlier reports raises the question, Did Captain Scott reach the pole prior to Dec. 14? Even if he did, says the lieutenant, the same meed of praise should be awarded to Captain Amundsen as the Norwegians would grant to Captain Scott if the conditions were reversed. Lieutenant Shackleton speculates on the possibility of the two expeditions after reaching the Beardmore glacier being in touch with each other sufficiently to be aware of their respective movements or even a convergence by different routes across the glacier with a dramatic meeting at the pole.

Reading between the lines of Lieutenant Shackleton's speculations, it is evident that he is inclined to think that Amundsen's dogs and skee runners have beaten Scott's ponies and pedestrians.

Captain Scott's Plans.

London, March 8.—The plan of Captain Scott was to pursue exactly the same course as that followed by Shackleton. Shackleton entered Ross sea, landed at Cape Royds and then sailed until he reached McMurdo sound on the shore of Victoria Land. From thence he marched over the ice barrier due south until he reached the vicinity of the pole. Instead of keeping on the coast line Shackleton pursued a course which took him directly over the ice, though he kept the coast and the mountains of South Victoria Land in sight all the while. The continent itself at Victoria Land is mountainous and the altitude over 9,000 feet. This would have made the sledging very bad and was the reason why Shackleton made his march over the ice barrier.

This ice barrier stretches between Victoria Land and King Edward VII. Land, a distance of about 210 miles. The ice barrier is from 200 to 300 feet high. It is supposed to be caused by the ice from around the pole trying to get through the gullet found between Victoria Land and King Edward VII. Land. The distance from the edge of this ice barrier to what Shackleton called the Great glacier is about 414 miles. This glacier, up which Scott, like Shackleton, probably fought his way, extended, Shackleton found, a distance of about ninety-three miles. It led to the plateau which at an altitude of 10,000 feet surrounds the pole. From the end of the glacier to the pole itself was about 310 miles.

In announcing his plans in London before he sailed Scott divided his journey to the pole into three stages. The first was to be over the ice barrier to the foot of this glacier, the second up the glacier to the plateau and the third across this plateau or lofty inland plain capped with ice to the pole.

Like Shackleton, Scott planned to divide his party. One party, consisting of Lieutenant Campbell and five men, was to be sent east to attempt a landing on King Edward VII. Land, forming the eastern shore of Ross sea. While this land was discovered years ago, nobody had ever been able to step foot on it because of the ice surrounding it. Subsequent reports brought back by the Terra Nova last year showed that this party had failed in accomplishing their objects on account of the ice and had shifted the scene of their exploration to Victoria Land.

At the pole Scott intended to plant the two flags which had been presented to him just before he started by Queen Alexandra. They were two union jacks. The larger one was to be hoisted at the pole, if reached, and then brought back and presented to her. The other flag, made of stronger texture, it was planned to leave flying as a permanent record of the feat.

Speaking of his plans for the real polar dash, he said:

"During the winter preparations will be made for a great effort to reach the south pole in the following season (our winter). By that time we shall know what reliance can be placed on the ponies, dogs and sledges. But in any case a large party of men will be prepared for the southern party. Some of the scientific staff will remain at the station through the summer. A small party will act independently for geological purposes, but at least sixteen men and possibly more will accompany the main transport on the road to the south."

DESTROYED LETTERS.

Vice President of Wire Company Did So Rather Than Have Them Filed.

Trenton, N. J., March 8.—The answer of the United States Steel corporation to the allegations of the United States government in the suit for its dissolution was filed in the United States circuit court here.

The government alleged the letters which had been impounded in the office of General Attorney McVeagh had been destroyed, notwithstanding an alleged agreement between the government and the steel corporation that these letters should not be destroyed.

Frank Baaches, vice president of the American Steel and Wire company, who was accused of destroying a trunk full of letters despite the alleged agreement, admits in the answer filed that he destroyed the letters. He gives as his reason for so doing that they were sent to his company and were so voluminous that to return them to the files would involve a huge task.

Mr. Baaches denies, however, the contention of the government that these letters would have shown that J. A. Farrell was president of the steel corporation for the period named by the government.

RESISTS VACCINATION.

Because He Defends Daughter, Father Is Called to Court.

Passaic, N. J., March 8.—Because he refuses to allow his daughter, eleven years old, to be vaccinated, George H. Michels, a member of the board of health, was notified to appear in police court to answer a charge of disorderly conduct made by the board of education.

"My father died of smallpox and a sister was crippled after vaccination," said Mr. Michels, "and I refuse to permit my daughter to be vaccinated, even if I am compelled to move out of the state."

Those who oppose vaccination and representatives of the League For Medical Freedom are interested and will make this a test for compulsory vaccination.

TRIED TO "COOK HER ALIVE."

So Contractor's Wife Charges, and Husband Is In Jail.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 8.—Frank P. Tanner, a contractor, is in jail without bail pending an investigation of his wife's charges that he attempted to cook her alive.

Some weeks ago Tanner had his wife arrested on a charge of assault and battery. He alleged that he caught her on the street with Thomas McMorrow, an "affinity," and that she held her escort's coat and hat while McMorrow proceeded to lambast the husband.

At the hearing Mrs. Tanner charged that her husband had attempted to asphyxiate her on three different occasions. She claims he set fire to her home; and she was rescued by firemen after almost suffocating with the smoke.

$400,000 Pier at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 8.—Announcement was made that a Philadelphia syndicate, headed by Alfred E. Burk, will start work upon the $400,000 pier at New Jersey avenue within two weeks. The structure is to have a theater with a stage larger than any in the country except that of the New York Hippodrome.

FOUR RULES OF SELLING.

They Went With the Job the Gritty Salesman Landed.

Until some ten years ago it was an axiom in the big packing house circles of Chicago that a salesman should be guided by four rules as laid down by one of the famous heads of that industry. He was noted for his brusqueness and also a democratic nature that scorned the usual hedge of clerks that stands between a big man and his callers.

A bright manly looking chap entered the office one day when he was very busy.

"Good morning," he began politely.

The packer gave him a hasty glance.

"Well, what the blankety-blank-blank do you want?" he growled.

"I want civil treatment, and I want it blankety-blank-blank quick," came the sharp answer.

"Oh!" The packer looked up in surprise. Modulating his voice a trifle, he asked, "What can I do for you?"

"I want a job as a salesman. I have worked as a butcher, I have worked in the packing houses, and I have sold smaller lines to the meat trade. I have references to prove that I deliver the goods, and I have them with me. I want to get into a bigger field, and I am here to make good. Have you got a job open?"

"If we haven't we'll make an opening for you. Report to the sales manager Monday morning."

As the young man started to leave the office the brusque old packer called him back.

"Do you know why you got that job?" he asked.

"No, sir."

"Well, you have the three essentials that make a good salesman. I'll point them out to you, so you'll remember 'em. First, you don't think any man is better than you are, and you have the nerve to stick to it; second, you knew the good points of what you had to sell; third, you stated them in the fewest possible words. I'll add a fourth—get out before I change my mind."—Business.

THE POLE STAR.

Some of the Wonders of This Great Beacon of the North.

Most people, if they know nothing else of astronomy, at any rate know the pole star, the one star which seems to keep its place in the heavens without movement of any kind. There are a great many, however, who do not know what a wonderful thing it is. In the first place, it can be seen when looked at through a good telescope to be two stars and not one. There is one fairly bright one, of what is known as the second magnitude, and another of the ninth magnitude close to it.

But that is not all. The brighter of the two is really three stars revolving round one another, or rather round their common center of gravity, like three children playing "ring a ring o' roses." This secret is revealed to us by what is perhaps the most astonishing of all scientific instruments, the spectroscope. It not only tells us what the stars are made of, but whether they are moving toward us or away from us.

When you stand facing the star you are always facing north. The reason that it does not appear to move as the others do is because it is nearly in line with the axis of the earth. Its distance from us is enormous. This can be judged from the fact that although the earth in its journey round the sun is today about 190,000,000 miles from where it was six months ago, that makes no appreciable difference to its distance from the pole star. It must therefore be many times 190,000,000 miles away.

The Ruling Spirit.

Sitting at a cafe in Paris one evening, I heard a woman's idea of war. An affectionate young couple were audaciously making love over some bavaroise au chocolat. The girl was telling machere all manner of pretty things that ran something like this: "What a pity there will be no war after all! You would have been wounded, and I should have gone out to nurse you in such a pretty costume d'infirmiere!"—London Black and White.

Richter's Criticism.

On one occasion Hans Richter was present at a concert given by a brother composer at which the latter performed a long and not particularly interesting work of his own. When the composition came to an end Richter expressed his criticism in a very few words. "Well," he said, "I, too, haf written compositions to make a pile so high," raising his hand three feet from the ground, "but I haf burned them."

Irony For Sarcasm.

The Actress (disdainfully)—Twenty dollars a week! Why, whom do you think you're trying to engage?

Manager (of bush repertoire company)—Why—er—I beg your pardon, madam, but which New York theater is named after you?—Puck.

Sure Sign.

"Do you think they are engaged?"

"I think so. They're giving a family party tomorrow night so that all the relatives can meet him."—Detroit Free Press.

Would Be Prepared.

She—Suppose, dear, I find you have not given me enough money? He—Then telegraph for more. She—Have you a telegraph blank?—Exchange.

A Big Difference.

Madge—Don't you think a girl should marry an economical man? Dolly—I suppose so, but it's just awful being engaged to one.

DEMANDING LAND HELD BY ELIZABETH TIN FIRM

Elizabeth, March 8. — Undue influence, misrepresentation and lack of proper consideration are set out in a Chancery bill as grounds why the National Tin Company of Elizabeth should be compelled to reconvey to the heirs of Miss Sarah Abbott, who lived in Monroe street, Elizabeth, land on which the plant of the concern is located. Miss Abbott accepted 225 shares of the defendant tin company's preferred stock for the land.

As a preliminary move in the suit Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield, counsel for William A. Hopewell and Francis S. Hopewell, nephews and sole heirs of Miss Abbott, asked that the books and accounts of the tin company be produced before a special master for inspection.

Mr. Oliver's application was opposed by former Prosecutor William R. Wilson, of Elizabeth, who, together with Leo Mansell and Albert E. Snow, both of Manhattan, incorporated the tin company. The vice-chancellor continued the application to March 19, when the defendant compay is to submit affidavits.

The tin company was incorporated last August with an authorized capital of $300,000. Its plant is located on Caspian street, Elizabethport. Miss Abbott died a month go, aged eighty-seven years. The land 000. The 225 shares of preferred stock she received for it have par value of $100 the share.

The bill sets out also that after the tin company's incorporators persuaded Miss Abbott to deed the land to the company they borrowed $2,000 from the Union County Trust Company on a mortgage against the property.

Mr. Wilson is alleged to have been Miss Abbott's attorney for many years.

BOYS' HOME ATTENDANT IS RULED OUT FOR BLOW

Jamesburg, March 8. — Finding Arthur A. Brown, an attendant at the State Home for Boys, guilty of assault, the board of trustees have recommended that he be dismissed. Brown was charged with clubbing Walter Mconald, an inmate, fourteen years old, causing a fracture of the skull. The board found him innocent of clubbing, but because he struck the boy, ordered his discharge. It also gave notice that any future offences of the kind will be punished in the same way.

The evidence taken showed that McDonald not only has had many bumps, but that he was suffering from an affection of the brain due to cigarette smoking.

Brown was accused of striking McDonald February 3. When on February 16 the lad complained of dizziness he was put in the hospital and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin McDonald, of 419 Henderson street, Jersey City, were notified. They took him to a hospital in Jersey City, there charging that his skull had been fractured by an attendent of the home. This resulted in the investigation.

Brown said that he struck McDonald with his open hand for disobedience in the dining room. John O'Donell, an inmate, testified that on February 12 McDonald tried to jump onto his sled when the boys were coasting near the home, missed and struck on the back of his head. Robert Quinlan and Michael Haley, both inmates testified to like accidents. Martin Lenox said that McDonald struck his head against a fence railing February 15 while coasting. A few days before, he said, he had struck McDonald himself with a horse handle during a quarrel.

Superintendent Kalleen suspended Brown following the trouble in the dinning room on February 3, and in this action was commended by the trustees.

COWS UNFED: ILLNESS IS WOMAN'S EXCUSE.

Dover, Mar. 8.—Mrs. Ida C. J. Berry, of Golden Corners, has been summoned to appear before Justice of the Peace John W. Young, next Tuesday afternoon, to answer a charge preferred by James E. Welsh, an agent of the S. P. C. A. In his charge, the agent states the defendant neglected to properly care for and feed five cows on her premises, and that two of the cows are in such a condition that they will, in all probability, have to be killed.

The defendant claims she has been sick a month and unable to attend to her stock, and her only help was an eleven-year-old daughter. There is also a horse in the stable, but this animal seemed to have fared better than the cows. This, the child explains, is due to the fact that she loved the horse and consequently gave it a little more feed than she was instructed to give, and also fed it oftener.

Mr. Welsh sent a veterinary to the Berry farm two weeks ago, who gave Mrs. Berry instructions as to what to do and she promised to follow them. The agent says the defendant failed to live up to her promise and took no steps to remedy conditions.

PRESERVING NAVY'S FLAGS.

Genuine enthusiasm, that which comes from heart throbs of real patriotism, filled the House of Representatives at Washington the other day when a bill appropriating $30,000 for the repair, perservation and exhibition of the 136 trophy flags which record the history of the American Navy was under discussion. Democrats and Republicans vied with each other in giving vent to cheers such as are seldom heard in that forum. Venerable members wiped the tears from their eyes while the more youthful ones shouted themselves hoarse as the vote was announced as being unanimous in favor of the measure. The galleries had caught the contagion and the spectators let themselves loose in shouting with all their might. The first demonstration occurred when a great, square ensign of the navy blue, with yellowed white letters straggling across it was unfurled over a big easel placed in the wall in front of the speaker's desk.

"This tattered ensign," cried Representative Bates, of Pennsylvania, "is Commodore Perry's battle flag, inscribed with his words, 'Don't give up the ship,' the last utterance of Captain Lawrence, of the ill-starred frigate Chesapeake. It was hoisted to the masthead of Perry's flagship at the battle of Lake Erie as the signal for action. Don't you want it preserved?"

There was silence for a moment and then every member of the house jumped to his feet, making all the noise possible. The galleries caught the contagion and applauded, unreproved by Speaker Clark.

Then, while Mr. Bates, who is a member of the naval committee, referred briefly to historical naval battles in which the United States was victorious, pages draped other historic flags across an easel for the house to see. Some of them were mere rags, tattered, torn, motheaten and discolored. Others were faded, but almost whole. A cheer from the house greeted the production of each trophy.

Among the stained and motheaten flags exhibited was the first United States ensign hoisted in Japan. Commodore Perry hoisted it to the masthead of his flagship in his interview with the Japanese commissions at Uruga, near Yokohama, July 14, 1853, when Japan was still a forbidden kingdom to the other nations of the world.

It was by the dominating force of women that Seattle on Tuesday elected a mayor pledged to abolish a "wide-open" town. When Cotterill, the successful candidate, was nominated, the practical politicians of that progressive city were a unit in predicting that he could never be elected. Cotterill had risen to National prominence as a Prohibition advocate. He was an unrelenting preacher of municipal ownership and of single tax. His opponent, Gill, was one of those easy-going fellows who pandered to the "machine" and who naturally favored letting things run loose. He was confident of victory and viewed his rival more as a joke than anything else. During the last week of the strenuous campaign conducted by Cotterill the women and the churches became aroused to the real gravity of the situation. The "jig was up" with Gill. The climax came when William Jennings Bryan, an apostle of Prohibition and clean government, arrived on the scene. The Commoner took off his coat and got to work for Cotterill. And Cotterill won out. His majority over Gill was but a few hundred and some 62,000 votes were cast. The mayor-elect is pledged to press the construction of a municipal street railway already authorized by the electors. He is also in favor of the public ownership of wharves and harbor facilities. Fortunately, however, his proposed single tax amendment to the charter appears to be beaten.

After all, the Democratic Senators, much to their discredit, apparently let the partisan feeling get the better of unbiased judgment in passing upon the Fitzherbert case for they voted as a unit not to convict him of the serious charge for which he was brought to the bar of the Senate. At the outset, be it said in justice to the Republican Senators, the representatives of the majority party in that body made it distinctly understood that they would take no party advantage of the matter and during the whole trial no attempt was made by them to get political capital out of the affair. The Attorney-General surely made out his case against the accused and how in the name of common sense those nine Democrats could have banded together and voted solidly for acquittal in the face of such evidence if not for party is hard indeed to understand. But they have hurt their party immeasurably and the result will prove disastrous for them at the coming election for in these days the people are not too quick to forget such actions of their representatives.

The average man will consider the feat of Henri Selmet, who made an aerial trip yesterday from London to Paris without a stop, of far more moment to this progressive age than the reported discovery of the South Pole by Amundsen. Viewed from a purely practical standpoint, Selmet's achievement makes one more step forward in solving the problem of aerial navigation. Amundsen's accomplishment, nevertheless, is of vast importance from a scientific viewpoint. From a practical standpoint, however, what does it amount to?

All who have had the pleasure of hearing Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton preach, or have listened to one of his after-dinner speeches will make it a special point to read the editorial columns of this paper tomorrow. The Saturday Contributed Editorial feature of the Daily Press has attracted attention far beyond Plainfield and its immediate vicinity. Dr. Eaton will be the editor tomorrow.

Evidently the Mayor decided that while the Fire Chief is a pretty big man, he's not big enough to fill the five seats of a touring car.

"IT'S A CORKER!"

Theodore Roosevelt is certainly a busy man these days. But when we learned of the number of addresses Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton made in this single week; of the number of important appointments he had kept; of the conferences he had participated in; of the immense number of letters he had dictated, of the many other engagements he had filled, of the articles he had written for religious magazines, we wondered how he had found the time to write the editorial which will appear in the Daily Press tomorrow. "It's a corker" to use a Roosevelt expression. And it will make the friends of Roosevelt do some mighty hard thinking.

PROSECUTOR TO INVESTIGATE

Gaunt, Hand, Leavitt, Lewis, Nichols, Pierce, Prince, Read and Smalley, all Republicans.

Not guilty—Senators Barber, Davis, Fielder, Gebhardt, Johnson, Low, Price, Silzer and Slocum, all Democrats.

After a lively discussion the Senate again divided on party lines and laid over the question of the punishment to be meted out to the Morris Senator. It was the purpose of the Republicans not to take up at once the question of expulsion. Senator Fielder, of Hudson, brought the question to a decision by offering a motion that the Senate proceed at once to vote on the question of the expulsion of Senator Fitzherbert. This was defeated by the same party vote, 11 to 9. As further action was laid over yesterday, the case cannot be determined finally until next week, as the Senate adjourned until Monday evening.

The real purpose of the Republican Senators in delay on the question of the punishment was to give Senator Fitzherbert an opportunity to resign. The conferences on the question before the session yesterday showed that the Democrats would vote against expulsion. As it would take three Democratic votes, at least, to expel Senator Fitzherbert, the majority found itself lacking the necessary two-thirds vote for expulsion. It was this situation which led the Republicans to insist that the first question taken up should be the guilt or innocency of the Morris Senator, they being able to decide this by a majority vote. Being unable to expel Senator Fitzherbert, the Republicans hope he will resign.

The seat of Senator Fitzherbert is of supreme importance because of the slender majority the Republicans have in the Senate and because a United States Senator is to be elected next year to succeed Frank O. Briggs of this city. Senator Fitzherbert has another year to serve, so that if he keeps his seat the Democrats are assured of his vote on the Senatorship. On the other hand if he shall resign the Republicans will leave no stone unturned to elect a Republican to succeed him and thus strengthen their hold in the Senate as a means of getting nearer the Senatorship goal themselves.

It seems to be the general opinion that Senator Fitzherbert will not resign his seat, because to do so would be practically a confession of guilt. He pleaded not guilty and under oath denied the charges against him, and now to resign would be to admit that he was wrong when he denied his guilt. This is the view taken by many at the State House.

The Republicans based their vote of guilty largely on the admissions made by Senator Fitzherbert at the first hearing before the Judiciary Committee on February 20 on the acetylene bills introduced by the Senator. The Republicans claimed that the admissions made by the Morris Senator showed he had allowed himself to be used as a go-between in the offer of the $5,000 and that, therefore, he was guality as charged. The Democratic stand was that Fitzherbert had been foolish but had done no deliberate wrong.

HE WHO RESONATES

principles of wireless telegraphy and he interspersed his talk with humorous anecdotes pertinent to the subject. He described in an interesting way various kinds of waves to illustrate how simple messages can be sent through the air without the use of wires. He also compared the rapidity with which such sounds can be transmitted, contrasting the inconceiveable number of vibrations used in wireless telegraphy, with that of the ordinary voice or the sound produced by striking a key on the piano.

Dr. Tyndall said that it is just as impossible today to tell what electricity is as it was years ago, when the study was in its infancy. Of the sixth-five octaves of sound it is only possible for a person to respond to a little more than ten of them, either by sound or sight.

The speaker emphasized the great importance of harmony and unison without which there would be nothing but confusion in the general order of things. It was through unison that great things are possible in wireless telegraphy, the plan of having instruments exactly in tune so that either the waves can convey them properly through space.

Trenton, March 8.—Assemblyman Gill, of Mercer, introduced a bill in the House yesterday afternoon to standardize the size of milk bottles. It provides that milk bottles shall be of the capacity of two quarts, three pints, one quart, one pint, half pint, and one gill, and every bottle must be filled to the stopple.

Other bills put in were: Prohibiting physicians, surgeons and ministers from disclosing information officially acquired in their profession. Providing for the continuance in office of Charles Hansel, the expert assessor of railroad and canal property, until December 31, 1912. Provides for the continuation of the revaluation of the railroad property and appropriates $9,000 in addition to the unexpended balance of $6,240 of last year's appropriation.

STILL TINKERING AWAY AT STATE SCHOOL LAWS

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 8.—There was reported in the Assembly yesterday afternoon a committee substitute for the Godfrey bill, House 181, and the Groves bill, House 402, legislating out of office the new State Board of Education and making other changes in the school laws. The substitute cuts the salary of the State Commissioner of Education from $10,000 to $6,000 after Dr. Kendall's term expires and retains Dr. Kendall in office. It provides that there shall be only three assistant commissioners, instead of four, and their salary is cut from $4,500 to $3,000 after the present terms expire. The assistants must have been residents of this State three years.

Another provision in the substitute is that the appointment of the County School Superintendents is taken from the hands of the State Board and vested with the State Commissioner of Education and all county superintendents must have have been residents of the county in which they are to serve, for three years.

FORD JUST LIKE SMITH PROVES CONFUSING NAME.

There are now two H. Fords in charge of the Century theatre, New York, stage. Hugh Ford, who bears the proud title of general stage director for Liebler & Co., and who originally staged "The Garden of Allah," and Harry Ford, who is just plain ordinary stage-manager, the man who has charge of the stage hands, the camels, the lighting signal station and the curtain lever at each performance. This Harry Ford, a son of the famous John Ford, in whose Washington Theatre Lincoln was shot, though still a young man, has been with Liebler & Co. in some back-stage capacity or another ever since Viola Allen first produced "The Christian."

The multiplicity of Fords has naturally caused some little confusion, particularly in the delivery of mail. Hugh Ford, the other day, opened a friendly note from a lady whose name was strange to him, and after puzzling over it some time, came to the conclusion that it belonged to his younger associate.

The next day "Harry" Ford opened a number of bills intended for Hugh Ford. As "Harry" turned them over to their rightful owner, the latter remarked:

"Why didn't you pay them for me, I kept your date?"

"Harry" is thinking of sending cards to his friends requesting that they "in the future please know me as H. Chapman Ford," following the lead of Miss Tallaferro, who has "Nell" for a few days. Chapman is young Ford's middle name, and the name his sister Flanche uses professionally. Blanche Chapman has been playing the title role of that good old stand-by, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," these last four or five seasons.

ANDERSON RECEIVES MANY PROTESTS AGAINST BILL

Assemblyman W. de la R. Anderson, who is chairman of the legislative committee on railways and canals, has received fully 500 protests against the Pierce bill for the abolishment of grade crossings. They have been made personally, by letter and by telegraph. The import of the remonstrances are to the effect that the measure, if passed, would work incalculable harm in various ways. The protestants urge the defeat of the bill and the passage of the Read measure, which provides for the removal of the crossings but under different conditions. A hearing is to be held on the Pierce bill in the House Wednesday morning while the other is resting quietly in the hands of a Senate committee.

According to the provisions of the measure fathered by Senator Pierce it calls for the elmination of a specific number of grades each year, irrespective of cost and conditions. It is stated authoritatively that this would bankrupt several small roads, thereby depriving numerous factories of freight facilities, cutting off passenger accommodations and other troubles incidental to the suspension of an established line. The railroad officials figure the cost of all the work at $250,000,000, which is to be met within a certain period, whether industrial conditions are good or not. They also state that work of this kind must be so regulated as to interfere as little as possible with the regular running of trains, yet they have no alternative.

The Read bill calls for the abolishment of all the crossings in the State, but gives the Public Utilities Commission control of the work. It can specify how many are to be abolished each year and arrange the work to meet conditions. This would prevent a serious impeding of traffic at congested points and give the roads with limited capital an opportunity to get its finances in shape to meet the expense.

Democrats Kill a Bill.

Trenton, Mar. 8.—Assembly joint resolution No. 3, by Mr. Anderson, of Somerset county, was killed in the Assembly yesterday afternoon. It provided for a commission to investigate the subject of using convicts as laborers on roads, parks and such public work. The Democrats defeated it on a party vote, taking advantage of a temporary majority that a light attendance gave them. They were against it because they thought it threatened the exisence of a commission creaed by the Democrats last year.

County Superintendents.

Trenton, Mar. 8.—The bill by W. de la R. Anderson, of Somerset county, providing that county school superintendents must give all their time to their work as superintendents and increasing their salary to $3,000 a year was pased by the Assembly yesterday.

"Wild Cat" Bill.

Trenton, March 8.—The bill prohibiting wild-cat speculating concerns to operate in this State, which was introduced by Assemblyman Gill, of Mercer, was favorably reported in the Assembly yesterday afternoon. It provides stringent regulations for all concerns dealing in stocks and required that detailed reports be filed with the Banking and Insurance Commissioner. It bars the sale of securities that will be profitable only to the promoters. The act is modeled after the Kansas law which has proved successful in preventing the fleecing of people by wild-cat speculating companies.

NEW CHAMPION HAS INTERESTING CAREER

Johnny Kilbane a Combination of Youth, Brains and Speed.

WAS ONCE A SWITCH TENDER

Listens to Call of the Ring and Attaches Himself to Dunn's Fistic Camp—Fought First Battle in 1907.

Johnny Kilbane, a twenty-two-year-old boy with sparkling blue eyes, ready wit, whose every action is peppery, effervescent, indicative of a lightning brain and panther body, is the successor of Abe Attell as the feather weight champion of America. A boy better equipped for this estimable honor would be hard to find.

Now that Johnny has worked his way to the goal of all pugilistic persons you want to know something about this new jewel of the gloves He will interest you. It is not necessary that you be an enthusiast on boxing. The boy has a personality, and as such he will afford a pleasant character study.

Kilbane was born in Cleveland in April, 1889. His father was Irish, his mother was Irish, and Johnny himself is Irish. You would never have to look twice to acquaint yourself with the fact.

Is Tough Kid at Thirteen Years.

When he was young—that is, thirteen or fourteen—he was tough, wild and forced to shoulder the burdens of the world early in life. Johnny has a father who had the misfortune to go blind, and the present champion was hustled through the primary grades so he could be put to work and support the family.

He was a switch tender on the N. Y., P. and O. railroad when Jimmy Dunn, the lightweight, arrived in Cleveland five years ago. Kilbane weighed ninety pounds stripped, which was mostly skin and bones. But he was a spirited kid, chock full of animal spirits, and it did not take more than two words to get him fighting. He liked to hang around the Triangle of an evening and listen to the fight talk, and he then had visions of himself in the ring fighting, with the cries of the crowd in his ears in cheers for him.

Quitting his switch tending job after putting in a year at it, Kilbane had a chance to go out to Crystal Beach, Cleveland, and see Jimmy Dunn train for a fight. Dunn was a real live fighter at that time, and Johnny, of course, idolized him. Dunn and he became great friends, and Dunn gave him a few lessons in boxing. That settled his destiny. He decided then and there he wanted to be a scrapper, and he besought Dunn to take him and become his manager.

He fought his first battle Dec. 2, 1907, in Cleveland. It was a three round affair, and he won. He kept on. Matches came regularly for him for six months, and he was victor in most of them. Then hard times came, and neither he nor Dunn could get a fight. They had a tough struggle to obtain three squares a day. All the time Johnny was studying boxing, often on an empty stomach. He was an apt pupil and quick to learn.

Forty-three Fights and Champion.

Nineteen-nine was his first real year of growth. He met Jack White, Johnny Whitaker, Biz Mackey and Happy Davis. He achieved a reputation for speed and cleverness, but his friends thought he ran away too much.

There was considerable rivalry between him and Tommy Kilbane, another Cleveland boy of the same name, but no relation. Both boys had been performing outside Cleveland, and each was advancing in his profession. Tommy was a mixer and a hard hitter. Followers of the two began to talk of a match between them to settle for good the superiority of one or the other.

They fought at Canton, O., New Year's day, 1910. Johnny's cleverness was too much for Tommy, and he was given the decision. This fight was the beginning of Johnny's rise to the championship. After that he battled the best featherweights in the east. He won in the majority of cases, but scored but one knockout. As a result he was looked upon as a boxer without a punch.

Finally, after a year and a half of point victories, he went to California and knocked Joe Rivers helpless in sixteen rounds. He effectively demonstrated he possessed a settling blow. That fight was the stepping stone to the championship. After that he defeated Frankie Conley and Charley White of Chicago. Prior to the Rivers combat he had eliminated Patsy Kline from the title climb.

When he met Attell recently he was the most logical featherweight in the world to be sent against the great Hebrew.

And this after forty-three battles in the ring—three years and a half of fighting. Surely Kilbane's progress has been remarkable—champion of America at twenty-two and the cleverest and fastest boy of his weight in the world!

RATTLING THE SKELETON

Cock Fight Last Night.

About a dozen persons witnessed a cock fight in a barn in North Plainfield last night, between birds owned by a young sport of Grove street, and another residing on Somerset street, and previous to the fight the utmost secrecy prevailed. Only a chosen few were admitted to the barn. Several battles were fought and the main was finally given to the Grove street birds. Considerable money changed hands on the result The authorities will probably first learn of the fight when they read this article.

TEN DON'TS FOR BASEBALL PLAYERS.

1.—Don't put your cap on top of your bat, a la Ty Cobb, after striking out. Cobb holds a receipt from Ban Johnson for this stunt.

2—Don't tramp on the feet of the umpires. Hell hath no fury like umpires corned."

3—Don't get caught flatfooted off first base. This is the age of moving, not living pictures.

4. Don't strike out with the bases filled. The deadheads as well as the players feel it just as badly as you feel it.

5. Don't attempt to snub the bleachers. See Jimmy Callahan's views on this subject.

6—Don't throw your glove on the ground after what you think is a poor decision by the umpire. Bill Dahlen was the only man who could do this and escape a fine.

7—Don't guy the minor leaguer on your way North in the spring. He may have your job when spring comes around again.

8—Don't approach the plate swinging three bats in imitation of Ty Cobb, unless you can't hit like him.

9—Don't try to push Wagner off second. It is much easier and safer to go through his legs.

10—Don't become discouraged if you are not a Baker at third. Willie Keeler once led the left handed third sackers.

Pigeon Breeders Active.

The Plainfield Homing Pigeon Club members are beginning to plan for the opening of the season and the enthusiasm at this date augurs well for its being more active than for several years. New members are taken in nearly every week and each one has birds that should make the club's entries in flying contests representative and notable.

P. H. S. GRADUATE MADE N. OF P. GYMNASIUM TEAM

Russell Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley S. Miller, of Union street, has been selected as a member of the gymnasium team at the University of Pennsylvania. At the elimination contests recently he showed so well on the flying rings and at tumbling that he has been advised by trainers to specialize on these feats.

The team has already given several practice exhibitions preparatory to taking up the regular spring schedule and in all of them the Plainfield lad has shown a class that assures him a trip over the circuit.

While a pupil at the Plainfield school young Miller was active in all school athletics and in 1909, when he graduated, he captured the Plainfield Yale Club cup which is awarded for the highest combined average in scholarship and athletics.

HUGH JENNINGS WILL BE HANDICAPPED.

Fans in this city who see the games at American League Park, will be very sorry to learn, according to a report from Monroe, La., where the Detroit Tigers are training that Hughey Jennings will not be able to coach after the fashion that has made him famous when the American League season opens next month, unless something akin to a miracle happens.

Three months have passed since Jennings was injured in an auto smashup and he is still crippled. He can't twist his wrist enough to get his fingers to his lips to whistle, and he will have trouble picking grass. He can't kick and prance, for one leg is so weak he has to nurse it carefully. If Jennings has not been able to recover more than this in three months there is not much chance that he will in four weeks more There is a fea that his injuries may be permanent.

RADIN AND MONTROSS WON IN DUCK PIN TOURNAMENT.

Reach's 1912 Guide.

With the spring of 1912 Reach's American League Guide—the official handbook of the great junior major league—makes its welcome appearance, being once more first in the field, as it is in everything else; as this publication, in the course of years embracing virtually an entire baseball generation, has become the standard annual publication of the entire baseball world. This is a big claim, but it is absolutely sustained by the text, illustrations, quality of paper, serviceable binding and all other details that go to make up a handsome, readable and saleable book. Topping all, it may be said without fear of successful contradiction that the American League Official Guide for 1912 is in all respects a first-class handbook for the National game and a decided credit to the American League and to the publishers, the Reach Company, of Philadelphia. This is the eleventh annual issue of the Reach Guide as the official handbook of the American League and the thirtieth consecutive year of its publication by the A. J. Reach Co. as a book of record and reference for the entire baseball world.

M'ALEER'S TONGUE COST BROWNS A PENNANT.

"McAleer's sharp tongue cost the Browns the pennant in 1902," said R. L. Hedges of the St. Louis Browns recently. "Jimmy was managing the Browns, and Davy Jones was covering right field for the team. One day in Cleveland Jones muffed a fly ball in the ninth inning with two men on the sacks. It cost the Browns the game. That night Manager McAleer bawled Jones.

"Next day, in Chicago, when the St. Louis club started for the White Sox ball yard Jones was missing.

"He never showed up, and Billy Maloney went to right field and lost the game for St. Louis. That night we learned that Davy had jumped the Browns and lined up with the Chicago Cubs. He played right field for the Cubs that afternoon. We never plugged that hole in right field until Charlie Hemphill joined the Browns."

CLOSE RACE IN PARK CLUB FIVE-BACK TOURNAMENT

Edward L. Suffern was awarded the three points in the Park Club five-back tournament for this week's match, rolled last night. C. A. Rice made second highest mark, securing two points. A. M. Abbott was third winning one point. The number of competitors was the largest thus far this season and is an evidence of the increasing interest in the tournament.

W. E. Benjamin leads the entries with 10½ points. This is only a one-half point lead over H. C. Krebs. Francis L. Sill, and Dr. H. V. Hubbard, who are bunched in second place with 10 points each. R. D. Rice and C. A. Rice are tied for third place with 7½ points each.

LOCAL COMPETITORS IN SPORTSMEN'S SHOW EVENTS

Shotting at the Sportsmen's show in Madison Square Garden last night, Dr. C. W. Leonard, of Craig place, grassed 93 blue rocks out of a possible 100 in the professional class. In the amateur class Clarence Mundy, of Orchard place, broke 68 out of 100. It was the first time either of the local trapshooters had faced the traps under artificial light and they are well pleased with the result.

John Doughty, also of this city, was among the competitors last night, but in the fly casting tournament. Mr. Doughty finished third in the same class with T. A. Darling, who hung up a new world's record of 59 feet 7 inches with a Payne rod.

The party from the Independent Gun Club who went to see their fellow members shoot was composed of Dr. B. F. Leonard, Henry Haurand, John McDonald and Milton Dilts.

WORLDWIDE PEACE PROGRAM KILLED

Senate Cuts Vital Parts From Treaty Bill.

VICTORY FOR ROOSEVELT.

Senator Dixon, Manager of Colonel's Campaign, and Other Roosevelt Republicans Help Put Quietus on the President's Pet Project—Lorimer Also Against Taft.

Washington, March 8.—The program for worldwide peace, a movement personally urged and supported by President Taft, went glimmering when the senate, by a vote of 42 to 40, practically killed the bill providing for general arbitration with Great Britain and France by eliminating the paragraph considered vital relating to the joint high commission and otherwise curtailing the treaties.

Advisers of the administration acknowledge that the treaties are dead and that they probably never will be submitted in their present mangled form to France and England for ratification. Not only this, but negotiations that were already under way for similar treaties with Germany, Switzerland, Japan and possibly one or two other countries, are knocked on the head as the result of the action by the senate. President Taft's arbitration plans have in fact met with defeat, and the senate has sustained the views advanced by Theodore Roosevelt on this proposition.

On the Democrats will fall the chief responsibility for having defeated the arbitration program. With the exception of three senators the Democrats voted solidly for the elimination of the joint high commission paragraph. They were, however, supported by several Roosevelt Republicans. The vote of Senator Dixon of Montana, Roosevelt's political manager, alone was sufficient to turn the tables against President Taft. Up to the time of his last visit to New York Senator Dixon's vote was counted as against the elimination of the joint commission clause, but he turned just before the vote. If he had voted against the joint commission amendment it would have been lost by a tie vote. Likewise President Taft can attribute his defeat to Senator Lorimer of Illinois, who joins with the Democrats in voting against his vital clause of the treaties. Besides Lorimer, Senator Smith of Michigan was the only supposed Taft supporter who joined with the opponents of the administration treaties.

There was great rejoicing among the Roosevelt supporters as soon as the vote on the important joint commission amendment became known, and Senator Dixon hurriedly sent a telegram informing the colonel that the senate by its votes had absolutely sustained the Roosevelt view of the treaties.

The clause eliminated by the senate is the one that has stirred up all the controversy in regard to the treaties. Under it the contracting parties were bound to submit to a joint high commission composed of representatives of the two countries all disputes on which they could not agree as to their being arbitrable. The contracting parties were bound further under this clause to accept the decision of this joint commission as to the arbitrability of any question and forthwith to submit it to arbitration.

TAFT LEAVES FOR WEST.

With Secretary Hilles and Major Rhoads Goes to Toledo and Chicago.

Washington, March 8.—President Taft left Washington for Toledo and Chicago, where he will make political speeches. He was accompanied by Secretary Hilles, Major Thomas T. Rhoads, U. S. A., and the usual secret service guard. Mr. Taft will arrive at Toledo late today, where he will make an address on the "Judiciary and Progress."

He will spend Saturday in Chicago, where a busy program has been arranged for him. He will leave Chicago late Sunday afternoon, reaching Washington Monday afternoon.

The president will answer Colonel Roosevelt's Columbus speech on this trip.

CHALLENGE REFUSED.

Taft Managers Turn Down Primary Test Proposition.

Washington, March 8.—President Taft's managers refuse to join with the Roosevelt managers for a nation-wide presidential preference primary.

Congressman McKinley's letter replying to Senator Dixon recognizes the authority of the senator to speak for Colonel Roosevelt, but he declares in substance that it is no business of either the Taft or Roosevelt managers to interfere with the state organizations and state laws with reference to primaries.

He says the Taft bureau will take no part in it one way or the other.

Escapes Death Under Train.

Selin's Grove, Pa., March 8.—Falling through an open coal hopper on a car in a freight train on the Reading railway, just below Milton, Charles Schwanbeck, a brakeman, lay quiet while twenty-five cars passed over him. Then he found he had escaped with a crushed thumb.

TWO MORE REGIMENTS TO MEXICAN BORDER

President Taft to Give Madero a Helping Hand.

Washington, March 8.—President Taft has decided to send two more regiments of troops to the Mexican border. This decision was reached after a conference with Secretary Stimson and other members of the cabinet.

Orders were issued today for these 1,700 men to proceed at once for El Paso.

The two additional regiments are to relieve troops stationed at El Paso, which will be immediately hurried out for patrol duty on the border. President Taft and his war department advisers have finally decided to establish a chain guard along the border almost as strong as the one established in the recent revolution against Diaz. It is expected that the ordering of the two new regiments to the border is only the forerunner of the movement of further troops. It is likely, however, that the movement of troops will be very gradual.

The decision represents an effort to lend Madero a helping hand in preventing the carrying of firearms and ammunition into Mexico from the United States for the rebel forces.

RECEIVER FOR ORIENT.

Readjustment of Securities the End Sought by Action.

New York, March 8.—A receiver was appointed in Kansas City for the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient, the road projected and nearly completed by Arthur E. Sullivan. The receiver is Edward Dickinson, one of the vice presidents of the company. The application was made with the sanction of the management. Mr. Stillwell said that receivership was necessary not on account of pressure from creditors, but because of the advisability of readjusting the securities of the company so that bonds could be marketed to better advantage.

FEAR OUTBREAK AT COURT.

Women Must Present Cards at Royal Reception Tonight.

London, March 8.—The court officials are alarmed at the possibility of the suffragettes trying to attend the royal court tonight, and all those invited to be present have been asked to bring their invitation cards with them. Under ordinary circumstances this is unnecessary.

It is reported that Christabel Pankhurst has been arrested at Weston-Super-Mere, a fashionable watering place in Somerset, thirty miles from Bristol.

FIVE DIE IN WRECK.

Broken Rail Causes Bad Accident on the Wabash.

Danville, Ill., March 8.—Five persons were killed and nearly threescore were injured at Redwood bridge, two miles west of West Lebanon, Ind., by the derailment of the Continental Limited.

All the cars left the rails, and some of them turned over. A broken rail is said to have caused the accident. Two of the cars are said to have rolled partly into a creek, the derailment taking place at the end of a bridge.

Work of the Bower Birds.

There are five different bower birds—three in Australia, the regent, the satin and the spotted; one in the Papuan islands, the catbird, and one in New Guinea. Their brilliant plumage is golden yellow, glossy black or spotted brown, often with a rose tinted collar. Their bowers are in no sense nests, but miniature gardens, adapted for enjoyment and courtship and set in the eye of the sun. A pavement of equal sized pebbles is arranged, and numberless twigs are thrust firmly between them in two parallel rows, inclined to each other, inclosing an avenue about a yard long and several inches wide. To decorate this arbor gay feathers, ruddy berries, pearly shells, bleached bones, even watches, knives and other glittering objects are tastefully placed in and around the entrance. The New Guinea bird, still more of a gardener, constructs a miniature conical summer house, with internal gallery. Before this is a meadow of moss, kept free from grass, dust and leaves, on which bright flowers and fruit are daily offered by the enamored male bird to his mate.

Elephants Asleep.

A question often raised in regard to the African elephant is whether this animal ever rests or not. At first blush it would appear that there could only be one answer to the question. So huge an animal must expend a terrific amount of energy and therefore, as one might reasonably infer, must need more time than smaller animals for rest and reinvigoration. Nevertheless many travelers and some naturalists have asserted that the African elephant in its native state never sleeps or at least never lies down. A correspondent who has sent photographs from Malek, on the White Nile, says in the communication that accompanies them that the picture represents a "herd of female elephants photographed in the bush near Malek, in the Mongalla province of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. It has been maintained that the African elephant never lies down to rest. Several may be seen thus sleeping."—Country Life.

Poisons In the Stomach.

A most curious fact is that all food contains the elements of poison, and in our body poisons are manufactured from these. For instance, meat, fish, cheese and milk are composed of hydrogen, carbon, nitrogen and oxygen. Take away the last and you have prussic acid. We do not manufacture prussic acid, it is true. But in every stomach in the world fermentation goes on just as in a brewery, and the poisonous carbonic acid is made in large quantities. If you breathed a few days' output of carbonic acid gas you would inevitably die. Sulphureted hydrogen is one of the most deadly gases known, yet in every stomach it is made at one time or another. In the stomach all food is converted into what we call "peptone," and if a very small quantity of this found its way into the blood it would kill as surely as prussic acid.—Pearson's Weekly.

Story of a "Violin."

On one occasion all who were present in the court of justice at Berlin had the great pleasure of listening to a free performance by Professor Joachim, the famous violinist. It appeared from the evidence that a dealer in musical instruments was charged with cheating a customer by representing that a violin which he offered for sale at $1.25 was an instrument that could be played. The great professor was called in as an expert witness, and, taking up the impugned instrument, he proceeded to play upon it. Under his magic fingers it really sounded like a violin, but in a few moments, much to the regret of his listeners, the maestro laid the instrument down with an evident air of contempt. But he had secured the accused's acquittal.

A Mystery Explained.

An English doctor was asked to explain how women can wear such flimsy clothes in cold weather without apparent harm and without much discomfort when a man would suffer terribly so exposed. He says this resisting power is due to an additional layer of fat in the body, acquired in the days of cave dwelling, when the women had to stay in the cold huts while the men kept warm by hunting and outdoor activities.—Healthy Home.

An Old One.

"I found a gold ring today."
"A new one?"
"No—old and much worn."
"Any name on the inside of it?"
"No; nothing but the letters B. C."
"Gracious! You don't suppose it's as old as that, do you?"—Exchange.

Antenuptial Thrift.

"Why do you insist on carrying that umbrella?" asked the bridegroom.

"For purpose of domestic economy," replied the bride. "I'm going to turn it upside down and catch enough rice to do the family for several weeks."—Washington Star.

Disillusioned.

The Scrap Book

Too Talkative.

Ole Oleson was a very cautious young man, painfully deliberate in every act and generally lived up to the rule of "look before you leap." But he was also mildly in love.

"WILL YOU MARRY ME?"

It was a beautiful evening, and Ole, who had screwed up courage to take Mary for a ride, was finally carried away by the magic of the night.

"Mary," he asked, "will you marry me?"

"Yes, Ole," she answered softly.

Ole lapsed into a silence that at last became painful to his fiancee.

"Ole," she said desperately, "why don't you say something?"

"Ay tank," Ole replied, "they bane too much said already."

Lend a Hand.

The things that count in the world, my boy,
That make a success of your life,
Are the things that you do to bring others joy
And to quiet the turmoil and strife.

Then stretch out your hand to the weary soul
Who is toiling along life's way
And help him along to the end of the goal.
Time is flying, so do it today.

Lend a hand that is open, a hand that is strong,
A warm hand, a hand filled with love.
As you pass on life's way cheer the faint with a song;
Help them on to the haven above.

—J. Andrew Boyd in National Magazine.

He Was All Right.

The political game was wholly new to William C. L. Ziehn when Harrison, Sears and Harlan fought it out for the mayoralty. He was a patternmaker and lived in the old Fourteenth ward, now the Fifteenth. Mr. Ziehn was persuaded to run for alderman, and he succeeded in defeating George Mugler. This was after he got going. At the outset campaigning was full of surprises to him, and he was naturally a bit suspicious of that which he did not understand.

GLARED AT STRAUSS.

It was arranged to give him a start-off with a meeting. A vacant store was hired and filled with chairs. At the far end of the store a brewery table was stretched across, draped with an American flag, and behind the table was Joe Strauss.

The candidate's entrance was timed so that he should be greeted by a full house, and as he progressed down the aisle Mr. Strauss shouted in welcome:

"What's the matter with Ziehn?"

Mr. Ziehn paused, got red in the face, glared at Strauss and shouted back:

"What the —— is the matter with you?"—Chicago Post.

Didn't Blame Him.

Pete Daily one time was playing in Chicago at the head of his own company. At another theater there was a German comedian being starred in a musical comedy. One afternoon Daily and the German comedian were walking along State street when the former spoke to a man who passed.

"Who was that?" asked the German comedian.

"He's in my support," replied Daily.

"What?" said the German comedian, showing surprise. "Do you speak to the members of your company on the street?"

"To be sure," replied Daily.

"I don't speak to the members of mine."

"Well," said Pete, "I wouldn't either if I had your company."

In and Out.

Soon after Martin W. Littleton was elected to congress he went to Washington and spent several hours watching the senate and house in action. He happened in the senate while a western senator, one of the parties to a filibuster which closed the last regular session, was in the midst of a speech that had no bearing on the case at issue. His sole object was to kill time.

"Great Scott!" said Littleton. "I was never so bored in my life. Why do they allow a man to take up the time of the senate in this manner?"

"Why," whispered a member of the house, "did you not realize that he was drinking steadily between paragraphs?"

"Yes, I saw him drinking water from time to time," replied the New Yorker, "but what effect could that have upon the case?"

"That wasn't water. It might have looked like it from a distance, but it was Scotch highballs he was taking to stimulate himself," was the reply.

"Well," said Littleton, "all I have to say is that what went in was a good deal stronger and better than what came out."—New York World.

—Now is the time for all good postmasters to come to the aid of the administration.—Des Moines Register and Leader.

HIS LAST RESOURCE.

Toole Might Have Used It at First, but He Didn't.

J. L. Toole, the English comedian, dearly loved a joke and just as dearly loved the excitement of the gaming table, though he invariably lost. During a holiday that, says an English writer, he and I passed together at Aix-les-Bains he did his best to imperil the good effects of his cure by his constant attendance at the Cercle and the Villa des Fleurs. After a night in which he had been more than usually successful in exhausting the ready cash he carried about him we made our way on the following morning to the little bank in the main street of Aix-les-Bains in order that he might make a fresh draft upon his letter of credit.

But he did not at once reveal to the clerk in charge his serious business intent. Tapping lightly at the closed window of the guichet, he inquired in broken English, which he appeared strangely to believe would be somehow comprehensible to his foreign interlocutor, whether the bank would be prepared to make him a small advance upon a gold headed cane which he carried in his hand. The request, as might be supposed, was somewhat briskly dismissed, and the little window was abruptly closed in his face. Toole retired, apparently deeply dejected by the refusal of his request, but in a few minutes he returned to the attack, having in the meantime provided himself with fresh material for a new financial proposition.

Hastening out into the little market that lay near the bank, he hurriedly purchased from one of the fish stalls a small pike that had been caught in the lake, and, having added to this a bunch of carrots, he returned to the bank, where he carefully arranged these proffered securities on the counter, enforced by the addition of his watch and chain, a threepenny bit and a penknife.

When all was ready he again tapped softly at the window and in a voice that was broken by sobs implored the clerk, in view of his unfortunate position, to accept these ill assorted articles in pledge for the small sum which was needed to save him from starvation.

The clerk, by this time grown indignant, requested him to leave the establishment, explaining to him in emphatic terms and in such English as he could command that they only made advances upon circular notes or letters of credit.

At the last named word Toole's saddened face suddenly broke into smiles, and, producing his letter of credit, he handed it to the astonished clerk with the added explanation that he would have offered that at first if he thought the bank cared about it, but that the porter at the hotel had told him he thought that they liked fish better.

Inquiring For John.

The pricking of that soap bubble, pretention, is always an agreeable pastime. In her volume of reminiscences, entitled "As I Remember," Mrs. Gouverneur relates that the son of President Van Buren was generally known as Prince John because he had once danced with Queen Victoria before her accession to the throne and was unable to forget it.

One day Van Buren met on the street James T. Brady, who had recently returned from a visit to England. In a most patronizing manner he inquired whether Brady had seen the queen.

"Certainly," said Mr. Brady, "and under these circumstances. I was walking along the street when by chance the queen's carriage overtook me, and the moment her majesty's eye lighted on me she exclaimed:

"'Hello, Jim Brady! When did you hear from John Van Buren?'"

Well Cured.

During a recent visit of a well known circus to an Ohio town there appeared in the sideshow a countryman of a decidedly inquisitive turn. He made the round of the freaks, to each of whom he put many questions. Finally he came up to the living skeleton, in whom he seemed especially interested.

"Did you ever have the dropsy?" he asked the man of skin and bones.

"Well, hardly," said the freak. "Why do you ask me such a silly question?"

"I jest thought that if you ever had been troubled with the dropsy," explained the rural one, "you was shore the best cured man I ever see."—New York Herald.

NO WELCOME AWAITS KNOX IN COLOMBIA

Former Minister's Letter Is Formally Approved.

Washington, March 8.—The Colombian government issued a statement in which it says in effect that it doesn't want Secretary of State Knox to visit them on his Central and South American tour.

Thus the republic, while it recently recalled Senor Ospina, its minister in Washington, has in spirit approved the action which he took in writing a letter to Acting Secretary of State Wilson suggesting that a visit of Secretary Knox to Colombia at this time would be most inopportune.

The development in this extraordinary situation came in the form of a statement given out by Senor Roberto McDouall, charge d'affaires of the Colombian legation in Washington. Here is his statement:

"The charge d'affaires of Colombia said that he was authorized by his government to state that Secretary Knox has not been invited to visit Colombia."

Corinto, Nicaragua, March 8.—Secretary Knox entertained the members of the Nicaraguan cabinet who accompanied him here at a luncheon on board the cruiser Maryland. The party later sailed aboard the warship for Amapala.

The leaders of the opposition to the government at Managua told Mr. Knox that they were convinced that he was a friend of Nicaragua and that his mission had pleased the people.

Weather Forecast.

Increasing cloudiness today; rain at night and tomorrow in southern; rain or snow in northern portion; colder tomorrow night; light to moderate variable winds.

PLAYING CARDS.

An Interesting Study From Historic and Pictorial Viewpoints.

Quite apart from their use in various games, playing cards are an interesting study from historic and pictorial points of view. Take first their numerical arrangement—52 cards, 365 pips or dots and 13 tricks, representing the weeks and days in the year and the lunar months.

There are four suits, representing four classes of people as they were divided at the time the pack of cards we now use was devised by the French. The "spades" stood for pikemen or soldiers, the clubs for clover, typifying farmers; the diamonds for building tiles, representing artisans, and the hearts for choirmen or ecclesiastics.

The "kings" and "queens" at that time were more or less correct likeness of certain royal and noble personages. Even in our modern packs it is said that one of the queens is a conventionalized portrait of Elizabeth of York, who was engaged to the dauphin of France.

The "knaves" were then the king's jesters, and even these cards may be portraits. All the court cards, in fact, retain their sixteenth century characteristics. Cards are among the few things that have not changed with the centuries.—Brooklyn Eagle.

NAPOLEON'S DESTINY.

Summed Up In Four Mottoes Bonaparte Learned at School.

In 1784 Bonaparte, then fifteen years old, arrived at the military school of Paris from Brienne, being one of four under the conduct of a minim priest. He mounted 173 steps, carrying his small valise, and reached, in the attic, the barrack chamber he was to occupy. This chamber had two beds and a small window opening on the great yard of the school. The young predecessors of Bonaparte had bescrawled the whitewashed walls with charcoal, and the newcomer could read in this little cell these four inscriptions, which we ourselves read there years ago:

An epaulet is very long to win.—De Montgivray.

The finest day in life is that of a battle.—Vicomte de Tinteniac.

Life is but a prolonged lie.—Le Chevalier Adolphe Delmas.

The end of all is six feet of earth.—Le Comte de la Villette.

With the trifling substitution of the word "empire" for "epaulet" these four sentences contain the whole destiny of Bonaparte and formed a kind of "Mene, Tekel, Upharsin," written in advance upon that wall.—Victor Hugo.

Dangers In Paint.

"Turpentine and benzine," says a department of agriculture bulletin, "are very inflammable, and special precautions should be taken not to bring paint containing these substances near any light or open fire. Many pigments are poisonous, and the workman should be particularly careful to remove all paint stains from the skin and not under any circumstances allow any of it to get into his mouth. A man should not eat in the same clothes in which he has been painting and before eating should not only change his clothes, but wash all paint stains from his skin. It is not advisable to use turpentine or benzine in removing paint stains from the hands, but by oiling thoroughly with linseed oil or in fact with any fatty oil and then thoroughly washing with soap the paint may be removed, provided it has not been allowed to dry too thoroughly on the hands."

Handicapping the Burglar.

Burglaries in private houses in Vienna are rare, because the doors are locked from 10 o'clock at night to 6 in the morning by order of the police. Admission and exit between those hours are given by the house porter, who receives a fee for unlocking the door and is bound to report to the police the doings and mode of life of all the inhabitants of the house. This system of lock money is tiresome, but in Vienna, as at Naples, where it also exists, it obliges burglars and other criminals to operate during the daylight and diminishes their chances of success. The landlords tried a few years ago the system of giving the key of the house door to tenants, but the majority of the keys have been withdrawn.

Wonders of Modern Drama.

The heroine of the play had just received the telegram from her faithless lover. Then she fainted, and the curtain went down.

Loud applause followed, particularly in the gallery.

Instantly the curtain went up.

The heroine, having miraculously recovered, was on her feet, bowing and smiling.

More wonderful still, the faithless lover stood by her side, also bowing and smiling, having traveled a distance of 287 miles in ten seconds in order to be on hand to acknowledge the applause.—Chicago Tribune.

A Good Goer.

"That's a fine watch you've go there, Calhoun," said a friend. "Is it a good goer?"

"A good goer?" said Calhoun Clay. "Well, you bet your life it's a good goer. Why, it can do an hour in half the time!"—Exchange.

Mrs. Hugh F. Fox, of Central avenue, who has been in Washington, is expected to return tomorrow.

BROWNING'S "SORDELLO."

Mystery of That "Colossal Derelict on the Ocean of Poetry."

The impenetrable nature of Robert Browning's "Sordello," published in 1840, "a colossal derelict on the ocean of poetry," as William Sharp terms it has been the theme of many anecdotes. Tennyson declared, writes Lilian Whiting in "The Brownings—Their Life and Art," that there were only two lines in it—the opening and the closing ones—which he understood, and "they are both lies," he feelingly added.

Douglas Jerrold tackled it when he was just recovering from an illness and despairingly set down his inability to comprehend it to the probability that his mind was impaired by disease, and, thrusting the book into the hands of his wife, he entreated her to read it at once. He watched her breathlessly, and when she exclaimed, "I don't know what this means; it is gibberish," Jerrold exclaimed, "Thank God, I am not an idiot."

A French critic, Odysse Barot, quotes a passage where the poet says, "God gave man two faculties," and adds: "I wish while he was about it God had supplied another—namely, the power of understanding Mr. Browning." Mrs. Carlyle declared that she read "Sordello" attentively twice, but was unable to discover whether the title referred to "a man, a city or a tree."

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

NOW FOR HOT MUFFINS.

THOSE who have tasted English hospitality will never forget the hot muffins that are so often a part of the afternoon tea. Muffins are of many kinds, but the British muffin is an institution peculiar to the British housewife.

However, if the American cook wishes to try them, here is a recipe said to be successful:

Muffins For Anglomaniacs.

English Muffins.—Take a quart of flour, a half teaspoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, generous spoonfuls, one and a quarter pints of milk.

Sift together flour, sugar, salt and powder; add the milk and mix into a smooth batter a trifle stiffer than for griddle cakes.

Have the griddle heated oil over, grease it and lay on muffin rings. Half fill them and when risen well up to the top of the rings turn over gently with a cake turner. They should not be too brown, just a buff color. When they are all cooked, open in half, toast delicately, butter them well, serve in folded napkin, piled high and very hot.

Health Flour Muffins.

Graham Muffins.—Combine one cup of graham flour, one cup of flour, one-quarter cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder, all of which must be sifted. To these add gradually one cup of milk, one egg well beaten and a tablespoonful of melted butter.

These should be baked in a hot oven in buttered gem pans for twenty-five minutes.

Rye muffins may be made from this recipe by substituting rye meal for the graham flour.

Rice Muffins.—Take two cupfuls of cold boiled rice, a pint of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of sugar, three eggs, a half pint of milk and one and a half teaspoonfuls of sugar.

Pour the milk on the rice, freeing it from lumps, and add the eggs, which should have been well beaten. Sift together the flour, sugar, salt and baking powder and add to the rice and milk.

Mix into a smooth firm batter. Pour into greased muffin pans, making each about two-thirds full, and bake for a quarter of an hour.

CHIC RIDING TOGS.

Brown Favored For Accessories by Horsewomen.

THE NEW BOWLER SHAPE.

This riding hat of silky brown plush in the new bowler shape accompanies a riding habit of brown wool mixture made for wear at Aiken this spring.

Boots and gloves are of heavy yet soft brown leather.

Character In Backs.

If your back is straight and upright you are correspondingly straight in your conduct. You will hold your head up, for you are not afraid to look the whole world in the face.

Even when you're sitting you keep your back straight. There is an air of real strength about you—both physical and mental. In short, you have plenty of backbone. You are determined, energetic and to be relied upon.

If your back is stooping and rounded you are a creature as weak as you look you are prone to lolling about and too lazy or too feeble to take a front rank in the battle of life. The tramp is an excellent example.

If you are a criminal your back is stooped or round, but the scholarly stoop of the bookworm must not be confounded with the foregoing.

If you are mean and covetous your back is narrow and rounded and your shoulders are high. You are sly—very sly. You generally have the appearance of drawing yourself up into as small a compass as possible. You are always yourself, so to speak, and people should give you the cold shoulder.

Are you too straight backed—that is, do you hold your head so high that there is a preposterous fall in the small of your back? Then you are so puffed up with self esteem that you carry your chest out so far it's absurd.

HERE AND THERE.

Much Individuality Expressed In Choice of Jewelry.

All women love jewelry, and nowadays much individuality may be expressed in the choice of it. Among new pieces sure to tempt are two bracelets—one in sapphires and diamonds in a dainty twist for the small woman and for her taller, larger sister a broad green band of Russian enamel set with malachite.

FOULARD AND SATIN FROCK.

Ribbon has returned to its own again and is likely to count strongly among hat trimmings during the next three months.

Foulards never were lovelier than this season, and they are promised even unusual vogue. The gown illustrated is of foulard, combined with satin and trimmed with frills of ribbon. The collar and cuffs are of all over lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

These May Manton patterns are cut in sizes for the blouse from 34 to 42 inches bust measure and for the skirt from 22 to 30 inches waist measure. Send 10 cents each for the patterns to this office, giving numbers, skirt 7269 and waist 7362, and they will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery. When ordering use coupon.

Gifts For the Bride.

Breakfast sets always make acceptable gifts for the bride or for any woman who entertains week end guests. Some sets include the tray, but others require the addition of a white enameled tray or one of wood or of papier mache. An asparagus dish with a well at one side for the melted butter or sauce is exceedingly useful. Cordial glasses with oval cups of green glass that fit down into white crystal standards with silver bases make a beautiful present. Wind shields for kettles are gifts that no housekeeper fails to appreciate. Glass flower bowls with nickel plated woven wire tops to hold the flowers are always useful.

Jade Trinkets Fashionable.

Jade is fashionable now. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of New York has collected many pieces of the stone. In colors it ranges from white to darkest green, but Mrs. Belmont is proud of several pieces that have almost the richness of an emerald. She is versed in the lore of the jade.

The ancients used to attribute many wonderful properties to the stone, calling it divine and making charms out of it.

In the present season jade necklaces and jade earrings have become extremely popular.

Debutantes are wearing jade earrings, while many of them have bracelets made of jade.

Evening Frocks.

Authorities are divided on one important item—the length of evening frocks. In spite of the fact that most of the new models this year are made with a ten or twelve inch pointed train, one of the greatest Paris houses shows a majority of its new evening gowns with the short skirt just instep length.

Since there is this division of opinion among the great originators of fashion it would seem that each young woman may choose for herself as to whether she will cling to the youthful round length skirt or will prefer the more formal trained effects worn by the older women. Some wonderful new *black jet trimmings are used this sea*son, and white and colored spangles bugles and brilliants are strongly in evidence. A black velvet evening frock cut en surprise has the deep V yoke of cream white maline lace. This corsage is outlined with a narrow row of brilliants and trimmed with a cut jet motif which extends down into the skirt to the lower edge.

PRESS EUROPEAN CONTEST

of the contest is always the easy part, but the real work comes during the finish of the race. The time is rapidly approaching when the winners of the special prizes will be announced, and then will come the final spurt for the honor of winning the trip. The contestants are keeping steadily at it, peppering away at their opponents with a goodly supply of ballots, each backed by a coterie of friends and acquaintances who are determined to see their favorite win.

The spirit which moves the candidates and their friends at this particular stage is certainly a highly commendable one, since these tours are certain to mean an education which a whole lifetime will be unable to wear away. It will bring a broadening sense of observation and a more thorough understanding of the places foremost in history as well as in current events. The strange foreign atmosphere, the many places of historic interest, the extensive knowledge and delights gained only by travel, are valuable points that cannot be over-estimated and are things that each of the contestants fully appreciates.

Eight out of ten men who have taken only a ten weks' or six months' subscription would gladly add another year to that subscription if they were asked to do so by their favorite candidate. It is not "imposing on good nature" for the subscriber is getting full value for his money.

One of the young women in the Press contest, when she first learned of her nomination, decided to withdraw her name, but after having the matter fully explained to her, thought better of the proposition and allowed her name to remain. Second thoughts are usually the best. Yesterday she called on the manager of the Tour department and expressed her gratitude for the suggestion to remain in the contest, and made known her determination to do all in her power to win one of the tours. She is now the third highest in her district. Others who are still in the contest, especially those in the fifth district, but who have as yet remained dormant will do well to think the matter over carefully, and then make the start in quest of subscriptions. A few days of earnest effort will place any candidate in the running, and put her in a position to spend the summer on one of the most enjoyable vacations it is possible to secure.

Some Don'ts.

Don't talk; hustle. Don't tell everybody you know how many votes you have in reserve. Don't believe every fairy tale that you may hear; there are many such in circulation. Don't expect to get any benefit over your competitor by any interpretation of the rule regarding old and new subscribers which you think ought to obtain. All are treated alike in this, as in all other respects. Don't neglect to keep busy. Don't imagine that each subscription that someone else gets will cause you to lose. Don't procrastinate, but work. Don't miss one person, for if he does not he will take The Daily Press, and you can be the one to profit by getting him. Don't get careless or indifferent, but put in your votes and subscriptions as you get them, and hustle for more. Don't get discouraged, for there are many homes in and about this and nearby towns that neither you nor any other candidate has visited. Get after each one. In short, Work! Work!! Work!!! Keep your own counsel. Tell no one where you stand. "Say nothing and saw wood." Don't miss the honor and pleasure of being counted in at the finish.

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

P.R.R. "SUFFRAGE SPECIAL"

Plainfield Women Will Connect With It at Elizabeth—Mrs. C. L. Riley on Joint Legislative Committee of State Association.

The Joint Legislative Committee of the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association, the Equal Franchise Society, the Men's League for Woman's Suffrage and the Woman's Political Union and its sub-committees have completed arrangements for the trip to Trenton on Tuesday morning next when there will be a hearing at the State House on the "Woman Suffrage Resolution" providing for the submission to the voters of an amendment to the State constitution giving women the same franchise privileges as men.

The officers of the joint committee consist of Mrs. George T. Vickers, of Jersey City, chairman; Miss Paula Laddey, of Arlington, secretary, and Champlain L. Riley, of Plainfield, treasurer.

Those who will speak at the hearing in favor of the adoption of the concurrent resolution will be the Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw, Miss Inez Milholland, Miss Milinda Scott, Mrs. Henry Willard, Prof. Max Eastman, First Assistant Prosecutor of the Pleas George T. Vickers, of Hudson county, and former Sheriff Frank Somers, of Essex county.

A special train, listed in the Pennsylvania Railroad's chief despatcher's office as "The Woman's Suffrage Special," has been chartered for a trip from Jersey City to Trenton and return. It will leave the Jersey City terminal at 8:15 a. m. and will make stops at Newark at 8:30 and at Elizabeth at 8:39 a. m. The fares for the round trip have been reduced to $1.70, $1.45 and $1.30 respectively.

Most of the Plainfield suffragists will connect with the special at Elizabeth. A few may go all the way to Jersey City to board it.

Mrs. Everett Colby, wife of former State Senator Colby, of Essex county, and Mrs. Philip McKim Garrison, of Llewellyn Park, Orange, gave up all social engagements in order to thoroughly canvass both the working people and the society contingent for recruits to the ranks of those who will attend the hearing.

Former Senator Colby and Mr. Garrison are heartily in sympathy with the work for equal franchise. Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander and her brother, Richard Stevens, of Castle Point, Hoboken; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams, of Princeton, and many recruits from the industrial organizations will attend the hearing.

All over the State organizations devoted to the cause of equal franchise are urging the members of the Legislature to pass the Woman's Suffrage resolution. If two successive Legislatures pass the resolution without amendment a proposed amendment to the State Constitution will be submitted to the people giving all female citizens over the age of 21 the right to vote.

MUSICAL AND TEA FOR NURSING BUREAU'S BENEFIT

The Cheerful Workers Circle of the King's Daughters, gave a charming musicale and tea at the home of Mrs. John F. Harman on West Eighth street, yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, for the benefit of the fund in support of the city nursing bureau. The affair attracted a large number of people in addition to the members of the circle, and all thoroughly enjoyed the program and the hospitality of the hostess.

There was a sale of candy, cake and fancy articles. A quartet composed of Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Margaret VanDeventer and Miss Elsie Goddard, sang. There were violin solos by Miss Helen Harman, accompanied on the piano by Miss Elsie Harman, and Mrs. Charles A. Rice gave whistling solos with piano accompaniment. Miss Elsie Goddard arranged the musicale.

The table of fancy and useful articles was in the charge of Mrs. A. M. Collins and Mrs. W. B. Tyler, while Miss Grace Burke, Miss Ruth Titus and Miss Margaret VanDeVenter were in charge of the candy table. Miss Edna Brown and Miss Grace Wilcox presided at the cake table.

Those who poured tea were Mrs. W. L. Righter, Miss Margaret Mead and Mrs. Lewis Squires. They were assisted by other members of the circle. The Misses Harman received the guests. The circle will net about $100 to meet its pledge for the city nurse fund.

GRANGER FORCED OUT BY SCARCITY OF LABORERS

Frederick Lauterbach, "Gentleman Farmer" Puts "Rose Lawn" on Market Because He Can't Get Competent 'Help' at Double Rates.

Frederick Lauterbach, owner of the well known "Rose Lawn" farm, located on the Stelton road just below New Market, has placed the property on the market and in doing so, declared today that his action is due to his inability to secure competent laboring help. He stated that when he took hold of the place three years ago he practically doubled the wages of his farm hands, but it proved to be no inducement for sobriety and industry. The men persisted in failing to show up at critical periods, particularly when they were sent to town on business.

The proprietor found himself trying to take care of 151 flourishing acres and their complement of stock all by his lonesome. They not only stayed away when dispatched on errands, but "snuk" off through the back fields when they were supposed to be tilling the soil. Forty dollars a month and "cakes" instead of the old rate of twenty without washin' seemed to work the opposite way than what was intended, the sudden prosperity proving too great a burden to bear. As a result Mr. Lauterbach is going to dispose of everything and return to New York.

"Rose Lawn" farm was formerly the Frank VanNuis place. Since its purchase by the present owner it has been improved at a great expense. Mr. Lauterbach spent thousands of dollars on buildings, modern machinery and setting out 1,500 fruit trees. At the present time it is considered one of the finest properties of the kind in New Jersey.

Soon after locating on the farm, Mr Lauterbach startled the Piscataway natives by placing a powerful auto truck to his vehicle equipment. It was used in hauling loads from the fields and also to carry hay to Newark, toting four tons at a time.

FORMER SENATOR KEAN'S MOTHER PASSES AWAY

Elizabeth, March 9 (Special).—After an illness of several months, following a general breakdown due to her extreme age, Mrs. Lucy Kean, widow of Col. John Kean, and mother of former United States Senator John Kean and Hamilton Kean, of Elizabeth, died this morning at her winter home, 864 Fifth avenue, New York. She was eighty-six years old.

Mrs. Kean was a daughter of Caleb O. Alstead, the first president of the Bank of Manhattan and was married to Col. Kean in 1846. They took up their residence at Ursino in Elizabeth and it has been the Kean home ever since.

KINDERGARTEN KIDDIE RUNS AWAY FROM CLASS

Arthur Brokaw, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brokaw, of Regent street, gave his mother and his teacher, Miss Edith Randolph, a fright yesterday by extending a sightseeing tour that landed him at Plainfield police headquarters as a lost child.

With the other pupils of the Watchung kindergarten school he was taken to a blacksmith shop in the borough to see a practical demonstration in iron working.

When the class got back to the school Arthur was missing. Search for the lad was at once begun, but it was unavailing for several hours. Finally he was located at Plainfield police headquarters and taken home by Miss Randolph and Mrs. Brokaw. A policeman had found him at Front and Somerset streets.

FRELINGHUYSEN ACT GETS ANOTHER RAP

Council of Education Condemns High School Examination by the State.

NO FAD AND FANCIES NOW

Jersey City Normal Principal Says He Hasn't Found a Single Useless Frill in the Courses of the Public Schools.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Newark, March 9.—Assembled for the purpose of discussing the essentials of a school system, the members of the Council of Education of the State of New Jersey revealed last night just why there are difficulties in the way of deciding on courses of study and methods of supervision. Few of those who participated in the discussion agreed on the matters of detail.

The distinguished educational men of the State, numbering city superintendents of schools, State and county supervisors and principals, decided, however, that it was the sentiment of the council a course of study along the lines suggested in the report of the standing committee on pedagogics should be prepared. Out of the discussion there also came the unanimous adoption of a resolution offered by Superintendent of Schools Vernon L. Davey, of East Orange, that there should be no State examination as a pre-requisite for admission to a high school.

The meeting was held last night in the hall of the Board of Freeholders at the Court House, being the second session in a two days' conclave. The first meeting in the afternoon assembled the various standing committees of the organization. All sections of the State were represented, though the rain cut the attendance to twenty-eight.

J. M. Green, principal of the New Jersey State Normal School at Trenton, as chairman of the standing committee on pedagogics, led the discussion on the subject, "The Essentials of a School System with Relation to the Course of Study and Supervision."

"There has been much criticism of our schools for overcrowding the pupils," said Mr. Green, "and especially in teaching what have been characterized as 'fads and fancies.' I do not know what is meant by 'fads and fancies,' but as I have examined the courses of study I have found no subject that I thought could be left out by all the schools in view of the demands of the people. Physical training has been called a fad. Physical training means simply training for health. I cannot feel that the public health is a fad."

THAT'S ALL.

It is right from the heart and right to the heart. It is something for you to think about; something that will make you do some real thinking. What we are driving at is the something that is driven at you—it is the editorial contributed by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton. Turn to the editorial page—that's all.

The contestant polling the highest vote in all districts during this period will receive the Diamond Ring.

The leaders in the other four districts will be given the Solid Gold Watches.

All votes cast for the special prizes count also for the tours.

Once more there is a change in the leaders in the second district, in the Daily Press European Tour Contest, Miss Mabel Vail again being seen at the top. Although the leaders in the other districts remain the same, the positions of several of the runners-up have been changed by the vote counted last night, and before this time next week, more shifts in position are promised. Each day the interest and excitement continues to increase as the close of the special period draws near and nearer, votes by the hundreds and thousands finding their way into the ballot box.

It is not to be inferred that because some contestants are not adding largely to their recorded vote that they are slackening up in the gathering of subscriptions, for the case is just the contrary. Contestants are simply holding back their votes for later use, and the candidate who allows herself to be deceived by appearance is destined to a rude awakening.

After today the Daily Press European contestants will have but six full days in which to put forth every effort to secure the votes which will place them in line for the Special

Hobart, Tasmania, March 8, 11:20 a. m.—On the 10th of February, 1911, we commenced to work our way toward the south, from that day to the 11th of April establishing three depots, which in all contained a quantity of provisions of about 3,000 kilos. One thousand six hundred kilos, including 1,100 kilos of seal meat, were cached in 80 degrees, 700 kilos in 81 degrees and 800 kilos in 82 degrees south latitude.

As no landmarks were to be seen, these depots were marked with flags seven kilometers on each side in the easterly and westerly directions.

The ground and the state of the barrier were of the best and specially well adapted to driving with dogs. On Feb 15 we had thus traveled about a hundred kilometers. The weight of the sledges was 300 kilos, and the number of dogs was six for each sledge. The surface of the barrier was smooth and fine, with no sastrugi. The crevices were very local and were found dangerous in only two places. For the rest—long, smooth undulations.

The weather was excellent—calm or a light breeze. The lowest temperature on these depot trips was minus 45 Celsius or Centigrade (49 degrees below zero F.). On the 4th of March, on our return from the first trip beginning on the 15th of February, we found out that the Fram had already left us. With pride and delight we heard that her smart captain had succeeded in sailing her farthest south and there hoisting the colors of his country. A glorious moment for him and his comrades—the farthest north and the farthest south—good old Fram! The highest south latitude attained was 78 degrees 41 minutes.

Winter on the Ice Barrier.

Before the arrival of winter we had 6,000 kilos of seal meat in the depots, enough for ourselves and 110 dogs. Eight dog houses, a combination of tents and snow huts were built.

Having cared for the dogs, the turn came to use our solid little hut. It was almost entirely covered with snow by the middle of April. First we had to get light and air. The Lux lamp, which had a power of 200 standard candles, gave us a brilliant light and kept the temperature up to 20 degrees Celsius (68 degrees F.) throughout the winter, and our excellent ventilation system gave us all the air we wanted.

In direct communication with the hut and dugout on the barrier were workshops, packing rooms, cellars for provisions, coal, wood and oil, a plain bath, a steam bath and observatories. Thus we had everything within doors if the weather should be too cold and stormy.

The sun left us on the 22d of April and did not return until four months later. The winter was spent in clearing our whole outfit, which on the depot trips was found to be too clumsy and solid for the smooth surface of the barrier. Besides this, as much scientific work as possible was done, and some astonishing meteorological observations were taken.

Open Water All Winter.

There was very little snow, and there was open water close by throughout the winter. For the same reason higher temperature had been expected, but it remained very low.

In five months there were observed temperatures between minus 50 and 60 degrees Celsius (58 and 76 degrees below zero F.), the lowest temperature, on the 13th of August, being minus 70 degrees Celsius. It was then calm. On Aug. 1 the temperature was minus 58 degrees Celsius, and there were six meters of wind. The mean temperature for the year was minus 28 degrees Celsius (14.8 below zero F.).

I had expected hurricane after hurricane, but I observed only two moderate storms and many excellent aurora australis in all directions.

The sanitary conditions were of the best all the winter, and when the sun returned on Aug. 24 we met the men sound in mind and body, ready to set about the task that had to be solved.

Already, the day before, we had brought our sledges to the starting place for our march toward the south. Only in the beginning of September did the temperature rise to such an extent that there was any question of setting out.

First Start For the Pole.

On Sept. 8 eight men, with seven sledges, ninety dogs and provisions for four months, started. The ground was perfect. The temperature was not bad. The next day it appeared that we had started too early, as the temperature of the following days fell and was kept steady between minus 50 and 60 Celsius (58 degrees and 76 degrees below zero F.). Personally, we did not suf-

Speaking for Jersey Democrats He Praises President's Choice—Morris County Man's Decision in Glass Blowers' Union Case Cause of Set-back.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Unexpected and serious opposition to the confirmation of the nomination of Chancellor Pitney for the Supreme Court of the United States developed in executive session of the Photos by American Press Association.

Mahlon Pitney.

Senate yesterday afternoon. As a matter of fact Mr. Pitney's nomination was first confirmed and then recognizing objections raised by Senator Culberson, of Texas, this action was reconsidered and the matter left open for further consideration.

The approval of the President's nomination of the Chancellor came about by Mr. Pitney's name being read off with those of a number of other nominees while Mr. Culberson was absent from the chamber. Senator Bacon, of Georgia, who was a member of the Judiciary sub-committee that reported favorably Mr. Pitney's name, caused considerable surprise by demanding that the confirmation be reconsidered until Mr. Culberson could be present.

The reconsideration had hardly been ordered when Mr. Culberson appeared in the chamber and being informed of what had transpired, immediately raised serious objections to the confirmation of Mr. Pitney. He laid especial stress on the opinion written by the Chancellor for the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals sustaining the injunction order issued by Vice Chancellor Bergen, restraining members of the Glass Blowers' Union from trying to persuade employes of the Jonas Glass Company to quit work while a strike was in progress.

Senator Martine, of Plainfield, the junior Democratic member from New Jersey, who has heartily endorsed the nomination of Mr. Pitney and is anxious for his confirmation, endeavored to quiet some of the opposition by not only expressing his personal opinion of the nomination but also quoting letters received from prominent Democratic lawyers in New Jersey who approved of the nomination. A lively discussion ensued and it seemed apparent that if the nomination was pressed for confirmation at that time it would fail of the two-thirds vote necessary.

The nomination may come up again for consideration today if there is an executive session.

Arrangements are about completed for the fair to be held in Friendship Hall next week on Friday and Saturday evenings for the benefit of the New Market Volunteer Fire Company. Up to the present the committee have been very successful and wish all residents of the village who have not been called on personally to contribute some little article for the fair or a small amount of money, as they feel it is for a worthy cause and hope to be able to purchase all needed things after the fair. The committee are George Harris, William Van Nuis and Stanley Day.

The basketball games in the Presbyterian chapel last night again delighted a large crowd of spectators. The Young Men's Association team from Bound Brook defeated the Baraca class five by a score of 29 to 24. The Monarchs won from the Whittier School team but owing to the fact that several of the latter's regular players were unable to be present, it was not counted as a game in the championship series. Both contests were fast throughout.

BRING THE HIDDEN MUSIC FORTH

WHEN you listen to a fine pianist and say to yourself: "Oh, if I could only make beautiful music like that!" it is merely a manifestation of the Musical Instinct, which you, like every human being, possess.

The fact that many of us do not bring out this music in us—which exists like a crystal spring waiting to be tapped—is the lack of an instrument which will care perfectly for all the mechanical part of playing, and leave the way clear for one's musical Instinct to have sway.

The invention of the

has at last opened the world of music to the unskilled music lover. It is ingeniously constructed to respond to your Instinct—to every impulse that comes over you in playing. Drop in at the store and see the Virtuolo. Hear it played. Play it yourself. The sensations you feel will thrill you. You will be fascinated, carried away by the beautiful music which, with practically no effort on your part, you are producing on the Virtuolo

TAFT REPLIES TO COLUMBUS SPEECH

Answers Recent Attack by Roosevelt.

"RECALL REVOLUTIONARY"

President Also Characterizes Proposition as "Crude, Fitful and Unstable." Blames Defects In Judiciary on Procedure and Not Upon the Judges Themselves.

Toledo, O., March 9.—A direct reply to Colonel Roosevelt's Columbus speech, in which he advocated the recall of judges and court decisions, was made by President Taft at a mass meeting at the Coliseum.

Although Mr. Taft mentioned no names, his references were plain. The president characterized the recall propositions as "crude, revolutionary, fitful and unstable." Here is President Taft's comment upon the recall of judicial decisions urged by Mr. Roosevelt at Columbus:

"This is a remarkable suggestion and one which is so contrary to anything in government heretofore proposed that it is hard to give it the serious consideration which it deserves because of its advocates and the conditions under which it is advanced."

Mr. Taft declared that the defects in the judiciary were not due to corruption of judges, but to the procedure and the difficulty of judges in aiding juries in representing just decisions. If judges are corrupt, Mr. Taft said, they can be impeached. If the impeachment procedure is too cumbersome, he added, it can be simplified. Mr. Taft suggested, for instance, the creation of a tribunal for the removal of judges for cause before which a complaint against a judge could be lodged and before which the judge can appear and make his defense.

The president will speak tonight in Chicago, where he arrived this afternoon.

PROPOSE STRIKE CONFERENCE

Both Sides In English Conflict Likely to Get Together.

London, March 9.—The cabinet held a meeting in regard to the coal strike and afterward invited both sides to a joint conference. The miners submitted a proposal for a national conference March 12, on condition that the principle of the minimum wage be excluded from the discussions.

It may be taken for granted that the conference will materialize, and it may probably be presided over by Prime Minister Asquith.

FIVE WEEKS, EACH $500

Prizes, and at the same time better their chances for the two months tour of Europe. Every ballot to be counted for the Special Prizes must be depostited in this office by Saturday evening, March, 16., at 10:30 o'clock. Many thousands eyes are watching the splendid race for these handsome prizes, the solitaire diamond ring and the four gold watches which will be awarded next Saturday night to the contestants who secure the necessary votes.

Contestants are urged to turn in their subscriptions as soon as they are received ,in order that the new subscribers may have the advantage of the paper and begin to save the coupons. By this time in two weeks it will take a bushel basket to hold the ballots, so it will be well to move lively and keep up with the procession.

There are a number of candidates whose friends have said to them, "I would be glad to help you if I thought you would win." Now is the time that the support of those friends is needed, not later in the contest. Make a list of all the friends that have promised to help you, and as quick as they subscribe mark them off. Be sure to see them all

If you would win one of the five special prizes and one of the European Tours, get busy at once and see that you get your fair share of the many subscriptions that are being taken out every day, for there is not the slightest doubt that the public generally is taking an extraordinary interest in the progress of this contest watching closely the daily changes in the position of the contestants.

Hard work is being done in all the districts and at this time it would be idle to even try to guess which district will win the extra trip for the chaperone. Every one of the leading candidates has a splendid chance of securing the high vote and its equally high privilege of taking with her mother, sister or girl friend. There is bound to be a trip winner and a special prize winner in each district. Why should it not be you? All that is required is the settling down to an earnest effort to secure the cash subscriptions which count so much toward the desired goal.

There are but five weeks more of the contest, and to the winners the work is worth $100 a week from now on. This is an opportunity which occurs but once in a lifetime and should be given the most careful consideration before being passed over. Two full months in Europe with every cent of necessary expense paid, is something which anybody should be delighted to receive, for this trip is worth, both in an educational and recreational way, much more than could be possibly be put forth in the effort to win.

The Scrap Book

Beyond the Judge's Control.

"The courtroom has its fun as well as its tragedy," once observed William Travers Jerome. "Sometimes the humor is not as appreciable to the principal actors as to an outsider, as in the case I once attended in a New England court where a slander trial was on.

"OLD WOMAN, SHUT UP!"

"The principal witness was an impetuous old Irishwoman. She talked so fast that the judge was unable to follow her testimony, especially as it was delivered in the broadest of brogues. In vain he attempted to stop her.

"'Stop, stop!' he cried, rapping sharply on his desk. But the torrent of words continued as before. 'Old woman, shut up!' he shouted in exasperation, but to no avail. The old lady was determined to have her say. Finally the unhappy judge threw down his pen and yelled to the lawyer:

"'There, Mr. Murdock! You set her a-going. Now stop her!'"—Lippincott's.

Love Much.

Love much. Earth has enough of bitter in it.
Cast sweets into its cup whene'er you can.
No heart so hard but love at last may win it.
Love is the grand primeval quest of man.
All hate is foreign to the first great plan.

Love much. Men's souls contract with cold suspicion.
Shine on them with warm love and they expand.
'Tis love, not creeds, that from a low condition
Leads mankind up to heights supreme and grand.
Oh, that the world could see and understand!

His Ambition.

Acton Davies, the dramatic critic, tells a story of Oliver Herford, the humorist. Herford never had a serious thought in his life.

"TELL ME ABOUT IT."

"Herford sat next to a soulful poetess at dinner one night," Davies relates, "and that dreamy one turned her sad eyes upon him. 'Have you no other ambition, Mr. Herford,' she demanded, 'than to force people to degrade themselves by laughter? Yes, Herford had an ambition—a whale of an ambition. Some day he hoped to gratify it. The woman rested her elbows on the table and propped her face in her long, sad hands and glowed into Mr. Herford's eyes. 'Oh, Mr. Herford,' she said—'Oliver, tell me about it.'

"'I want to throw an egg into an electric fan,' said Herford simply."

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, MARCH 9, 1912.

The editorial columns of this paper are conducted on Saturdays by representative citizens who are free to express their own views. Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Washington Valley, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, is the contributing editor today.

A TIME AND TASK FOR MEN.

Unrest is the chief characteristic of our age. A sort of ferment is working in the veins of mankind, which makes peace and permanency impossible.

The condition, although most acute among most advanced peoples, is not confined to any one country or continent. China is seething from centre to circumference with new ideas, ideals and rebellions. India, the home of philosophy, is awake and questioning. Europe is shaken with political and economic revolution. The Australasian Commonwealths have for years been floating back and forth upon a stream of social experiment. Everywhere life seems to be growing more difficult.

In our own country we have reproduced in bewildering variety the movements which are disturbing so profoundly the rest of mankind.

Our political ideals are changing more rapidly then we imagine. Political parties are dissolving into kaleidoscopic cliques. Confusion and uncertainty hang like a storm cloud upon the horizon, and no one can discern, as yet, any foundation upon which to erect a political fabric which shall prove to be at once permanent and practicable. Conservatives and progressives appear in all parties. There is much movement, but little progress. The Socialists alone seem to be sure of themselves, their programme and their principles.

Out of this universal ferment there has emerged a widespread distrust of the instruments and institutions of representative government. Our citizens seem to be losing faith in Congress and legislatures, and are clamouring for more direct government by means of the Initiative and Referendum. The theory underlying this demand is that a democracy can and must govern itself directly, initiating, enacting and enforcing its own laws without the aid of deliberative bodies.

In English-speaking countries the courts have long been looked upon as the impregnable citadel of justice. Now, by means of the Recall, it is proposed to make them the plaything of passion. To many this seems to be the acme of wisdom. There are others, however, who look upon such an experiment as an acute form of social dementia.

Everywhere among us a class spirit is growing. Inspired by the frenzied prophesying of wild-eyed agitators, and by the vulgar selfishness of the idle rich, the notion is becoming firmly fixed that there is in this country no real commonweal, but one class can only prosper at the expense of the other. The catch-words and cant of European anarchy sound sadly out of place in a country where men are alleged to be born free and equal; where the only king is the free and intelligent voter, and the only sceptre the ballot. Yet the fundamental theory upon which the entire controversy between Labor and Capital rests is that their interests are not identical; if one succeeds the other must fail; prosperity for one means poverty for the other.

To complete this mournful survey we have only to observe the widespread weakening of religious sanctions and the absence of simple direct and profound thinking upon the facts of life. Externally, organized religion in America is very strong, and, apparently, growing stronger every day. Buildings, machinery, endowments, methods multiply like magic. Immense sums pour steadily into the channels of philanthropy. But within and behind it all there is lacking the eternal energy of great ideas which create great world-conquering convictions and crystallize into redemptive service.

It requires no Hegel to prove that the worthy achievements of man are children of ideas. Thought is the mother of emotion and these together produce action. We have thought in plenty of a technical and chill impersonal kind. But life is more than thought. You have to reckon with the heart. And as Pascal observes "the heart has reasons that the reason knows not of."

Our people have abandoned their religious duties because they do not think deeply enough upon life. And they do not think because their minds are stupefied by the false notion that a living is more than a life.

One would imagine that under such conditions as these a sober and patriotic people would gather to the defense of their institutions with a passion of devotion truly heroic. But this is not a heroic age. People are too fond of good victuals for that. You cannot have the Spartan virtues of self-discipline and self-denial in an age given over to the vice of luxury and the love of ease. "Give us bread and the circus" was the cry of the Roman multitude. In America we want bread and jam, plus a circus without disagreeable incidents.

Looking out upon the universal pain and passion of modern life, one cannot escape a serious question. Is the world preparing for some frightful catastrophe, some vast collapse or relapse into general chaos and failure? Or, can we believe that these restless strivings, these anguished struggles are but the birth-pangs of a new age? Do these black and ominous clouds that hang so low upon the world's horizon, hide the approach of morning? Or, are they the sinister heralds of doom? Is this God's world? Can we say with the ancient seer: "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice." While clouds and darkness are round about Him, shrouding His purpose in mystery, can we believe that justice and judgment are still the foundation of His throne? If we have no sky above us, filled with God, we must give ourselves over to despair. But if the blind battlings of the human spirit are guided and governed by the brooding Presence of an Eternal Spirit, infinite in wisdom and love, who knows the way He takes, we may strive on in hope. Whatever else a man can do without today, he cannot do without a religion and successfully sustain his life.

There are two vast movements affecting all mankind which form the background of modern life and explain its trend. One is the universal contact of race with race. From this there is no escape. "He made of one blood all races for to dwell upon the face of the earth." And these "whispers running under the seas" reveal that nations are overflowing their national boundaries and intermingling. Henceforth, the good or ill of one will be, consciously or unconsciously, the good or ill of all. If there is a "yellow peril" there will be at the same time a white peril and a black peril. No man and no nation can ever again live or die unto himself or itself.

With this unsettling of the races comes a complete democratizing of all life. From this process we cannot turn back. It will not close, but, rather, will become swifter and stronger every hour, until power and responsibility rest squarely upon everyone, rich and poor, men and women, wise and ignorant, good and bad, fit and unfit.

Wrapped up in these two general movements are a host of lesser energies and impulses, reforms and revolutions. National politics must widen into world politics. Democracy must make new methods and find new adjustments. If the people accept all power, they must discharge all moral responsibility. Education, soul-culture, religion, are imperative. Whether we have palaces or not, we must have Altars and Bibles. Man can only keep the world by giving it back to God. The duty of the common man is plain. No one can solve all problems. But each can and must live his own life to the full. We must learn to think, to believe, to suffer and to serve.

There is no cause for despair. Our problems are the problems of life and growth, not of death and decay. We need only manhood, which is the divinest fact and force in the world, and we can find and furnish this needed manhood by simple faith in God, in reality, in truth, and in each other. We have a great cause. It is centred in a great conflict. We must meet the situation by a great life, consecrated to mankind and sustained by an inner experience which pierces behind the clouds until it rests in Eternal Light.

TEACHER DEFINES DICKENS FOR THE P. H. S. PUPILS

The try-outs for parts in "Oliver Twist," the annual senior play, will be held next week. Several more members of the class witnessed the play Wednesday. The play as it is being revised for the use of the class by Samuel B. Howe, will not have the sordid and brutal characteristics which are brought out in the New York and other similar performances. More attention will be paid to present the humorous side of Dickens' characters while at the same time the narrative will be preserved. Among those who witnessed the performance in New York, Wednesday, were Raymond Manley, Schuyler Line, Egbert Fountain, Bruce Conlin, Madeline Strader, Ruth Douglas and Jessie Stewart.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATES AT H. R. PHILLIPS' FUNERAL

The funeral service of Henry R. Phillips was held at the late home on Rockview Terrace, North Plainfield, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including many business associates from New York. The simple service of the Episcopal church was conducted by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, of which Mr. Phillips was a member.

There were many beautiful flowers expressive of the high esteem in which the departed was held, by both relatives and friends. During the service a male quartet comprising S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace church; William Tallamy, Bertram Tallamy and Elmer D. Cutting, sang three selections: "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest," "O God Our Help in Ages Past," and "Fight the Good Fight With All Thy Might." The burial took place in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE W. RANDOLPH LAID AWAY IN HILLSIDE

The funeral service of Mrs. George W. F. Randolph was held at her late home, 909 West Front street, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was a large gathering of friends and neighbors. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, officiated in the absence of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, who was Mrs. Randolph's pastor.

Following a prayer and the reading of Scripture, Mr. Maguire made a short address. He referred especially to the devoted Christian life of Mrs. Randolph, of her love for her home and church throughout the many years she had lived in Plainfield.

During the service a quartet composed of Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor, sang "Lead, Kindly Light," "Abide With Me," and Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

There was a large display of floral tributes, including one from Mrs. Randolph's Sunday-school class of which George H. Chapman is teacher; a pillow bearing the word "Mother," from Mrs. Randolph's daughter and husband; a wreath bearing the word "Grandma," from the grandson and many others. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall bearers were George E. Greenleaf, Wallace R. Clarke, A. L. Force, Charles Rocap, Edward E. Brown and Charles VanWinkle.

FUNERAL OF THE MAN WHO BUILT RAILROAD STATIONS

The funeral of Sering P. Hoffman, foreman in years past on many station building contracts along the Central and the Pennsylvania Railroads, was held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James A. Love, on Duer street, North Plainfield, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including many neighbors who had known Mr. Hoffman during the greater part of his residence here. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which Mr. Hoffman was one of the oldest members, conducted the service. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. William E. Honeyman, a close neighbor, who offered prayer.

Dr. Anderson read Scripture selections and made a short address, in which he referred to the Christian character of the departed and his faithfulness in attending the services at the church of which he was a member; also of his interest in the Sunday-school. There were many floral tributes, including one from the Sunday-school class of which Mr. Hoffman was a member.

The burial was in the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue and the pall-bearers were Thomas S. Armstrong, Joseph A. Humble, T. B. Drake, C. K. Compton, L. E. Barkalew and James Lunger.

Bulls in the House of Commons.

"The house of commons is a regular bull pen," said an Englishman. "I heard a Tory member say recently in praise of bishops: 'Bishops are not really stiff and starchy. There's a good heart beating below their gaiters.'

"An imperialist declared in a debate: 'No Ireland, no Wales, no Scotland; one only Britain. Such are the words the mouth of our sovereign has always had in its eye.'

"An Irish Unionist said of an Irish Nationalist, 'Shall this man come into this house with unblushing footsteps, with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, and draw 5,000,000 acres out of our pockets?'

"An excited labor member once shouted, 'If this bill passes I see before the workingmen of England a future from which they have been for too many years kept out.'"

Tearful Statesmen.

There was a time when English statesmen wept upon small provocation. Pepys makes frequent reference to this weakness, while the story of the long parliament as written by D'Ewes gives the impression that the legislators of that day were singularly prone to tears. They wept on the slightest provocation, and sometimes their excessive grief was so noisy that proceedings had to be stayed until the lachrymose lawmakers could compose themselves.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Actor Louis Mann with his widely discussed comedy of laughs and thrills "Elevating a Husband," presents one of the most interesting situations of the current theatrical season in New York. Already this brilliant and temperamental star has been compelled to transfer his company to three different theatres in the short space of three months. Now his managers, Messrs. Werba and Luescher, announce a fouth move beginning Monday, March 11, when the star and his clever play will follow Ethel Barrymore at the Criterion theatre. When Mr. Mann learned that he would have to give up the Liberty theatre some time ago he declared he would petition his friend, Mayor Gaynor, to allow him to pitch a tent in Long Acre Square rather than give his consent to taking "Elevating a Husband" away from New York. Fortunately his managers have made it unnecessary to play in a tent because they announce that they have now secured a lease on the Criterion from Charles Frohman. Throughout the perigrinations of "Elevating a Husband" Mr. Mann has been followed by enthusiastic audiences.

Never have the dangers of those who "go down to the sea in ships" been so glaringly portrayed as in "The Greyhound," which is now drawing crowds at the Aastor theatre. What Cruikshank was to Dickens, what Alma Tadema did for the early Romans, at a much later day the firm of Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner are doing for the Rogues Gallery. In "The Deep Purple," they confined themselves to crooks on a comparatively easy keel, as it were—crooks who had no use for sailing the ocean but, but who preferred to keep the soles of their feet close to those more or less primrose paths which are supposed to intersect certain asphalted pavements of the Tenderloin. These crooks, it must be admitted, impressed one more seriously than many of the deep sea robbers which infest the many decks of the Mauretania in the present play; they seemed mor e real, in their viciousness and more human, too, for the matter of that, but for those in search of a real melodramatic orgy we can recommend nothing more stimulating than "The Greyhound" at present.

—The Journal of Civilization, as Harper's Weekly, calls itself, is now for Champ Clark, evidently discerning in the statesman who said that "Cleveland and McKinley were "sam ages cut from the same dog" a civilization of the Attic type.—Columbia State.

Plainfield People Receiving the Full Benefit.

There have been many cases like the following in Plainfield. Everyone relates the experience of people we know. These plain, straightforward statements will do much toward relieving the suffering of thousands. Such testimony will be read with interest by many people.

Mrs. Anthony Wahl, R. F. D. No. , Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had such distressing pains in my back that I could hardly stand and it was out of the question for me to stoop. I was all crippled up and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble. A neighbor recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me and on her suggestion, I used them. They gave me almost immediate relief and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally when a cold settles on my kidneys and they act as a preventive of any serious recurrence of my former trouble. You may publish this account of my experience for the benefit of other kidney sufferers."

Cookery Points

One Egg Cake.

Cream a half cupful of butter, work in one cupful of sugar, then one egg yolk. When smooth stir in one cupful of milk and gradually two cupfuls of sifted flour, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with vanilla, bake and ice with the following: Beat one cupful of confectioner's sugar slowly into the white of one egg and flavor with a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Stir over the fire a half cupful of grated chocolate, two tablespoonfuls of confectioner's sugar and one tablespoonful of hot water until smooth, then add one more tablespoonful of hot water and stir into the sugar and beaten egg. Nuts may be added, whole or chopped.

Veal Croquettes.

Mince fine one cupful of cold veal, add a half cupful of cooked sweetbreads, also cold and minced, one cupful of cooked rice, a few drops of onion juice and minced parsley, celery or thyme to season. Moisten with a little veal stock and heat over the fire. Add salt and pepper and beaten egg yolk. Cook for one or two minutes and turn out on a dish to cool. When firm and cold form into croquettes, egg shape, roll in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, to which a tablespoonful of milk has been added, again in the crumbs and fry in hot fat until a rich brown. Minced chicken may be substituted for the veal and sweetbreads.

New Scrambled Eggs.

The member of your family who scorns scrambled eggs may enjoy them in a new, glorified form. Cut thin slices of ham in strips like matches. Mince an onion. Fry both in butter seasoned with salt and pepper, and when nearly done add three or four slices of mushrooms. Make a circle of the ham and onions and place the scrambled eggs in the center, garnishing with parsley.

Another variation is to spread round croutons with a layer of sweet red pepper cooked, then the scrambled eggs, then a springling of truffles. All scrambled eggs must be served at once and must not be tough.

Banana Croquettes.

Peel six bananas, cut a slice from each end, then cut into crosswise sections. Dredge well with powdered sugar and marinate one hour in the juice of two oranges, turning the sections over now and then. Roll in beaten egg, then in grated crumbs, and fry in deep hot fat. For the sauce, strain the sirup after the bananas have been taken out, bring just to boiling point, then thicken with one tablespoonful cornstarch stirred smooth in a little cold water. Cook until clear, take from the fire and add a half teaspoonful of orange extract.

Pot Roast.

Use any kind of meat. Put into an iron pot a tablespoonful of meat fryings or butter; let it brown; wash off the roast and put into the pot. After it begins to fry, pour in enough water to half cover the meat; season with pepper and salt; cover and stew slowly. As the meat begins to fry, add more water; turn it often, and cook about three hours. A half hour before serving add either Irish or sweet potatoes, or turnips; allow to brown with meat. If turnips are added prepare browned sweet potatoes separately.

Dried Fruit.

Dried fruit tastes just as good when stewed in the oven, and this method has its advantages—the fruit will not dry and burn, it will remain whole and may be cooked while roasting or baking. Wash the fruit, pour boiling water over it and let it stand in a covered dish until ready to put in the oven. Then add the sugar, cover lightly and let the heat of the oven do the cooking. Prunes are always delicious when stewed in this way.

A Delicious Rabbit.

A treasured rule for Welsh rabbit in a girl's recipe book calls for a quarter of a cupful of milk, three ounces of Cheddar cheese cut into small dice, an egg, a tablespoonful of butter, salt, a little mustard and a shake or two of paprika. Bring the milk to a boil, put in the cheese and stir until it is melted. Then add the egg and seasonings, stir until the mixture is creamy and turn over toasted bread or crackers.

A Sandwich Novelty.

White bread sandwiches sprinkled with sugar are a delight in one household where everybody has a sweet tooth. It may be that the fashionable "nervous stomach" has been cultivated as much by the goodies in the way of cakes and bonbons served at daily teas as anything else. Sweet sandwiches are twice as healthy and to most persons are a welcome relief from the universal American cake habit.

Southern Johnnycake.

For southern johnnycake make a batter of half a cupful of sugar, an egg, four tablespoonfuls of drippings or butter, a level teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a cupful of sour milk, a cupful of cornmeal and a cupful of flour. Put a large tablespoonful of lard into an iron frying pan, and when it is very hot turn in the batter and bake in a hot oven. Southern cooks scorn a tin baking dish for this cake.

BASQUE EFFECTS.

Lace an Important Factor of Summer Frocks.

DELIGHTFUL COSTUME OF TAN NET.

Basque effects are being pushed by designers of costumes this season, but it remains to be seen whether the idea is going to "take" with their patrons. The gown illustrated shows the basque notion in its incipient stage. The material employed in this costume is a pale tan net trimmed with bands of venise lace. The lace of the bodice is also mounted on the tan net. A very modish touch is to be found in the plaited frill at the foot of the skirt and the slashed trimmed velvet coat, with button trimmed coattails at the back.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

STUFFED EGGS.

EGGS appear on the Lenten table so often that the following recipes, which make dainty and appetizing luncheon dishes, may be useful in many households.

Some Luncheon Dainties.

Eggs With Ham.—Boil as many eggs as are needed, take off the shells and cut them in half lengthwise and remove the yolks without breaking the whites.

Mash the yolks in a bowl, season to taste, add a small lump of melted butter, a bit of cider vinegar and a trifle of dry mustard. When a smooth paste put in some cold ham chopped very fine, refill the whites with this mixture and garnish with parsley.

Eggs With Chicken.—Boil a half dozen eggs for twenty minutes, take off the shells and cut lengthwise. Take out the yolks and lay the two halves of the white together.

Mash the yolks and add two teaspoonfuls of soft butter, a few drops of onion juice and half the quantity of minced chicken. Season to taste and add a pinch of salt, pepper and mustard.

Fill the whites with the mixture and press the two halves together evenly.

Spread the remainder of the mixture on a shallow dish and place the eggs on it. Cover with a thin white sauce or gravy.

Sprinkle buttered crumbs over the whole and bake till the crumbs are a delicate brown. Garnish with parsley.

Stuffed and Then Fried.

Eggs With Veal.—Let these eggs boil for ten minutes, then lay them for five minutes in cold water. Take off the shells and cut the eggs in half lengthwise. Remove the yolks, beat them smooth with a little melted butter and salt and pepper to taste and work in thoroughly.

Fill the halved whites with this mixture. Lay them on a hot platter and set in the oven until heated through, then pour about them a thick tomato or brown sauce and serve.

Fried Stuffed Eggs.—Boil the eggs hard, then take off the shells. Make a cut in each and carefully remove the yolk. Put all the yolks into a basin with two ounces of butter, three teaspoonfuls of anchovy sauce, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a little salt and pepper.

Work the ingredients well together, then fill in the whites of eggs with the mixture.

Dip each egg in flour, then beat up an egg, brush the stuffed eggs over with it, then roll them in breadcrumbs and fry in boiling fat until a golden brown.

FASHION PREDICTIONS.

Spring Color Combinations—A New Hatpin.

Gray united to one of the deeper and now fashionable shades of yellow is one of the happiest of color combinations.

The fashions of the season are far from tyrannical, and, if nothing is absolutely new, we can console ourselves with the thought that everything is permitted.

The double stem hatpins, which take a firm grip of the hair, are novelties that have recently been introduced with some success, though the older style is still preferred.

Just such smart little morning frocks as the one pictured are liked by the summer girl. The shirt waist is of the mannish sort and the skirt is on the modish straight lines of the moment.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

These May Manton patterns are cut in sizes for misses of fourteen, sixteen and eighteen years of age. Send 10 cents each for these patterns to this office, giving numbers, skirt 7346 and waist 7357, and they will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery. When ordering use coupon.

Kimono Sleeves Are Out.

Kimono sleeves are out of the running in spring fashions, and set in sleeves are the order of the day in all the new models, the armhole usually being emphasized by special trimming. The charming gown of embroidered blue linen illustrated has the new set in sleeve.

The Rabbit's Nest.

Hunting the nest of the Easter rabbit is looked forward to in Germany by the children with the same eagerness as our little ones hang up their stockings at Christmas.

While the chicken shares the honors with the rabbit, it is always the latter who sits on the nest for which the children hunt with such avidity.

The children's parents hide this nest with great care, so often the entire morning is consumed before it is discovered with the treasured eggs, each containing a gift.

Some of the eggs are made of cotton; others are the real shells carefully emptied of their contents.

Sanger's White Elephant.

"I was exhibiting 'the only white elephant ever seen in the western world,'" relates Lord George Sanger in his book, "Seventy Years a Showman," "when I was honored by a visit from King Edward, then Prince of Wales. After the performance I conducted the prince through the stables and showed him all there was to see. When we came to the 'white elephant' stall his royal highness suddenly turned to me and said, 'Sanger, is this really one of the sacred white elephants?'

"To this I replied: 'Well, your royal highness, a showman is entitled to practice a little deception on the crowd, but I should never think of deceiving my future king. It is certainly a 'white' elephant—in fact, a very white elephant, but only because we give him a coat of special whitewash twice a day!'"

The Backteriologist.

A Richmond negro chanced to meet on the street a friend who complained of much "mis'ry." Indeed, the afflicted one was in despair, so "tuckered out" was he.

"Wot seems to be de matter?" asked the first Negro.

"Jim," said the other with a moan and a gesture indicating the portion of his anatomy that was giving him so much trouble, "I's got sech awful pains in mah back heah!"

Jim assumed an air of great solemnity and wisdom. "In dat case," said he, "dere's only one thing fo' yo' to do. Jes' yo' put yo's'f in de hands o' dat Doctah Blank. I hears dat he's de finest backteriologist in de whole souf."—New York Press.

Buddhism.

Buddhism started with Gautama Buddha about 600 years before the Christian era, and it numbers among its adherents more than a third of the human race. Buddhism is confined mainly to Asia—Manchuria, Mongolia, Korea, Tibet, China, Japan and the large islands off the Asiatic coast. Though born in India, Buddhism is not strong in that country today, being driven out by the old Hinduism of which it is the offshoot.

Distraction Needed.

"You don't seem to be making much progress in golf."

"No," replied Mr. Cumrox. "It worries. Do you know I sometimes wish that I was back in business so as to have something to take my mind off the game."—Washington Star.

BASEBALL PLAYERS COST REAL MONEY

Price For New Talent No Object to the Magnates.

$500,000 SPENT BY CLUBS

Pittsburgh Heaviest Buyer, Brooklyn Second—Philadelphia Americans and New York Giants, Pennant Winners, Made Smallest Outlay.

Half a million dollars' worth of baseball talent is now preparing for the opening of the baseball season. This enormous sum of money has been invested in a bevy of bush league beauties who are now being put to the supreme test in the southern training quarters. After the wheat has been separated from the chaff it is extremely doubtful if any club finds more than one or two players qualified for fast company, no matter how weak the big league team may be or how anxious is the manager to strengthen his nine.

The American league bought outright $147,383 worth of players from the minors last year, while the National league purchased $135,280 worth. In drafting $38,650 was expended by the younger organization, while its rival spent $45,400, making the total cash expenditure of both leagues $366,713.33. If the purchased players have sufficient ability to stay in the majors $72,416.67 must be spent by the American league to retain them and $56,200 by the National, making the total outlay $495,330 for the two organizations.

Money Is No Object.

An examination of the statistics reveals the fact that money is no object with the owners in their efforts to strengthen their teams. Pittsburgh outstripped the teams of both leagues in paying for new talent, its total outlay being largely augmented, however, by the $22,500 paid over for Marty O'Toole. Cash payments of $36,000, with drafting expenditures of $4,700, and additional payments of $5,000 if certain players are retained, bring the cost of young players to the Pirates up to $55,600.

The Brooklyn Superbas were second only to Pittsburgh in the National league in the pursuit of new stars. Ebbets paid $16,980 for purchased players, with a little bill of $15,900 to settle if they are all retained, while $14,000 was expended in drafting men. The total of $45,500 shows how sincere the Brooklyn owner is attempting to build up a good team. The Cincinnati Reds were the next heaviest buyers in the National league, paying around $35,000 for youngsters, while the Cubs trail along with $20,000.

The Giants paid only $10,750 for the purchased players, with a prospect of laying out $9,250 if they are retained. The sum paid in the drafting process amounted to $3,250, the Giants getting off the cheapest of any club, except the Phillies, who paid out $100 less in the draft. The Giants' total outlay represents about $22,000. The Boston Braves spent only $13,000 for new men, which was the lowest outlay of any club.

White Sox Led the A. L. In Purchases.

The Chicago White Sox headed the American league and were second to Pittsburgh in the prices paid for youngsters. The payments include $25,783.33 for purchased players, $23,966.67 additional payments to retain men and $6,800 in the draft, making the total around $56,000. The Boston Red Sox were second, spending around $45,000, while the Cleveland Naps were third with $38,000. The Yankees were fourth at $28,000 and St. Louis fifth at $26,000.

The Detroit Tigers were the biggest "pikers" in the league, spending only a paltry $15,000, while Connie Mack ran Hughie Jennings a close race for last place, with an expenditure of $17,000.

The Brooklyn Superbas got the most for their money, having had forty-one new players on their payroll at different times, not including the regular men. Many of these young fellows were looked over and disposed of as unavailable last season. The Chicago White Sox signed thirty-four new men and the Cleveland Naps thirty-one. The Boston Red Sox and the Pittsburgh Pirates had twenty-eight apiece. Cincinnati twenty-six, the St. Louis Cardinals twenty-four, the Browns twenty-two and the Phillies twenty one. Connie Mack did only a small business, carefully selecting clever players for a trial, while the Giants took fifteen and Detroit seventeen. The Cubs signed seventeen and the Yankees nineteen.

RATTLING THE SKELETON

The Potters Against the Scotts.

The first local ball match of the season was begun on Saturday afternoon, between nines made up from employes of the Potter and Scott press works. The rain, however, effectually put a stop to the game after the second inning and the question as to which is the better nine is still undecided.

In the first inning the Scotts made three runs and then both nines sought shelter from the heavy shower that sprung up and came down. After play was called again the Potters made five runs but the rain stopped the game finally at this point. A Scott man confidentially boasted his nine could do the Potters up, but the latter have much good material. (Daily Press, Monday, April 16, 1888.)

VICE-PRESIDENT SHERMAN COMPLIMENTS "GABY" STREET.

Williamsport, Pa., Mar. 8.—Charlie ("Gabby") Street, who has agreed to catch for the New York Highlanders during the coming season, received a letter from Vice President Sherman which he appreciates very much. The Vice President is an ardent baseball fan, and Street is one of his favorites. The following is a copy of the letter:

The Vice-President's Chamber.

"My Dear Mr. Street—I cannot refrain from writing you a line to express my regret that you are not to be on the Washington diamond this summer, and I know in giving voice to my personal sentiment I am speaking for a large number of Washington fans, who have come not only to believe in you as an efficient, reliable and honest ball player, but as an agreeable gentleman both on and off the ball field. Our regret is somewhat tempered by the hope that the change which you are to make is one which will be in your interest. It will be many a day before you fail to receive a most cordial welcome when you revisit the Washington diamond. Very truly yours,

"J. S. SHERMAN."

THE GINGER JAR

With the squads all idle in the southland on account of the cold weather, the managers see no reason for all the enthusiasm over that South Pole find.

The enforced idleness gives the players lots of time to lay plans for passing the evening hours away during the season, now that the games are to start earlier.

If McGraw, Mack, Wolverton, or any of the other managers were to wire their congratulations to Scott and Amundsen, it's a good bet that the last words would be a sarcastic query.

Casper Leon, the old time fighter, has had his license taken away by the New York State boxing commission for allowing bouts to continue after they had become too one-sided.

All of these towering recruits we have been reading about offer a fine chance for shrinkage under the rays of the southern sun when it does shine.

Tulane University of New Orleans football candidates may condition themselves for next year's football battles by working in the wheat fields of Kansas at $2.50 a day, if a movement just started goes through. Coach A. A. Mason, and other executives favor the idea, and it is reported that 10 of the leading candidates have stated they will try the experiment.

Young Erne's work at Indianapolis against Ray Bronson, when Erne scored three knockdowns, pleased the sports so much that the leading club of that city has offered Erne a return date.

Jim Rice, the Columbia crew coach, is strong for cross-country running to develop the oarmen's wind.

Jack Hayden, of Louisville, has just signed a contract whereby he will be given a bonus if he bats .300 or better. How would you like to be the official scorer with this "crab" nagging for the close ones?

Wolverton likes the looks of Clark and Shears, two of his southpaw recruits. "But," he said, "I want to see men in games before passing judgment."

The hours of leisure are spent differently by the different men. McGraw is champion of the three cushion game in the Giants' camp. Hartley, Doyle and Fletcher entertain themselves and fellows with instrumental music. The other day they called to Devore saying they were going to play the sextette from Lucia. Josh told them he didn't know that game but would take a hand at Bridge Casino.

Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian runner, has returned from England and wants to run a sweepstake with anyone in the world at fifteen miles.

The Spaniards want to learn soccer. Alexander Steele, the old Manchester City, Eng., and Kilmarnock soccer football team's half back, has been engaged to instruct them in the sport.

Jersey City Elks bowling at Paterson last night in an Elks' League match, took all three games as follows: 914-867, 913-892 and 950-897.

A CATCH THAT LOST A GAME

Lied, the Elizabeth speedy left fielder, who has been signed by the McKeesport club in the P. and O. League, is one of the rising young players in the game who will have to learn some things about the use of his fleetness before he can really make good in fast company," said a close student of the game whose head is a reservoir of facts. To substantitate his statement he related the following story of a game at High Bridge last summer which was lost to the home team on account of Lied's speed.

"High Bridge was playing Somerville. It was the ninth inning, the score a tie, and the head of the batting order was up. Gordon made a hit and stole second. Swanson sacrificed, Gordon going to third. Wolff, the heavy hitting centre fielder, was told to line'er out, and smashed the first ball pitched square on the nose.

"The ball sailed towards left field. Lied went after it, crossed the foul line and made a splendid catch. Gordon hugged the bag until he saw the ball safely snared and raced for the plate, beating the throw by a yard.

"The locals were unable to get to Clinton in their part of the ninth and the run tallied on Lied's catch of the foul fly won the game for the Somerset county seaters.

PLANNING BASEBALL AT WASHINGTON, N. J.

Washington, N. J., Mar 9.—The Washington Baseball Association met Thursday night in the Hotel Windsor. Charles Brown was chairman. A committee of six was appointed to raise funds and finance the team.

John Hill was elected manager; Harry Christine, secretary, and Charles Brown, treasurer.

The committee on raising funds collected more than $40 at the meeting. This sum is expected to be raised to at least $200.

The season of 1911 was the best in the history of the Washington club, when it defeated the Newark Eastern Leaguers and "Ty" Cobb's All-Stars as the crowning feats of the season. It is planned to engage a first-class battery. The remainder of the team will be composed mostly of local players. It is thought the season will open about May 18.

Games will be arranged with all the strong nines of this section, including Phillipsburg, Belvidere, Blairstown, Oxford, Hackettstown, High Bridge, Bangor, Pen Argyle and Stroudsburg.

Knight in Balky Mood.

Jack Knight, who was traded to the Washington Club for Catcher Charley Street, has given Manager Clark Griffith, of the Senators, no assurance that he intends to join the club at its training camp at Charlottesville, Va. Knight is adverse to training before the season begins, because he is studying dentistry. When Manager Wolverton took charge of the Yankees the first thing he did was to notify every player that he was expected to report at the training camp at Atlanta. Knight objected and had a long conference with Wolverton. Shortly after this talk Wolverton began negotiations with the Washington Club to trade Knight.

Jeannette and Dewey Matched.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Mar. 9.—W. A. Sharp, manager for Nat Dewey, negro and Southern heavyweight, and Dan McKettrick, manager for Joe Jeannette, yesterday signed articles for a ten-round bout to be fought in New York on March 13.

Allentown, Pa., Mar. 9.—Jonas George, the pioneer harness racer, of the Lehigh Valley, and one of the best known hotel and sporting men in this section, died last night, aged 86 years.

POLITE FIB WAS COSTLY.

Cost C. K. G. Billings $300 and a Clever Mare.

C. K. G. Billings, owner of Lou Dillon and Uhlan, tells a good one on himself in regard to the first horse he ever purchased.

When Billings was a mere youth he bought a nice looking mare at a stockyards, paying the stiff price of $600 for the privilege of being her owner. The mare was a hard one to beat on the road, but a model in manners. Naturally young Billings took his father riding behind his new pet, and the old gentleman, a horseman to the backbone, soon saw his son had a treasure.

"What did you give for her?" he asked.

The son had no notion of telling that $600 story, so he divided the real price by three.

"Huh," said the elder Billings after a moment's cogitation, "I'll give you $100 profit and take her myself," which he did.

The younger Billings was stung, as he was forced either to let the mare go at 50 cents on the dollar or to admit to his father that he had been untruthful in regard to the cost.

Since that time, when he made the trip to the stockyards and strained his ready means to pay $600 for that mare, Billings has invested about $300,000 in pleasure horses.

PIGEON CLUB OFFERS NEW MEMBERS BREEDING STOCK

A markedly successful season is expected this year by the Plainfield Homing Pigeon Club. Charles E. Faber, 38 Rockview avenue, honorary secretary of the club, will be pleased to give information to any one interested in the fancy, if they desire to join. Anyone joining will be supplied with some high class breeding stock free of charge given by the members of the club.

Plainfield came out strong in pigeon flying last year. Robert S. Parson, of West Front street, won first prizes in the 100, 200 and 500-mile races. He has imported some high class stock from England and Belgium and hopes to produce something sensational from his loft this year.

Chas. E. Faber secured first prize in the 300 and 400 mile races and several other members had the pleasure of winning second prizes.

Now is the time to make a start in keeping and breeding by joining the club. The advice and assistance of experienced fanciers, which is a great help to a beginner is available to all members seeking it.

AUTO IMPORTERS TRYING TO HAVE DUTY REDUCED

A well known figure in the automobile importing line, it is understood on good authority, is at the present time in Washington for the purpose of working toward the end that Congress may see fit to make matters easier for the man who brings in a foreign built automobile for sale.

"The duty of 45 per cent. is utterly unfair," said an importer a day or two ago, "and this fact is recognized by American manufacturers. To my knowledge only a few firms in this country are seriously opposed to a lowering of the duty. The majority are of the belief that competition is actually the life of trade and are willing to acquiesce in a lowering of the duty. The most rabid opponent of a revision of the tariff in regard to automobiles is a concern building expensive cars that have never found a market in Europe."

Concerning the much-discussed bill recently introduced by Assemblyman Chanler to compel tire manufacturers to stamp on each tire the date of production, "The Club Journal" grows facetious in its latest issue.

"Tiremakers have always regarded tires as belonging to the feminine gender and consequently exempt from disclosing their age," says "The Club Journal." "Automobile tires from their very creation were believed to belong to the fair and amiable sex because they were always expensive, and although they looked very well when they were young and fresh they never failed to show their age quickly and frequently blew up without any apparent reason.

"If, however, the tiremakers have been mistaken and if the New York Assembly decides that a tire is a he,' it may be just as well to record their birthdays. In this connection it is suggested that if the public is to be thoroughly protected it might be well to also compel tiremakers to add to the date either 'A. D.' or 'B. C.,' denoting whether the vintage of their commodities is of the Christian or Pagan era."

The value of the automobile fire engine was demonstrated during the recent Equitable Building fire. In nearly every instance the first engines to reach the scene of the conflagration were those driven by gasoline. Although the fire gained too much headway to prevent the destruction of the building, the speedy arrival of the hose wagons and other engines enabled the firemen to keep the fire confined to the one building and prevent it spreading.

Edward Ralph, who deefated Robert Naylon, the local champion cue artist, in a local pool room several days ago, is entered in the professional tournament at Philadelphia which will be held during two weeks beginning March 26. Those with whom he will compete are Alfredo De Ord, of New York, Frank Sherman, of Washington, Charles Weston, of Chicago; James Maturo, of Denver; W. W. King, of New York, and Thomas I. Wilson, of Hackensack.

Wolgast to Fight Mehegan for Title.

San Francisco, Mar. 9.—Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion, has accepted the challenge of Hugh Mehegan, lightweight champion of Australia, for a twenty-round contest and the championship of the world. Wolgast insists, however, on having a side bet of $5,000 before he puts his name to a set of articles with the Australian.

THE HARDEST DECISION TIM HURST HAD TO MAKE

"Tim Hurst, the old American League umpire, was one of the most picturesque judges that ever spun an indicator," said the great Mathewson to a party of friends recently while doing some fireside fanning. To illustrate, Big Six related the following yarn of a game Tim was umpiring in Baltimore a number of years ago.

"There was a man on first. He started to steal and as he left the bag he spiked the first baseman and that player attempted to trip him. The second baseman blocked the runner and in sliding into the bag he tried to spike Hugh Jennings, who was playing short stop and covering, while Jennings set on him to knock the wind out. The batter hit Robinson, who was catching, on the hands with his bat so that he couldn't throw, and Robbie trod on my toes with his spikes and shoved his glove into my face so that I couldn't see to make the decision. It was one of the hardest that I have ever been called upon to make."

"What did you do?" I asked him.

"I punched Robbie in the ribs and called it a foul and sent the runner back," replied Tim.

THE FORUM.

FRANK BERGEN FAVORS TRUNK SEWER SCHEME.

Editors, Plainfield Press:

I have recently been drawn, with much reluctance, into the discussion of the sewer problem in which the people of Plainfield and the borough are deeply and actively interested. An examination of the situation has prompted me to make the following suggestions, which I venture to submit to your readers respectfully, and in a friendly spirit.

Sewage disposal works along Green brook, between Plainfield and Bound Brook, cannot remain permanently. The small volume of water flowing in Green brook in dry weather, and the rapid increase of population in the city and borough, will aggravate the objectionable qualities of the disposal works, and make it necessary to discontinue their use. Sooner or later the city and the borough and neighboring towns must discharge their sewage at tide water, just as Paterson and Passaic and near by towns are now about to do, after polluting the Passaic river for many years and failing to establish by litigation a right to do so.

I have examined the report of Messrs. Hering and Fuller, made about three years ago, of a plan for a district or trunk sewer extending from Scotch Plains to Bound Brook, and thence to a point on the Raritan river below Fieldville, with a possible extension to a point below New Brunswick. The entire length of the trunk line if so extended, as it must be ultimately, is about fifteen miles, and because of its great length and low grades the sewer would have to be large and costly. A pumping station must also be part of the plan, which would add considerably to the cost of operation. That plan I understand was not adopted because of the expense—over a million dollars—which it would involve.

I have the highest regard for Messrs. Hering and Fuller, but having often found it prudent to differ with the plans and estimates of engineers, I make bold to express the opinion that the sewage of Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen for the next twenty years can be conveyed to a point on the Raritan river below New Brunswick, treated there in the manner the engineers propose, and the effluent discharged in tide water by a sewer system that would cost less than six hundred thousand dollars. I think it could be done in this way: Adopt the plan of Messrs. Hering and Fuller as far as Rock avenue, which, near the railroad, is forty-eight feet above tide. The sewage of all the towns mentioned above would run to that point by gravity, and could be pumped across to the Raritan river below New Brunswick through an iron main, which need not be nearly so large in diameter as the proposed long sewer, because shorter and not operating by gravity. A main could be laid from Rock avenue to New Brunswisk almost in a straight line, and at no point would it reach a greater height than one hundred feet above tide. By a deep cut for a short distance it need not reach even one hundred feet. The distance, in a straight line, is seven miles, but allowing for digressing from a straight course to avoid high elevations and to reach a point a mile or so below New Brunswick, the length of the main might be nine miles.

It is true this plan involves pumping the sewage higher than required by the plan reported by Messrs. Hering & Fuller, but it would probably not be necessary to raise the sewage higher than fifty feet between the pumping station at Rock avenue and the disposal works on the Raritan and the cost would not be a serious item of the expense of operation.

New Brunswick, I am informed, may have to make some changes and enlargements in its sewer system shortly, and possibly an agreement could be made with that city that would be advantageous to all the towns and diminish the cost to each.

I make these suggestions because, in my opinion, it would be better for the towns I have mentioned to do now, what must be done ultimately, and perhaps within a few years, instead of paying out three or four hundred thousand dollars for temporary and unsatisfactory expedients.

GOT A FULL VOTE.

Even Though They Had to Go to Jail to Secure It.

That they had some rather advanced ideas as to the means of "getting out the vote" in New England a century ago is shown by an extract from Dr. Banks' "History of Marthas Vineyard." The voting, which occurred in 1807, was on the question of the removal of the county seat.

Extraordinary means were taken to get out a full vote in Edgartown. The sailing of ships was delayed for weeks so that their crews might vote, and on the day of the town meeting it was found that the contest between the two factions was to be close.

Some one suggested that there were several voters who, unfortunately deprived of their liberty, were languishing in the town jail, and if the jailer would kindly allow them to step across the street and vote it would consume but a few moments of the time the prisoners owed to the county. The jailer did not feel that he had the right to allow a general jail delivery even for such a worthy object, although it might save Edgartown.

It was then proposed that the ballot box be carried over to the gentlemen who were incarcerated. The point was then raised that all ballots must be cast in open meeting and in the presence of the election officials. Nevertheless astute minds found a way out of this awkward dilemma. A motion was made and carried that the meeting adjourn to the jail. There the ballot box was carried to the door of each prisoner's cell, and the imprisoned voters reached through the bars and deposited their ballots.

A BIBLE VERSE.

It Surprised the Boy Who Boasted of His Wonderful Memory.

A boy who had won a prize for learning Scripture verses and was greatly elated thereby was asked by a minister if it took him a long time to commit them.

"Oh, no," said the boy boastfully; "I can learn any verse in the Bible in five minutes."

"Can you, indeed? And will you learn one for me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then in five minutes from now I would like very much to hear you repeat this verse," said the minister, handing him the book and pointing out the ninth verse of the eighth chapter of Esther:

"'Then were the king's scribes called at that time in the third month—that is, the month Sivan—on the three and twentieth day thereof, and it was written, according to all that Mordecai commanded unto the Jews, and to the lieutenants and the deputies and rulers of the provinces, which are from India unto Ethiopia, a hundred, twenty and seven provinces, unto every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people after their language, and to the Jews according to their writing and according to their language.'"

The boy entered on his task with confidence, but at the end of an hour could not repeat it without a mistake and had to tearfully acknowledge himself defeated.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Tricky Lions.

Some of the most dangerous tricks of animals are those of simulating kindness. Charles Montague in "Tales of a Nomad" says that hyenas often follow lions and finish a carcass the moment the lions have left it. Sometimes, however, the hyenas are too eager and steal bits of meat while the lions are still at their meal.

"I have been told that the lion rids himself of the nuisance in the following way: He throws a piece of meat aside. When the lion is looking the other way the hyena dodges in and rushes off with the meat. Presently the lion throws another piece of meat, this time a little nearer. The hyena takes that also. At last the lion throws a piece very near indeed. The hyena, having become reckless, makes a dash at this also, but the lion wheels round and lays him low with a pat of his paw and a growl of annoyance."

Showed Him the Point.

A large crowd which collected on Broadway attracted the attention of two commercial travelers just back in New York. Joining it, they discovered that a safe was being raised to the fifteenth floor of a building and that the crowd was careful to stand outside the roped fence. "That's a good advertisement for my business," remarked one of the drummers, who is interested in the sale of airships. His companion admitted he didn't see the point. "Well, look at the sign. 'Danger below!' Then look up in the air. Danger below, safe above. Moral, take an airship."—New York Tribune.

Carefree Bohemians.

"How would you like to go to a bohemian supper? Lot of literary people and all that, you know."

"No; the bohemians are too free and easy for me. Last time I went they ran out of cheese and spread the sandwiches with library paste."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

AMUNDSEN'S OWN STORY

fer at all from this cold. Our good furs protected us. But with our dogs it was a different matter. It would easily be seen that they shrunk from day to day, and we understood pretty soon that they could not stand the long run to our depot at 80 degrees south.

We agreed on returning and to wait for the arrival of spring. The provisions were cached, and off we went for the hut. With the exception of the loss of a few dogs and a couple of frozen heels everything was all right.

Only in the middle of October spring came in earnest. Seals and birds appeared. The temperature was steady between 20 and 30 Celsius (68 degrees and 86 degrees F.).

The original plan that all of us should go toward the south had been changed. Five men had to do this work, while the other three were to start for the east and visit King Edward VII. land.

This last mentioned trip was not included in our program, but owing to the fact that the English had not reached it at least this summer, as was their intention, we agreed that the best thing to do was also to make this trip.

On Oct. 20 the southern party started—five men, four sledges, fifty-two dogs and provisions for four months—everything in excellent order.

The Journey to the Pole.

We had made up our minds to take the first part of the trip as easily as possible in order to give ourselves and the dogs a rational training, and on the 23d we made our depot in 80 degrees south. We went right ahead.

In spite of the dense fog an error of two to three kilometers happened once in awhile, but we were caught by the flag marks and found these on our way without difficulty.

Having rested and fed the dogs on all the seal meat they were able to eat, we started again on the 26th, with the temperature steadily between minus 20 and 30 Celsius (4 degrees and 22 degrees below zero F.).

From the start it was the intention not to drive more than thirty kilometers a day, but it appeared that this was too little for our strong, willing animals. At 80 degrees south we began to build snow cairns of a man's height, in order to have marks on our return trip. On the 31st we reached the depot at 81 degrees, and stopped there one day and fed the dogs on as much pemmican as they wanted.

We reached the depot at 82 degrees on the 5th of November, where the dogs for the last time got all they wanted to eat. On the 8th, southward again, with a daily march of 50 kilometers. In order to lighten our heavy sledges we established depots at each degree of south latitude.

Like a Pleasure Trip.

The trip from 82 degrees to 85 degrees became a pleasure trip—excellent ground, fine sledging and an even temperature. Everything went like a dance.

On the 9th we sighted South Victoria land and the continuation of the mountain range which Sir Ernest Shackleton mentioned in his chart as running toward the southeast from the Beardmore glacier, and on the same day we reached 83 degrees and established here Depot No. 4. On the 11th we made the interesting discovery that the Ross barrier terminated in a bight toward the southeast at 86 degrees south latitude and 163 degrees west longitude, formed between the southeast mountain range running from South Victoria land and a range on the opposite side running in a southwesterly direction—probably a continuation of King Edward VII. land.

On the 13th we reached 84 degrees, where we established a depot; on the 16th we were at 85 degrees, where also we made a depot.

From our winter quarters, "Framheim," 78 degrees 38 minutes south latitude, we had been marching due south. On the 17th of November, at 85 degrees, we arrived at a place where the land and barrier were connected. This was done without any great difficulty. The barrier here rises in undulations to about 300 feet. Some few big crevices indicated the limited boundary.

Here we made our head depot, taking provisions for sixty days on sledges and leaving thirty days' provisions on the spot.

A Difficult Climb.

The land under which we lay and which we now had to attack looked quite imposing. The nearest summits along the Barrier had a height of from 2,000 to 10,000 feet, but several others further south were 15,000 feet or more.

The next day we began the climb. The first part of it was an easy task—light stops and well filled mountain sides. It did not take a long time, for our willing dogs worked their way up. Further up we met with some small but very steep glaciers. Here we had to harness twenty dogs to each sledge and take the four sledges in two turns. In some places it was so steep that it was difficult enough to use our skees.

Some big crevices forced us from time to time to make detours. The first day we climbed 2,000 feet, the next day mostly up some small glaciers, camping at a height of 4,500 feet. The third day we were obliged to go down on a mighty glacier, "Axel Heiberg's glacier," which divided the coast mountains and the mountains further south.

The next day began the longest part of our climb. Many detours had to be made in order to avoid broad cracks and open crevices. These were apparently mostly filled up, as the glaciers in all probability had long ago stopped moving, but we had to be very careful, never knowing for certain how thick was the layer that covered them.

Our camp that night lay in very picturesque surroundings at a height of 5,000 feet. The glacier here was narrowed in between the two 15,000 feet high mountains, the "Fridtjof Nansen" and the "Don Pedro Christophersen." From the bottom of the glacier rose Mount "Ole Englstad," a big snow cone 13,500 feet high.

Day's Splendid Work.

The glacier was very much broken in this comparatively narrow pass. The mighty crevices seemed to stop us from going farther, but it was not so serious as it appeared. Our dogs, which up to this time had covered a distance of about 700 kilometers, the last day's very hard work, ran this day thirty-five kilometers, the ascent being 5,000 feet, an almost incredible record.

It took us only four days from the barrier to get up on the vast inland plateau.

We camped that night at a height of 10,600 feet. Here we had to kill twenty-four of our brave companions and keep eighteen, six for each of our three sledges.

We stopped here four days on account of bad weather. Tired of this, we set out on the 28th of November. On the 26th, in a furious blizzard and in a dense snowdrift, absolutely nothing was to be seen, but we felt that, contrary to expectations, we were going fast down hill. The hypsometer gave us that day a descent of 600 feet.

We continued our march the next day in a gale, and a dense snowdrift got our faces badly frozen. We could see nothing. We reached that day 86 degrees, dead reckoning. The hypsometer indicated a fall of 800 feet.

The next day was similar. The weather cleared a little at dinner time and exposed to our view a mighty mountain range to the east and not far off only for a moment, and then it disappeared in the dense snowdrift.

On the 29th it calmed down and the sun shone, though it was not the only pleasant surprise he gave. In our course stretched a big glacier running toward the south. At its eastern end was the mountain range going in a southeasterly direction. Of the western part of it no view was to be had, it being hidden in the dense fog. At the foot of this glacier, the Devil's glacier, a depot for six days was established, at 86.21 degrees south latitude. The hypsometer indicated 8,000 feet above sea level.

A Splendid Mountain View.

On Nov. 30 we began to climb the glacier. The lower part of it was very much broken and dangerous. Moreover the snow bridges very often burst. From our camp that night we had a splendid view over the mountain to the east. There was "Helmar Hansen's summit," the most remarkable of them all. It was 12,000 feet high and covered with such broken glaciers that in all probability no foothold was to be found. "Oscar Wisting's," "Sverre Hassel's" and "Olav Hjanland's" mountains also lay here, beautifully illuminated in the rays of the bright sun.

In the distance, and only alternately to be viewed in the fog, appeared from time to time "Mount Nielsen," with its summits and peaks about 15,000 feet high. We only saw the nearest surroundings.

It took us three days to surmount the Devil's glacier, always in misty weather.

On the 1st of December we left this broken glacier, with holes and crevices without number, with its height of 9,100 feet. Before us, looking in the mist and snowdrift like a frozen sea, appeared a light, sloping ice plateau filled with small hummocks.

The walk over this frozen sea was not pleasant. The ground under us was quite hollow, and it sounded as though we were walking on the bottoms of empty barrels. As it was, a man fell through, then a couple of dogs. We could not use our skees on this polished ice. Sledges had the best of it.

The place got the name the "Devil's Dancing Room." This part of our march was the most unpleasant. On Dec. 6 we got our greatest height, according to the hypsometer and aneroid, 10,750 feet, at 87 degrees 40 minutes south.

On Dec. 8 we came out of the bad weather. Once again the sun smiled down on us. Once again we could get an observation. Dead reckoning and observation were exactly alike—88 degrees 88 minutes 16.6 seconds south.

Before us lay an absolutely plain plateau, only here and there marked with a tiny sastrugi.

In the afternoon we passed 88 degrees 23 minutes (Shackleton's furthest south was 88 degrees 23 minutes). We camped and established our last depot, depot No. 10. From 80 degrees 25 minutes the plateau began to slope down very gently and smoothly toward the other side.

On the 9th of December we reached 80 degrees 39 minutes; on Dec. 10, 88 degrees 56 minutes; Dec. 11, 89 degrees 15 minutes; Dec. 12, 89 degrees 30 minutes; Dec. 13, 89 degrees 45 minutes.

Up to this time the observations and dead reckoning agreed remarkably well, and we made out that we ought to be at the pole on Dec. 14 in the afternoon.

The Pole Attained.

That day was a beautiful one—a light breeze from southeast, the temperature minus 23 Celsius (9.4 degrees below zero F), and the ground and sledging were perfect. The day went along as usual, and at 3 p. m. we made a halt.

According to our reckoning, we had reached our destination. All of us gathered around the colors—a beautiful silk flag—all hands taking hold of it and planting it.

The vast plateau on which the pole is standing got the name of the "King Haakon VII. plateau." It is a vast plain, alike in all directions. Mile after mile during the night we circled around the camp.

In the fine weather we spent the following day taking a series of observations from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. The result gave us 89 degrees 55 minutes.

In order to observe the pole as close as possible we traveled as near south as possible the remaining nine kilometers.

On Dec. 16 there we camped. It was an excellent opportunity. There was a brilliant sun. Four of us took observations every hour of the day's twenty-four hours. The exact result will be the matter of a professional private report.

This much is certain—that we observed the pole as close as it is in human power to do it with the instruments we had, a sextant and an artificial horizon.

On Dec. 17 everything was in order on the spot. We fastened to the ground a little tent we had brought along, a Norwegian flag and the Fram pendant on the top of it.

The Norwegian home at the south pole was called "Polheim."

The distance from our winter quarters to the pole was about 1,400 kilometers. The average march a day was twenty-five kilometers.

The Return Journey.

We started on the return trip on the 17th of December. Unusually favorable weather made our way home considerably easier than the journey to the pole. We arrived at our winter quarters, "Framheim," on the 25th of January, 1912, with two sledges and eleven dogs, all well.

The daily average speed on the return trip was thirty-six kilometers. The lowest temperature was minus 31 Celsius (23.8 degrees below zero F.), the highest minus 5 Celsius (23 degrees above zero F.).

Among the results are the determination of the extent and character of the Ross barrier and the discovery of the connection of South Victoria land and probably King Edward VII. land, with their continuation in the mighty mountains running toward the southeast, which were observed as far as 88 degrees south, but which in all probability continue across the antarctic continent.

The expedition to King Edward VII. land, under the command of Lieutenant Prestud, has given excellent results. Scott's discoveries have been confirmed, and the survey of the Bay of Whales and of the Barrier dome by the Prestud party are of great interest.

A good geological collection from King Edward VII. and South Victoria land is being brought home.

The Fram arrived at the Bay of Whales on the 9th of January. She had been delayed by the "Roaring Forties" on account of the easterly winds.

On Jan. 16 the Japanese expedition arrived at the Bay of Whales and landed on the Barrier near our winter quarters. We left the Bay of Whales on Jan. 30. It was a long voyage, with contrary winds. All are well.

ARREST MAIL CARRIER.

Postal Inspectors Charge Him With Stealing Money From the Mails.

Trenton, N. J., March 9.—William P. Chattem, for many years a mail carrier here, was arrested by postal inspectors connected with the Philadelphia office, on the charge of stealing money from the mails.

Chattem, according to James T. Cortelyou, chief postal inspector in Philadelphia, was arrested through a decoy letter containing $3.50 in cash sent from Philadelphia to Trenton. The test was made, he said, after many complaints had been received of money being extracted from letters.

CITY TO BE DRY ON SUNDAYS

Gloucester City Saloon Keepers Must Expose Bars.

Gloucester City, N. J., March 9.—A resolution compelling saloon keepers to expose their bars on Sunday was passed by the council of this city.

The bishops' act directs that frosted glass and shades be removed from the windows, that no business may be carried on on Sunday.

Council voted for the transfer of the license of Harry Cofma, who was recently convicted of violating the law, to Frank McDade.

FINED FOR AIGRETTE SALE.

Trenton Department Store Convicted of Violating New Law.

Trenton, N. J., March 9.—The Goldberg department store was fined $300 by Justice of the Peace Naar for offering for sale and selling aigrettes in violation of the law passed at the last session of the legislature.

The firm pleaded non vult and paid the fine, with the understanding that it reserved the right to attack the constitutionality of the law forbidding the sale of plumage.

Gave More Than Milk.

"What're ye comin' home with your milk pail empty for?" demanded the farmer. "Didn't the old cow give anything?"

"Yes," replied the boy; "nine quarts and one kick."—Stray Stories.

CLEVELAND MANSE TO BE MEMORIAL

President's Birthplace Is Bought For Association.

HOUSE WILL BE RESTORED

Public Library Also to Be Erected on Sight, Toward Which Carnegie Will Contribute $15,000 Upon Its Completion—Memorial Service to Be Held March 17.

Caldwell, N. J., March 9.—The Presbyterian manse of the First Presbyterian church here, the birthplace of Grover Cleveland, has been purchased for the Cleveland Memorial association, which will hold it as a memorial to the former president. The purchase price was $20,000. Title to the property will pass next week.

Five thousand dollars has been contributed to the undertaking by the citizens of Caldwell. They promised to do this when the memorial association set out to raise a $50,000 fund. The full amount has now been raised, large portions of it coming from New York men engaged in the life insurance business.

On the evening of March 17, which is Sunday, a memorial service for Cleveland will be held in the Caldwell Presbyterian church. At this Dr. Finley, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Cleveland, will preside. President Hibben of Princeton will also be there, and it is hoped that Mrs. Cleveland may be able to come.

What remains from the association's fund after the Cleveland birthplace is paid for will be used partly to restore it and fit it up as a public memorial. But the larger part of the remaining fund will be spent in the erection of a town library to be known as the Cleveland Memorial library. This will be built of stone, on the same lot as the manse and near to it. The town of Caldwell will care for the old parsonage.

Andrew Carnegie some time ago promised that he would give $15,000 whenever the town built a library. This will be available when work on the new structure commences and will be added to the general fund.

The house in which Cleveland was born has been the manse of the First Presbyterian church of Caldwell for over three-quarters of a century. It was occupied for about a dozen years by Mr. Cleveland's father, then a Presbyterian minister. Mr. Cleveland was born there in 1837 and spent six years of his boyhood in that house before his father went to Buffalo to preach.

BOYS FIND BODY IN ICE.

Their Discovery Solves Disappearance of Belmar Paper Carrier.

Manasquan, N. J., March 9.—Ellwood Carse and Marvin King, schoolboys, discovered the body of Robert Davis, an old paper carrier of Belmar, frozen in the ice near Spring Lake. Their find clears the mystery of Davis' disappearance early in November.

The body probably has been imbedded in the ice all winter, and thousands of skaters probably moved about it. The boys were led to the body by a piece of the dead man's coat which protruded above the melting ice.

Coroner Bennett thinks the case one of suicide, as Davis has been in poor health.

VIOLATED ORDINANCE; FORFEITED HIS BAIL.

As a result of the determined effort on the part of the borough authorities to break up the habit of bicyclists riding on the sidewalks, three arrests were made yesterday, George Wilson, of Somerset street; John Smith, of Plainfield, and Nathan Warman, of New York. Wilson denied the charge when arraigned before Recorder Gano this morning and will be re-arraigned Monday morning. Smith put up $3 cash bail and did not appear. Recorder Gano declared the bail forfeited. Warman asked to have his hearing set down for Monday morning, which was granted after his appearance had been guaranteed.

GOOD MUSIC BY BOYS OF PENNINGTON SEMINARY

The musical clubs of the Pennington School for Boys gave a fine concert at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night, under the direction of Rev. Frank MacDaniel, headmaster. It is seldom that a preparatory school has such an excellent club of this kind and the boys from Pennington surprised everyone present with their musical ability. Especially noteworthy was the solo work of Harold J. Rhodes, who sang "Jean" and "Under the Rose," with "The Rosary" for an encore. Mrs. May D. Morgridge is director of the glee club and Miss Elizabeth T. Allen the accompanist. The program follows:

The Cavalier, Robinson, orchestra; Far Away in the South, Adams, glee club; Jean and Under the Rose, Harold J. Rhodes; Back to the Yankee Shore, quartet; Pink Lady Waltzes, orchestra; Drink to Me Only, glee club; Opera, quartet; Angel's Serenade, W. D. Robins; Little Brown Church, glee club; Amaranthus, orchestra; The Red Haired Girl and I Know Two Bright Eyes, William J. MacFarlane; Anvil Chorus from "Il Trovatore," and school song, glee club and orchestra.

During an intermission, Mr. MacDaniel made a short address, telling of the progress being made at Pennington and the prospects for the future.

Broken Wire Holds Trolley.

Trolley traffic was held up on East Fourth street opposite the telephone office, this morning by the breaking of a guard wire suspended above the trolley wire. It was nearly a half-hour before the cars resumed their regular schedule.

Mr. Fred Meeker, of Somerville, visited friends in Plainfield this week.

MARTINE EXPLAINS HIS VOTE AGAINST TREATIES

For One Thing, He Wouldn't Accept Any Agreement That Smacked of an Alliance With Great Britain.

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Mar. 11.—Senator Martine, who was one of three members of the Senate who voted to the last against the proposed arbitration treaties, the others being Senators Reed and Lorimer, today gave out a statement explaining why he had taken this attitude. He said in part:

"I claim that the present treaty now existing is all that is required or demanded by a very great majority of the people. Failure to have enacted the proposed treaty would in no wise jeopardize the interests of our country.

"There was and now is a very wide division of opinion among the most profound legal minds as to the meaning of trems in the treaty. 'Justiciable' and 'Claim of rights' were construed to mean widely different things, leaving the average man's mind in much doubt as to the wisdom o fadopting this treaty.

"The amendments, all of which I voted for, relieved it somewhat, but still I maintain the danger or national complications remain. This treaty or alliance was not initiated or demanded by the American people, but was the work and genius of British diplomacy. There is no doubt that the English government interpreted the proposed treaties as an alliance between the two governments, as was openly and bluntly stated to the English people by Sir Earl Grey.

"I would not knowingly vote for any measure that could be construed into an alliance with the British government."

HOLD NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD FOR ROBBERY OF EMPLOYER

Isaac Wallace, 19 years old was held for the grand jury in the city court today charged with stealing $24 from Abram Newmark, a West Third street grocer. He is alleged to have stolen into Newmark's room early yesterday morning and taken the money from Newmark's trousers. He was hired as a helper by the grocer last week and lived in the house. Saturday he was discharged.

Mrs. Newmark discovered the robbery as the youth hurried out of the room. She telephoned to police headquarters and Patrolman Baeder ran into Wallace as he hurried down Fourth street. The cop arrested the youth on suspicion and decided he had the right young man when he found $24 in his pocket.

FOWLER AS WITNESS IN THE MONEY PROBE

Washington, March 9.—Former Representative Charles N. Fowler, of New Jersey, has asked to be the first witness before the House banking and currency committee in the money trust investigation. He is an expert on financial legislation, and long served as head of the banking and currency committee. That he will give interesting testimony is not doubted, in view of his break with the old guard leaders in the House—especially Speaker Cannon—when he was chairman of the committee, and in view of the opposition that arose to his plans for banking and currency legislation.

Former Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw will probably be called and questioned about distribution of public deposits when he was in office. It has been charged that the National City Bank of New York was especially favored in those days.

MILNE'S STATEMENT ON MARTIN'S REPORT.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

In justice to former Clerk F. A. Martin I wish to state that there were no figures as submitted by the accountant changed by him in any way. He refused with my advice to publish an erroneous report along with his regular report. It was shown that he was right in doing so by a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Mayor and Council. I do not mean to infer by this that the Daily Press account of what was said was incorrect in any way.

NEARING THE DAWN OF MILLENIAL DAY

Signs of Christ's Coming All About, Says Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire.

OVERFLOWING CONGREGATION

Many Turn Away From Park Avenue Church, Unable to Find Seats, as Pastor Prepares to Deliver Second Special Sermon.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire preached the second in the series of special sermons on "The Lord's Coming," at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last evening, to a congregation that more than filled the church auditorium; it became necessary to open the Sunday-school room in order to accomodate the large numbers present. Many others, seeing no vacant seats, turned away.

Mr. Maguire's subject was "The Signs of His Coming," and he took his text from Matt. 24:3. The sermon was eloquent and powerfully interesting.

The Pharisees of old failed to discern the signs of the coming of Jesus to Bethlehem—His first coming, said the preacher, and even so now there are many who cannot distinguish the signs of the coming of Jesus to establish the Millennium, which is His second coming.

These signs, said Dr. Maguire, were of four distinct characters, and were discernible to one who studied the Bible and believed the Word of God: first, National Signs. There never had been a time in the history of the world when such stupendous preparations had been made for war. We were told that there "shall be wars and rumors of war," and these we had today. Take the question of the Jews, continued Dr. Maguire. God promised Israel the gold of those nations that offended them, and He was keeping His word. The Jewish bankers in Europe today control the financial policy of England. In Germany one-half of the rich population were Jews. In Russia 73 per cent. of all the movable property in the western provinces was owned by the Jews. One-half of the gold coin throughout the entire world today was in Jewish hands. God promised this race the gold of the Gentiles, and 82,000 Jews controlled the finances of France. In New York, the preacher continued, there were 35 Jewish banking houses, while 33 per cent. of all the jewelry business in that city was done by Jews. Two-thirds of the wealth of New York city was in Jewish hands.

The Jews are leaders also in intellectual power. God declared that in the last days this nation would rise to great prominence in the land. The press of our country was also in the hands of this nation. The four leading newspapers in the United States belonged to Jews. In the world of music the Jews were without rival.

Second, signs of Human Progress. Innumerable signs of this character foretold the coming of Jesus. Take the automobiles and airships, for instance; railways covered the earth, steamships tracked the sea, to say nothing of the newspapers and magazines of the twentieth century, astronomy, geology and chemistry.

Third, Moral Signs. There were cities that rivalled Sodom and Gomorrah said the preacher. In 17,000 jails were 1,000,000 criminals who were costing this country $1,500,000. Our population was increasing at the rate of 20 per cent, while the increase in crime was 33 1-3 per cent.

Fourth, Ecclesiastical Signs. Civilization was not Salvation. People with the telephone and telegraph at their command, were no nearer God. In the pulpits of today there was beautiful rhetoric, but little power. Behold the unrest in churches. Every dispensation had closed with a apostasy.

In view of these facts, asked Mr. Maguire, what should our attitude be? Live soberly, righteously and Godly in this present world; and thus be ready for the Coming.

MAN STRUCK BY ENGINE HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Carried 200 Feet on Pilot After Rig is Smashed, But Sustains Only Slight Injuries --Horse Also Unscathed.

Edgar Chappell, a machinist employed at the Quincy-Manchester-Sergeant shop, is alive and apparently well today after an experience Saturday night that few people survive. A rig he was driving over the Washington avenue crossing of the Lehigh Valley at New Market, was crashed into by a freight train travelling eighteen miles an hour. The horse was cut loose and Chappell, after getting sundry bumps on the head that put him to sleep, was deposited on the pilot beneath the front of the locomotive boiler while the wreck of his wagon was piled upon him in kindling wood fragments. In this maner he was carried 200 feet, almost to the Main street grade before the heavy train was brought to a stop.

When the crew found that Chappell was alive, the engine was cut loose and run to the New Market station. There the unconscious man was examined by Dr. W. J. Nelson, who afterward advised his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. He was conveyed to the institution by ambulance, about 8 o'clock. Several hours later he revived completely and insisted on being allowed to go home. As he had no broken bones or internal injuries as far as could be determined he was given the desired permit. Only a cut on the head and a few bruises are all he has to show for his hair-breadth escape.

Chappell, who is forty-two years old and lives on Brunswick avenue, just off West Seventh street, in Piscataway township, had been to New Market late in the afternoon for coal. He started for home about 7 o'clock and was halted at the crossing by the passage of an east-bound train. The noise it made drowned out the approach of the west-bround freight and he was directly on the track before he noticed it. The wagon was struck squarely in the center but strangely enough the horse cantered off unharmed.

Chappell is well known throughout the city. He has worked in various local machine shops and belongs to several fraternal organizations. He is a son-in-law of the late Jacob Tingley, who lived for many years on West Fourth street.

CAN'T CONFISCATE TICKET LOANED BY ITS OWNER

By a decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals Saturday at Trenton, damages awarded in the Morris Count Courts to Joseph Harris, a commuter, against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, are sustained and the court in effect holds that the loaning of a commutation ticket by its owner to another gives the railroad company no ground for retaining the ticket when it is again presented by its owner. Harris had suffered such confiscation.

The court contends that Harris had handed the conductor the ticket to be punched, and for no other purpose and that constructively the ticket was in the possession of Harris when the conductor decided to retain it.

LETSON RESIDENCE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Blaze Sweeps Attic Floor and Leaves $4,000 Bill in Its Trail.

FIREMEN DO GOOD WORK

In the Face of a Brisk Start and High Wind They Hold the Flames to the Floor Where They Break—Neighbors Remove Furniture.

Fire swept through the upper part of Frederick Letson's residence on East Seventh street, near Woodland avenue, late last night, leaving a heavy damage bill behind. Chief Doane, of the Fire Department, estimated the loss today at $1,500, but Mr. Letson said that it would cost at least $4,000 to restore things to the state they were in before the flames broke out.

The fire was discovered between 11:15 and 11:30 o'clock. It was going briskly then, in the room of Sophia Mazcieka, the Letsons' maid, where it is supposed to have started. What started it no one has been able to learn.

The heat and the smoke woke up Mr. Letson, whose room is directly under the attic chamber where the maid slept. He roused his wife and his two children and Sophia. The latter had slept peacefully through the crackling of the flames.

Mrs. Letson, the maid and the children dressed while Mr. Letson tried to call fire headquarters. He failed, but Edward Allen, a next door neighbor, who saw the fire from his room, rang up headquarters. So did C. E. S. Bellows and several other neighbors who could see the red flames dancing in the attic through the upper windows. Somebody pulled box 23.

The firemen let loose all the water that was on tap and they held the flames to the attic floor. It was a hard fire to fight, and the high wind was an ever-present menace. Every minute of two hours was needed to kill the flames completely. Neighbors helped carry furniture out during the fire and its attendant flood.

TROLLEYMAN'S LEG AMPUTATED ABOVE KNEE

Charles Weaver, aged 26 years, of Greenbrook road, employed as a conductor on the Netherwood trolley line, whose leg was fractured when he was run down by another car at Front and Somerset streets, underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday. The leg was amputated just above the knee.

At the time of the accident, Weaver was standing in front of his car, changing the trolley pole of the car for the return trip, when a Fourth street trolley in charge of Michael Flynn, ran up so close as to catch the victim between the two cars and fracture his leg. Flynn said that rain against the glass in the vestibule of his car obscured his vision so that he could not see Weaver.

TWO FINED AT BOROUGH POLICE COURT HEARING.

The police are endeavoring to break up the practice of bicyclists riding on the sidewalks now that the roads are more or less muddy. Lavere is the fourth offender arrested.

George McCawley was fined $2 by Recorder Gano for drunk and disorderly conduct Saturday night.

William Ashton, Jr., was placed under $200 bonds to pay his wife $5 each week for the support of herself and two children. Ashton deserted his family four months ago and until his arrest Saturday his whereabouts were unknown.

THE ORIGINAL CAST OF "BOUGHT AND PAID FOR"—AT THE PLAYHOUSE, NEW YORK

THESE WELL-KNOWN PLAYERS HAVE APPEARED TOGETHER TWO HUNDRED TIMES IN THE SAME DRAMA AND THEATRE.

The 200th New York performance of "Bought and Paid For" was given this afternoon at William A. Brady's Playhouse, the last seat in the theatre having been sold three weeks prior to the occasion, so that there was no room left for those who came late. This was the more striking for the fact, unusual at such times, that there were no souvenirs or other special features, and that the performance was given quite as though nothing out of the ordinary was going on.

In every particular the same cast appeared that had been seen in this extremely successful drama from the very first night, including Charles Richman, Julia Dean, Marie Nordstrom, Frank Craven, Dorothy Davies and Allen Atwell. This organization has been widely comended as one of the most perfectly assembled bodies of players ever observed upon the New York stage. In fact, if a single flaw exists in the interpretation of Mr. Broadhurst's play, it has not been called attention to in any of the hundreds of columns of newspaper criticism published in leading newspapers from end to end of the country.

Both Manager Brady and Author Broadhurst are proud of this company, for when "Bought and Paid For" was being made ready for production they held long and repeated consultations upon the special fitness of each player for the character under discussion, eliminating many first class actors and actresses before the final choice. The cast is not a long one, and for this reason it was more than ever desirable that there should be no imperfection in it. All the members have been re-engaged for next year, but throughout the present season at least, they will remain at the Playhouse.

The attention which this entertainment has concentrated in New York is indicated by the fact that although Lent is well under way the special Thursday matinees instituted long ago to absorb a part of the overflow are continued with no apparent intention of discontinuance. It is quite seldom that three afternoon performances a week are found profitable for any length of time during a single run, but they have been going on month after month at Mr. Brady's theatre.

"Bought and Paid For" has been handled with a sagacity wholly uncommon in these days of quick managerial profits. Instead of seizing upon the first response of the public by forming several companies to spread the play over the country, Mr. Brady decided to take the opposite course and form none at all. The immediate result is that hundreds—perhaps thousands—of visitors from distant cities have been attracted to his theatre who ordinarily might have waited for the comedy drama to be brought to their doors. What they have said about it after reaching home may be of illuminative value in the long run.

RICH WOMAN IS FINED AS THIEF

Policeman Caught Her Stealing Bread.

CHASED HER INTO ALLEY

But When It Came to Paying the Fine She Pulled Out Roll of Bills Many Times the Size of the Assessment Levied by the Court.

Trenton, N. J., March 11.—Mrs. Mary Johnson, rich and respected, was fined $25 for stealing bread and buns from the store of John Farley in a building she owned clear of incumbrances.

The woman was captured at 5 o'clock a. m. by a policeman who had been looking for the thieves who have stolen such bread for mornings past. Under oath the policeman said that recently he noticed Mrs. Johnson looking in the doorway of the Farley store. She saw the policeman and, remarking that the store was not then open, went home. The next morning he watched, but had to go down the street to report to the station box, and while he was gone the grocer opened his store and found his bread gone.

The patrolman again saw the woman try the store door, peer in and then cautiously look all around. The cop was in hiding. He said the woman then gathered up the bread and buns and ran down the street. She heard the policeman coming after and ran into an alley. When caught she offered him $5, saying she would never do such a thing again. He took her to the station house, and when she was fined $25 she pulled out a roll "big enough to choke a cow" and said she could have paid a fine as many times great as there were dollars in the fine.

TUGBOAT ADRIFT 48 HOURS.

Hercules Was Picked Up Off Sea Girt by Revenue Cutter Mohawk.

Sea Girt, N. J., March 11.—The seagoing tugboat Hercules, with Captain McElwee of Clifton and a crew of seven men on board, was picked up off here in a helpless condition by the revenue cutter Mohawk and towed to Stapleton, N. Y.

The Hercules left Stapleton Thursday morning in search of sailing vessels bound for this port. On Friday morning, while cruising between Sea Girt and Atlantic City, she broke her shaft, and the engineer was unable to repair it.

The tug drifted helplessly until Saturday afternoon, when the captain of the oil tank steamer Fecone, bound for Bayonne, sighted her signal of distress and, running alongside, offered to tow her to port. Captain McElwee declined the offer, but asked that the steamer notify a revenue cutter of her predicament.

A wireless message was sent to the Mohawk, which put out to sea Saturday night and picked up the tug Sunday morning.

POLICE PREVENT A RIOT.

With the Presence of Cops and Others Services Went on Nicely In Church.

Passaic, N. J., March 11.—The presence of a dozen policemen and thirty specially deputized members at St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church here prevented a riot by 2,000 communicants opposed to the Rev. Julius Manteuffel, rector, appointed by Bishop O'Connor against their wish.

Assistant priests conducted masses attended by 8,000. Father Manteuffel received a cordial welcome at Lodi, where he preached in the Polish orphanage.

Padlocks on the doors, together with an injunction by Vice Chancellor Stevenson closing the edifice until the members agree on a minister, prevented services at the North Side Christian Reform church.

Vandals entered the First Methodist Episcopal church Saturday, tampered with the organ and turned on the water, which flooded the basement.

Halts Clayton's Electrocution.

Freehold, N. J., March 11.—Charles D. Clayton, who was convicted at Freehold last month of murdering Policeman Charles S. Lippincott at Asbury Park Dec. 10 last and who was to have been electrocuted at the state prison at Trenton today, will not be put to death at that time, as Justice Voorhees, in supreme court, granted an application staying the execution of the death sentence and to show cause why a new trial should not be granted Clayton.

Heart Disease Killed Sailor.

Rutherford, N. J., March 11.—County Physician S. E. Armstrong investigated the death of George Rutter, a sailor of the battleship Florida, who was found dead in bed in the "Y" hotel at East Rutherford, and decided that he had died of heart disease. Rutter's home was in East Rutherford. He was on furlough and had been drinking heavily.

Found Unconscious in Icy Water.

Keyport, N. J., March 11.—Falling through the ice piled along shore as he tried to release his boat, George Pope, a fisherman, was stunned and unable to aid himself and was found unconscious in the icy water by John Howard. His recovery is doubtful.

MORE THAN CITY'S VOTE

tants are all anxious and eagerly at work, and that their friends and supporters are also greatly interested in the outcome of Saturday's developments is shown by the way in which they exercised the right of suffrage through the clipped coupons and subscription ballot all during the past week; and this desirable condition will doubtless continue up to the closing hour.

Saturday's vote of more than 50,000 was next to the largest vote cast in any one day so far, and was distributed among some thirty candidates, Miss Teresa McGinley forging to the front and now leading for the diamond ring. The daily showing of the district leaders for the special period prizes reflect the great amount of work being done by the friends of the young women contestants, as well as by the candidates themselves; and if the voting to date can be taken as a criterion, there will be a very heavy vote up to 10:30 o'clock Saturday evening, March 16, at which time all ballots, both from clipped coupons and paid for subscriptions must be deposited in the ballot box to count in this special offer.

Do you know that it is still possible for any candidate in this contest to win? Have you estimated the number of votes that are in the field that can be secured? Do you intend voting for your favorite candidate and assist her to win the race? You are interested, of course, but are you actively engaged in the way that will make your candidate successful? Do you know that while the Daily Press goes into many hundreds of homes there are many others who with a little effort can be enrolled as new subscribers?

There are quite a number of the surrounding towns who have no active contestants, that would yield a harvest of votes for energetic candidates, and right here it is to be noted, that there are still splendid opportunities in District No. 5 for some energetic young women to get busy and win that trip.

Candidates who have already secured subscription payments for six months from their old or new subscribers who may be able to get second payments from them extending the date of their subscriptions, will thereby obtain a large vote, or enough to make the equivalent of the total payment, just as though it had been paid in the first place. For example, a six months' new subscription for the Daily Press at $2.50 got 800 votes, and the second six months from the same person will get 1,200 votes which will make 2,000 votes issued for the year.

In sending in such subscriptions candidates must plainly mark them "second payment" or "extension" on the subscriptions blank. Here's a chance to run up a large total by the closing of the special period.

MADERISTAS IN PARADE.

Two Thousand March to Palace and Cheer President Madero.

City of Mexico, March 11.—Two thousand men, women and boys, mostly of the lower classes, took part in a demonstration in behalf of the government. They marched in a procession and carried banners bearing the inscription: "We give a vote of confidence and aid to the constitutional government. Our strength lies in peace, and peace is the soul of the republic and a live supreme government."

There were many "vivas" from the marchers, but none from the populace. This is no positive indication of feeling, however, as the Mexicans are never enthusiastic. The paraders marched to the palace, where cheers were given for President Madero.

Plainfield, N. J., March 11, 1912.

In these days of monopoly in telephone service, comment made by the Newark Sunday Call, yesterday, is of interest to the people of the whole State.

"The telephone company should be asked by somebody who knows," says the Call, "to provide a better system than exists at present for defining whether one who calls out of town is spending twice the money he thinks he is. When the bills come in, it is discovered that the call to Brooklyn or South Orange, is just double what the caller supposed was to be charged. Presumably, he talked twice as long as is provided by the rules; but he never knew. In former days, there was an interruption by the operator, at the proper moment; but this plan has been abandoned for numerous reasons, all good, no doubt, yet it is rather hard to be soaked so sadly for double-time calls long days after the reasons therefor have been forgotten. We do not suggest a remedy. It is the privilege of the public to kick, and to let the other fellow tell how to stop the kicking. It is to be said for the telephone folk that they show great politeness these days, often under considerable provocation."

It is not only hard to be "soaked so sadly for double-time calls," but it is doubly hard to be soaked as we are in Plainfield in the local rates. We have yet to learn of a section of the country where the Bell system has competition where such high rates are charged as is the case here. In fact there are many places in this State where the company today gives unlimited service at a much less rat than is the rule in Plainfield and other North Jersey cities. Some day the public utility commission will get after this monopolistic corporation, and when that day does come the reports of the investigation will make mighty interesting reading. Perhaps, too, the rates will be brought down to a figure that is really fair, even considering the splendid service rendered.

The adminstrative board of the School of Journalism, which will be conducted as a department of Columbia University by the will of its founder, the late Joseph Pulitzer, has started off well by selecting one of the most experienced and ablest newspapermen in the country as director. Dr. Talcott Williams, an editor of the Philadelphia Press, is the man to whom this distinguished honor has come. Since his graduation from Amherst College, he has received many honorary degress from no less than eight universities and colleges, not to mention many other high honors and marks of distinction bestoyed upon him in other ways.

Dr. Williams began his real newspaper work as a reporter for the World and later was the Sun correspondent at Washington. Before going to the Philadelphia Press, he was an editorial writer on the Springfield Republican, one of the most widely quoted American journals. He is active in leading societies of art, science, history, civics and archeology.

Dr. John W. Cunliffe, head of the department of English at the University of Wisconsin, will be Dr. Williams' chief assistant. He too is a practical newspaperman, having begun his work as a reporter when but seventeen years of age. He was wise enough to appreciate the value of a college education at the universities of London and Manchester. Removing to Canada he attached himself to the Montreal Gazette and also served as a professor in English at McGill University.

There is one publication that makes an annual appearance in Trenton and which probably has no equal in its class as a complete book of reference. Fitzgerald's Legislative Manual is indispensable to the public man and to newspaper men throughout the State, and so far as detail is concerned we doubt whether another State, or the National Government, has so thorough a volume to which to refer. Containing, as it does, the answer to any question about New Jersey which might arise, the book this year is larger and better than ever. It has been published for nearly four decades by Thomas F. Fitzgerald, undoubtedly the best posted of the many veteran newspaper men at the capital. Although he long ago passed the stage where the labor was necessary to him from a financial standpoint, he takes just pride in adding from year to year to these valuable editions of the contemporary history of the State. Should he decide to discontinue the work, and allow it to fall upon others, it will be a hard task to find as capable a man to carry it on.

An unusually large percentage of Old Nassau's graduates become lawyers according to statistics just made public. The figures presented as to the occupation of the alumni are gathered from fifteen of the twenty-six classes, from 1884 to 1909. From the records it is learned that 1,519 went into business, while 674 became barristers. Engineering called 389 and medicine attracted 288. Two hundred and eighty-one entered the ministry; 260 became pedagogues. Ninety-seven went into journalism. During recent years the percentage entering the legal profession as well as the ministry has materially decreased. The business career is growing more popular every day among college men as is shown by figures compiled at Princeton.

The Supreme Court has disbarred a Camden lawyer whose offense consisted of taking a fee from a client and failing to file the papers in a case. He had been caught at shyster practice on more than one occasion and the court therefore was not inclined to show him any leniency. The Trenton Times in commenting favorably on the matter remarks: "It is said that not a few attorneys follow the same practice and the disbarment of the Camden man should have a good effect."

If the Common Council would give a hundredth part of the time it has devoted to the water problem to a consideration of the garbage disposal question, that body would receive the hearty thanks of the taxpayers.

President Taft seems to be finding it necessary to do as much explaining as has fallen to the lot of the contributing editor of the Outlook's staff.

MRS. MACKAY LINES UP.

Former Suffrage Worker, Who Withdrew, Is Back In Ranks.

New York, March 11.—Mrs. Clarence Mackay, who some time ago withdrew from active work in the "votes for women" cause, has announced that she has consented to return. She will preside at a mass meeting to be held in Carnegie hall on March 29 under the auspices of the Equal Franchise society, of which she is the founder, was the first president and is now director.

MOTHER LEAPS TO DEATH WITH BABY.

Crazed With Grief, She Jumped From Housetop.

New York, March 11.—Grief because she had been forced to stop nursing her baby, a physician having ordered artificial food, so worried Mrs. Rose Strauss that she took the three-months-old child in her arms and, it is believed, flung herself with him from the roof of a tenement house on East Ninety-fifth street. The sound of their bodies striking the stone flagged yard in the rear, after the six story fall, attracted the attention of the neighbors. Running out, they found the mother, still breathing faintly, lying some distance from the house. About three feet away lay the baby, dead. The woman died a few minutes later.

Mrs. Strauss' death leaves her four small children motherless. When Mrs. Strauss fell or leaped to her death from the roof the four older children were at play in the street. Her husband, Simon, was asleep and knew nothing of his double bereavement until neighbors broke into the little tenement on the third floor to tell him of it.

A Malediction on Mathewson.

Soon after the baseball season opened last spring Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants received a letter from a gentleman in a small town reading after this fashion:

"Dear Sir—Will you kindly give me some advice right away? With the bases full and Hi Hecker, the demon batsman, at the bat, I contend that I ought to throw him my slow out drop. My manager insists that I ought to give him my high in up. This emergency is liable to arise at any moment and I would like to hear from you right awny."

Mathewson forgot to answer, and three weeks later he received this letter from his correspondent:

"Sir—I asked you an important question like a gentleman, and I expected that you would answer it like a gentleman, but you did not do so, and what is the result? With three men on bases I threw Hi Hecker my high in up, and he knocked the ball over the fence. I hope the next time you face Joe Tinker he bats you out of the box."—Saturday Evening Post.

Life's Triumphs.

Each life has one grand day. The clouds may lie
Along the hills and storm winds fiercely blow,
The great red sunshine like a thing of woe
And death's sad skeleton stalk grimly by,
Yet none of these, no matter how they try,
Can shroud the perfect triumph we shall know
Or dim the glory that some star will show,
Set far away in depths of purple sky.
Sweet love may bring to us this day supreme,
Or it may thrill our souls through art or song
Or meet us where red battle surges foam;
Hope's stranded wrecks the barren coasts may gleam,
And weeks and months dash by a somber throng,
But some time, somewhere, it will surely come.

—T. S. Collier.

Just Had To.

John M. Thomas, president of Middlebury college, says that a year or two ago a certain town employed a trained superintendent, a college man who knew what a school ought to be, to exercise supervision over all the schools of that town. It was the first time some of those schools had ever been visited in an official capacity by a salaried administrative officer. In one school a little toddler was found studying percentage, learning it by heart.

"You should not teach him percentage," the superintendent said. "He does not know how to add and subtract."

"But I've got to," the teacher answered. "The front part of the 'rithmetic is torn out."

Fooled the Doctor.

"I remember one time," said a comedian, "when a medicine show came to our town, and father went to the performance. As you probably know, it used to be the custom of the medicine 'doctor' to try to make the audience think he was merely selling his medicine to advertise it. Such was the case the night my father attended the show. The 'doctor' when he began telling of the virtues of the cure-all declared that since he was merely advertising the medicine, he would positively sell but one bottle to a person. It would be impossible to buy more than one. That night my father reached home very much elated. He came into the sitting room and pulled a bottle of the medicine out of each side pocket of his coat.

"'I got ahead of the durned sinner!' he said.

"'What's that?' I asked.

"'Why, that feller said he wouldn't sell us more than one bottle apiece, but (here he shook his head and smiled) I fooled him. I got two.'

"'How did you do it?' I asked.

"'Why, durn him,' replied my father, 'I bought one. Then I went outside, took off my coat an' come back in an' bought another. The blamed chump never knowed me.'"

The French and English of It.

That fine artist, Legros, had always declined to learn English, but he took an inconsistent step, for he had himself naturalized as an Englishman. The incident gave occasion to one of his best replies, and, though an austere painter, he was a jovial wit. "Well, Legros, how do you feel?" asked a friend on the morrow of the naturalization. "Why, particularly happy," Legros answered. "Yesterday I had lost the battle of Waterloo and today I have won it."

A Surprise For the Weather Prophet.

A century and a half ago people used to depend upon the weather prognostications in Partridge's Almanac. One day Partridge himself put up at a country inn for dinner. The hostler advised him to stay the night, as it would certainly rain. "Nonsense!" said Partridge, and proceeded on his way. Soon a heavy shower fell, which so impressed the traveler that he instantly rode back to the inn and offered the hostler half a crown if he would tell him how he knew the rain was imminent.

"Well," replied the man, with a grin, pocketing the coin, "the truth is we have Partridge's Almanac here, and he's such a liar that whenever he promises a fine day we know it will be foul. Today is set down as fine."

The weather prophet, like many other weather prophets before and since, passed on discomfited.—Strand Magazine.

ALWAYS IN ORDER.

The Subject That Roused the Interest of Every Woman Present.

Elizabeth Jordan, who recently finished a play the second act of which is laid in a beauty parlor, was talking the other day about women beauty parlors and conversation.

"There are a good many things that a good many women are interested in," she said. "But there is one subject of conversation that will draw every woman's attention. She'll forget everything else in the world to discuss it. To illustrate my conviction I'll tell you a story. This actually happened:

"One day last winter I was at a dinner where there were fifteen or twenty other women guests. When we went to the drawing room after dinner, leaving the men to their cigars, it happened that all the women but myself and one other got into one corner of the room, and I and one fellow guest were left alone. I've forgotten why, but that's the way it was.

"We were talking of a subject in which we were both interested, and we were having a beautiful time. But it occurred to the hostess that one or both of us might feel neglected. So she called out from the other side of the room:

"'Why, Miss Jordan, what are you and Mrs. Blank talking about all by yourselves?'

"'Mrs. Blank is telling me how she lost ten pounds,' I replied.

"Well, you ought to have seen the center rush! Every woman in the room made a wild dash for our corner, and all crowded around us. The eyes of every woman were all alight with eagerness. And from every woman's throat burst the one impassioned word:

"'How?'"—New York Times.

Hard on the Other One.

One hot summer day a Kentucky beau stopped at a florist's to order a box of flowers sent to his lady love. At the same time he also purchased a design for the funeral of a friend. On the card for his girl's box he wrote, "Hoping these may help you bear the heat." The other card bore the one word, "Sympathy."

Very soon the girl telephoned. "Thank you so much for the flowers, but why did you write 'Sympathy' on the card?"

There was no word from the other card.

Fellows In Distress.

An efficient woman principal of a New York grammar school, though devoid of good looks and bearing the marks of long service in her profession, still retains the charm of a delightful frankness. One day while watching the pupils pass out of her building two by two, as usual, she noticed one boy marching alone, with his arm to his eyes, sobbing tumultuously. In answer to her solicitous inquiry as she drew him from the line the little fellow wailed, "I—I haven't g-got no pardner!"

The principal extended a prompt and sympathetic hand. "Shake, dear boy, shake!" she invited. "I haven't, either."

A Safe Place.

It was at a dinner party. The bright young man sat next to the young woman with beautiful arms and neck. The fair companion suddenly exhibited signs of nervousness. Two of his best jokes passed unnoticed. Her face wore a look of alarm. "I am in misery," she said. "In misery?" echoed the man. "Yes. I was vaccinated the other day, and it has taken beautifully. I can almost scream, it hurts so." The young man looked at the beautiful arms. No sign there. "Why, where were you vaccinated?" he asked surprisedly. "In Boston," she said, the smile chasing away the look of pain.

A Mean Trick to Save Himself.

Not so long ago a knowledge of Latin was essential to an orator, and long quotations from the Roman poets embellished every debate. James Payn, the novelist, was once at a dinner party where a learned, distinguished and very dignified statesman insisted on quoting Greek. The lady sitting next to Payn asked for a translation. Payn's Greek was rusty. Accordingly he assumed a blush and hinted to the lady that it was scarcely fit for her ear.

"Good heavens," she exclaimed, "you don't mean to say"—

"Please don't ask any more," murmured Payn. "I really could not tell you."

FRESH FRUIT SHERBETS.

SHERBETS make nice desserts for the special luncheon or dinner. They look so pretty and taste so delicious that a sherbet is just the dainty to finish off the Easter feast.

Some persons boil the sugar and water to a sirup and then add the fruit juice. A tablespoonful of gelatin soaked and dissolved adds to the smoothness of the sherbet. So does the white of an egg added after the sherbet has been frozen.

Sherbets may be made with the juices from canned fruits or with fruit sirup.

With Timely Fruits.

Cranberry Sherbet.—Wash and pick a quart of cranberries. Put into a saucepan with three cupfuls of boiling water and boil five minutes. Mash and boil ten minutes without a cover, then add three cupfuls of sugar and boil five minutes.

Strain, cool and freeze the same as ice cream. After churning ten minutes add the whites of two eggs beaten until stiff, then churn five minutes.

Pack the freezer with alternate layers of ice and salt, two parts ice and one part salt. Serve in ice cream or sherbet cups.

Pineapple Sherbet.—Take a pint of grated pineapple, a pint of sugar, one and a half pints of water. Boil sugar and water until sugar is thoroughly dissolved.

When cool add grated pineapple and juice of two lemons; freeze fast. When partly frozen add beaten whites of two eggs, mix thoroughly, take out dasher, pack and let stand for an hour or more.

Freezing fast makes it light.

With Grapes and Flowers.

Grape Sherbet.—This sherbet may be made with malaga grapes or, better still, with grape juice. Boil two cupfuls of sugar with the grated rind of one lemon and two cupfuls water for five minutes. Soak half a tablespoonful of gelatin in a fourth of a cupful of cold water and pour over it the boiling sugar.

Add a cupful of grape juice and the juice of two lemons. Strain and freeze, adding the beaten white of an egg when the mixture is of the consistency of mush.

Violet Sherbet.—Boil together for five minutes a pound of sugar and a pint of water; add the juice of two lemons. When icy cold add a pint of grape juice and freeze. When frozen stir in a meringue made from the white of an egg and a tablespoonful of powdered sugar and repack. Let this stand one or two hours. Serve in punch or wine glasses garnished with fresh violets or with candied violets.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Spring Tailored Coats Are Very Short In Paris.

Paris coats in tailored suits are short, very short. Some of them barely come below the waist, or if they do hang below in the back they are rounded up sharply in the front in directoire style, meeting only at the bust line. Over here the coats are a trifle longer as a general rule, but still hover between the waist and the widest part of the hips. A good average length is twenty-four inches.

Girls are wearing combination undergarments as much as their mothers, and the cut shows a most desirable new corset cover and closed drawers.

FAIRY LIGHTS FOR DECORATIONS

Daintily Tinted Fairy Lamps to Take the Place of the Unreliable Wax Candles For Social Affairs of the Season.

WHEN such pretty things as the lamps illustrated here can be bought for table decoration the day of candles seems doomed. Quaint and old fashioned, the chief use of candles seems to be in exploiting the silver candelabra of certain opulent families. Those of us who have no heirlooms of this sort and can afford none may now make a fad of modernity and swear by the decorative electric lamp.

Nowadays the convenience of electric light is so generally acknowledged and its use so widespread that the electric table lamp is generally available. Such lamps are quite inexpensive, and their use need not be restricted to high affairs of state.

The lights are adjusted singly or in clusters, and where several lights are adjusted on one lamp it makes an excellent centerpiece. When the lamp supports only a single burner several may be used and should be scattered about the table.

Combined with green foliage a group of these lamps will add to the beauty of the decorations for an afternoon or evening social affair.

The electric lamp may be objected to because the glare of the light brings out all the lines in the face. However through the colored glass the light is tinted so that its unpleasant effects are modified.

In selecting cut flowers for table decorations where electric lights are to be used consideration should be given to the action of electric light on color.

Blues and violets are uncertain, for under particular qualities of electric light they become dulled. Some shades of purple are safe, and lilac color is usually intensified if anything.

White, red and yellow are the safest of all both for daylight and artificial lighting, and, moreover, they are becoming to a guest of any complexion or costume.

Two lamps that give a good idea of the style used for decorative purposes are illustrated here. One represents a miniature apple tree, the globes being colored and shaped to look like apples. The stems and leaves are of metal. The plant is imbedded in a metal bowl in which is the wire that connects with the electric supply.

The single lamp shown here represents a spray from a rosebush, the lamp springing from the center of a monster rose and being tinted pink.

Oranges, huge bunches of grapes, lemons and many flowers are used in designing the lamps.

While an electrical battery can be bought and placed under the table when the lamps are used, it is more convenient to attach them directly to the household supply of electrical light.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

THE KITCHEN DRESSER.

It Was Originally a Bench on Which Meat Was Dressed.

Dr. Johnson tells us that the kitchen dresser was a bench in the kitchen on which meat was dressed or prepared for table and gives the following lines in support of his view:

'Tis burnt, and so is all the meat.
What dogs are these? Where is the rascal cook?
How durst you, villains, bring it from the dresser
And serve thus to me that love it not?
—Shakespeare.

A maple dresser in her hall she had,
On which full many a slender meal she made.
—Dryden.

Wright in his "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages" says: "One of the great objects of ostentation in a rich man's house was his plate, which at dinner time be brought forth and spread on the table in sight of his guests. Afterward to exhibit the plate to more advantage the table was made with shelves or steps, on which the different articles could be arranged in rows, one above another. It was called in French, or Anglo-Norman, a dressoir, because on it the different articles were dressed or arranged.'

It is this to which the modern poet refers:

The pewter plates on the dresser
Caught and reflected the flame as shields of armies the sunshine.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

The Way Two Englishmen Captured Four Hundred Prisoners.

Toward the close of the peninsular war 400 prisoners were captured by John Colborne, afterward Field Marshal Lord Seaton. Colborne, who was wounded at Talavera, had been disabled for some time, but in 1813 he was in active service again, and when Wellington's army crossed the frontier into France he performed what was indeed the most amazing feat of his career.

When riding, with no comrade but the famous Sir Henry Smith, separated from his column, he saw 400 French soldiers passing along a ravine below him. "The only way was to put a good face on the matter," he wrote. "So I went up to them, desiring them to surrender. The officer, thinking, of course, the column was behind me, surrendered his sword, saying theatrically, 'Je vous rends cette epee, qui a bien fait son devoir.' (I surrender this sword, which has done its duty well.) The 400 followed his example."

Sir Henry Smith used to declare that he had never seen such cool presence of mind as Colborne displayed on this occasion.—London Spectator.

Don't Mutilate Your Coins.

It is a crime to mutilate or deface gold or silver coins, and if you were to ask a jeweler even to punch a hole in a $5 gold piece so that you could carry it on your watch chain you probably would be told to go about your business. Yet strangely enough if you were to mutilate a gold piece until it had lost all resemblance to a coin you probably would not be punished. What the government aims at is to prevent the impairment of the value of its gold and silver tokens by plugging, drilling, "sweating" and other processes. It is unlawful to cut even a monogram on either a gold or silver coin.—New York Mail.

At the Sign of Suspended Absalom.

M. Camille Flammarion mentions that on the boulevard near the Port St. Denis there used to be a wigmaker's shop which had for its sign a large picture showing Absalom hanging by his hair from a branch and pierced through with Joab's spear, and underneath was a quatrain which may be translated:

O passerby, see the woeful rig
Of Absalom hung by the nape
Of his neck! if he'd worn a wig
He'd have avoided this terrible scrape.
—Paris Liberte.

CAN TWO BOXMEN WIN A PENNANT?

Alexander and Chalmers, Phillies' Star Pitchers, Say Yes.

MADE UNIQUE PROPOSITION

If Each Should Win Enough Games to Equal a Third of Those Won by Champions, He Will Receive a Bonus.

Can the combined efforts of two pitchers win a major league pennant? That question will be answered this year in the struggle of the scrappy Philadelphia aggregation commanded by "Red" Dooin. Whereby hangs a tale peculiar to itself in a pastime of peculiarities.

A short time ago Horace Fogel, president of the Phillies, received a letter from Grover Cleveland Alexander, his sensational young pitcher, who won twenty-eight games for the sadly abused and sorely afflicted Phillies in 1911. "Alexander the Great" had been satisfied with the terms of his contract, but he opined that he would be able this year to better his brilliant record of the past season. He submitted a rather unique proposition. He agreed to sign at the specified terms, but demanded a bonus if he should win as many games as would equal a third of the victories that fall to the 1912 champions of the National league.

ALEXANDER.

Fogel immediately accepted the offer, and a contract to that effect was drafted and signed. There happens to be on the Quaker pay roll another young tosser of almost equal promise to that of Grover Alexander. George Chalmers is his name. He heard of Alexander's bargain and almost broke his neck in securing for himself the same terms. Chalmers' record last season was exceptionally brilliant, but did not match the performance of his young rival.

Philadelphia dopesters are now figuring out how many games either of these young men will have to win to secure the bonus. Opinion varies from thirty-three to thirty-five. In an ordinary race a hundred victories would not necessarily mean a winning margin. In a race like that of the past season in the National league they would be more than sufficient. That depends, of course, on how the league is balanced. In a tight drive, where three or four teams are in a hunt all the time, a hundred victories will pretty nearly land the gonfalon every time.

CHALMERS.

On an average 105 games should be synonymous with world's series spoils, in which case each of the two Phillie youngsters would have to annex thirty-five triumphs.

It's a hard task, but not an unusual one. Ed Walsh of the White Sox might easily fill the contract if hooked up with such an aggregation as that of Charlie Dooin. The task would not be beyond the powers of Christy Mathewson or of Jack Chesbro when the spit ball flinger was in his prime. Anyhow, Fogel has the best of the three cornered bargain. He stands to lose nothing and to gain all. If two of his pitchers can stow away seventy games between them and the rest of the bunch fail to annex the extra thirty-five he should take 'em all out and shoot 'em. If one tosser nails thirty-five and all the rest of the bunch slip up on the required seventy the same treatment should be in order for the "goats."

PLAYERS' TALES OF WINTER

Jack McInnes, the youth who plays the first bag for the Athletics, and "Chief Bender, the greatest of gatling guns," were discussing the coldness of the recent winter. Bender held that his home in Minnesota was the frigid spot of all America and McInnes contended that the Atlantic Ocean breathed on his town, Gloucester, Mass., and spoke language which only thawed and was heard the following spring.

"Jack, you haven't any idea how cold it is out in my country. Say, now, across my chewing gum, I have seen it that cold that the telegraphic wires froze. The operators would keep on ticking and the lines would get so full of messages that they would sag and break from the weight," said the prince of pitchers, Charles Albert Bender.

"That's some cold, Chief," answered McInnes. "You almost had me. It's that cold in Gloucester, Mass., that when I looked at the thermometer it was lower than Cy Morgan's batting average."

"Son," responded Bender, "you win, must be terrible up there."

RATTLING THE SKELETON

The Juniors Open the Season.

A picked nine of young ballplayers of both sides of the brook played a match with the Y. M. C. A. Jrs., yesterday afternoon on the Somerset street grounds and were defeated by a 11 to 9 score.

The game closed, as agreed, at the end of five innings just as the picked nine, which had substituted a new pitcher, was creeping up. There were many individual plays of merit, and young Wann deserves credit for pitching a good game.

The lineups: Y. M. C. A. Juniors—Brett, Wann, Doane, Stewart, Smith, Wadsworth, Jenkins, Dunshee and Zinn. Picked nine—D. Bodine, B. Bodine, Trust, L. Townley, Willett, Obitz, Smith, McLoughlin and W. Townley. (Daily Press, Saturday, April 28, 1888).

SWIMMERS MUST TAKE BRACE TO WIN HONORS.

American watermen will have to take a brace very soon if they want to carry honors in the Olympic games of 1912. There has been no evidence so far this season of the improvement anticipated, and the heralded record breakers have failed signally to materialize.

Nerich, Frizell, Reilly, Goodwin and others who were expected to eclipse completely their last year's marks have been unable even to equal them, and their showing has proved a great disappointment.

THE GINGER JAR

Fingers are handy things, but in the way sometimes in a game.

McGraw has banned cigarettes in the Marlin camp and so far as is known none of the recruits have had the makin's.

It is said that the prizes to be distributed at the Boston Dog show next month total $9,000 worth.

John Paul Jones, Putnam, Snyder and Finch, of Cornell, is a quartet of cinder pathers that will likely uphold the Ithaca college colors this year.

Baseball, horseracing and in fact all kinds of big sports in New York State is likely to be governed by a commission the same as boxing if the views of some members of the Legislature are carried out.

The bachelor girl says that "home" is that sacred spot where a woman wears out her old clothes and a man wears off his grouches and headaches. The manager who sends the rookie back says it is the place he (the manager) is pictured like Simon Legree.

Jack Prince, who has built more than 25 bicycle tracks in the prominent cities of this country, will build his latest in Baltimore.

If a rookie succeeds in the game it is on account of his wonderful ability; if he fails it is because he never got a chance.

There is no sure cure for the baseball fever, the wonderful progress of medical science to the contrary notwithstanding.

The pugilist never puts his opponent to sleep with a lullaby.

There are many who believe that a new champion will be proclaimed when Joe Rivers boxes Ad Wolgast for the title on July 4.

There are two things that will make a mans head go round—a pretty woman and a home run clout.

It's easy to find fault when you're looking for trouble.

And easy to fan when you try for a double.

After John Franklin Baker had lammed four balls over the fence in practice, every Texan present wanted to know, "Who all am that man?"

NEWARK TO GET BERGEN, BROOKLYN'S VETERAN CATCHER

Bill Bergen, who has been catcher for the Brooklyn Superbas for eleven years, is doomed to the minors, as waivers have been granted by other clubs in the National League. In all probability he will play with the Newark Club, of the International League.

With Edwin, Phelps, Miller and Higgins in line Bill Dahlen believes he has a splendid catching corps. Charley Ebbets has told Dahlen that he will let Bergen go to a minor league club, and, if Toronto is agreeable, the veteran will be turned over to Newark. The Maple Leafs have a working agreement with Brooklyn, and have first choice on all players that Ebbets decides to send to the minors.

NEW JERSEY MAY GET NATIONAL MATCHES

To determine whether or not it is feasible to have the matches of the National Rifle Association decided at Sea Girt next summer a meeting of General Bird W. Spencer, president of the New Jersey State Rifle Association, the adjutant-general of the State and Governor Wilson, will be held in Trenton tomorrow. New Jersey, it is said, can have the meet, but there is a little matter of $9,000 involved. It is to consider whether New Jersey will raise this amount that the conference has been called. Personally, General Spencer would like to see the national matches at Sea Girt, but he does not feel that the New Jersey Association should be obliged to pay the $9,000, which would be required for the services of range officers, markers and scorers.

It was intended at first to have the meet on the army ranges at Sparta, Wis., but it has been learned that they will not be ready in time for the proposed shoot. Camp Perry, in Ohio, where the meet was held for several years, offered to waive any right it might have for the national matches in favor of New Jersey. General Spencer was informed this week that New Jersey could have the matches, "provided it furnishes the markers, scorers and range officers." The general figured that nothing less than $9,000 would be needed for this purpose.

If the meet is held at Sea Girt probably thirty-five States will be represented, in addition to the Army and Navy.

MURPHY GIVEN DECISION IN BOUT WITH ATTELL.

Tommy Murphy was given the decision over Abe Attell after their twenty round battle at Daly City, Cal., Saturday afternoon, by referee Welch. The bout was bloody throughout and Attell, who was decisively beaten, presented a sorry figure as he tottered to his dressing room after the fight.

Murphy had the majority of the rounds in his favor by working a right cross to the former champion's head with great effect. He outweighed Attell by 11 pounds and was warned a number of times by the referee for tactics employed at close range and in the clinches. The decision was received with cheers.

AN EARLIER START AT ROCHESTER THIS YEAR.

After more than one year of agitation by the Rochester newspapers, ably backed by a majority of the fans, for an earlier starting time, President Chapin has finally heard the roar and acceded to their demands, at least half way. The rank and file asked that the games be called at 3:30 p. m., while a few brokers, bankers and their clerks held out for the old routine of starting the games at 4 p. m.

President Chapin finally consented to have all games called at 3:45 p. m., thus splitting the difference.

Travis Beaten.

Pinehurst, N. C., Mar. 11.—The sensational defeat of Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, formerly American and British champion, by Irving S. Robeson, of the Oakhill Country Club, Rochester, was the spectacular feature of Saturday's semi-final round in the eighth annual spring golf tournament. The match stood stroke for stroke to the nineteenth green. The remaining survivor in the principal division is C. N. Phillips, of Greenwich, who defeated E. L. Scofield, of Weeburn.

To Have Bowling Team.

Robert T. Skinner and Charles Pagliucca were appointed a special committee by Court Plainfield, No 1144, I. O. F., to organize a bowling team. Challenges will be issued to nearby courts, especially to Court Watchung. Prizes will be awarded the winning team in the series of games.

WHEN CATCHER LIVINGSTON FAILED TO INCREASE HIS BANK ACCOUNT.

Paddy Livingston, Cleveland catcher, couldn't be considered wealthy by any means, but he well remembers a time when he failed to increase his bank account merely because he wouldn't pick up $37 which was lying on the field waiting for him.

Paddy caught the first game of a double header in which Bull Durham performed in 1908. Indianapolis won the game by virtue of a lusty clout delivered by Paddy in the ninth inning. The fans, enthused by the great fight which the Indians were making for the American association pennant, tossed money on the field. Livingston watched the flow of coin for a moment, then hiked for the clubhouse.

"Ain't you going to gather the coin?" one of his teammates shouted. "Not me," Paddy hurled back.

There was a reason. Just a short time before Bill Hopkie had won a game for the Indians in a similar manner. He collected with hat in hand until reaching the bleachers.

"Why don't you get a monkey and grind organ?" one wild eyed bug screeched.

That's why Paddy didn't collect. Durham did, and the "collection" amounted to $37.

PLAINFIELD ELKS HARD PUSHED FOR SECOND PLACE

Hoboken Elks still hold the lead in the Elks' bowling tournament and with an increased lead over the locals from last week. The Elizabeth Bills have the highest average honor with a mark of 925-7.

Johnny Campbell slipped back a peg in the individual standing and the other members of the big five also lost ground on account of the indifferent pinning during the past week.

The team standing is as follows:

Penn's Swimmers Won.

Philadelphia, Mar. 11.—Pennsylvania swimmers carried off the bulk of the honors Saturday night in the individual swimming championships, held in the Weightman Hall pool. The stars of the meet were Captain Willis and John K. Shryock. The Penn captain not alone won the plunge for distance, but his figures, 80 feet, break his own American college record of 76 feet 6 inches, but comes within two feet of the world's record. Shryock was the star of the sprint races. He won the 50-yard dash from Coleman, of Columbia, in fast time, but in his heat he covered the distance in 50 seconds, which equals the American college record.

NO JONES IN AMERICAN.

Common Baseball Name Missing in Roster of Players This Season.

Baseball experts have discovered that for the first time in the history of the American league that organization seems likely to go through a season without a single player of the name of Jones.

Davy Jones of the Detroit Tigers and Tex Jones of the Chicago White Sox are the sole survivors. Both are said to be likely to spend the season on minor league teams. Four or five years ago Jones was a prominent name in baseball. There were Fielder Jones, famous leader of the world's champion White Sox; Davy Jones, considered the fastest runner in baseball; Charley Jones, one of the mainstays in the Washington outfield; Tom Jones, veteran of the St. Louis infield, and Bumpus Jones, pitcher for the Tigers.

BROKERS SAY "WILD CAT" BILL IS TOO SWEEPING

Newark, March 11.—Opposition to Assembly bill No. 479 is developing among the stock brokerage houses in this city and other places in the State. It is insisted by the brokers that while the backers of the bill probably had no such intention, the passage of the measure would serve to close the doors of all the stock exchange houses in business in New Jersey.

As the bill which was introduced by Assemblyman Gill, of Mercer, stands, its object is said to be the prevention of the sale of the securities of wildcat companies to innocent purchasers of stocks and bonds. The measure is also aimed at the operations of unprincipled promoters. In so far as that is concerned the stock exchange firms agree that the bill is all right, but they declare that the measure will do much more than this if it is made a law.

In cases where the business of a concern or individual is the selling of stocks and bonds or other securities they are required to file with the banking and insurance commissioner, not only the details of their own financial standing and responsibility, but statements covering the location, operations and finances of the companies whose securities they may offer for sale.

It is asserted by the brokers that under this provision they would be obliged in the daily transaction of their business to file at Trenton complete reports of every concern whose securities are listed on the New York Exchange and dealt in all over the world. To do that, it is insisted, would be impossible for many reasons, not the least of which is the fact that from some concerns whose securities are of undoubted value, detailed financial statements cannot be obtained.

The measure is said to have been fashioned after a Kansas law. It is likely that an effort will be made to have it reconsidered by the committee on banking and insurance of the House.

BELIEVES SCOTT ATTAINED POLE

Amundsen Thinks Success of Rival Probable.

WEATHER WAS PROPITIOUS

Explorer, Further Telling of His Own Achievement, Says Chief Difficulty of Final Dash Was In Scaling Great Heights—Once Reached 16,750 Feet.

London, March 11.—Captain Amundsen thinks it extremely probable that Captain Scott, the English explorer and polar aspirant, succeeded in reaching the south pole either before or after he reached the goal since the weather was very favorable for success. Such is the information received by the Daily Chronicle in an interview between Captain Amundsen and its correspondent at Hobart, Tasmania, where the captain is stopping.

Captain Amundsen said he hoped Captain Scott did get there, because he deserved to succeed. He, however, did not see the smallest sign of anybody having been there before him. Captain Scott, the Norwegian explorer said, could not have built a cairn for documents, because there were no stones there, only a wide snow plain. Of course, said Amundsen, it was possible that Captain Scott left some record which had afterward been destroyed by the weather, but it was so calm he did not think this likely. The explorer believes that calm weather ordinarily prevails at the south pole.

Captain Amundsen detailed some of his experiences more fully than they were told in his original dispatch. He said the chief troubles of the party arose from the necessity of ascending the heights. Six weeks were passed at great elevations. There was often difficulty in breathing, and sometimes it was a struggle for breath.

Some of the heights reached were 16,750 feet, but the pole itself was at a height of 10,500 feet.

The party never lacked food, said Amundsen, although the men had voracious appetites after a hard day's sledging. The dogs, which he reported killed in his original dispatch, had all been eaten. The fat of these, the explorer says, was "delicious," and he assures the world that it is no hardship to eat dog meat.

One of the most interesting narrations by Captain Amundsen is about the escapade of three of the dogs which at 83 degrees deserted the expedition. They returned to seek a dog which had been killed at 82½ degrees. The explorers on their return journey found that the deserters had discovered and partly devoured the corpse of the dog. What was left was stored in a snowheap for future use. The deserters also ate two other carcasses and raided one of the food depots. Amundsen does not say whether the deserters were recovered. Eleven dogs survived the expedition and are now on the Fram.

The Christmas dinner of the explorers was porridge. It was eaten on a mountain near the pole and thoroughly enjoyed.

Captain Amundsen says the trip furnished very hard work, but few adventures. His success in discovering the pole was due to his comrades and to the dogs and skees. The men and dogs were fat when they reached the Fram on their return, but had smaller appetites than when they started.

Washing and shaving was compulsorily foregone during the trip, but they trimmed their beard. Captain Amundsen pulled a tooth for one of the party.

The men who explored King Edward land reported that they saw an unknown bird which Captain Amundsen does not describe.

Captain Amundsen's arrival at Hobart, the correspondent says, caused great surprise and sensation. On landing from the harbor master's launch Amundsen got his mail and locked himself in his room.

CHINA'S PRESIDENT SWORN INTO OFFICE

Yuan Will Resign When Permanent Officer Is Chosen.

Peking, March 11.—Yuan Shih Kai was sworn in as president of the provisional republic of China at the waiwupu, or Chinese foreign office. The delegates from the Nanking assembly, a number of provincial representatives and other prominent persons, as well as the secretaries and military attaches of the American legation were present at the ceremony. The other foreign legations were not represented.

Yuan made an avowal of loyalty to the republic, which was supplemented by an oath that he would retire when a permanent president was chosen.

Extreme simplicity was the keynote of Yuan's inauguration. His declaration was very brief and may be translated:

"Since a republic has been founded there is much work to be done. I will try faithfully to develop the republic, remove the disabilities of absolutism, observe the constitutional laws, develop the country's welfare and bind the five races of the nation strongly together. When the national assembly appoints a permanent president I will retire. I swear this by the Chinese republic."

The president announced the appointment of Tang Shao Yi to be premier and of Wu Ting Fang, for years the Chinese minister to the United States, to be minister of justice.

Peking, March 11.—Requests for loans aggregating $300,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the government, the reconstruction of the whole revenue system and the development of the nation's resources have been tentatively made to foreign bankers by the men who will control the Chinese coalition government.

BOXING STOPPED IN PARIS.

Fatal Fight Brings Prohibitory Order From Prefect of Police.

Paris, March 11.—The boxing world is in a state of consternaion over an order issued by M. Lepine, the prefect of police, prohibiting boxing matches in future unless absolute guarantees are given that there will not be a fatal result. The order is the direct result of a fatal fight on Friday night, when Raphael Belli, a French boxer, died from the effects of a blow delivered by Evernden, an Englishman, with whom he was giving an exhibition. The public prosecution has opened an inquiry into Belli's death, and Evernden is under arrest charged with unintentionally having killed his opponent.

BOSTON REVOLTED.

When Commodore Knowles Worked His Press Gang In 1747.

In the year 1747 a great tumult was raised in the town of Boston. Commodore Knowles, while lying at Nantucket with a number of men of war, losing some of his men by desertion, thought it reasonable that Boston should supply him with as many men as he had lost. He therefore sent his boats uptown early in the morning and surprised not only as many seamen as could be found on board of any of the boats outward bound as well as others, but swept the wharfs, taking some ship carpenters' apprentices and landsmen.

This conduct was resented. As soon as it was dusk several people assembled in King street, below the town house, where the general court was sitting. Stones and brickbats were thrown into the council chamber through the windows. A judicious speech of the governor from the balcony, disapproving of the impress and promising his utmost endeavors to obtain the discharge of the persons impressed, had no effect. The seizure and restraint of the commanders and other officers who were in town were insisted upon as the only effectual method to procure the release of the inhabitants on board the ships. The militia was summoned in aid of the government, but refused to appear.

Letters in the meantime passed between the governor and the commodore. The council and house of representatives now passed some vigorous resolutions, and the tumultuous spirit began to subside. Finally the commodore dismissed most if not all of the inhabitants who had been impressed, and the squadron sailed.

NOISY FISHES.

The Skate Grunts, the Puffer Chuckles, and the Drumfish Booms.

Perhaps the most conspicuous example of the fishes that are capable of utterance is the drumfish, so called by reason of the deep, booming noise it produces at will. It is found along the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to Florida.

The squeteague, another salt water fish of the noisy variety, resembles in appearance the trout, and the not unmusical sound that it gives out is much like the note uttered by a big bullfrog. Allied to the squeteague is the fish known as "the croaker," which, as its popular name indicates, affects the croak—an unmistakable croak.

The sea robin, so called because it has crimson fins just behind its head, about the size of birds' wings, is an other fish that makes itself heard The "squawk" of the sea robin is especially emphatic when on being caught it lifts up its voice in reiterated protests.

There is a fish that may be said to chuckle—the little puffer or swellfish. It puffs itself into the shape of a perfect sphere and as it does so gives out a peculiar, hoarse chuckle.

The skate when caught grunts, groans and gasps pretty much after the manner of a human being in distress. Carp and goldfish frequently utter curious sounds, but hardly sounds in the meaning of the term here used, inasmuch as their sounds are produced by approaching the surface of the water and blowing out air in bubbles until a rippling noise is heard.—Denver Republican.

Sparrow Diet For a Stork.

An English sparrow flew into the flying cage in the zoo and began helping itself to the cracked corn thrown upon the ground by the keeper. A Brazilian stork quietly approached and shot out its six inch red beak and caught the sparrow. Going to the fountain, the big bird dipped the little one in the water and then swallowed it and looked about for more.

"Oh, you cannibal! You ought to get a beating!" exclaimed a woman visitor.

"The sparrow ought to know better than to go in there," explained the keeper. "The stork has been eating half a dozen of these birds a week since he came here. The English sparrow has a quick eye and is quick on the wing and is seldom caught by prowling cats, but doesn't suspect anything with feathers on. The big bird is getting fat on a sparrow diet."—New York Sun.

True to His Promise.

"Dearest, will you let me share your every sorrow after we are married?" she whispered as she cuddled her cheek against his.

"Yes, darling," he replied, again plucking a delicious kiss from her sweet lips.

It was the same lady who two years later wearily cried out:

"Oh, Tom, why can't you ever come into the house without bringing a tale of trouble with you? I'm so sick of hearing about how hard you have to work to keep the bills paid."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Funny Metaphor.

The late King Edward when he was Prince of Wales once made a funny mixture of metaphors. In reply to certain inquiries and admonitions he said, "I will do my best to walk in my father's footsteps, which you have held up for my imitation."

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, was held at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, New Jersey, on Thursday afternoon, February 15, 1912, at 2:30 o'clock.

Present—Director Cady and Freeholders Bourdon, Crane, Darby, Doane, Fay, Gruener, Hennessy, Jones, Krouse, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Randolph, Smith and Wilbur.

Absent—Freeholders Acken Hall, McMane and Teller.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur the reading of minutes of meeting February 1, 1912, was dispensed with.

Communications.

Board of Freeholders, County of Union Courthouse, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Gentlemen—The writer, owner of house marked "A" on enclosed plan, wishes to get consent to cross North avenue to move it upon position marked "B." Will move house a little different than shown in plan, keeping it off North avenue until at right angles to point of crossing. Will be about three hours in crossing keeping at all times a clear way for vehicles.

As the Township of Cranford has agreed to close Elizabeth or Lincoln avenue, I assume it unnecessary to secure permit for this road.

My contractor wishes to commence on this job first of next week. Will you kindly inform me if any other form is necessary to secure consent of Freeholders, and just to who to apply to if a personal representation is necessary?

February 8, 1912.

Yours very truly,
C. A. VAN BEUREN.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener, this request was referred to the County Road Committee with power.

Mr. Edward Rowe, Clerk of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Referring to your favor of January 9, in relation to lighting of the county roads as provided for in section 3 of the ordinance, upon investigation we find that much of this lighting is already done, and it appears to us possibly the best method of adjustment would be for the company to assume its proper share of the lighting charge.

With this in view will you kindly arrange at your early convience for a meeting with the proper members of the board and a representative of this company to take up this matter for adjustment?

Very truly yours,
THE MORRIS COUNTY TRACTION COMPANY.
O. G. SCHULTZ,
Secretary and Treasurer.

On motion by Freeholder Meisel, this request was referred to the County Road Committee and the County Attorney.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON COUNTY ROADS.

Elizabeth, N. J., February 15, 1912.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on County Roads would report as follows:

At the meeting of this board on November 2, 1911, the following named streets and roads were adopted for improvement under the State Aid Road Act of 1905:

South avenue, in the City of Plainfield, from Richmond street to Terril road.

Newark avenue, in the City of Elizabeth, from North Broad street to Newark city line.

Westfield avenue, in the City of Elizabeth, from Morris avenue to Bayway.

Rahway avenue, in the City of Elizabeth, from Broad street, to the city line.

Plans and specifications for the improvement of these four streets were adopted by the board on December 7, 1911.

Your committee thereupon took up the matter of the improvement of these streets with the State Commissioner of Public Roads whose consent and approval is necessary to the securing of State aid.

Complete plans and specifications and detailed information was furnished the commissioner, and it was pointed out that these four streets were used very largely by through traffic, and that each one furnished an essential line in any county or State highway system.

It has been impossible, however, to secure the aproval of these streets by the State Road Commissioner. The ground that was taken by the commissioner in his refusal was that, although the State Aid Act did not expressly prohibit the construction of roads in or through cities, the intention of the act was to that effect. He stated that other counties had asked for State aid for roads that lay within cities, as for instance, Newark, Jersey City, etc., and that if such aid was granted to Union County for roads in the cities of Elizabeth and Plainfield, it would open the way for the construction of roads in other cities, and the entire State appropriation could thus be spent easily. He pointed out that such results would prohibit the construction of roads in country districts, which, he claimed was the intent of the State Road Act.

Your committee has labored for some six weeks or two months past to convince the State Commissioner of Public Roads that these four streets should be adopted under the State Aid Act by him. The commissioner has refused such approval, as stated.

All the county roads in Union county constructed to date have been constructed in one of two ways. First, under the old so-called county bonding act of 1889, and the second, under the State Aid Act of 1905.

Having failed in its endeavor to secure favorable action on these four streets under the State Aid Act, your committee is of the opinion that the four streets should be adopted and improved under the county bonding act of 1889.

The crying need for the improvement with some substantial pavement of these four streets, especially the three in the City of Elizabeth, is patent to all who have a knowledge of the situation.

It is estimated that the cost of the work would be approximately as follows:

South avenue, Plainfield, paved for width of 13 feet with amiesite or similar material, $20,750.

Newark avenue, Elizabeth, paved with asphalt blocks on present telford base; bitulithic pavement on present base; or with specification granite blocks on concrete base; from $36,200 to $58,075, according to pavement adopted.

Westfield avenue, Elizabeth, paved with amiesite or simliar material for width of 16 feet, $15,000.

Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, paved with asphalt blocks adjoining Courthouse, full width between curbs; asphalt blocks or bithulithic pavement 20 feet wide, Union to Cherry street, and amiesite or simliar material, 20 feet wide, from Cherry street to city line, $25,767.

The total estimated cost of the streets is therefore $97,717 to $139,592, depending on the material used.

Your committee would therefore recommend that the action of this board in adopting the streets named as State aid roads be recinded, and that the four streets named shall be duly adopted to be improved under the county road act of 1889.

HENRY KROUSE,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
PETER H. MEISEL,
CHAS. A. SMITH,
THOMAS J. PIERSON.
Committee.

On motion by Freeholder Guener this report was received and ordered placed on file.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Krouse:

SIGNOR MARCONI.

Wireless Inventor Who Has Sailed For the United States.

MARCONI IS COMING.

Famous Wireless Inventor Sails on Business Trip to America.

London, March 11.—Signor Marconi and Godfrey Isaacs, managing director of the principal Marconi company, have sailed for New York.

Both Marconi and Isaacs were reticent regarding their trip. Mr. Isaacs said that it was partly connected with the new stations just announced and that important developments might result from their visit to America.

TAFT TALKS ON MISSIONS.

Makes Short Address to Congregation After Hearing Sermon.

Chicago, March 11.—President Taft will arrive late today in Washington from Chicago, where he spent Sunday quietly.

Mr. Taft attended divine service at the First Methodist church and listened to a sermon by the Rev. Ernest Wray O'Neal, pastor. After the sermon, the Rev. Dr. O'Neal said:

"We are honored by the presence of William Howard Taft, the president of the United States. The congregation will appreciate a short address by the president."

Mr. Taft accepted the invitation and, entering the pulpit, spoke for a few minutes upon missionary work. He commended the efforts of the missionaries to spread Christianity among the heathen peoples of the world, and he expressed the belief that they are making great headway in gaining converts. He rebuked the people who scoff at the missionaries.

"I believe," Mr. Taft said," that even though we have places where home missionary work is essential, that is no reason why missionaries should not be sent into foreign fields to Christianize the heathen."

Mr. Taft took luncheon with a party of politicians. Among those present were Governor Deneen of Illinois, Governor Eberhardt of Minnesota, Mayor Carter H. Harrison, Congressman Foss, David R. Forgan, Frederick W. Upham, Charles G. Dawes and Postmaster Campbell.

PIERCE ARMOR AT 14 MILES.

Plans For Wonderful Sixteen Inch Gun Completed by Navy.

Washington, March 11.—Plans for a sixteen inch naval gun that will hurl a 2,000 pound shell and penetrate armor at fourteen miles, the most gigantic and powerful piece of ordnance yet contrived, are now complete. Recognizing the truth in part of Hiram Maxim's belief long before he expressed it, that battleships of tremendous gun power and almost incredible speed will soon rule the seas, the navy department many months ago got actively to work.

The sixteen inch gun, which will be able to reach an enemy beyond the horizon, is the first result.

REPEATED AEROPLANE LEAP.

But This Time Berry Had a Narrow Escape From Death.

St. Louis, March 11.—Albert Berry, the first man to make a parachute jump from an aeroplane, narrowly escaped a fatal fall when he leaped from the Benoist biplane at 700 feet.

For a second his death seemed imminent, for the parachute was for that instant nearer the ground than the jumper, and he was in danger of falling into its folds and preventing its opening. The parachute, however, swung rapidly into the proper position for a safe drop, opening fully when about 150 feet from the aeroplane, and Berry landed safely.

F. J. BLATZ WINS LEGAL BATTLE FOR HENRY HAURAND.

The Court of Errors and Appeals has given a decision in favor of Henry Haurand in the action brought against him by Mrs. Josephine A. Mason, of Jersey City, to recover rent alleged to be due for the store at 115 East Front street. The decision upholds the verdict of nonsuit granted Mr. Haurand by Judge Vail in the Union County Court when the case was first argued about a year ago.

In December the case was argued in the court of Errors and Appeals. Justice Charles E. Parker wrote the opinion upholding Judge Vail's decision. Francis J. Blatz was counsel for Mr. Haurand.

SUNDAY SELLER FINED $25 BY CITY JUDGE DE MEZA.

Morris Duesch, one of the proprietors of a cigar and confectionary store at Watchung avenue and Fourth street, was arraigned in the city court today, charged with ignoring both his own and the Christian Sabbath. He was fined $25 by Judge William G. DeMeza, chiefly because his attitude in court was studiously insolent. He told the magistrate, defiantly, after sentence was passed, that he intended carrying the case to "the grand jury." His partner paid the fine.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS FELT IN MANY CITIES

Cambridge, March 11.—An earthquake, which may have occurred in Cuba or other islands of the West Indies or in Mexico, was recorded on the Harvard seismograph between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning.

Washington, March 11.—Earthquake shocks of unusual intensity were recorded on the seismographs of Georgetown University early today. Father Torndroff said that the first shock began at 5:30 o'clock and continued for twenty-five minutes, the most marked disturbance occurring at 5:40 o'clock.

Cleveland, March 11.—Earthquake shocks continuing for almost forty minutes early today are believed by Father Odenbach, of St. Ignatius' Acadamy, to have extended to Cuba or further south.

HIS CODE MESSAGE.

It Wasn't Quite So Mysterious as He Intended It to Be.

The frequency with which revolutions occur in Latin American lands makes them "anybody's game," and as a result of this many persons without experience either in conspiracy or battle are likely at any moment to find themselves conspirators and warriors. One of these novices at the gentle art of "revoluting" is the hero of the tale which follows, a favorite in a certain South American republic.

The novice in question, having suddenly acquired a violent distaste for the president of his native land, rushed away from home in a great rage and enlisted in the revolutionary ranks. The next thing he knew he was detailed to raise troops in a certain district.

It was explained to him that he must envelop all his acts in dark secrecy. In order the better to accomplish this the revolutionary commander told the novice that whenever he felt called upon to pen a dispatch he must couch it in the terms of a code, so that government officers might not guess the meaning of any dispatch if it fell into their hands.

The novice promised to follow instructions to the letter. A few weeks later he had collected a force of soldiers and desired to acquaint revolutionary headquarters with the fact. Taking his copy of the code from his pocket, he duly noted that "cow" was the code word for soldier and "cigar" the one for rifle.

He sat down and wrote a dispatch. It fell into the enemy's hands. It was conceived in these cryptic terms:

"I have the honor to report that I have 200 cows and 150 cigars, but the cows have no shoes and the cigars no bayonets."—New York Times.

A Good Work.

Edith was light hearted and merry over everything. Nothing appealed to her seriously. So one day her mother decided to invite a very serious young parson to dinner, and he was placed next the light hearted girl. Everything went well until she asked him:

"You speak of everybody having a mission. What is yours?"

"My mission," said the parson, "is to save young men."

"Good," replied the girl. "I'm glad to meet you. I wish you'd save one for me."

Two Wedding Texts.

John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, "the signer," married two sisters, the daughters of a noted Methodist divine in Connecticut. John Quincy was a favorite with the old people, and Mary's choice was approved by them. So when the banns were published the parent said, "Mary, if you will furnish the text I will preach you a wedding sermon." She was equal to the task and gave the text, "Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken from her." Needless to say that justice was done to the occasion and the text.

Not so with Margaret, who in the meanwhile was receiving the attentions of her John in a very inexpensive way, as far as her parents were concerned, for it is said that "he never crossed his legs under their festive board." So, when the banns were published she said to her father: "Father, you preached a wedding sermon for Mary. Cannot you preach one for me?" He at first demurred, but at last consented and called for the text, when Margaret, who was equal to the occasion, said, "And John came, neither eating nor drinking, and yet ye say he hath a devil."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

—"I don't wemember what I ate, but I had an awful dweam." "What was it, old chap?" "I dweamed my valet went away without lacing my shoes."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

WANTS VERDICT OF THE PEOPLE

T. R. Renews Demand For Primary.

ATTACKS HIS OPPONENTS.

Says He Will Cheerfully Bow to the Decision of the People, but Will Object to Having the Issue Decided Against Him by "Spoils Politicians."

Washington, March 11.—Renewing his demand for the presidential primary and charging Mr. Taft and his followers in effect with regarding the present conquest as a "game" to be played for the purpose of winning a personal prize, a game in which the interests of the people are at stake, but in which they have no choice, Colonel Roosevelt in a letter to his manager, Senator Dixon, reviews the recent interchange of communications between Senator Dixon and Congressman McKinley, the Taft manager, and tells what he thinks of the issues involved. The letter says in part:

My Dear Senator Dixon—I have seen your correspondence with Mr. McKinley. You proposed to him that as far as possible the selection of the Republican candidate for the presidency should be determined by the voters of the party in preferential presidential primaries. Mr. McKinley's answer is contained in one sentence in the letter sent you:

"I do not favor changes in the rules of the game while the game is in progress."

The point of view expressed in that sentence contains the issue within the Republican party at this time. We who stand for the progressive cause, for the cause of honest and genuine democracy, genuine representative government, hold that a public contest between parties or within parties is not carried on as a game, is not carried on for the purpose of winning prizes for the contestants or with a view to the general wishes or welfare of any one man. We hold that it should be carried on for the purpose of ascertaining and putting into effect the will of the people, so that the people may jointly do for themselves what no man can do so well for them. We hold that the laws that govern elections and govern party organizations should not be treated as rules which are fit subjects for tricky manipulation by contestants for a prize. We hold that as far as possible the laws should be treated as rules to ascertain the will of those whom the public officials and party officials are supposed to represent. In sum, therefore, we hold that the object of this contest is not to secure rewards for individuals, but to secure the more effective government of the people by the people and for the people.

Our opponents, on the contrary, take Mr. McKinley's view that we are engaged in a game in which the interests of the people, it is true, are at stake, but in which the people themselves are not having their voice. Mr. McKinley's position was stated with frank cynicism by Congressman Campbell on behalf of the reactionary element in the Republican party when in a recent speech in New Hampshire he is quoted as "rousing the greatest enthusiasm by declaring that the Republican party does not believe in an appeal from the umpire to the bleachers." Mr. Campbell has simply stated more frankly the view held (as is evident by Mr. McKinley's statement) generally among our opponents. Their feeling is that politics is a game, that the people should simply sit on the bleachers as spectators and that no appeal lies to the people from the men who for their own profit are playing the game.

Therefore we demand that states like Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts and New York, be given the chance to express their preference in presidential primaries as to whom they wish for president. Practically the entire body of professional politicians are pitted against us in this contest, and in every state and in every congressional district they are led by the officeholders, who, with the example before them of what was done in connection with the nominations for local offices in North Carolina, are working as we have rarely seen them work in American political life. Against such forces it is in any event difficult enough for the ordinary plain citizens who have only the general welfare at heart to win, but it becomes well nigh impossible for these plain citizens to give expression to the popular will when there is no popular primary. The convention system in our party was founded on the theory that it would represent and not thwart the popular will. When, as is too often now the case, it is turned into an instrument to be used for the direct overthrow of the popular will then it does not represent but thoroughly and mischievously misrepresents the party and the people.

There never was a straighter fight waged for the people of popular rule than that which we are now waging. We are fighting against intrenched privilege, both political privilege and financial privilege. We believe that if given a fair chance the people will declare against both political and financial privilege. Therefore we demand that they be given that fair chance.

If the people decide against us we will bow cheerfully to the decision, confident that they will in the end see that the cause for which we fight is indeed the cause of human rights and human welfare, but we very emphatically object here in this democracy and within the confines of the party which claims Abraham Lincoln as its national founder to having the issue decided against us not by the people, but by the spoils politicians and patronage mongers who are engaged in defrauding the American people out of their first and most elemental right, the right to self government. Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Another Gold Stampede.

Calgary, Canada, March 11.—Wild excitement has been caused here by reports of a fabulously rich gold find at Cochrane. Details are meager, for the men arriving here with rich samples are reticent. A stampede has started from here. The find was made on the Ghost river in a mountainous region, and it is said the gold exists there in large quantities.

MAKE PRISONERS WORK, HE URGES

Major Irwin, Tells Local Suffragists it Would Mean Great Saving to Taxpayers.

LAUDS PROBATION SYSTEM

It Has Saved County $17,560 In Five Years—Praise for Police Chief and City Judge—Miss Philbrook Talks On Civics.

"Probation and Jail Work," was the subject of an instructive talk given by Major Irwin, county probation officer, before the Equal Suffrage League, of Plainfield and North Plainfield, at the league's headquarters in the Babcock building. The speaker declared himself to be strongly in favor of putting the county prisoners to work, believing that it would be beneficial to the prisoners themselves, and at the same time mean a saving to the taxpayers of the county.

Major Irwin told of the growth of the probation system in the State from its inception in 1903 through the initiative of Governor J. Franklin Fort and the late Mrs. Emily Williamson, to the present efficiency, in seventeen out of the twenty-one counties. He claimed that the probation system has saved $17,560 to Union county in five years. From those arrested for first offenses eighty per cent. are saved from jail and other institutions through the probation plan and juvenile courts.

In passing, Major Irwin congratulated the people of Plainfield for its efficient chief of police, praised City Judge William G. DeMeza and declared that this municipality is a well governed and highly favored community. But here, as elsewhere, he said, he felt the need of social centres in the public schools and properly supervised places of amusement for the young.

The speaker made a plea for more watchfulness over the children and youth on the part of parents and teachers, for help for the State institutions which he said are lamentably overcrowded and lastly for a keener and more personal interest in the prison and paroled prisoners. He touched on many cases of men being arrested for non-support and desertion, referring to the lazy, loafing bum, who welcomes a chance to be cared for at the expense of the county. It is this class of men that Major Irwin believes should be put to work and made to do something toward supporting themselves. He said that the plan had been tried elsewhere and was a success.

The seventh lecture in the course on "Civics" was given by Miss Mary Philbrook, who accompanied Major Irwin. The county system of government, its beginning in England, its development in America and its present form in New Jersey were briefly outlined by the lecturer. Her remarks were somewhat along the line of those by Major Irwin and the two speakers afforded a pleasant and profitable afternoon for the members of the Equal Suffrage League.

FOUND RARE COPIES OF NEW YORK PAPERS

Jacob Marees, chauffeur for Ernest Sharp, of Evergreen avenue, while cleaning up about the Maltby house on Plainfield avenue, which property was purchased by Mr. Sharp, unearthed about a dozen copies of the New York Herald, published in 1863-1865; also copies of the New York Sun and Newark papers as far back as 1830.

There was a copy of the New York Herald of April 10, 1865, containing the correspondence between Generals Grant and Lee regarding the surrender of Gen. Lee of the Army of Northern Virginia, July 31, 1863, with an account of the siege of Fort Wagner; April 15, 1865, with an account of assassination of Lincoln, as well as copies of the Herald with stories of Lincoln's first inauguration, the inauguration ball, the speech of Bishop Simpson at the funeral of Lincoln, and one of March 6, 1865, telling of the capture of the Rebel General Early. The papers are all in excellent state of preservation.

GROVES' BILL AFFECTS OUR EDUCATION BOARD

William S. Tyler and Frank H. Smith Appear Before House Committee to Urge Change of Measure so as to Not Disturb Local Board.

Trenton, March. 12.—At the meeting of the House Committee on Education yesterday, the question was raised whether or not Assemblyman Groves' bills to validate appointments made under the school act of last year would meet the conditions. Mr. Groves explained that the measures were prepared by the attorney-general's department and were calculated to cover the situation.

The cities of Elizabeth, Hoboken and Bayonne are the ones to be benefited. Mayor Martin Cooke, of Hoboken, raised the question of the validity of the new bills and the committee said the question would be investigated further.

Frank H. Smith, registrar of deeds in Union County, said that Plainfield has a board of five members and does not want that number disturbed. He urged that the bill be worded so as not to effect that municipality. William S. Tyler, president of the Plainfield Board of Education, spoke along the same lines.

Richard E. Clement, superintendent of Elizabeth schools, said that Elizabeth wants a law that will be stable and constitutional, as its intends to erect a High School. The disposal of bonds would be difficult, he pointed out, if there is to be a question of the right to office of the school boards.

CITY SEEKS INJUNCTION

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, March 12.—Application was made to Attorney General Wilson for the right to use his name on information in the Court of Chancery in injunction proceedings to restrain the Plainfield Union Water Company from supplying water to nearby municipalities, here today. The Attorney General took the application under advisement, reserving decision. Mayor Moy and other officials were present.

It was claimed that the act of 1869 under which the Plainfield Union Water Company was incorporated, does not confer the power. Albert C. Wall, of Jersey City, appeared for the city of Plainfield and Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, represented the water company. Several other towns adjacent to Plainfield and meant in the prayed for injunction were also represented, but the only argument made was by Mr. Wall and Mr. Bergen.

TRENTON INVADED BY SUFFRAGISTS

Legislature Stormed by New Jersey Advocates of 'Votes For Women.'

(Special from Staff Correspondent.)

Trenton, Mar. 12.—While they are in Trenton today to urge their right to the ballots, the representatives of the New Jersey women's clubs will be accorded a hearing by the House Committee on Education to advance their reasons why women should be given places on the boards of education. Assemblyman Hennessy has introduced a bill to accomplish this and the committee will be urged to report the measure.

Practically, the entire membership of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield is attending the hearing, having gone to Trenton on the "women's special" train.

The hearing was held before the judiciary committee in the Assembly chamber, the women taking bodily possession of the chamber, overflowing into the gallery, and, in fact every available space was occupied. Two hundred women reached Trenton on the "special train." All the women carried the yellow pennant on which appeared the words, "Votes for New Jersey Women."

Mrs. George T. Vickers, of Jersey City, introduced the speakers. Among those who spoke in favor of the adoption of the proposed resolution were Mrs. Vickers, Mrs. Clara V. Laddy, representing the legislative committee of Women's Clubs; Miss Melinda Scott, representing the Hat Trimmers' Union, of Newark; Mrs. Henry Villard, of New York; Mrs. Charlotte Stetson Hillman; Assistant Prosecutor George T. Vickers, of Hudson county; Linton Satterthwait, of Trenton.

Mrs. Clark Fisher, of Trenton, was one of those who opposed the passage of the resolution. Mrs. Fisher is the owner of a large steel plant in Trenton. She opened the argument for the "antis" and rather "knocked" those who favored the resolution. Miss Minnie Bronson, of Washington, D. C., also spoke against the resolution, declaring it was not necessary to better the condition of women. She also said that there are thousands of women who do not want equal suffrage.

CITIES MAY SUPERVISE LIGHT, HEAT AND POWER

Senate Bill Gives Municipalities Right to Provide by Ordinance For Inspection of Public Utilities, Service.

(Special from Staff Correspondent)

Trenton, Mar. 12.—Provisions for the regulation and inspection by any city of electrical wires, appliances and currents for furnishing light, heat and power, are contained in a bill introduced in the Senate last night by Senator Leavitt, of Mercer County. It provides that the governing body of any city may provide by ordinance for such regulation and inspection.

The govering body is to appoint an inspector or inspectors at a compensation to be fixed by it. After the passage of such an ordinance no electrical wires, appliances or currents shall be used which shall not have been inspected and approved.

It is provided that after the passage of such an ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person to refuse to supply electrical current upon written certificate of the inspector approving the construction of wires and appliances, and it is made unlawful for any company to exact any fee for inspection. The provisions of the bill are to be enforced by the Public Utility Commission and the Banking and Insurance Department.

Senator Leavitt also put in the duplicate of the bill by Assemblyman Holcombe providing for free traffic on all the Delaware River bridges. The committee in the House has refused to report the bill there.

BETTER HEAT AND AIR FOR N. P. H. S.

Need of the $18,000 Bond Issue Explained to Interested Boro Voters.

AN ANNUAL SAVING OF $500

Proposed New System Will Cut Heating Maintenance In Half and Do Away With Necessity For Running Thirteen Separate Fires.

The need of a new system of ventilating and heating the North Plainfield High School was emphasized to the small number of citizens who attended the public hearing in the Somerset street school last night. While the attendance not as large as desired by the Board of Education, the members expressed satisfaction over the interest shown by those who did attend and the opinions voiced regarding the project. Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the board, was chairman of the meeting.

According to the requirements of the State Board of Education, each school must be equipped with a ventilating system that will supply each child with 30 cubic feet of air per hour, heated to 70 degrees. Seven rooms in the borough High School are 25 per cent. deficient in this respect and the building as a whole is 10 per cent. deficient.

The new system, if installed, will be guaranteed to heat all rooms and halls to the required temperature and at the same time supply the required ventilation. It will do away with thirteen fires that are now necessary. The building is in three sections and each section has its own heating problem under the present conditions.

The cost of maintenance of the present heating plants is about $1,000 annually. The saving on coal consumption by the new system over the present plants is estimated at $500 annually and it is calculated that this saving would pay the interest on the bond issue of $18,000 and help in retiring it. The bond issue is to be voted on at the annual meeting, Tuesday, March 19, is $18,000.
